Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to read and write a range of workplace documents in a language other than English at a high level of complexity and fluency, including summarising texts, and reproducing information from texts in one language to prepare a text in another.

The unit does not cover interpreting and translating skills, which are described in units of competency in the PSP04 Public Sector Training Package.

There is no direct parity with any formal language proficiency ratings or assessment framework, but this unit broadly relates to International Second Language Proficiency Ratings (ISLPR) 4 to 4+.

Application of the Unit

This unit applies to all industry contexts and to individuals working at different levels of responsibility. This could include frontline, supervisory or management personnel.

This unit may be customised for training delivery and assessment of proficiency in any language. For reporting purposes, recognition is limited to those languages listed below which are of importance to the tourism industry. A specific code has been allocated for each of these languages. Each language must be indicated in brackets after the unit title.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to read and write a range of workplace documents in a language other than English at a high level of complexity and fluency, including summarising texts, and reproducing information from texts in one language to prepare a text in another.

The unit does not cover interpreting and translating skills, which are described in units of competency in the PSP04 Public Sector Training Package.

There is no direct parity with any formal language proficiency ratings or assessment framework, but this unit broadly relates to International Second Language Proficiency Ratings (ISLPR) 4 to 4+.

Application of the Unit

This unit applies to all industry contexts and to individuals working at different levels of responsibility. This could include frontline, supervisory or management personnel.

This unit may be customised for training delivery and assessment of proficiency in any language. For reporting purposes, recognition is limited to those languages listed below which are of importance to the tourism industry. A specific code has been allocated for each of these languages. Each language must be indicated in brackets after the unit title.

For example: SITXLAN3403 Read and write documents in a language other than English (Cantonese).

3.6 Write documents with minimal errors so that intended meaning is clearly conveyed to the reader.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- literacy skills in a language other than English to:
  - read and interpret information and workplace documents that include some complex ideas and concepts
  - write documents that require clear and fluent expression of information and ideas
  - appropriately structure texts
  - use language tailored to the requirements of the situation.

Required knowledge

- linguistic knowledge and writing conventions for the language being assessed, including:
  - grammar, spelling and punctuation conventions
  - social, workplace and cultural conventions
  - ways to convey nuances of meaning
- technical vocabulary for specific workplace activities
- standard formats and protocols for a range of workplace documents relevant to the workplace.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure use of: • a real or simulated workplace activity where written communication in languages other than English is required • industry documents, such as reports and promotional materials written in languages other than English.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • review of written communications prepared by the individual • written and oral questioning to assess the individual's ability to interpret workplace documents • written or oral questioning to assess cultural knowledge and cross-cultural communication considerations • written or oral questioning to assess linguistic knowledge, generic structure and other specific language features, such as vocabulary and sentence structure • review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.
Guidance information for assessment	The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example: • BSBWRT401A Write complex documents • SITTTSL304 Prepare quotations • SITTTSL307 Process travel-related documentation.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

workplace documents.

3.6 Write documents with minimal errors so that intended meaning is clearly conveyed to the reader.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- literacy skills in a language other than English to:
  - read and interpret information and workplace documents that include some complex ideas and concepts
  - write documents that require clear and fluent expression of information and ideas
  - appropriately structure texts
  - use language tailored to the requirements of the situation.

Required knowledge

- linguistic knowledge and writing conventions for the language being assessed, including:
  - grammar, spelling and punctuation conventions
  - social, workplace and cultural conventions
  - ways to convey nuances of meaning
- technical vocabulary for specific workplace activities
- standard formats and protocols for a range of workplace documents relevant to the workplace.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

Evidence of the ability to:

- read and write workplace documents required to fulfil a given job role in a language other than English:
  - read and write a range of workplace documents
  - write documents with clear and fluent expression of information and ideas, correct structure and appropriate style and tone for the audience and workplace situation (rare linguistic errors may occur).

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure use of:

- a real or simulated workplace activity where written communication in languages other than English is required
- industry documents, such as reports and promotional materials written in languages other than English.

Method of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- review of written communications prepared by the individual
- written and oral questioning to assess the individual's ability to interpret workplace documents
- written or oral questioning to assess cultural knowledge and cross-cultural communication considerations
- written or oral questioning to assess linguistic knowledge, generic structure and other specific language features, such as vocabulary and sentence structure
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment

The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example:

- BSBWRT401A Write complex documents
- SITTTSL304 Prepare quotations
- SITTTSL307 Process travel-related documentation.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Workplace documents to be read and informally interpreted may include:

- brochures and promotional material
- conference programs
- correspondence

- manuals
- menus and wine lists
- reports
- reservations information
- schedules and itineraries.

Documents requiring professional translation may include:

- complex contractual documents
- complex proposals, submissions and tenders.

Written workplace documents may include:

- correspondence
- menus and wine lists
- promotional material
- quotations
- reservations information
- schedules and itineraries
- simple manuals
- simple reports.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to read and write a range of workplace documents in a language other than English at a high level of complexity and fluency, including summarising texts, and reproducing information from texts in one language to prepare a text in another.

The unit does not cover interpreting and translating skills, which are described in units of competency in the PSP04 Public Sector Training Package.

There is no direct parity with any formal language proficiency ratings or assessment framework, but this unit broadly relates to International Second Language Proficiency Ratings (ISLPR) 4 to 4+.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- literacy skills in a language other than English to:
  - read and interpret information and workplace documents that include some complex ideas and concepts
  - write documents that require clear and fluent expression of information and ideas
  - appropriately structure texts
  - use language tailored to the requirements of the situation.

Required knowledge

- linguistic knowledge and writing conventions for the language being assessed, including:
  - grammar, spelling and punctuation conventions
  - social, workplace and cultural conventions
  - ways to convey nuances of meaning
- technical vocabulary for specific workplace activities
- standard formats and protocols for a range of workplace documents relevant to the workplace.

Evidence Guide

Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure use of: • a real or simulated workplace activity where written communication in languages other than English is required • industry documents, such as reports and promotional materials written in languages other than English.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • review of written communications prepared by the individual • written and oral questioning to assess the individual's ability to interpret workplace documents • written or oral questioning to assess cultural knowledge and cross-cultural communication considerations • written or oral questioning to assess linguistic knowledge, generic structure and other specific language features, such as vocabulary and sentence structure • review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.
Guidance information for assessment	The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example: • BSBWRT401A Write complex documents • SITTTSL304 Prepare quotations • SITTTSL307 Process travel-related documentation.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Workplace documents to be read and informally interpreted may include:	• brochures and promotional material • conference programs • correspondence

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to read and write a range of workplace documents in a language other than English at a high level of complexity and fluency, including summarising texts, and reproducing information from texts in one language to prepare a text in another.

The unit does not cover interpreting and translating skills, which are described in units of competency in the PSP04 Public Sector Training Package.

There is no direct parity with any formal language proficiency ratings or assessment framework, but this unit broadly relates to International Second Language Proficiency Ratings (ISLPR) 4 to 4+.

Application of the Unit

This unit applies to all industry contexts and to individuals working at different levels of responsibility. This could include frontline, supervisory or management personnel.

This unit may be customised for training delivery and assessment of proficiency in any language. For reporting purposes, recognition is limited to those languages listed below which are of importance to the tourism industry. A specific code has been allocated for each of these languages. Each language must be indicated in brackets after the unit title.

Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure use of: • a real or simulated workplace activity where written communication in languages other than English is required • industry documents, such as reports and promotional materials written in languages other than English.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • review of written communications prepared by the individual • written and oral questioning to assess the individual's ability to interpret workplace documents • written or oral questioning to assess cultural knowledge and cross-cultural communication considerations • written or oral questioning to assess linguistic knowledge, generic structure and other specific language features, such as vocabulary and sentence structure • review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.
Guidance information for assessment	The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example: • BSBWRT401A Write complex documents • SITTTSL304 Prepare quotations • SITTTSL307 Process travel-related documentation.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Workplace documents to be read and informally interpreted may include:	• brochures and promotional material • conference programs • correspondence

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to read and write a range of workplace documents in a language other than English at a high level of complexity and fluency, including summarising texts, and reproducing information from texts in one language to prepare a text in another.

The unit does not cover interpreting and translating skills, which are described in units of competency in the PSP04 Public Sector Training Package.

There is no direct parity with any formal language proficiency ratings or assessment framework, but this unit broadly relates to International Second Language Proficiency Ratings (ISLPR) 4 to 4+.

Application of the Unit

This unit applies to all industry contexts and to individuals working at different levels of responsibility. This could include frontline, supervisory or management personnel.

This unit may be customised for training delivery and assessment of proficiency in any language. For reporting purposes, recognition is limited to those languages listed below which are of importance to the tourism industry. A specific code has been allocated for each of these languages. Each language must be indicated in brackets after the unit title.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to read and write a range of workplace documents in a language other than English at a high level of complexity and fluency, including summarising texts, and reproducing information from texts in one language to prepare a text in another.

The unit does not cover interpreting and translating skills, which are described in units of competency in the PSP04 Public Sector Training Package.

There is no direct parity with any formal language proficiency ratings or assessment framework, but this unit broadly relates to International Second Language Proficiency Ratings (ISLPR) 4 to 4+.

Application of the Unit

This unit applies to all industry contexts and to individuals working at different levels of responsibility. This could include frontline, supervisory or management personnel.

This unit may be customised for training delivery and assessment of proficiency in any language. For reporting purposes, recognition is limited to those languages listed below which are of importance to the tourism industry. A specific code has been allocated for each of these languages. Each language must be indicated in brackets after the unit title.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to produce, using standard recipes, specialist cakes and sponges which require finish, decoration and presentation of a high order. It requires the ability to select, prepare and portion ingredients and to use equipment and a range of cookery methods to make, fill, assemble and decorate specialist cakes and sponges.

The making of basic cakes is covered in SITHPAT301 Produce cakes.

Application of the Unit

Specialised cakes include sponges, gateaux, torten, sweet pastes and meringues. This unit applies to hospitality and catering organisations which produce and serve specialist patisserie products including hotels, restaurants and patisseries.

It applies to patissiers who usually work under the guidance of more senior chefs.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

Evidence of the ability to:

- follow standard recipes to produce and decorate specialist cakes and sponges including:
  - cakes and sponges used as bases
  - commercial sponges
  - Genoise sponges
  - sponge fingers
  - Swiss rolls
  - those for weddings, birthdays and special occasions
- produce multiple cakes of the same type that are consistent in quality, size, shape and appearance
- integrate knowledge of:
  - quality indicators for ingredients
  - cookery methods for specialist cakes and sponges
  - essential features, functions and safe use of food preparation equipment
  - food safety practices for handling and storing cakes and sponges
- produce cakes within commercial time constraints.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure use of:

- an operational pastry kitchen with the fixtures, large and small equipment and workplace documentation defined in the Assessment Guidelines including specific equipment for producing gateaux, torten and cakes; this can be a:
  - real industry workplace
  - simulated industry environment such as a training kitchen servicing customers
- industry-realistic ratios of kitchen staff to customers

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- food preparation lists and standard recipes
- a variety of commercial ingredients for specialist cakes and sponges.

Method of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation of the individual preparing for and producing a range of specialist cakes and sponges
- evaluation of the taste and visual appeal of cakes produced by the individual
- projects that allow assessment of the individual's ability to produce a variety of specialist cakes and sponges for an event, function or meeting within designated deadlines
- use of visual and taste recognition exercises so the individual can identify ingredient and product characteristics
- written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of culinary terms, quality indicators for ingredients, equipment, cookery methods and appropriate environmental storage conditions
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment

The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example:

- BSBSUS201A Participate in environmentally sustainable work practices
- BSBWOR202A Organise and complete daily work activities
- SITHCCC104 Package prepared foodstuffs
- SITHCCC304 Produce and serve food for buffets
- SITHCCC307 Prepare food to meet special dietary requirements
- SITXFSA201 Participate in safe food handling practices
- TLIE1005A Carry out basic workplace calculations.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate,

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

Evidence of the ability to:

- follow standard recipes to produce and decorate sweet and savoury yeast based bakery products including a selection from each of the following two categories:
  - 1. Breads and buns:
    - Bath buns
    - bread rolls
    - breakfast breads
    - dinner rolls
    - hot cross buns
    - lunch rolls
    - speciality breads
  - 2. Yeast-raised pastries:
    - Danish pastries
    - croissants
    - brioche
    - küchen
    - babas
    - savarins.
- produce a quantity of yeast based bakery products of the same type that are consistent in quality, size, shape and appearance
- integrate knowledge of:
  - quality indicators for ingredients
  - cookery methods for yeast based bakery products
  - essential features, functions and safe use of food preparation equipment
  - food safety practices for handling and storing yeast based bakery products
  - produce yeast goods within commercial time constraints.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure use of:

- an operational pastry kitchen with the fixtures, large and small equipment and workplace documentation defined in the Assessment Guidelines; this can be a:
  - real industry workplace
  - simulated industry environment such as a training kitchen servicing customers
- industry-realistic ratios of kitchen staff to customers
- food preparation lists and standard recipes
- a variety of commercial ingredients for yeast based bakery products.

Method of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation of the individual preparing for and producing a range of yeast based bakery products
- evaluation of the taste and visual appeal of yeast goods produced by the individual
- projects that allow assessment of the individual's ability to produce a variety of yeast based bakery products for an event, function or meeting within designated deadlines
- use of visual and taste recognition exercises so the individual can identify ingredient and product characteristics
- written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of yeast properties, quality indicators for ingredients, equipment, cookery methods and appropriate environmental storage conditions
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment

The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example:

- BSBSUS201A Participate in environmentally sustainable work practices
- BSBWOR202A Organise and complete daily work activities
- SITHCCC104 Package prepared foodstuffs
- SITHCCC304 Produce and serve food for buffets
- SITHCCC307 Prepare food to meet special dietary requirements

- SITXFSA201 Participate in safe food handling practices
- TLIE1005A Carry out basic workplace calculations.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Food production requirements may include:

- deadlines
- portion control
- quantities to be produced
- special customer requests
- special dietary requirements
- standard recipes.

Equipment may include:

- baking sheets
- beaters
- bowl cutters
- chopping boards
- commercial mixers and attachments
- cutting implements
- graters
- knives, including large serrated cake knives
- ladles in a variety of sizes
- marble bench
- measurers:
  - metric calibrated measuring jugs
- moulds, shapes and cutters
- ovens
- pastry cutters and shapes
- piping bags and attachments
- proofer
- range of saucepans and pots for small and large production
- serving tongs and trowels
- scales
- serviceware
- sets of stainless steel bowls
- spatulas

- ganache
- fresh or crystallised fruit and fruit purées
- jam
- savoury fillings using:
  - bacon
  - cheese
  - fish
  - ham
  - meat
  - poultry
  - vegetables
- spices
- whole or crushed nuts.

Food quality adjustments may relate to:

- ratio of wet to dry ingredients
- taste:
  - salty
  - spicy
  - sweet
- temperature
- texture:
  - a light or heavy mouth feel
  - clean
  - creamy
  - crispy
  - crunchy
  - fibrous
  - intense
  - marshmallow like
  - moist
  - mousse
  - rich
  - slippery
  - smooth
  - velvety.

SITHPAT305 Produce petits fours

Modification History

The version details of this endorsed unit of competency set are in the table below. The latest information is at the top.

Version	Comments
1.0	E Replaces and is equivalent to SITHPAT007A Prepare and display petits fours. Title simplified. Unit structure made consistent across all cooking units. Re-worked Elements, Performance Criteria, Required Skills and Knowledge to more fully articulate content. Any 'must' statements in Range moved to Required Knowledge and Critical aspects for assessment. Three prerequisite units removed. SITXFSA101 Use hygienic practices for food safety retained as a prerequisite.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to produce, using standard recipes, specialist petits fours which require finish, decoration and presentation of a high order. It requires the ability to select, prepare and portion ingredients and to use equipment and a range of cookery methods to make, fill, assemble and decorate specialist petits fours.

Application of the Unit

This unit applies to hospitality and catering organisations which produce and serve specialist patisserie products including hotels, restaurants and patisseries.

It applies to patissiers who usually work under the guidance of more senior chefs.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Pre-Requisites

This unit must be assessed after the following prerequisite unit:

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements and Performance Criteria

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.
1. Select ingredients.	1.1 Confirm food production requirements from food preparation list and standard recipes. 1.2 Calculate ingredient amounts according to requirements. 1.3 Identify and select ingredients from stores according to recipe, quality, freshness and stock rotation requirements.
2. Select, prepare and use equipment.	2.1 Select equipment of correct type and size. 2.2 Safely assemble and ensure cleanliness of equipment before use. 2.3 Use equipment safely and hygienically according to manufacturer instructions.
3. Portion and prepare ingredients.	3.1 Sort and assemble ingredients according to the sequencing of food production. 3.2 Weigh and measure wet and dry ingredients according to the recipe and quantity of petits fours required. 3.3 Minimise waste to maximise profitability of petits fours produced.
4. Cook bases, fillings and coatings.	4.1 Use cookery methods for bases, fillings and coatings to achieve desired product characteristics. 4.2 Follow standard recipes and make food quality adjustments within scope of responsibility. 4.3 Pipe a selection of small choux paste shapes. 4.4 Prepare and blind bake sweet paste in small moulds or tins in a variety of shapes. 4.5 Select baking conditions, required oven temperature and bake petits four bases. 4.6 Cool bases in appropriate conditions to retain optimum freshness and product characteristics.

	4.7 Store reusable by-products of food preparation for future cooking activities.
5. Prepare iced petits fours.	5.1 Cut sponges and bases into a variety of shapes. 5.2 Fill and assemble petits fours according to standard recipe specifications. 5.3 Prepare icing at the correct temperature. 5.4 Ice petits fours with icing of a consistency that achieves required coating thickness and surface gloss. 5.5 Apply icing to ensure a smooth and seamless finish. 5.6 Design and use decorations that enhance flavour and eye appeal.
6. Prepare fresh petits fours.	6.1 Select pre-cooked small choux and sweet pastry shapes. 6.2 Fill and assemble fresh petits fours according to standard recipe specifications. 6.3 Use appropriate garnishes, glazes and finishes to enhance flavour and eye appeal.
7. Prepare marzipan petits fours.	7.1 Flavour and colour marzipan according to the recipe and soften with egg whites if required. 7.2 Pipe or model marzipan by hand or shape with the aid of moulds to produce mini size fruits. 7.3 Seal marzipan fruits with cocoa butter or food lacquer using applied heat to preserve desired eating characteristics.
8. Prepare caramelised petits fours.	8.1 Select and coat fresh fruits or fruit segments with pale amber coloured caramel. 8.2 Sandwich dried fruits or nuts or fill with flavoured marzipan and coat with pale amber coloured caramel.
9. Present and store petits fours.	9.1 Visually evaluate petits fours and adjust presentation before displaying. 9.2 Use suitable receptacles to attractively present petits fours according to organisational standards. 9.3 Display petits fours in appropriate conditions to retain optimum freshness and product characteristics. 9.4 Store petits fours and reusable by-products in appropriate environmental conditions.

Required Skills and Knowledge

Required skills

- initiative and enterprise skills to minimise wastage

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- literacy skills to:
  - read and comprehend food preparation lists, standard recipes, date code and stock rotation labels and manufacturer's instructions for equipment
  - write notes on recipe requirements and calculations
- numeracy skills to:
  - weigh and measure ingredients for the quantity of petits fours required
  - determine cooking times and temperatures
  - calculate the number of portions
- planning and organising skills to efficiently sequence the stages of food preparation and production
- problem-solving skills to:
  - evaluate quality of ingredients and finished petit fours and make adjustments to ensure a quality product
  - adjust taste, texture and appearance of food products according to identified deficiencies
- self-management skills to manage own speed, timing and productivity
- technology skills to use food preparation and cooking equipment.

Required knowledge

Modification History

The version details of this endorsed unit of competency set are in the table below. The latest information is at the top.

Version	Comments
1.0	New unit. Created by merging three units to avoid duplication SITHCCC013A Prepare hot and cold desserts, SITHPAT006A Present desserts and SITHPAT009A Prepare desserts to meet special dietary requirements.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to produce hot, cold and frozen desserts following standard and special dietary recipes. It requires the ability to select, prepare and portion ingredients and to use equipment and a range of cookery methods to make and present desserts.

Application of the Unit

The term ‘dessert’ is commonly used for a sweet course or option in a meal or as a stand-alone item with a beverage. In some organisations, the term ‘sweets’ may be used.

This unit applies to hospitality and catering organisations which produce and serve desserts including hotels, restaurants, clubs and patisseries.

It applies to patissiers who usually work under the guidance of more senior chefs.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

Evidence of the ability to:

- follow recipes to produce a variety of desserts including desserts using special recipes for those with special dietary requirements
- present desserts, accompaniments and garnishes attractively and decoratively
- produce multiple desserts that are consistent in quality, size, shape and appearance
- integrate knowledge of:
  - quality indicators for ingredients
  - cookery methods for desserts
  - essential features, functions and safe use of food preparation equipment
  - food safety practices for handling and storing desserts
  - produce desserts for multiple customers within commercial time constraints.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure use of:

- an operational commercial or pastry kitchen with the fixtures, large and small equipment and workplace documentation defined in the Assessment Guidelines including specific equipment for producing desserts; this can be a:
  - real industry workplace
  - simulated industry environment such as a training kitchen servicing customers
- industry-realistic ratios of kitchen staff to customers
- food preparation lists, standard recipes and those for special dietary requirements
- a variety of commercial ingredients for desserts.

Method of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation of the individual preparing for and producing a range of desserts
- evaluation of the taste and visual appeal of desserts produced by the individual
- projects that allow assessment of the individual's ability to produce a variety of desserts for an event, function or meeting within designated deadlines
- use of visual and taste recognition exercises so the individual can identify ingredient and product characteristics
- written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of culinary terms, quality indicators for ingredients, equipment, cookery methods and appropriate environmental storage conditions
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment

The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example:

- BSBSUS201A Participate in environmentally sustainable work practices
- BSBWOR202A Organise and complete daily work activities

SITHPAT401 Prepare and model marzipan

Modification History

The version details of this endorsed unit of competency set are in the table below. The latest information is at the top.

Version	Comments
1.0	E Replaces and is equivalent to SITHPAT008A Prepare and model marzipan. Title simplified. Unit structure made consistent across all cooking units. Re-worked Elements, Performance Criteria, Required Skills and Knowledge to more fully articulate content. Any 'must' statements in Range moved to Required Knowledge and Critical aspects for assessment.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to prepare marzipan from manufactured marzipan paste, produce and decorate a variety of modelled figures, shapes and flowers and to ice specialised cakes with marzipan.

Application of the Unit

This unit applies to hospitality and catering organisations which produce and serve specialist patisserie products including hotels, restaurants and patisseries.

The preparation and modelling of marzipan is a high order technical skill used by experienced patissiers who operate independently or with limited guidance from others.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Pre-Requisites

This unit must be assessed after the following prerequisite unit:

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements and Performance Criteria

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.
1. Select, portion and prepare ingredients.	1.1 Identify and select ingredients from stores according to food preparation lists, recipe, quality, freshness and stock rotation requirements. 1.2 Weigh and measure wet and dry ingredients according to the recipe and quantity of marzipan required. 1.3 Minimise waste to maximise profitability of food items produced.
2. Select, prepare and use equipment.	2.1 Select equipment of correct type and size. 2.2 Safely assemble and ensure cleanliness of equipment before use. 2.3 Use equipment safely and hygienically according to manufacturer instructions.
3. Prepare modelling marzipan.	3.1 Combine ingredients to create a smooth paste of a consistency best suited to modelling marzipan. 3.2 Flavour and colour marzipan according to the recipe or design requirements. 3.3 Identify taste, texture and consistency problems and make adjustments to maintain desired product characteristics.
4. Prepare moulded and modelled shapes.	4.1 Model marzipan by hand or shape with the aid of moulds to produce variety of figures, shapes and flowers. 4.2 Use appropriate colourings, decorations and coating agents to enhance appearance and presentation. 4.3 Seal finished shapes to preserve freshness, eating characteristics and appearance. 4.4 Visually evaluate finished marzipan shapes and adjust presentation. 4.5 Store marzipan products in the appropriate environmental conditions.
5. Use marzipan to	5.1 Ensure surface of items to be covered is level and smooth.

cover cakes, gateaux, torten and petits fours.	5.2 Roll out marzipan to specified size and thickness. 5.3 Apply marzipan ensuring a smooth and seamless finish.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- initiative and enterprise skills to minimise wastage
- literacy skills to:
  - read and comprehend food preparation lists, standard recipes, date code and stock rotation labels and manufacturer instructions for equipment
  - write notes on recipe requirements and calculations
- numeracy skills to:
  - weigh and measure ingredients for the quantity of marzipan required
- planning and organising skills to efficiently sequence the stages of food preparation and production
- problem-solving skills to:
  - evaluate quality of ingredients and finished marzipan shapes and make adjustments to ensure a quality product
  - adjust taste, texture and consistency marzipan according to identified deficiencies
- self-management skills to manage own speed, timing and productivity
- technology skills to use food preparation and cooking equipment.

Required knowledge

- culinary terms and trade names for:
  - ingredients commonly used to make marzipan icing and model marzipan shapes
  - a variety of classical and contemporary marzipan shapes and icings
- product characteristics of a variety of classical and contemporary marzipan shapes and icings:
  - appearance
  - colour
  - consistency
  - moisture content

- historical and cultural derivations for the use of marzipan icing and decorations
- contents of stock date codes and rotation labels
- indicators of freshness and quality of stocked ingredients for marzipan
- mise en place requirements for modelling and moulding marzipan
- techniques to model and mould marzipan shapes
- equipment used to model and mould marzipan shapes:
  - essential features and functions
  - safe operational practices
- storage of marzipan shapes and icing:
  - correct environmental conditions to ensure food safety
  - appropriate methods to optimise shelf life.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to:
	• model marzipan to produce a variety of figures, shapes and flowers
	• produce a quantity of modelled shapes that are consistent in quality, size, shape and appearance
	• ice a variety of specialised cakes with marzipan
	• integrate knowledge of:
	  • quality indicators for ingredients
	  • techniques to model and mould marzipan shapes
	  • essential features, functions and safe use of marzipan modelling and moulding equipment
	  • food safety practices for handling and storing marzipan
	• model marzipan shapes and ice cakes within commercial time constraints.

Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure use of:
	• an operational pastry kitchen with the fixtures, large and small equipment and workplace documentation defined in the Assessment Guidelines including specific equipment for preparing and modelling marzipan; this can be a:
	  • real industry workplace
	  • simulated industry environment such as a training kitchen servicing customers

- industry-realistic ratios of kitchen staff to customers
- food preparation lists and standard recipes
- a variety of commercial ingredients for marzipan icing and modelled and moulded shapes.

Method of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation of the individual preparing marzipan and modelling and moulding a variety of figures, shapes and flowers
- evaluation of the taste and visual appeal of marzipan shapes produced by the individual
- projects that allow assessment of the individual's ability to produce a variety of cakes and sponges iced with marzipan and decorated with marzipan shapes for an event, function or meeting within designated deadlines
- use of visual and taste recognition exercises so the individual can identify ingredient and product characteristics
- written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of culinary terms, quality indicators for ingredients, equipment, modelling techniques and appropriate environmental storage conditions
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment

The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example:

- SITHPAT302 Produce gateaux, torten and cakes
- SITHPAT305 Produce petits fours
- SITHPAT404 Design and produce sweet buffet showpieces
- SITXFSA201 Participate in safe food handling practices.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

- wooden spoons
- large plain and slotted metal spoons
- storage containers and trays.

Ingredients include:

- glucose syrup
- manufactured marzipan paste
- pure icing sugar.

Adjustments may include:

- adding extra:
  - colouring
  - flavour
  - sweetener
  - wet and dry ingredients.

Seal may be:

- cocoa butter
- food lacquer
- glaze.

To adjust presentation may involve:

- changing accompaniments and garnishes to maximise eye appeal:
  - balance
  - colour
  - contrast
- changing plated food for practicality of:

Elements and Performance Criteria

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.
1. Design decorative sugar work.	1.1 Design sugar based decorations for cakes and desserts. 1.2 Produce sketches of required forms and shapes. 1.3 Identify colours, decorations and supports. 1.4 Calculate and record required quantities of differently coloured sugar.
2. Select, prepare and use equipment.	2.1 Select equipment of correct type and size. 2.2 Safely assemble and ensure cleanliness of equipment before use. 2.3 Use equipment safely and hygienically according to manufacturer instructions.
3. Boil sugar.	3.1 Select, sort and assemble ingredients according to the sequencing of food production. 3.2 Combine sugar and water and boil to required temperature. 3.3 Add required colouring and flavourings according to design requirements. 3.4 Arrest the temperature at the correct point for pulling, casting or blowing. 3.5 Safely handle boiled sugar solution according to recipe requirements.
4. Pull boiled sugar.	4.1 Cool sugar solution to appropriate temperature for pulling. 4.2 Manipulate boiled sugar to avoid crust forming. 4.3 Turn out and pull sugar to incorporate air and to achieve elasticity and sheen. 4.4 Use a suitable work surface and work safely to avoid burns.
5. Store pulled sugar.	5.1 Portion pulled sugar according to intended use. 5.2 Use correct packaging methods and vacuum seal pulled sugar pieces.

    - determine temperature, boiling and cooling times for sugar work
- planning and organising skills to efficiently sequence the stages of sugar work preparation and production
    - problem-solving skills to evaluate quality of finished decorations and make adjustments to ensure a quality product
- self-management skills to manage own speed, timing and productivity
- technology skills to use food preparation and cooking equipment.

Required knowledge

- culinary terms and trade names for:
    - ingredients commonly used to produce sugar based decorations for cakes and desserts
    - a variety of classical and contemporary sugar based decorations for cakes and desserts
- historical and cultural derivations of a variety of sugar based decorations for cakes and desserts
- types of designs commonly used for sugar based decorations for cakes and desserts

- mise en place requirements for modelling sugar based decorations
- cookery methods for preparing sugar solutions:
  - combining ingredients
  - appropriate temperatures and cooking times
  - cooling methods and times
- required consistency of sugar solution for pulling, blowing casting
- causes of premature crystallisation of boiled sugar and methods to avoid it
- properties of the ingredients used and their interaction and changes during production
- techniques used to pull, cast and blow sugar
- dangers of handling boiled sugar at high temperatures and methods to avoid injury
- equipment used to prepare liquid sugar and to model sugar based decorations for cakes and desserts:
  - essential features and functions
  - safe operational practices
  - influence of cleanliness of equipment on the boiling process and quality outcome
- storage of ingredients and sugar based decorations:
  - correct environmental conditions to ensure food safety
  - appropriate methods to optimise shelf life.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to:
	• design creative decorations for cakes and desserts
	• model sugar based decorations for a variety of cakes and desserts using techniques for pulling, casting and blowing sugar
	• produce a quantity of dessert decorations of the same type that are consistent in quality, size, shape and appearance
	• integrate knowledge of the:
	  • cookery methods for sugar work
	  • temperature requirements, cooking times and techniques for pulling, casting and blowing sugar
	  • essential features, functions and safe use of food preparation equipment
	  • food safety practices for handling and storing sugar products

- produce sugar based decorations within commercial time constraints.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure use of:

- an operational pastry kitchen with the fixtures, large and small equipment and workplace documentation defined in the Assessment Guidelines including specific equipment for modelling sugar based decorations; this can be a:
  - real industry workplace
  - simulated industry environment such as a training kitchen servicing customers
- industry-realistic ratios of kitchen staff to customers
- designs for sugar based decorations for cakes and desserts
- a variety of commercial ingredients for modelling sugar based decorations for cakes and desserts.

Method of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation of the individual modelling sugar based decorations for a variety cakes and desserts
- evaluation of the taste and visual appeal of sugar based decorations for cakes and desserts produced by the individual
- projects that allow assessment of the individual's ability to produce a variety of sugar based decorations for cakes and desserts for an event, function or meeting within designated deadlines
- written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of culinary terms, equipment, cookery methods and techniques for pulling, casting and blowing sugar
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment

The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example:

- SITHPAT306 Produce desserts
- SITHPAT404 Design and produce sweet buffet showpieces
- SITXFSA201 Participate in safe food handling practices
- SITXWHS301 Identify hazards, assess and control safety risks.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Equipment for sugar work may include:

- airtight sugar display cases
- assorted rings, moulds, metal bars for poured and moulded sugar work
- basket weave boards (round and oval shaped) complete with metal rods
- blow torch
- blowpipes
- cake wheels
- chopping boards
- disposable gloves for pulling and shaping sugar
- hair drier with cold air setting
- hand pump for blowing sugar
- heat resistant plasticine
- heating lamp with red or white light
- marble slab
- measurers:
  - metric calibrated measuring jugs
- metal strapping
- modelling tools
- moulds
- patterns
- range of saucepans and pots for small and large production
- rubber mats
- saccharometer
- scissors
- shears
- silicon paper and mats
- small cooling fan
- spatulas
- storage containers and trays
- sugar boilers
- sugar thermometers.

Safely handling boiled sugar solution may include:

- avoiding drips and dribbles
- covering exposed skin
- ensuring all equipment has secure handles

	• using insulated pot rests • using protective gloves and mitts.

Environmental conditions may involve:	• appropriate:
	  • atmosphere
	  • humidity
	  • light
	  • packaging
	  • temperature
	  • use of containers
	  • ventilation
	• avoiding damage to decorations.

Shaping may involve:	• pouring boiled sugar into:
	  • a framework
	  • free-flowing shapes
	  • moulds.

SITHPAT404 Design and produce sweet buffet showpieces

Modification History

Version	Comments
1.0	E Replaces and is equivalent to SITHPAT011A Plan, prepare and display sweet buffet showpieces. Title changed to better reflect the intent and content of the unit . Re-worked Elements, Performance Criteria, Required Skills and Knowledge to more fully articulate content. Any ‘must’ statements in Range moved to Required Knowledge and Critical aspects for assessment.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to design and produce showpieces for display with sweet buffets. It requires the ability to make all individual decorative components from individual or combined sugar, chocolate, pastillage, croquant and marzipan materials and to assemble the complete showpiece for display.

It does not include the preparation of food items for buffets which is covered by the unit SITHCCC304 Produce and serve food for buffets.

Application of the Unit

This unit applies to hospitality and catering organisations which produce, display and serve specialist patisserie products including hotels, restaurants and patisseries.

The preparation display of showpieces is a high order technical skill used by experienced patissiers who operate independently or with limited guidance from others.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements and Performance Criteria

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.
1. Design sweet buffet showpieces.	1.1 Design showpieces appropriate for the occasion. 1.2 Select materials for individual decorative pieces. 1.3 Produce sketches of required forms and shapes. 1.4 Identify colours, decorations and supports. 1.5 Calculate and record required quantities of different ingredients for all decorative pieces. 1.6 Calculate production time and sketch a plan for producing the showpiece.
2. Select, prepare and use equipment.	2.1 Select equipment of correct type and size. 2.2 Safely assemble and ensure cleanliness of equipment before use. 2.3 Use equipment safely and hygienically according to manufacturer instructions.
3. Make showpiece components.	3.1 Prepare framework or moulds for individual showpiece components. 3.2 Shape selected materials into desired forms, using appropriate techniques and creative flair. 3.3 Choose decorations in appropriate materials, suitable for the occasion.
4. Assemble sweet buffet showpieces.	4.1 Assemble showpiece to achieve balance, proportion and optimum strength.

4.2 Display showpiece to complement, harmonise and balance the displayed food.

4.3 Decorate showpiece creatively to match the occasion and create customer appeal.

4.4 Evaluate presentation of finished showpiece and make adjustments.

4.5 Store showpiece in appropriate environmental conditions.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- initiative and enterprise skills to develop creative ideas and explore a range of designs for showpieces
  - literacy skills to write basic plans for showpiece production and record calculations for ingredients
- numeracy skills to:
  - calculate production times for showpieces
  - calculate quantities of ingredients required for components of the showpieces
- planning and organising skills to efficiently sequence the stages of showpiece preparation and assembly
  - problem-solving skills to evaluate quality of finished showpieces and make adjustments to ensure a quality product
- self-management skills to manage own speed, timing and productivity
- technology skills to use food preparation and cooking equipment.

Required skills

- communication skills to liaise with customers and colleagues on practical operational issues
- critical thinking skills to assess research findings and match destinations and products to specific customer or market needs
- literacy skills to:
  - interpret complex supplier component product information, including contracts and costs
  - document complex product information, programs and pricing structures, including the specific applicable conditions
- numeracy skills to calculate complex costing components and a range of different commission and mark-up structures
- problem-solving skills to respond to need for variations and adjustments in potentially complex itineraries or products.

Required knowledge

- tourism industry structure, interrelationships and information sources
- industry information or destination marketing networks and their value in conducting research for the packaging process
- customer or market product preferences and requirements relevant to the industry sector
- features of typical supply and contractual arrangements with suppliers
- key principles and elements of calculating complex packaged product costings and pricing structures
- distribution and marketing networks, especially those involved in distributing the proposed tourism product or program
- industry commission or mark-up procedures and rates appropriate to the particular sector and the varying organisations in the distribution network
- industry practices in packaging products and presenting pricing structures appropriate to different sectors, including:
  - different costing options such as per person; room or group; all inclusive; and ground content only
  - typical package styles for different markets or customer types
- aspects of laws that impact on tourism operations and actions required of tourism operators, including:
  - consumer protection:
    - providing services as advertised
    - terms and conditions
    - refund requirements
    - cancellation fees
  - child sex tourism
  - legal liability insurance requirements and duty of care of customers
  - environmental protection:

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to: • source, package and match destinations and products to meet the needs of multiple customers or markets • develop and cost practical programs that meet both customer needs and organisational business requirements • integrate knowledge of industry packaging and costing processes.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure use of: • customer and market information on which products can be based • current information and communications technology • current destination and product information sources that support the costing process, such as brochures, tariffs, product sales kits and supplier contracts.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • evaluation of projects conducted by the individual to develop packaged tourism products or programs for a range of purposes • review of completed product costing and pricing structures for packaged products or programs • use of case studies to assess the individual's ability to research and meet the needs of customers or markets with differing product preferences and requirements

SITTPPD402 Develop interpretive activities

Modification History

The version details of this endorsed unit of competency set are in the table below. The latest information is at the top.

Version	Comments
1.0	E Replaces and is equivalent to SITTPPD005A Plan and develop interpretive activities. Title simplified.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to develop interpretive activities for different customer groups. It requires the ability to establish educational, interpretive and commercial objectives, develop operational aspects and evaluate the success of the activity. The actual presentation of activities is covered in the unit SITTGDE304 Prepare and present tour commentaries or activities.

Application of the Unit

This unit applies to many industry sectors and has particular relevance in tourism, sport and recreation and cultural contexts. Interpretive activities take place on historical, cultural, heritage or nature-based tours, in attractions and theme parks, in national parks or in locations such as museums, galleries, libraries, performing arts centres and zoos. Activities could be virtual.

Planning and development of interpretive activities may be for a series of activities within a venue or tour operation or for a one-off activity. It could be the responsibility of the person delivering the activity or be developed by senior operational or supervisory personnel. The planning role applies to those who work independently with limited guidance from others. This could include senior guides, activities coordinators, or owner-operators of small organisations.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements and Performance Criteria

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.
1. Establish need for activities.	1.1 Identify need for interpretive activities, based on customer, organisation and community needs.
	1.2 Establish educational, interpretive and commercial objectives in consultation with appropriate colleagues.
2. Create activities.	2.1 Identify and evaluate a range of potential information and resources, including other specialists as required.
	2.2 Develop interpretive framework for activities.
	2.3 Generate and select ideas for potential messages, themes and storylines.
	2.4 Consider relationships between themes, storylines and the site.
	2.5 Incorporate interpretive media that matches the site.
	2.6 Conduct a risk assessment and incorporate controls into activity development.
	2.7 Evaluate and integrate legal, ethical and sustainability considerations.
	2.8 Develop resources to support activities.
	2.9 Develop activity within budget to meet agreed objectives.
	2.10 Promote activities according to organisational marketing objectives.
3. Evaluate activities.	3.1 Obtain formal and informal feedback from customers and colleagues during piloting or conduct of activities.
	3.2 Modify activities according to feedback received.
	3.3 Establish and implement ongoing review mechanisms to ensure continuous improvement of activities in line with its objectives.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to consult with colleagues about development issues for interpretive activities
- critical thinking skills and research skills to evaluate wide ranging information and tease out creative themes and messages for activities
- literacy skills to:
  - analyse complex information and to interpret this for creative communication to customers
  - develop resources and information materials for the activities
- numeracy skills to calculate costs and work within established budgets
- planning and organising skills to coordinate creative and practical aspects of activities
- problem-solving skills to evaluate and adjust activities.

Required knowledge

- subject matter around which activities are developed
- principles of interpretation, including work of Freeman Tilden
- physical and digital interpretive media
- practical processes that support activity development, including:
  - budgeting
  - evaluation
  - needs analysis
  - resource development
  - scheduling
- creative communication techniques for interpretive activities, including:
  - games
  - illustrated talks
  - role-playing
  - sensory awareness exercises
  - storytelling
  - use of apps, podcasts, near response codes, quick response codes
- safety requirements specific to activities
- risk assessment processes, including:
  - determining overall risk level
  - determining the exposure to the risk
  - estimating the probability of negative impacts
  - identifying the consequences that could result from the identified risk

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- legal, ethical and sustainability considerations for activity development, including:
  - cultural appropriateness
  - duty of care
  - minimal impact
  - minimising waste and conserving resources.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to: • plan and develop multiple interpretive activities with varying themes and messages that meet the needs of different customer groups and commercial and operational constraints • apply subject matter knowledge to the development of interpretive activities • plan and develop interpretive activities for a number of different delivery environments.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure use of: • a real or simulated environment for which interpretive activities can be planned and developed.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • evaluation of a project undertaken by the individual to develop and evaluate activities for a nominated customer group or organisation • evaluation of activities by professional interpretation organisations • written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of interpretation principles and activity development processes • use of case studies to assess ability to tailor activities and information to suit particular customer needs • review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment

The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example:

- SITTGDE304 Prepare and present tour commentaries or activities
- SITTGDE306 Research and share general information on Australian Indigenous culture
- SITTGDE307 Prepare specialised interpretive content on flora, fauna and landscape
- SITTGDE308 Prepare specialised interpretive content on marine environments
- SITTGDE309 Prepare specialised interpretive content on cultural and heritage environments.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. SITTPPD403 Coordinate and operate sustainable tourism activities

Modification History

The version details of this endorsed unit of competency set are in the table below. The latest information is at the top.

Version	Comments
1.0	E Replaces and is equivalent to SITTPPD004A Plan and implement minimal impact operations. Title changed to better reflect the intent and content of the unit.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to organise and operate tourism activities with minimal negative environmental and social impact. The emphasis of this unit is on short term operational action planning and implementation and does not include a strategic management focus.

Application of the Unit

This unit applies to the tour operations, cruise, attractions and resort sectors, and to individuals working in senior operational or supervisory roles. This could include senior guides or activities coordinators, or owner-operators of small tourism organisations.

The unit is particularly relevant to those who provide tourism experiences in environmentally sensitive areas. Many would be nature or ecotourism-based experiences.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements and Performance Criteria

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.
1. Organise sustainable activities.	1.1 Develop experiences that combine education and interpretation. 1.2 Ensure positive sustainable outcomes for local communities and environments. 1.3 Consult with colleagues and other stakeholders about issues of responsibility for environmental and social sustainability. 1.4 Develop procedures according to relevant codes of practice.
2. Conduct activities with minimal impact.	2.1 Select and use minimal impact techniques and procedures appropriate to the area. 2.2 Advise customers about acceptable behaviour prior to entering area. 2.3 Provide a role model for customers and colleagues. 2.4 Address unacceptable customer behaviour.
3. Monitor impact and changes.	3.1 Monitor and record changes in the natural environment using appropriate technology. 3.2 Collect environmental information on behalf of environmental and social agencies as required. 3.3 Advise appropriate authorities of environmental and social change promptly.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to:
  - consult with colleagues and stakeholders on issues of environmental and social responsibility

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

    - inform customers of their minimal impact responsibilities
- critical thinking skills to evaluate potential environmental and social impacts and make appropriate responses in organising activities
- literacy skills to read and interpret sometimes complex materials describing environmental regulatory requirements and guidelines
- numeracy skills to make simple calculations and take simple measurements
- problem-solving skills to identify and respond to situations where minimal impact procedures may be breached.

Required knowledge

- global environmental issues, in particular a layperson understanding of the science associated with:
    - climate change
    - energy
    - land management
    - waste and consumption
    - water
- environmental and social impacts of tourism in relation to global environmental issues in particular sites and communities
- practical sustainability considerations for tourism operations, including those related to:
    - environmentally or culturally sensitive areas and associated minimal impact practices
    - handling and disposal of waste, including human waste
    - industry codes of practice
    - use of water sources
- laws, regulations and land management requirements and guidelines, including:
    - need for permits in national parks or on land under control of traditional owners
    - restrictions on camp site operations and use of open fires
- minimal impact techniques and procedures in relation to:
    - activity-specific guidelines
    - energy use
    - group size
    - interaction with wildlife
    - local customs and courtesies
    - noise
    - setting of camps
    - souveniring
    - use of tracks
    - waste disposal
- biophysical and socio-cultural elements in an environment and the relationship between them
- information collection techniques for monitoring environmental and social impact, including what is observed and measured and how specific data is recorded.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to: • organise and operate tourism activities in multiple environments with minimal negative environmental and social impact • demonstrate knowledge of global environmental issues, including those specific to tourism and in particular operating environments • demonstrate knowledge of minimal impact practices.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure use of: • an environmentally sensitive location in which activities can be conducted • real or simulated tourism activities • current information about environmental practices, such as legislation, guidelines and industry codes of practice.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct observation of the individual conducting a tour or activity in an environmentally sensitive area • review of tour planning and operational activities undertaken by the individual • use of case studies to assess ability to apply appropriate minimal impact approaches to different environments • written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of environmental and social impact of tourism, local environmental issues, minimal impact techniques and regulatory requirements • review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment	The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example: • SITTGDE303 Lead tour groups • SITTGDE304 Prepare and present tour commentaries or activities • SITTPPD402 Develop interpretive activities.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Issues of responsibility for environmental and social sustainability may relate to:	• negative environmental impacts:
	  • disturbance of flora and fauna
	  • introduction of exotic and feral species
	  • physical damage
	  • pollution
	  • visual impacts
	• negative social impacts:
	  • trivialisation of culture
	• positive environmental impacts:
	  • visitor education
	  • improvement of sites already impacted
	  • opportunities for conservation and protection
	• positive social impacts:
	  • economic benefits to local community
	  • employment
	  • greater understanding between host and visitor cultures
	  • improved local facilities
	  • visitor education.

Minimal impact techniques and procedures may include:	• education • restricting or limiting access • site hardening

	• staged authenticity • technological solutions.
Changes in the natural environment may include:	• breeding events • changes to fauna • changes to flora • erosion • species sighting.

Ways to collect environmental information may involve:	• basic measurements:
	  • estimating percentage cover and water
	  • temperature
	  • weather conditions
	• logbooks
	• photography
	• sighting forms.

Version	Comments
1.0	E Replaces and is equivalent to SITTHPR302B Plan and organise in-house recreational activities. Title changed for simplicity and for greater consistency across Training Package. Re-categorised to Planning and Product Development competency field to better reflect the content of the unit. Re-worked Elements, Performance Criteria, Required Skills and Knowledge to more fully articulate content.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to develop in-house recreational activities for different customer groups and which match the commercial focus and values of the tourism organisation. It requires the ability to identify and plan suitable activities, coordinate their delivery and evaluate their success but not to deliver the activity.

Application of the Unit

This unit applies to resort, holiday park, cruise ship and attraction businesses. The unit covers both indoor and outdoor recreational activities provided on-site but does not include tours, activities and events operated by other tourism organisations.

It applies to those people who operate independently or with limited guidance from others. This includes activities officers, senior operational personnel or managers.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to discuss accurate operational information with delivery personnel
- critical thinking skills to evaluate the success of various recreational activities and make improvements
- literacy skills to:
  - read and interpret complex regulatory documents, customer satisfaction surveys and operational reports from delivery personnel
  - write promotional materials, detailed operational itineraries, staff checklists and customer briefings
- numeracy skills to calculate nett costs and sale price, numbers of required resources and statistics of customer satisfaction
- planning and organising skills to develop and coordinate a range of recreational activities
- problem-solving skills to identify and respond to a range of threats and hazards associated with various recreational activities.

Required knowledge

- the components of various recreational activities and resources required to deliver them
- complete details of regulations, permit and licensing requirements for the operation of recreational activities
- public liability responsibilities for customers engaging in recreational activities including:
  - directives to personnel delivering the activity and their obligation to control, direct and supervise participants
  - the use of indemnity and waiver forms to minimise risk to the organisation
- work health and safety considerations for personnel delivering the activity. This would include:
  - employer responsibilities to provide a safe workplace
  - individual employee responsibilities for ensuring safety of self and following safety directions
- threats and hazards associated with specific activities, risk assessment and control mechanisms
- environmental impacts and minimal impact practices to be considered by customers when engaging in in-house recreational activities
- a range of formats for and inclusions of:
  - operational itineraries and schedules
  - operational checklists and briefings
  - report templates
  - customer surveys.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to: • identify, develop and coordinate multiple recreational activities to meet the needs of differing customer groups • evaluate and improve activities over a period of time • consider and plan for potential safety and organisational risks • identify and adhere to all regulatory requirements for recreational activities.

Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure use of:
	• a real or simulated resort, holiday park, cruise ship or attraction business operation for which recreational activities are developed, implemented and evaluated
	• computers, printers, communication technology, information programs and publications to facilitate the administrative processes involved in developing recreational activities
	• current plain English regulatory documents distributed by government regulators
	• current commercial documents used for the management of recreational activities including:
	  • operational itineraries and schedules
	  • operational checklists and briefings
	  • report templates.

Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:
	• evaluation of a portfolio, prepared by the individual, incorporating documents used to develop in-house recreational activities
	  • operations itinerary used for planning
	  • activity costings
	  • risk assessments – safety and general
	  • details of regulations, permit and licensing requirements for the operation of the activity

- details of resource required to deliver the activity
- promotional materials

- exercises so the individual can develop a range of documents for the use of delivery personnel and participants:
  - operational itineraries
  - resource checklists for personnel
  - briefings for personnel and customers
  - participant waiver and indemnity forms
  - customer surveys
  - templates for reporting
- use of case studies and problem-solving exercises so the individual can suggest methods for controlling threats to activity operation
- evaluation of a report developed by the individual outlining the success of activities and suggestions for improvements
- written and oral questioning to assess knowledge of regulatory requirements including public liability and work health and safety responsibilities
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of the individual's on-the-job performance.

Guidance information for assessment

The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example:

- BSBWRT401A Write complex documents
- SITTTOP401 Allocate tour or activity resources
- SITTTSL304 Prepare quotations
- SITTTSL305 Process reservations
- SITXHRM401 Roster staff
- SITXWHS301 Identify hazards, assess and control safety risks
- SITXWHS401 Implement and monitor work health and safety practices.

- bushwalking
- fishing
- games
- health and fitness activities
- orienteering
- water based and other sports

- treasure hunt prizes
- vehicles, vessels.

Threats and hazards may include:

- bushfires
- excessive cost of supply
- faulty equipment
- illness or accidents
- inability to obtain permits
- inclement weather
- interaction with marine and wild life
- lack of customer interest
- rough seas
- transport failure
- unavailability of personnel.

Activity information may include:

- flyers and marketing materials
- information sheets and timetables
- participant costs
- schedule of activities
- operational itineraries
- resources allocated to the activity.

Checklists and briefings may include:

- checklists to ensure:
  - equipment is serviceable
  - all resources are available
  - activity is set up for correct participant numbers
- standard customer briefings on:
  - bans on souveniring
  - interaction with wildlife
  - local customs and courtesies
  - minimising noise
  - risk associated with the activity
  - safe use of equipment
  - use of tracks and roads
  - ways to communicate with and avoid insult to local communities
  - ways to ensure minimal negative impacts on the environment.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to conduct consultations with community stakeholders
- critical thinking skills to analyse and respond to complex tourism-related issues at a strategic level
- initiative and enterprise skills to seek out new and innovative approaches
- literacy skills to:
  - analyse wide ranging information on varied and potentially unfamiliar topics, including statistical data
  - develop information materials (printed or digital) that communicate complex messages in a user-friendly way
- numeracy skills to work with data about economic costs and benefits of tourism
- planning and organising skills to develop and organise multi-faceted information and consultation programs
- problem-solving skills to work with stakeholders on potentially complex issues or problems.

Required knowledge

- potential impacts of tourism on the community, both costs and benefits, including economic, social and environmental impacts
- tourism-related concerns that arise in communities, and the ways that these may be managed, including those related to:
  - sustainability
  - competition for space, overcrowding
  - competition for resources
  - perception of reduced resident amenity
- key stakeholders in the area, their roles in the community and their perspectives on tourism
- community consultation and networking approaches, including features, costs and benefits of:

Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to: • develop and implement strategies for effective communication about tourism issues to a local community • consult and communicate with community groups • demonstrate knowledge of the role of tourism in host communities, the impact of tourism and the role of major stakeholders.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure use of: • a host community for which a program can be developed • current information and communications technology to support communication activities • community stakeholders with whom the individual can consult.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • evaluation of a community awareness program developed by the individual for a specific local community • use of case studies to assess ability to address community awareness issues in different contexts • written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of community impacts of tourism, strategic and tactical community communication processes, and the structures of tourism management organisations • review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.
Guidance information for assessment	The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example: • SITTPPD604 Develop and implement local or regional tourism plan.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to: • assess tourism opportunities for a community and determine potential for success • research, analyse and provide information on the range of issues that relate to proposed tourism development within a community • consult with diverse stakeholders about tourism opportunities • demonstrate knowledge of the tourism industry, including structure and interrelationships, tourism industry networks, information sources, and distribution and marketing networks.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure use of: • a community for which tourism opportunities can be assessed • current tourism industry data and information sources • community stakeholders with whom the individual can consult.

Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:
	• evaluation of a project conducted by the individual to assess and report on tourism opportunities for a given community
	• use of case studies to assess the individual's ability to evaluate communities with different:
	  • social, cultural and economic structures and issues
	  • tourism product bases, and distribution and marketing networks
	• written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of tourism industry structure and interrelationships, distribution networks and community consultation processes
	• review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment	The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example: • SITTPPD501 Develop host community awareness of tourism • SITTPPD604 Develop and implement local or regional tourism plan.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Community may comprise:	• extended families in urban or rural settings • groups with common cultural links and interests • individuals who identify with and are accepted by a particular group • residents in urban, regional or rural settings • traditional communities on ancestral lands.

Tourism opportunities may include:	• accommodation development
	• attractions
	• community involvement in:
	  • providing staff for external operations
	  • training for the tourism industry
	• events
	• festivals
	• tour operations
	• tourism retailing operations
	• visits to the community by external tour operators.

Information sources may include:	• communities with common interests
	• government bodies:

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to:
	• develop and implement a plan for a tourism, hospitality or event operation that supports environmental sustainability and provides evidence of:
	  • analysis of key environmental issues
	  • consultation with key stakeholders
	  • development of strategies and operational approaches that maximise positive impacts
	  • integration of current legislation, regulations and industry codes
	• demonstrate knowledge of current and emerging issues and trends for tourism and the environment.

Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure use of: • a destination, location, organisation or event for which an environmentally sustainable operation can be established • current information about environmental practices, such as legislation, guidelines and industry codes of practice • stakeholders with whom consultations can take place • current information and communications technology to support the research and planning process.

Method of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- evaluation of a completed plan, including analysis of all evaluations that have been conducted
- evaluation of codes of practice developed by the individual for operations in particular locations
- use of case studies to assess ability to:
  - evaluate and respond to different commercial and environmental challenges
  - make suggestions for improving the environmental sustainability of existing tourism operations
- written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of industry codes of conduct, regulatory requirements, minimal impact techniques and methods of managing tourism impact
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment

The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example:

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

Evidence of the ability to:

- develop and implement a plan for a tourism, hospitality or event operation that supports cultural sustainability and provide evidence of:
  - analysis of key cultural issues
  - consultation with key stakeholders
  - development of strategies and operational approaches that maximise positive impacts
  - integration of best practice approaches
- demonstrate knowledge of current and emerging cultural tourism issues and trends.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure use of:

- a destination, location, organisation or event for which a culturally sustainable operation can be established
- current information about practices that support cultural sustainability
- stakeholders with whom consultations can take place
- current information and communications technology to support the research and planning process.

Method of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- evaluation of a completed plan, including analysis of all evaluations that have been conducted
- evaluation of codes of practice developed by the individual
- use of case studies to assess ability to:
  - evaluate and respond to different commercial and environmental challenges
  - make suggestions for improving the environmental sustainability of existing tourism operations
- written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of social, cultural and economic impacts of tourism, current industry trends and codes of practice
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party

workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment

The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example:

- SITTPPD601 Develop tourism products
- SITTPPD602 Develop environmentally sustainable tourism operations
- SITXFIN501 Prepare and monitor budgets.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Cultural issues may include:

- access restrictions
- cultural differences in styles of negotiation and communication
- culturally appropriate activities
- traditional and contemporary values and customs
- use of appropriate staff
- use of cultural information.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Community impacts may be:

- negative:
  - damage to culturally sensitive areas or sites
  - effect on social structures
  - trivialisation of culture
- positive:
  - cultural benefits
  - economic benefits to local community
  - employment opportunities
  - greater understanding between host and visitor cultures
  - improved local facilities
  - visitor education.

Codes of practice and procedures may relate to:

- consultation and communication protocols
- evaluation mechanisms
- guidance materials for:
  - appropriate staff and customer behaviour in given situations
  - language skill requirements
  - negotiating contracts in cross-cultural situations
  - use of culturally sensitive information
- staff selection:
  - involving appropriate people in both product development and delivery
  - appropriate staff for different situations.

4. Evaluate tourism plans.	4.1 Assess plan effectiveness using agreed evaluation methods and develop new or alternative approaches as required. 4.2 Submit changes for consideration and approval by the appropriate authority. 4.3 Implement and communicate agreed changes.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to:
  - manage consultation with the broad community and key community stakeholders
  - facilitate information sessions
- critical thinking skills to evaluate complex market and business information and develop strategic responses
- literacy skills to:
  - interpret wide ranging information from a variety of potentially unfamiliar sources
  - develop complex documents that include a strategic and tactical focus
  - prepare consultation information
- numeracy skills to:
  - research statistical data
  - estimate financial impacts of different strategies
- planning and organising skills to coordinate planning processes that involve multiple stages and inputs
- problem-solving skills to work with different community views about tourism.

Required knowledge

- key stakeholders in local, regional, state or territory, and national tourism organisations and the structures of these organisations at each level
- key stakeholders in the area and their roles in the tourism planning process
- environmental, social, cultural and economic aspects of the area that impact planning, including:
  - current economic status and profile of tourism
  - community attitudes
  - features of environmentally or culturally sensitive areas

    - natural and man-made attractions
    - main industries, past and present
    - socio-economic factors
    - features of the area in relation to other areas, either nearby or with similar profiles
- current tourism operators and product base in the area, and opportunities to extend these
- distribution and marketing networks currently supporting the tourism product base, and opportunities to extend these
- market competitors and the main features of those areas and their tourism strategies
- strategic planning methodologies, including key stages and content requirements
- community consultation approaches, including features, costs and benefits of:
    - media strategies, including digital strategies
    - consultation formats
    - stakeholder engagement.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to: • apply an effective planning process to the development of a local or regional tourism plan • develop strategic responses to complex community and organisational issues • consult and communicate with diverse stakeholders during the planning process • demonstrate knowledge of the issues that impact the planning, development and administration of tourism for a local or regional area, including the distribution and marketing of particular products.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure use of: • a local or regional area for which a plan can be developed • current tourism industry information and data on the area • community stakeholders for participation in consultation.

- visitor information services.

Product and service gaps may relate to:

- assessment of region to meet current and future customer expectations
- inability to service current demand
- inappropriate operating practices for the current market place
- opportunities for new products and services.

Community impacts may include:

- benefits:
  - cultural benefits, including cultural preservation
  - economic benefits to local community
  - employment opportunities
  - greater understanding between host and visitor cultures
  - improved local facilities
  - visitor education
- costs:
  - damage to environmentally or culturally sensitive areas
  - effect on social structures
  - trivialisation of culture.

Community consultations may include:

- activities to gain community support for the planning process prior to commencement
- community meetings
- formal and informal community research
- community representation on planning steering committees
- publication and display of draft plans for community comment
- seminars
- social media activities.

Community and industry resources may relate to:

- current market position
- expertise of those likely to implement the plan
- local government resources
- local skill profile
- local tourist associations or other industry bodies
- opportunities for cooperative approaches
- opportunities for sponsorship
- potential for state or federal assistance
- preparedness of individual tourism operators to contribute to the plan.

Resource strategies may be:

- financial
- human

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Identify and prepare equipment and supplies.	1.1 Identify required equipment and supplies from tour documentation and liaison with colleagues. 1.2 Select and check equipment and supplies against requirements. 1.3 Use resources in ways that minimise potential for waste and maximise organisational profitability. 1.4 Conduct safety checks according to organisational procedures and statutory requirements. 1.5 Identify, report and rectify shortfalls and problems.
2. Load equipment and supplies.	2.1 Load equipment and supplies using safe manual handling techniques. 2.2 Take account of terrain to be covered and access requirements during tour. 2.3 Identify hazardous items and load to minimise risks. 2.4 Inspect load prior to departure.
3. Complete documentation.	3.1 Complete pre-departure documentation according to organisational and statutory requirements. 3.2 Report identified problems and suggest improvements.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to liaise with colleagues on operational requirements
- critical thinking skills to evaluate ways of minimising waste and maximising profitability
- literacy skills to:
  - read and interpret tour documentation
  - complete pre-departure documents
- numeracy skills to calculate and load correct quantities
- planning and organising skills to follow a logical selection, loading and checking process
- problem-solving skills to pro-actively identify and respond to discrepancies with equipment and supplies.

Required knowledge

- features and inclusions of tour documentation in the relevant industry context
- equipment and supplies required for tours being operated
- ways in which effective management of equipment and supplies can improve profitability
- ways of minimising waste with equipment and supplies
- loading techniques appropriate to workplace and form of transportation
- manual handling techniques, including specific requirements for hazardous items
- legal obligations of tour operators in relation to equipment and supplies, including those relating to:
  - maintenance
  - licensing or accreditation.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to: • check and load equipment and supplies for multiple tours according to operational documentation • complete loading and pre-departure checks within typical workplace time constraints • demonstrate knowledge of safety requirements for handling and loading of equipment and supplies, including hazardous items.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure use of: • a real or simulated venue, such as an operational depot where pre-departure checks and loading take place • supplies and equipment used in the operation of a tour in the relevant context • commercially-realistic ratios of operational staff to equipment and supplies • tour documentation.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- direct observation of the individual loading equipment and supplies and conducting pre-departure checks
- review of loading and checking plans, notes or operational checklists prepared by the individual
- written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of work health and safety issues, legislative requirements and tour documentation relating to loading and checking equipment and supplies
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment

The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example:

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Evaluate resource requirements.	1.1 Liaise with colleagues about tour or activity resource requirements. 1.2 Evaluate operational information to determine participant and operational needs.
2. Allocate resources to meet operational needs.	2.1 Assess resource risks and make contingency plans to avoid disruptions. 2.2 Maximise profitability in the allocation of resources and consider ways to enhance operational sustainability. 2.3 Take account of maintenance, safety and statutory requirements. 2.4 Provide colleagues and participants with resource information in a timely manner.
3. Monitor and adjust resource allocation.	3.1 Monitor resource efficiency and effectiveness and action contingency arrangements as required. 3.2 Recognise and respond to changes in resource priorities. 3.3 Provide and seek regular feedback to facilitate continuous improvement of the operation.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to:
  - liaise with others on resource requirements
  - provide and seek regular feedback on efficiency of resource allocation
- critical thinking skills to assess and respond to potentially complex and competing operational, profitability and service priorities
- literacy skills to:
  - read and interpret tour information and customer data
  - prepare wide ranging operational information in established formats including rosters, resource schedules and operational itineraries

- numeracy skills to:
  - calculate and allocate appropriate resources
  - calculate costs within a predetermined budget
- planning and organising skills to coordinate and schedule multiple operational resources
- problem-solving skills to develop and implement resource contingency plans
- technology skills to work with resource allocation systems.

Required knowledge

- operational elements of tours or activities relevant to the work context
- key aspects of relevant federal, and state or territory legal requirements for resource allocation, including those related to:
  - human resources - award provisions, safe hours of work, workplace relations
  - physical resources - equipment safety, maintenance and registration requirements
- sustainability considerations in resource allocation, including those related to:
  - economic sustainability - business profitability through waste minimisation
  - environmental sustainability - resource conservation and waste minimisation
  - social sustainability - effective management of human resources
- planning and scheduling processes for tour and activity operations in the context of resource allocation
- systems and documentation used by tourism operators to control resource allocation.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to: • allocate and monitor resources for multiple tours or activities to meet profitability, efficiency and service needs • cope with time pressures and other work constraints that apply to the resource allocation role, including for the application of contingency management skills • demonstrate knowledge of the legal and safety requirements that impact on resource allocation in the relevant context.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure use of: • real or simulated tours or activities for which resources can be allocated

- operational, reservations and sales data on which resource allocation is based
- current information and communications technology used for resource allocation.

Method of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- review of allocation documentation and reports prepared by the individual for particular tours or activities
- use of case studies to assess ability to allocate resources for specific operating circumstances
- written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of safety and legal requirements and the key organisational issues to be considered in resource allocation
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment

The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example:

- SITXHRM401 Roster staff.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Resource requirements may include:

- human resources:
  - camp site cooks
  - drivers
  - drivers and guides
  - hostesses
  - interpreters
  - specialist tour leaders
  - tour guides

Elements and Performance Criteria

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.
1. Select camp site.	1.1 Access camp site according to tour itinerary and land management requirements.
	1.2 Where no designated area exists, select site for comfort, safety and minimal negative environmental impact.
	1.3 Identify camp site hazards, assess associated risks and eliminate or minimise hazards.
2. Set up camp site.	2.1 Set up camp site facilities, using safe manual handling techniques for equipment and supplies.
	2.2 Arrange appropriate shelter for the prevailing weather and conditions.
	2.3 Identify and access required water sources.
	2.4 Construct camp fires in a safe location minimising danger to crew, participants and environment.
3. Operate camp site.	3.1 Operate camping equipment according to manufacturer instructions and safety guidelines.
	3.2 Establish and follow environmentally friendly rubbish and human waste disposal procedures.
	3.3 Brief customers on waste disposal requirements, agree to procedures and monitor adherence.
	3.4 Discuss and agree acceptable camp site behaviour with participants.
	3.5 Operate camp fires according to land management and safety requirements.
	3.6 Monitor camp site operations and make adjustments as required.
4. Break camp.	4.1 Safely dismantle, pack and store equipment and belongings.
	4.2 Remove rubbish from the site where disposal facilities are not available.
	4.3 Extinguish camp fires fully to ensure there is no danger to the environment.
	4.4 Leave camp site in the original or improved condition.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to provide advice to participants on waste disposal requirements and camp site behaviour
- literacy skills to:
  - read and interpret tour itineraries and customer information
  - read and interpret land management requirements
  - read and interpret manufacturer instructions
- planning and organising skills to coordinate the set up, operation and break down of a camp site
- problem-solving skills to monitor and respond to potentially unpredictable operational and service challenges.

Required knowledge

- health and safety issues to be considered when setting up, operating and breaking down a camp site, including those related to:
  - open fires
  - handling and disposal of waste
  - safe manual handling for heavy equipment
- features of a desirable camp site, including considerations related to:
  - type of ground
  - level of ground
  - position of trees
  - proximity to water
  - local fauna
  - shade and shelter
- sustainability considerations for camp site operations, including those related to:
  - environmentally or culturally sensitive areas and associated minimal impact practices
  - industry codes of practice
  - handling and disposal of waste, including human waste
  - use of water sources
- laws, regulations and land management requirements and guidelines:
  - need for permits in national parks or on land under control of traditional owners
  - restrictions on camp site operations and use of open fires
- operational features of standard camping equipment
- challenges and issues that arise during camp site stays and ways to respond.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to: • select, set up and safely operate a camp site with minimal negative environmental and social impact for a minimum of one night • safely operate of a range of camping equipment • demonstrate knowledge of potential environmental impacts of operating a camp site and associated minimal impact practices • demonstrate knowledge of safety, regulatory and land management issues that impact camp site set-up and operation.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure use of: • an environment suitable for camping • a group for, or with whom, the site is set up and operated • a range of camping equipment suited to local industry conditions • regulation, guidelines and industry codes of practice that apply to camping in the relevant area.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct observation of the individual completing tasks to safely set up, operate, and dismantle and clean a camp site • review of operational plans, checklists and post-tour reports prepared by the individual • evaluation of feedback from group members who have participated in a camping tour coordinated by the individual • written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of camping procedures and equipment, sustainability considerations and work health and safety requirements • review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment	The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example: • SITTTOP301 Load touring equipment • SITTTOP302 Provide outdoor catering • SITTTOP403 Operate tours in a remote area.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Camp site may be:	• permanent • semi-permanent (seasonal) • temporary.
Negative environmental impact may include:	• damage to camp sites and surrounding areas • damage to culturally sensitive areas or sites • disturbance or injury to fauna • instigation of bush fire due to incorrect management of open fires • noise disturbance to the local community • physical damage to flora • pollution from waste.
Camp site hazards may include:	• insufficient distance and protection from local wildlife • insufficient shade and protection from other weather elements • poor access to facilities • swollen creeks or rivers and possible flood activity • unstable trees or tree branches

SITTTSL201 Operate an online information system

Modification History

The version details of this endorsed unit of competency set are in the table below. The latest information is at the top.

Version	Comments
1.0	E Replaces and is equivalent to SITTTSL001A Operate an online information system.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to operate an online information system to source information for various operational purposes. It requires the ability to identify information requirements and locate, check and download information.

Application of the Unit

This unit applies to any tourism, hospitality and event industry sector. The online system used will vary according to the organisation and industry sector but can include the Internet, and any internal or external information database.

This unit mainly applies to frontline sales and operations personnel who operate with some level of independence and under limited supervision. It does, however, describe a basic operational function of minimal complexity and those individuals who work with very little independence under close supervision would also use this skill.

This includes visitor information officers, retail travel consultants, corporate consultants, inbound tour coordinators, account managers for professional conference organisers, event coordinators, tour guides, hotel guest relations officers, tour desk officers and reservation sales agents.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

  - research, interpret and sort relevant information
- problem-solving skills to identify deficiencies in information and to resolve by ongoing searches
- technology skills to:
  - use a computer and keyboard
  - manipulate the features of online information systems to search for information
  - download and save information.

Required knowledge

- for the specific industry sector and organisation:
  - different types of online information systems used
  - role of specific information systems
  - functions of the information systems
- basic aspects of state, territory or commonwealth copyright and intellectual property laws, including requirements for copying and using online information.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to: • source and retrieve multiple types of information from an online system in response to multiple customer requests covering a range of products and services • use the functions of the system to efficiently access the information • complete information retrieval activities within commercial time constraints and deadlines determined by the customer or the organisation.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure use of: • computers and information systems currently used by the tourism, hospitality and event industries to store product-related information; the Internet could be one of these • current plain English regulatory documents describing copyright and intellectual property requirements.

Method of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- review of information samples sourced by the individual to meet particular customer needs
- direct observation of the individual using a system in response to specific requests
- written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of:
  - the role of information systems within the tourism, hospitality and events industry
  - system features
  - copyright requirements
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment

Version	Comments
1.0	E Replaces and is equivalent to SITTTSL002A Access and interpret product information.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to access information on tourism, hospitality or events products to fulfil any sales or operational need. It requires the ability to identify product information sources and to interpret specific details of the products.

Tourism personnel selling travel insurance to a retail client must meet the requirements of the Financial Services Reform Act (2001). Sales personnel must complete a course delivered by the insurance provider in order to interpret provisions of the insurance policy.

Application of the Unit

The product can include any international or domestic product sold by any tourism, hospitality or event organisation. The breadth and depth of product knowledge and its application will vary according to the industry sector, workplace and job role. This unit is not about having an in-depth knowledge of products but focuses on the ability to collect and interpret information.

The unit mainly applies to frontline sales and operations personnel who operate with some level of independence and under limited supervision. It does, however, describe a fundamental tourism industry function and those individuals who work with very little independence under close supervision would also use this skill.

This includes visitor information officers, retail travel consultants, corporate consultants, inbound tour coordinators, account managers for professional conference organisers, event coordinators, tour guides, hotel guest relations officers, tour desk officers, reservations sales agents.

Modification History

The version details of this endorsed unit of competency set are in the table below. The latest information is at the top.

Version	Comments
1.0	E Replaces and is equivalent to SITTTSL003A Source and provide international destination information and advice. Title simplified. Some Performance Criteria reordered for logical sequencing.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to source and provide customer information and advice about international destinations including the types of product a destination offers. It requires the ability to identify appropriate information sources and research destinations in order to develop and update a general destination knowledge base.

Specific and detailed product knowledge is covered in SITTTSL202 Access and interpret product information.

Application of the Unit

International destinations and products can include any sold by any tourism or travel organisation. Travel and tourism operators such as retailers and tour wholesalers can specialise in one international destination or cover multiple destinations.

The breadth and depth of destination knowledge required will vary according to the industry sector, workplace and job role. This unit is not about having an in-depth knowledge of every destination but focuses on the ability to collect and interpret destination information.

The unit applies to frontline sales and operations personnel who operate with some level of independence and under limited supervision. This includes retail travel consultants, corporate consultants, wholesale operations consultants, account managers for professional conference organisers, event coordinators, tour managers and reservations sales agents.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

information sources and information databases
- customers with whom the individual can interact and to whom they can provide destination advice.

Method of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- projects and activities that allow assessment of the individual's ability to:
  - obtain current, accurate and relevant destination information
  - research destinations to meet differing customer needs
- direct observation, using role plays, of the individual providing advice to customers
- written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of information sources and key destination information
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment

Because of the broad industry application of this unit and the variances in the essential general knowledge base, it is critical that assessment is contextualised to meet the requirements of the specific industry sector, industry operator and particular needs of the job role. Providers of pre-employment training programs should cover a broad range of destination knowledge in order to provide a choice of vocational outcomes.

The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example:

- SITTTSL201 Operate an online information system
- SITTTSL303 Sell tourism products and services
- SITTTSL304 Prepare quotations
- SITTTSL305 Process reservations
- SITTTSL306 Book supplier services
- SITXCCS303 Provide service to customers.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

Evidence of the ability to:

- prepare multiple quotations covering a diverse range of tourism, hospitality or event products and services to meet the different requirements of customers
- integrate knowledge of commissions, mark-ups and fees into quotation activities
- demonstrate knowledge of the primary components of consumer protection laws and actions that must be adhered to by organisations
- complete quotations within commercial time constraints and deadlines determined by the customer and the organisation.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure use of:

- a real or simulated tourism, hospitality or event business operation or activity which prepares quotations
- a real or simulated tourism, hospitality or events industry environment; for example:
  - a reservations area or call centre
  - a retail shopfront or mobile sales situation for the retail travel sector
  - an office environment as defined in the Assessment Guidelines

SITTTSL305 Process reservations

Modification History

Version	Comments
1.0	E Replaces and is equivalent to SITTTSL007B Receive and process reservations. Title simplified.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to receive and process reservations for a tourism, hospitality or event product or service offered for sale to agents or direct to the consumer. It requires the ability to determine the availability of the product or service, offer alternatives, accurately record the reservation details and administer the reservation through to finalisation. The unit covers the required skills to manage reservations and not the related sales and computer skills which are found in other units.

Application of the Unit

The product can include any international or domestic product sold by any tourism, hospitality or event organisation. It applies to those operators who act as principal (the supplier) and who receive and process reservations for the supply of their product or service. This would include airlines, vehicle rental companies, hotels, motels, bed and breakfasts or other accommodation providers, tour operators of any type, outbound tour wholesalers and attractions and theme parks.

This unit applies to those frontline sales personnel who operate with some level of independence and under limited supervision. This includes reservations sales agents, reservations consultants, call centre consultants, booking officers and small business owner-operators.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

Modification History

The version details of this endorsed unit of competency set are in the table below. The latest information is at the top.

Version	Comments
1.0	E Replaces and is equivalent to SITTTSL008B Book and coordinate supplier services. Title simplified. Prerequisite removed.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to make and administer customer bookings for products and services. It requires the ability to identify customer product requirements, request and confirm these with suppliers and administer all bookings through to finalisation.

The unit does not cover the skills required to receive and process an incoming reservation by a supplier which are covered in SITTTSL305 Process reservations.

Application of the Unit

Many tourism, hospitality and event organisations make these business to business supply bookings for products on behalf of their customer. For example, the booking may be from a retail travel agency to a tour wholesaler, from an inbound tour operator to a coach company and from a tour wholesaler to a hotel.

The unit applies to frontline operations personnel who operate with some level of independence and under limited supervision. This includes retail travel consultants, corporate consultants, inbound tour coordinators, visitor information officers, account managers for professional conference organisers, event coordinators, tour guides, banquet coordinators or managers, hotel guest relations officers, tour desk officers, and operations coordinators.

SITTTSL307 Process travel-related documentation

Modification History

The version details of this endorsed unit of competency set are in the table below. The latest information is at the top.

Version	Comments
1.0	E Replaces and is equivalent to SITTTSL009B Process travel-related documentation. Prerequisite removed.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to process a range of travel and tourism documentation. It requires the ability to identify and interpret all documentation requirements and to prepare and despatch documents within designated deadlines.

Application of the Unit

The product can include any international or domestic product sold by any tourism, hospitality or event organisation. This unit applies to all organisations where travel and tourism documents, including air tickets, are issued to customers, suppliers and sometimes to tour delivery staff.

It applies to frontline sales and operations personnel who operate with some level of independence and under limited supervision. This includes retail travel consultants, corporate consultants, inbound tour coordinators, visitor information officers, account managers for professional conference organisers, event coordinators, tour guides, tour desk officers and operations coordinators. Some larger organisations support a documentation department staffed by industry entry-level documentation officers who may require more supervision.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

transmission and record keeping to reduce waste.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to discuss customer data and cost discrepancies with colleagues or supervisors
- literacy skills to:
  - read and interpret customer reservation and operational data, complex itineraries and product information
  - write accurate and clearly expressed travel-related documents
- numeracy skills to calculate costs quoted to the customer, check payment status of customer files and issue documents with correct monetary value
- planning and organising skills to prepare and issue documents in correct customer file sequence according to the earliest service dates for customers
- problem-solving skills to identify and resolve any cost discrepancies or mistakes in documents
- technology skills to use calculators, computers, software programs and printers for the preparation of documents.

Required knowledge

- different types of reservations and operations systems used to issue travel-related documents
- sources of information for:
  - customer details
  - supplier details
  - agent details
  - product information
  - product costs
  - document delivery details
- written use of the 24-hour clock and translation to 12-hour clock for customer use
- for the specific industry sector:
  - a range of documentation types and standard formats
- for the specific organisation:
  - negotiated supplier costs and contractual arrangements for payments
  - features of products sold
  - formats for and inclusions of customer, supplier and crew documents such as itineraries, vouchers, rooming lists
  - procedures and methods for paying suppliers.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

Evidence of the ability to:

- interpret and confirm customer and supplier information and accurately process a range of diverse travel and tourism product, service and operational documentation for multiple customer files
- integrate knowledge of products, costs and payment arrangements when developing documents
- complete documentation activities within commercial time constraints and deadlines determined by the customer or the organisation.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure use of:

- a real or simulated tourism, hospitality or event business operation or activity which processes travel-related documents
- a real or simulated office environment as defined in the Assessment Guidelines
- computers, printers and software programs currently used by the tourism, hospitality or event industries to administer travel and tourism documents
- customer and operational files providing reservation and operational information for issuing documentation
- current product information found within sales kits, brochures, timetables, tour schedules, product manuals, supplier information kits, information databases and CRS
- current template documents including itineraries and vouchers
- where assessment covers air documents and tickets:
  - current airline, consolidator and International Air Transport Association (IATA) documentation or computer data such as schedules, tariffs and bulletins outlining rules, conditions and regulations
  - the full range of IATA actual or training facsimile air documentation.

Method of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- activities that allow assessment of the individual's ability to issue different types of documents for different operational circumstances and for varying customer requirements
- review of documents processed by the individual:
  - air tickets
  - confirmation letters
  - operational itineraries for crew
  - passenger itineraries
  - travel vouchers
  - sales returns
- written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of:
  - operational details of tourism products and services
  - product costs
  - supplier payment arrangements
  - the 24-hour clock and translation to 12-hour clock
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment

The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example:

- SITTTSL304 Prepare quotations
- SITTTSL306 Book supplier services
- SITTTSL308 Use a computerised reservations or operations system
- SITTTSL309 Source airfares for domestic flights
- SITTTSL310 Construct normal international airfares
- SITTTSL311 Construct promotional international airfares
- SITTTSL312 Construct advanced international airfares.

accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Documents may be produced:	• manually • using a computer.
Reservation data for the customer may be:	• a computer file • a manual file.
Customer details may include:	• address for delivery of documents • age • agent details • date required for delivery of documents • name • special requirements to be noted on documents.
Products and services may be:	• domestic • international.

Sources of general information may include:	• air travel information such as:
	  • airline schedules and timetables
	  • airline fare manuals
	  • tariffs from airlines
	  • tariffs from consolidators
	  • special bulletins issued by airlines and consolidators
	• brochures
	• centralised reservations systems (CRS)
	• global distribution systems (GDS)
	• contracts with suppliers
	• database of product suppliers and their details
	• Internet sites
	• price schedules
	• timetables
	• visa guides.

Documentation may include:	• air travel documents such as e-tickets, Multi-Purpose Documents (MPD), Credit Card Charge Forms (CCCF) and exchange tickets • briefing notes for crew • bus, coach or other form of transportation tickets • commission vouchers • confirmation letters • delegate information packs • letter of commission disclosure • letters advising sources of information relating to health, safety and regulatory issues for the customer's attention • letters outlining terms, conditions and liability restrictions

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- literacy skills to:
  - read and interpret system codes, abbreviations and complex product information controlled by the system which can include costs, terms and conditions of their sale
  - write and input accurate customer or operational details and create accurate and succinct notes for special requests or operational details
- numeracy skills to manage accounting processes for particular reservations, and to interpret statistical data within various reports
- planning and organising skills to meet system created deadlines for payments and issuance of documents
- problem-solving skills to react to system failures, inaccurate product information and to report or resolve these issues
- self-management skills to respond to diary entries and meet system created deadlines for payments and issuance of documents
- technology skills to use:
  - a computer and keyboard
  - the system capabilities and functions of the reservations or operations system.

Required knowledge

- for the specific industry sector:
  - different types of computer systems used for reservations and operations
  - range of products and services controlled by different computer systems
  - reservations terminology and jargon
  - role of computerised reservations and operations systems
- for the specific reservations and operations system:
  - range of sales, operational and accounting functions that can be controlled by the system
  - system codes for and requirements to enter and exit a system
  - reservation and operational jargon and entries, including encodes and decodes
  - mandatory fields

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

Evidence of the ability to:

- accurately operate a computerised reservations or operations system to create and administer multiple reservations covering a range of tourism, hospitality or event products and services
- use the full range of system features
- demonstrate knowledge of the role played by computerised systems within the organisation and the wider tourism, hospitality or event industry
- complete reservation or operational activities within commercial time constraints.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure use of:

- a real or simulated tourism, hospitality or event business operation or activity which uses a computerised reservation or operations system to administer sales or operational functions
- a real or simulated tourism, hospitality or event industry environment; for example:
  - a reservations area or call centre
  - a retail shopfront or mobile sales situation for the retail travel sector
  - an office environment as defined in the Assessment Guidelines
- a computerised reservations or operations system currently used in the tourism, hospitality or event industries to administer sales and operational functions.

Method of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation of the individual using the various features

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

of a computerised reservations or operations system to book, retrieve and amend a series of bookings
- activities that allow assessment of the individual's ability to complete the booking process using a computerised reservations or operations system for different tourism, hospitality or event products, services and customers
- use of exercises within emulator reservations programs to assess individual's ability to use all the functions of a computerised reservations system in simulator mode
- evaluation of reservation data and reports generated by the individual in response to different customer situations
- written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of the role of computerised reservations or operations systems and the various functions they manage
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment

Because of the broad industry application of this unit, it is critical that training and assessment is specifically tailored to meet the requirements of the specific industry sector and computerised system and must allow for learners who have moved from one computer system to another to participate in retraining.

The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example:

- SITHACS303 Provide accommodation reception services
- SITTTOP401 Allocate tour resources
- SITTTSL201 Operate an online information system
- SITTTSL202 Access and interpret product information
- SITTTSL304 Prepare quotations

SITTTSL310 Construct normal international airfares

Modification History

The version details of this endorsed unit of competency set are in the table below. The latest information is at the top.

Version	Comments
1.0	N Replaces and but is not equivalent to SITTTSL013B Construct normal international airfares. Changes to Elements and Performance Criteria to better describe the tasks involved and to Required Knowledge for clarity of requirements. International Air Transport Association (IATA) references amended for accuracy. Requirements for checks when calculating airfares updated. Any 'must' statements in Range moved to Required Knowledge and Critical aspects for assessment.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to create flight itineraries and construct normal international airfares. It requires the ability to interpret flight information and conditions applicable to specific fares and to construct airfares according to International Air Transport Association (IATA) regulations.

Application of the Unit

This unit applies to tourism industry organisations that sell international airfares; mainly retail travel agencies, tour wholesalers, airlines and consolidators.

The unit applies to frontline sales and operations personnel who operate with some level of independence and under limited supervision. This includes retail travel consultants and managers, corporate consultants, ticketing consultants, airline and consolidator ticketing officers, reservations and operations consultants.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

Organisations that sell air tickets must meet the requirements of the relevant state or territory Department or Office of Fair Trading to hold a travel agent's licence. In some states and territories managers are required to achieve certification in this unit through a registered training organisation.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Interpret international airfare information.	1.1 Identify and access sources of fare information. 1.2 Interpret information on international flights, fares, fare rules and conditions applicable to specific fares.
2. Create air itineraries and calculate international airfares.	2.1 Configure air itineraries for direct and connecting international flights. 2.2 Accurately calculate and check international fares according to IATA regulations. 2.3 Calculate sector fares and those with intermediate points. 2.4 Calculate concession fares. 2.5 Calculate taxes and fees. 2.6 Create the optimum airfare that meets customer needs. 2.7 Check the airfare calculations for accuracy and compliance with applicable conditions.
3. Construct fares incorporating add ons.	3.1 Correctly interpret add on tables. 3.2 Calculate through fares, incorporating add ons according to IATA regulations.
4. Document and maintain records of calculations.	4.1 Record full details of the calculated airfare. 4.2 Minimise use of printed materials and maximise electronic record keeping to reduce waste.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- literacy skills to:
  - read and interpret complex flight schedules, airline and consolidator fare schedules, applicable conditions and IATA regulations
  - research and sort relevant airfare information
  - write records of fare calculations
- numeracy skills to:
  - interpret fare components
  - calculate taxes, fees and surcharges
  - complete complex calculations and checks to cost the optimum airfare for customers
- planning and organising skills to prepare fare quotations in correct customer file sequence according to the earliest departure dates for customers
- problem-solving skills to identify and resolve mistakes in calculations and non-compliance with rules
- technology skills to use calculators, computers, software programs and printers for the preparation of airfare calculations.

Required knowledge

- sources of information on international flights and fares including information on:
  - airline codes
  - airport codes
  - concession fares
  - direct and connecting services
  - fare conditions
  - fare rules

- a range of formats to calculate and record international airfares including the ladder and linear fare calculation methods.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to:
	• accurately construct multiple and diverse normal international airfares to meet varying customer requirements
	• use the following types of calculations and checks:

- create practical air itineraries to meet customer needs
- interpret information on international fares, fare rules, conditions applicable to specific fares, IATA regulations and construct airfares which meet these requirements
- demonstrate knowledge of:
  - sources of information on international flights and fares
  - the content and format of information provided by airlines and consolidators
  - a range of formats to calculate and record international airfares
- complete airfare calculations within commercial time constraints and deadlines determined by the customer or the organisation.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure use of:

- a real or simulated tourism business operation or activity which sells international airfares
- a real or simulated tourism industry environment; for example:
  - a reservations area or call centre
  - a retail shopfront or mobile sales situation for the retail travel sector
  - an office environment as defined in the Assessment Guidelines
- computers, software programs, printers, and reservations and operations programs currently used in the tourism industry to facilitate airfare calculations
- current airline, consolidator and IATA documentation or computer data such as published fares, schedules and bulletins outlining fares, rules, conditions and regulations.

Method of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- activities that allow assessment of the individual's ability to construct normal international airfares for different routes and to meet varying customer requirements
- review of fare calculation worksheets completed by the individual
- written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of:
  - sources of information on international flights and fares

- the content and format of information provided by airlines and consolidators
- a range of formats to calculate and record international airfares
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment

The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example:

- SITTTSL303 Sell tourism products and services
- SITTTSL304 Prepare quotations
- SITTTSL307 Process travel-related documentation

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements and Performance Criteria

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.
1. Prepare information for BSP reporting.	1.1 Identify the BSP reporting calendar. 1.2 Compile all information required for BSP reports to meet BSP reporting deadlines. 1.3 Complete agency back office sales report for the given BSP reporting period.
2. Download billing and settlement reports and documents.	2.1 Download the Agency Billing Analysis Report from BSPLink and store according to IATA resolution rules. 2.2 Acquire and interpret other BSP documentation according to BSP procedures.
3. Reconcile billing and settlement reports.	3.1 Review and interpret the report data. 3.2 Identify any discrepancies between the report and the agency back office sales report for the same period. 3.3 Action all discrepancies according to BSP procedures. 3.4 Reconcile the Agency Billing Analysis Report with the agency sales reports.
4. Manage the remittance process.	4.1 Lodge reports according to BSP procedures and deadlines and keep agency copies. 4.2 Secure funds and pay the remittance amount as reported. 4.3 Minimise use of printed materials and maximise electronic transmission and record keeping to reduce waste.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- literacy skills to:

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

Evidence of the ability to:

- source information on historical and current product trends and regulatory issues
- obtain current, relevant and accurate information on cruise products and destinations for each of these regions:
  - the Americas
  - Europe
  - Australia, New Zealand, South Pacific and Antarctica
  - Asia and the Indian Ocean
- access information from a range of sources to include:
  - cruise line operators
  - local sales agents
  - distribution and marketing networks
  - government tourism authorities
- provide tailored domestic and international cruise product and destination information and advice to meet the requests of these different types of customers:
  - singles
  - couples
  - families
  - groups
  - special interest
  - retirees
- integrate knowledge of:
  - main cruise operators, itineraries, ports of call and shore excursion options for the Americas, Europe, Australia, New Zealand, South Pacific and Antarctica, Asia and the Indian Ocean
  - features and benefits of major types of on board facilities and services
  - regulatory issues for customer participation
- provide information and advice within deadlines determined by the customer.

Context of and specific

Assessment must ensure use of:

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

resources for assessment

- a real or simulated tourism business operation which provides advice on and sells cruise products
- a real or simulated tourism industry environment where cruise information is provided to customers; this can be one of the following:
  - a retail shopfront or mobile sales situation for the retail travel sector
  - a reservations area or call centre for the tour wholesaling sector
  - an office environment as defined in the Assessment Guidelines
- computers, printers and information programs currently used by the tourism industry to store cruise product and destination information
- current cruise operation, product and destination information found within sales kits, brochures, product manuals, destination marketing organisation information kits, electronic information sources and information databases
- customers with whom the individual can interact and to whom they can provide cruise destination advice.

Method of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- projects and activities that allow assessment of the individual's ability to:
  - source information on historical and current product trends and regulatory issues
  - obtain current, accurate and relevant cruise product and destination information
  - research cruise products and destinations to meet differing customer needs
- direct observation, using role plays, of the individual providing advice to customers
- written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of:
  - information sources for cruise product and destination information
  - main cruise operators, itineraries, ports of call and shore excursion options for the Americas, Europe, Australia, New Zealand, South Pacific and Antarctica, Asia and the Indian Ocean
  - features and benefits of major types of on board facilities and services
  - regulatory issues for customer participation

- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment

The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example:

- SITTTSL201 Operate an online information system
- SITTTSL303 Sell tourism products and services
- SITTTSL304 Prepare quotations
- SITTTSL305 Process reservations
- SITTTSL306 Book supplier services

SITTTSL401 Maintain a product inventory

Modification History

The version details of this endorsed unit of competency set are in the table below. The latest information is at the top.

Version	Comments
1.0	E Replaces and is equivalent to SITTTSL011A Maintain a product inventory. Prerequisite removed.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to maintain an inventory of tourism, hospitality or event products. It requires the ability to obtain and interpret the required product information, enter and maintain current and accurate data and provide product inventory information to relevant personnel.

Application of the Unit

This unit applies to any tourism, hospitality and event industry sector and the inventory can manage any international or domestic product. The inventory system may control a principal's (the supplier's) products that are supplied to other organisations or it may control a tour wholesaler's inventory of product allotted by the principal. It applies mainly to tour operators, tour wholesalers, inbound tour operators, accommodation providers and event management organisations.

Inventory control requires significant interpretation, planning and organising skills. It applies to senior personnel who operate independently or with limited guidance from others including product coordinators and product or operations managers.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to: • follow ride loading and unloading procedures across multiple operations of one or more rides (as required by job role) • perform safety and emergency procedures • demonstrate knowledge of the health, safety and emergency issues and procedures for ride operations.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure use of: • operational rides and associated safety equipment • ride loading documentation or procedures • commercially realistic numbers of customers.
Method of assessment	Assessment methods must be chosen to ensure that the skills required to load and unload a ride can be practically demonstrated. Methods must include assessment of knowledge as well as assessment of practical skills. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct observation of the individual safely loading and unloading a ride • direct observation of the individual performing actual or simulated emergency procedures • written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of work health and safety issues, equipment features and capacity limitations • use of problem-solving activities to assess ability to respond to various situations during the loading and unloading of a ride location, especially emergency aspects • review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.
Guidance information for assessment	The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example:

1.0	E Replaces and is equivalent to SITXOHS003B Identify hazards, and assess and control safety risks. Minor name change.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to identify hazards, assess the associated workplace safety risks, take measures to eliminate or minimise those risks and document all processes.

Application of the Unit

This unit applies to all tourism, travel, hospitality and event sectors and to any small, medium or large organisation.

All people working at all levels can participate in risk assessments which are commonly conducted as a team effort. Frontline operational personnel, who operate with some level of independence and under limited supervision, would assist other colleagues during the process. Individuals may conduct the assessments independently of others.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

This unit incorporates the requirement, under state and territory Occupational Health and Safety (OHS) or Work Health and Safety (WHS) legislation, for businesses to conduct risk assessments involving their workers to manage the safety of those workers and anyone else in the workplace.

No occupational licensing or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Elements and Performance Criteria

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.
1. Identify hazards.	1.1 Access and use hazard identification and risk assessment tools and template documents.
	1.2 Use appropriate methods to identify actual or foreseeable hazards that have the potential to harm the health and safety of workers or anyone else in the workplace.
	1.3 Work alone or with other personnel to identify hazards.
	1.4 Keep records of identified hazards according to organisational procedures.
2. Assess the safety risk associated with a hazard.	2.1 Access and use risk assessment tools and template documents.
	2.2 Work alone or with other personnel to assess the risk.
	2.3 Use a systematic method to assess the risk.
	2.4 Collect sufficient evidence of the type and level of risk posed by the identified hazard.
	2.5 Document the outcome of the risk assessment suggesting actions to eliminate or control risks.
	2.6 Keep records of risk assessments according to organisational procedures.
3. Eliminate or control the risk.	3.1 Discuss, with others, ways of eliminating or controlling the risk.
	3.2 Take measures to eliminate or control risks.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to:
  - discuss hazards and associated risks with other workers
  - participate in risk assessments and assertively suggest control methods
- literacy skills to:
  - read and interpret hazard identification and risk assessment template documents and organisational policies and procedures
  - complete hazard identification and risk assessment reports using template documents
- numeracy skills to score the risks and calculate an overall risk level for the identified hazard
- problem-solving skills to identify and logically evaluate hazards, associated risks and suggest control measures
- teamwork skills to:
  - actively and cooperatively participate in group risk assessments
  - suggest effective controls while incorporating the views of other people in the workplace.

Required knowledge

- basic aspects of the relevant state or territory OHS or WHS legislation, specifically requirements for:
  - when, where and how hazards must be identified
  - when, where and how risk assessments must be conducted
  - consultation in the hazard identification and risk assessment process
  - work health and safety committees or work health and safety representatives as mechanisms for consultation
  - record keeping
- for the specific industry sector and organisation:
  - range of group risk assessment mechanisms commonly used
  - format and use of appropriate hazard identification and risk assessment templates
  - range of methods for identifying hazards in the workplace
  - common methods applied to the assessment of safety risks, including the four-staged process model recommended and published by state and territory work health and safety authorities
  - common methods applied to controlling risks, including the five-stepped hierarchical process model recommended and published by state and territory work health and safety authorities
  - hazard identification and risk assessment procedures.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

Evidence of the ability to:

- participate in multiple risk assessments to identify workplace hazards, assess the associated safety risks and take measures to eliminate or control those risks
- use appropriate methods and documents for hazard identification, risk assessment and control
- demonstrate knowledge of the basic aspects of OHS or WHS legislation for identifying hazards, assessing and controlling risks.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure use of:

- a real or simulated tourism, hospitality or events industry environment where hazards must be identified and risk assessed
- current plain English regulatory documents distributed by the local work health and safety government regulator
- work health and safety information and business management manuals issued by industry associations or commercial publishers
- current commercial policies and procedures, and hazard identification and risk assessment template documents.

Method of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation, using role plays, of the individual discussing hazard identification, risk assessment and control with colleagues
- evaluation of hazard identification and risk assessment documents completed by the individual
- use of simulated activities to assess participation in:
  - hazard identification
  - risk assessments
- use of, case studies and problem-solving exercises so the individual can suggest methods of eliminating or controlling the risks associated with various hazards

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of:
  - legal requirements for hazard identification and risk assessment
  - contents of hazard identification and risk assessment procedures
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment

The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example:

- SITHACS103 Prepare rooms for guests
- SITHASC201 Cook simple Asian dishes
- SITHCCC201 Cook simple dishes
- SITHCCC202 Prepare and present food
- SITTGDE401 Coordinate and operate tours
- SITTPPD404 Develop in-house recreational activities
- SITTTOP301 Load touring equipment
- SITTTOP402 Set up and operate a camp site
- SITTTSL305 Process reservations
- SITTVAF303 Tow and site recreational vehicles
- SITXINV201 Receive and store stock
- SITXWHS101 Participate in safe work practices.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Hazard identification and risk assessment tools and template documents may include:

- self-designed tools
- tools and templates developed:
  - by external consultancy services
  - by industry associations for use by member businesses
  - for public use and found within business management publications, including those developed by work health and safety government regulators

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- tools developed for the organisation as part of a work health and safety management system.

Appropriate methods include:

- conduct of site safety audits
- completion of safety checklists
- inspections of the workplace
- observation of daily activities
- investigation of accidents and incidents
- review of injury or illness registers
- environmental monitoring of the workplace
- investigation of staff complaints or reports of safety concerns
- review of staff feedback via consultative processes, such as meetings, surveys or suggestion box submissions.

Anyone else in the workplace may include:

- contractors
- customers
- visiting supplier representatives.

The workplace may include:

- any tourism, hospitality or event environment, such as:
  - heritage venues
  - holiday parks and resorts
  - hotels, motels
  - clubs
  - event, meeting and exhibition venues
  - restaurants
  - retail outlets
  - retail travel agencies
  - office environment for tour operators, event organisers, tour wholesalers
- any location where a tour is delivered, for example:
  - onboard a coach or cruise vessel
  - a tourist precinct where walking tours are operated
  - in a national park.

Other personnel may include:

- contractors
- managers
- work health and safety committee members
- work health and safety representatives
- peers and colleagues
- staff under supervision
- supervisors
- tourism suppliers.

Hazards may be associated with:

- physical environment, for example:

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- crowds
- customer ability to fully engage in all activities, e.g. health issues
- electrical items
- exposure to weather and natural disasters
- flooring
- hot and cold work environments
- lighting
- noise levels
- pests
- touring activities to be undertaken
- wild animals and local wildlife
- working space of workers

- plant, for example:
  - appliances
  - beverage dispensing systems using inert gases
  - equipment
  - machinery
  - tools
- working practices, for example:
  - length of time spent at certain task and allocation of breaks
  - rostering and shift allocation
  - opening and closing procedures
  - standard operating procedures for work-related tasks
- security issues, for example:
  - customer behaviour
  - storage of cash, documents and keys
  - theft and robbery.

Systematic method involves:

- identifying the injury or illness or consequences that could result from the hazard
- determining the exposure to the hazard
- estimating the probability that an incident or injury will occur
- determining an overall risk level for the identified hazard.

Ways of eliminating or controlling the risk involves:

- substituting a system of work or equipment with something safer
- isolating the hazard
- introducing engineering controls

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- adopting administrative controls
- using personal protective equipment
- implementing combined control methods to minimise risk.

Measures may involve:

- implementing control measures when responsible
- making suggestions for ways of eliminating or controlling risks
- referring to a higher level staff member for decision on implementing controls.

	4.3 React to reports of hazards by other workers, coordinate and participate in risk assessments. 4.4 Implement any risk control methods or refer to appropriate person if control is outside scope of responsibility. 4.5 Monitor the effectiveness of control measures, promptly identify any inadequacies and resolve or report them to the appropriate person.
5. Implement and monitor health, safety and security training.	5.1 Identify work health and safety training needs based on regular staff monitoring. 5.2 Make arrangements for fulfilling training needs. 5.3 Monitor effectiveness of training and make required adjustments.
6. Maintain work health and safety records and reports.	6.1 Complete work health and safety records and reports accurately and legibly and store according to organisation and legal requirements. 6.2 Use data and reports to provide reliable and timely input to the management of workplace health, safety and security. 6.3 Minimise use of printed materials and maximise electronic transmission and filing of all documents to reduce waste.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to:
  - explain issues of work health and safety responsibility to personnel
  - discipline non-compliant personnel
  - conduct sometimes complex work health and safety consultation activities
  - explain all work health and safety procedures and information on safe work practices
- critical thinking skills to:
  - allow for a rational and logical evaluation of the effectiveness of work health and safety management practices
  - incorporate the views of other people consulted in the workplace
- literacy skills to:
  - read and interpret unfamiliar and complex materials describing regulatory requirements for work health and safety management and organisational policies and procedures
  - write high level reports about the effectiveness of work health and safety management practices, including recommendations for change and complete accurate records for regulatory compliance

- planning and organising skills to coordinate consultative arrangements, work health and safety training and regular hazard identification and risk assessment activities
- problem-solving skills to analyse work health and safety system deficiencies and recommend change
- teamwork skills to monitor staff members' daily compliance with work health and safety management practices and counsel on non-compliance.

Required knowledge

- the primary components of relevant state or territory OHS or WHS legislation. This would include:
  - actions that must be taken for legal compliance
  - employer responsibilities to provide a safe workplace
  - requirement to consult and acceptable consultation mechanisms
  - requirements for the use of work health and safety representatives and committees, and their roles and responsibilities
  - requirements for hazard identification, risk assessment, risk control and acceptable mechanisms
  - requirements for record keeping and acceptable record keeping mechanisms
  - requirement to provide information and training
  - employee responsibilities to ensure safety of self, other workers and other people in the workplace
  - employee responsibility to participate in work health and safety practices
  - ramifications of failure to observe OHS or WHS legislation and organisational policies and procedures
- for the specific organisation:
  - the full content of work health and safety policies, procedures, consultation, hazard identification, risk assessment and reporting documents
  - methods used for work health and safety consultation, hazard identification and risk assessment
  - options for the provision of training.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for	Evidence of the ability to:

assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

- implement and monitor predetermined work health and safety work practices, coordinate consultative arrangements, risk assessments, work health and safety training and the maintenance of records
- monitor the effectiveness of the work health and safety system over a period of time
- integrate knowledge of management practices that must be implemented for compliance with state or territory OHS or WHS legislation
- integrate knowledge of policies and procedures when monitoring work health and safety practices.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure use of:

- a real or simulated tourism, hospitality or event industry business operation for which work health and safety management practices are implemented and monitored
- computers, software programs, printers and communication technology used to administer the implementation and monitoring of a work health and safety system
- the relevant state or territory OHS or WHS legislation
- current plain English regulatory documents distributed by the local work health and safety government regulator
- codes of practice and standards issued by government regulators or industry groups
- work health and safety information and business management manuals issued by industry associations or commercial publishers
- current commercial work health and safety policies and procedures
- an operational team for which the individual coordinates work health and safety management practices.

Method of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation, using role plays, of the individual providing work health and safety information and conducting work health and safety consultation sessions
- evaluation of documents prepared by the individual:
  - action plans to coordinate consultative processes, hazard identification and risk assessment activities
  - a range of work health and safety records and reports
  - reports detailing the effectiveness of work health and safety management practices and recommendations for change

- use of case studies and problem-solving exercises so the individual can suggest methods for controlling staff non-compliance with procedures and safe work practices
- written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of:
  - legislative requirements
  - contents of policies and procedures
  - methods used for WHS consultation, hazard identification and risk assessment
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment

The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example:

- BSBADM502B Manage meetings
- BSBMGT515A Manage operational plan
- BSBPMG501A Manage projects

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- evaluation of a portfolio, prepared by the individual, which incorporates an entire written work health and safety system for an organisation, including:
  - policies and procedures
  - hazard identification and risk assessment template documents
  - information fact sheets for workers
  - job descriptions incorporating work health and safety roles
  - training plans
  - consultation strategy
- evaluation of reports, prepared by the individual:
  - how work health and safety policies, systems and procedures were tailored to suit the characteristics and needs of an organisation
  - evaluation of the effectiveness of work health and safety management practices
- use of case studies and problem-solving exercises so the individual can suggest appropriate WHS systems, policies and procedures for different workplace sizes and types
- written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of:
  - relevant OHS or WHS law
  - methods for conducting ongoing work health and safety consultation
  - methods for evaluating the effectiveness of work

health and safety management practices

- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment

The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example:

- BSBADM502B Manage meetings
- BSBPMG501A Manage projects
- BSBWRT401A Write complex documents
- SITXGLC501 Research business compliance requirements.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Work health and safety management system includes practices to ensure:

- adequate facilities for the welfare of employees
- appropriate management of incidents or accidents and notification to work health and safety government regulators
- availability of information, instructions, training and supervision that ensure employees' health and safety
- safe:
  - machinery, equipment and materials
  - premises, including the provision of entrances and exits that are safe
  - systems of work
  - working environment.

Work health and safety policies and procedures may cover:

- consultation
- emergencies
- evacuation of staff and customers
- handling chemicals and hazardous substances
- hazard identification and reporting
- incident and accident management and notification to work health and safety regulatory authorities
- incident and accident reporting by staff
- ongoing monitoring of risk control

1.0	E Replaces and is equivalent to SITHIND002A Apply hospitality skills in the workplace. Title updated to better reflect the intent and content of the unit. Unit broadened and can apply to all types of hospitality service including accommodation services, food and beverage, gaming operations and housekeeping.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to provide effective hospitality service to customers during live service periods.

It requires the ability to integrate a range of individual technical skills while dealing with numerous sales, service or operational tasks simultaneously to meet the needs of multiple and diverse customers. It incorporates preparation, service and end of service tasks.

Application of the Unit

This unit applies to a range of hospitality industry settings including bars, hotels, cafes, restaurants, clubs, pubs and motels.

It applies to frontline operational service personnel who deal directly with customers on a daily basis. They work with very little independence and under close supervision, applying little discretion and judgement as they follow predefined organisational procedures and report discrepancies to a higher level staff member for action. They may work within any industry area including accommodation services, food and beverage, gaming operations and housekeeping.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

competency in this unit	service to customers for a minimum of 12 complete service periods (shifts) • interact with and positively respond to the diverse demands and requests of multiple customers throughout the service period • work with speed and efficiency to deal with numerous service and operational tasks simultaneously • identify issues and problems such as workplace time constraints, late arrivals, no-shows, walk-ins, refer to supervisors and participate in their resolution • work cooperatively as part of the service team and take limited responsibility for the service process, workflow and own work outcomes • integrate knowledge of relevant organisational policies and procedures.

Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure use of:
	• a fully-operational hospitality environment with the fixtures, large and small equipment and workplace documentation defined in the Assessment Guidelines; this can be a:
	  • real hospitality workplace
	  • hospitality industry environment operated within a training organisation that services customers e.g. a training restaurant for the food and beverage context
	• industry-realistic ratios of service staff to customers
	• products and services to be delivered to customers.

Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct observation of the individual providing integrated service according to established systems and procedures within an operational hospitality setting • evaluation of customer feedback about service including speed and timing • written or oral questions to assess knowledge of organisational products and services and procedures • review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.
Guidance information for assessment	Since evidence must be completed across a minimum of 12 complete service periods (shifts), an integrated approach to assessing these units with other technical units required for a qualification is possible and expected.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

Evidence of the ability to:

- integrate technical skills and provide quality hospitality service to customers for a minimum of 36 complete service periods (shifts)
- interact with and positively respond to the diverse demands and requests of multiple customers throughout the service period
- work with speed and efficiency to deal with numerous service and operational tasks simultaneously
- identify issues and problems such as workplace time constraints, late arrivals, no-shows, walk-ins, determine solutions and take appropriate action to resolve
- work cooperatively as part of the service team, monitor the service process and workflow and take responsibility for own work outcomes
- provide technical advice and support to other team members
- integrate knowledge of relevant organisational policies and procedures.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

event venues and sites operated within a training organisation

servicing customers within a training organisation

Assessment must ensure use of:

- a fully-operational hospitality environment with the fixtures, large and small equipment and workplace documentation defined in the Assessment Guidelines; this can be a:
  - real hospitality workplace
  - hospitality industry environment operated within a training organisation that services customers e.g. a training restaurant for the food and bevarge context
- industry-realistic ratios of service staff to customers
- products and services to be delivered to customers.

Method of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

Evidence of the ability to:

- source current holiday park and resort industry information and use this in to day-to-day activities to maximise effective performance
- demonstrate knowledge of the holiday park and resort industry, including main roles, functions and interrelationships of different sectors
- integrate knowledge of the basic aspects of laws:
  - local community protection
  - consumer protection
  - EEO.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure use of:

- computers, printers, communication technology, information programs to source industry information
- information on codes of conduct, membership and benefits distributed by:
  - industry associations
  - accreditation operators
  - unions
- plain English documents issued by government regulators that describe laws:
  - local community protection
  - consumer protection
  - EEO.

Method of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- exercises and project activities that allow assessment of the individual's ability to:
  - obtain current and accurate holiday park and resort industry information
  - research information to meet differing operational needs
- group projects that allow individuals to collectively source information on differing aspects of the holiday park and resort industry and present it in a portfolio

	• direct observation of the individual delivering an oral presentation on the sourced information
	• problem-solving exercises so the individual can identify new knowledge required to complete operational activities and source information to resolve the deficiency
	• written and oral questioning to assess knowledge of:
	  • different sectors of the holiday park and resort industry and their interrelationships
	  • laws relevant to the holiday park and resort industry
	  • industry codes of conduct
	• review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the individual.

Guidance information for assessment	The assessor should design integrated assessment activities to holistically assess this unit with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role, for example: • SITTTSL201 Operate an online information system • SITXCOM101 Source and present information.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Sources of information may include:	• computer data, including the Internet
	• discussions with experienced industry personnel
	• industry:
	  • accreditation operators
	  • associations and organisations
	  • developers of codes of conduct or ethics
	  • journals
	  • rating scheme operators
	  • seminars
	• networking with:
	  • colleagues
	  • suppliers

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1. Organise resources for installation work	1.1. Materials, tools, equipment and machinery are selected according to the irrigation system design requirements and enterprise work procedures. 1.2. The construction site for the irrigation system and construction method is identified according to the site and irrigation system plans and enterprise work procedures. 1.3. Parts and equipment delivered to site are checked according to system drawings and specifications. 1.4. Pre-operational and safety checks are carried out on tools, equipment and machinery according to manufacturer specifications and enterprise work procedures. 1.5. Occupational Health and Safety (OHS) hazards are identified, risks assessed, controls implemented and reported to the supervisor. 1.6. Suitable safety and personal protective equipment (PPE) are selected, used and maintained. 1.7. Water supply is checked to ensure that it is compatible with system specifications.
2. Set out and prepare site	2.1. Measurement and marking out of irrigation lines are consistent with the plan. 2.2. Trenches, where constructed, are at the specified depth without damage to services, facilities, features and established plants. 2.3. Equipment operation and work practices conform to enterprise and legislative OHS requirements. 2.4. Regulations and legislation relevant to the situation are observed. 2.5. Work practices reflect sustainable horticulture principles and respond to local community requirements.

3. Install irrigation components	3.1. Plan is interpreted and, where applicable, contractors are supervised and work is monitored to conform to the plan. 3.2. Components are assembled and connected according to the plan, and joints are completed and tested according to manufacturer specifications. 3.3. Fittings and valves are fitted and adjusted to the requirements of the installation plan, and all joints are secured according to enterprise guidelines. 3.4. A clean and safe work area is maintained while installation work is carried out. 3.5. Tools appropriate to the task being undertaken are chosen and used according to guidelines and safe working practices are employed.
4. Complete installation work	4.1. Earthworks are finished off to plan specifications and enterprise work procedures. 4.2. The system configuration and capacity matches the installation plan. 4.3. The site is restored and waste material is removed from the site and disposed of in an environmentally aware and safe manner according to enterprise work procedures. 4.4. Tools, equipment and machinery are cleaned, maintained and stored according to enterprise work procedures.
5. Commission irrigation system	5.1. Start-up sequence is in accordance with operations manual. 5.2. System is flushed as required. 5.3. Operating faults are identified and corrective actions taken according to the operations manual. 5.4. Testing and monitoring equipment are calibrated to manufacturer specifications. 5.5. Work outcomes are recorded or reported to the supervisor according to enterprise work procedures.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- identify hazards and implement safe work procedures
- organise resources for installation work
- set out and prepare site
- install irrigation components
- complete installation work
- commission irrigation system
- implement and follow relevant enterprise OHS and environmental policies and procedures
- use literacy skills to read, interpret and follow organisational policies and procedures, follow sequenced written instructions, record information collected accurately and legibly, and select and apply procedures for a range of tasks
- use oral communication skills/language competence to fulfil the job role as specified by the organisation, including questioning techniques, active listening, clarifying information and consulting with supervisors as required
- use numeracy skills to estimate, calculate and record routine workplace measures
- use interpersonal skills to work with and relate to people from a range of cultural, social and religious backgrounds and with a range of physical and mental abilities.

Required knowledge

- methods and techniques of irrigation
- components of an irrigation system
- characteristics and operation of joints, valves and sprinkler components
- operation of pumps and water flow rates
- behaviour of water on varying terrain and soil types
- soil water retention testing techniques
- water quality and water filtration techniques
- calculations for installing irrigation systems
- soil characteristics
- environmental impacts of installing irrigation systems
- enterprise OHS procedures.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1. Locate and identify faulty components and blockages	1.1. Irrigation system and component function is determined by reference to system specifications and technical manuals. 1.2. Monitoring and maintenance records are checked and reviewed. 1.3. Operational tests are carried out according to system specifications, technical manuals and Occupational Health and Safety (OHS) requirements. 1.4. Faulty components and blockages are identified and documented according to enterprise policy and procedures.
2. Shut down/isolate component	2.1. Shut own sequence and isolation procedures are applied as required according to system specifications and technical manuals. 2.2. Safe shutdown or isolation is verified. 2.3. Safety/security lock off devices and signage is installed according to enterprise policy and procedures.
3. Replace faulty components and clear blockages	3.1. Access to faulty components and blockages is arranged. 3.2. Faulty components are removed from the system, according to system specifications and technical manuals, and repaired or disposed of in an environmentally responsible way. 3.3. Replaceable components are selected from Replace faulty components and clear blockages are carried out without unnecessary damage to surrounding site and structures. 3.6. Blockages are cleared or blocked sections replaced according to enterprise procedures.

4. Return system to normal operating status	4.1. Isolated or shutdown components are returned to service. 4.2. Operational tests are carried out according to system specifications, technical manuals and OHS requirements. 4.3. System is returned to normal operational set-up. 4.4. Repair activities are reported and recorded according to enterprise policy and procedures.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Plan and prepare work	1.1. Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) and clothing is selected, used and maintained. 1.2. Work instructions relating to constructing the retaining wall are interpreted and confirmed with the supervisor. 1.3. Tools and equipment are prepared and used according to the supervisor's instructions. 1.4. Manual handling and other Occupational Health and Safety (OHS) hazards are identified, risks assessed and reported to the supervisor. 1.5. Services are located according to site and construction 1.6. The quantity and quality of materials are checked to ensure they conform to the requirements of the job plans.
2. Mark out site for retaining wall	2.1. The position of the retaining wall is marked out according to site and construction plans. 2.2. The location and depth of excavations are determined from site and construction plans. 2.3. Profiles are established to conform to the tolerances designated by the supervisor and/or site and construction plans. 2.4. Survey benchmarks are established.
3. Prepare footings according to industry	3.1. Foundations for the retaining wall are excavated to depth and dimensions according industry standards.

standards	3.2. Soil and waste material are removed and stockpiled to ensure a safe working area. 3.3. Reinforcing and/or steps in the excavated site are located and positioned according to industry standards. 3.4. Pegs or levels are positioned to maintain even depth and horizontal plane to the top of footings. 3.5. Footings are placed, consolidated and finished to determined levels, to ensure coverage of reinforcement as necessary and according to industry standards.
4. Prepare and install retaining wall components	4.1. Components for installation are prepared and laid out. 4.2. Components to be cut are marked out to length and/or shape and cut accurately to the requirements of profiles already established. 4.3. Drainage media is installed according to supervisor's instructions. 4.4. Base layer of retaining wall is constructed to a point above the top of the drainage media and weep holes are formed where indicated. 4.5. Fill material is back-filled and compacted behind base of retaining wall. 4.6. Retaining wall components are constructed to dimensions, profiles and levels as outlined in the specified site and construction plans and/or according to supervisor's instructions. 4.7. Capping to top of retaining wall is set to specified levels with a tolerance appropriate to the style of capping.
5. Clean up site and store tools and equipment	5.1. Soil and waste material from the site is disposed of or recycled to minimise damage to the environment. 5.2. Unused construction materials are stored and stacked for future re-use according to supervisors instructions. 5.3. All tools and equipment are cleaned and stored according to supervisors instructions.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Plan and prepare for paving work	1.1. Required workplace information is interpreted and confirmed with supervisor. 1.2. Tools and equipment are prepared and used according to supervisor's instructions. 1.3. The quantity and quality of materials are checked to ensure they conform to the requirements of the job. 1.4. Occupational Health and Safety (OHS) hazards are identified, risks assessed and reported to the supervisor. 1.5. Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) and clothing is selected, used and maintained.
2. Set out and prepare paving area	2.1. The area to be paved is marked out according to the site plan. 2.2. The marked out area is checked with the supervisor for compliance with the site plan and OHS requirements, and adjusted where necessary. 2.3. The reduced levels of the proposed paving area are calculated and pegged from the survey benchmark using the rise and fall method in a closed level run.
3. Undertake ground preparation	3.1. The area is excavated to shape, depth and dimensions to sub base level according to minimal industry standards. 3.2. The sub base is trimmed to the designated level and falls to ensure that the final level of paving can be achieved. 3.3. Drainage systems are constructed as necessary according to the site plan.

	3.4. Base material is placed and compacted to the required finished level according to minimal industry standards.
4. Lay bedding material	4.1. Bedding material is spread loosely over the area to ensure the designated bedding depth can be attained according to minimal industry standards. 4.2. Screed rails are established to ensure the bedding course is maintained. 4.3. Bedding material is levelled to the designated level and falls and in accordance with minimum industry standards.
5. Lay pavers to a given pattern	5.1. Grid string lines are set to required levels to ensure the designated pattern of the project is attained, and to maintain straight lines of components. 5.2. Pavers are set out to the required dimensions and pattern according to the site plan. 5.3. Whole pavers are laid and compacted to the established finish level. 5.4. Pavers are marked, cut and fitted to accurately fill gaps in the pattern within tolerances nominated within the site plan. 5.5. Permanent edge constraints are installed to prevent movement of pavers.
6. Clean site and store tools and equipment	6.1. Paving is swept thoroughly to produce a clean and flat surface free of debris. 6.2. Sand is spread evenly of the paved area and compacted to the finished level. 6.3. Soil and waste material from the site is disposed of or recycled to ensure minimal impact on the environment. 6.4. All tools and equipment are cleaned and stored according to supervisors instructions.

1. Interpret site plans and specifications	1.1. The various components of the site plan and specifications are identified. 1.2. Site plan and specifications are compared with other available plans to ensure accuracy of information. 1.3. Equipment required for the setting out of construction works is determined from the site plan and specifications. 1.4. Environmental impact of proposed construction works is considered in the interpretation of site plans. 1.5. Occupational Health and Safety (OHS) hazards associated with the setting out of construction works are assessed for potential risks, and controls implemented accordingly.
2. Locate and mark out position of construction works	2.1. Existing site features are located from the site plan. 2.2. Position of proposed construction works is located from the site plan. 2.3. Scale measurements of lines, shapes, angles and dimensions are transferred from the site plan to site. 2.4. The shape of proposed construction works is marked out on site according to the site plan and specifications.
3. Establish datum point and survey benchmarks on site	3.1. Datum point is established to ensure all existing and proposed construction works can be linked by survey equipment. 3.2. Survey benchmarks are selected and established on positions/structures on site according to site plan and specifications.

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
4. Take and verify site levels	4.1. Levelling equipment is set up and checked for accuracy of readings. 4.2. Instruments, which are out of specification, are adjusted accordingly. 4.3. Levels are taken, verified and recorded in accordance with established datum point and survey benchmarks. 4.4. Levelling equipment is cleaned, maintained and stored according to manufacturer instructions.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- implement mathematical and geometrical principles when locating and marking out a site for construction works
- use a range of surveyors instruments
- use literacy skills to read, interpret and follow organisational policies and procedures, follow sequenced written instructions, record information collected accurately and legibly, and select and apply procedures for a range of tasks
- use oral communication skills/language competence to fulfil the job role as specified by the organisation, including questioning techniques, active listening, clarifying information and consulting with supervisors as required
- use interpersonal skills to work with and relate to people from a range of cultural, social and religious backgrounds and with a range of physical and mental abilities.

Required knowledge

- interpretation of symbols and use of a legend on site plans and specifications, particularly in relation to benchmarks and the location of existing features
- understanding of compass directions and how to locate North from a site plan
- an awareness of other plans that may be referred to when setting out a site for construction works
- an awareness of common levelling and surveying terms
- environmental awareness associated with the preparation for construction works to ensure that the impact on the environment is minimal when works are implemented
- OHS hazards associated with setting out a site for construction works.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	The evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit must be relevant to workplace operations and satisfy holistically all of the requirements of the performance criteria and required skills and knowledge and include achievement of the following: • interpret site plans and specifications • locate and mark out position of construction works • establish datum point and survey benchmarks on site • take and verify site levels.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Competency requires the application of work practices under work conditions. Selection and use of resources for some worksites may differ due to the regional or enterprise circumstances.

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT
The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole.
Set out may include:	• the range of site plans and specifications, measuring and surveying equipment.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1. Plan and prepare work	1.1. Plans and specifications are interpreted and clarified with the supervisor. 1.2. The quantity and quality of materials are checked to ensure they conform to design drawings and specifications. 1.3. Tools and equipment are selected and checked for serviceability according to enterprise guidelines. 1.4. Occupational Health and Safety (OHS) hazards are identified, risks assessed and controls implemented. 1.5. Environmental implications of constructing concrete structures are identified and reported to the supervisor.
2. Set out and prepare the site	2.1. Services are determined and located from site plans. 2.2. The position of the structure or feature is marked out according to design drawings and specifications. 2.3. Profiles are established to conform to the tolerances nominated within the design drawings and specifications. 2.4. Subsoil is prepared by removing all debris, vegetable matter and topsoil to provide a solid foundation for concrete. 2.5. Drainage systems are installed according to design drawings and specifications. 2.6. Form work is installed to the site in a manner that will ensure it remains rigid during concrete pouring operations. 2.7. Sub-base material is placed and compacted to the required finished levels. 2.8. Preparation of the site is completed according to the type of structure or feature to be constructed.
3. Mix and pour	3.1. Proportions for concrete mix are determined

concrete	according to the strength requirements of the project. 3.2. Volume of dry materials necessary to produce final concrete mix is determined. 3.3. All dry ingredients and required additives are mixed together to ensure a thorough blending of all materials is achieved. 3.4. Sufficient water is introduced to produce a concrete mix to the required consistency. 3.5. Concrete mix samples are taken for testing, if required, to check for conformity to specifications. 3.6. Concrete is poured to designated levels in a manner to avoid segregation of materials. 3.7. Concrete is consolidated using an approved vibration method to industry standard (AS3600) to ensure air pockets are eliminated.
4. Finish concrete	4.1. Concrete is screeded to a flat surface to maintain the desired finished level. 4.2. Surface is trowelled according to design drawings and specifications. 4.3. A Concrete is finished off according to design drawings and specifications.
5. Check quality of work and clean up site	5.1. Quality of finished works is inspected to ensure the standard of the finished structure or feature is in accordance with design drawings and specifications. 5.2. Form work is removed and cleaned in a manner which will allow for re-use of the form work. 5.3. All debris is removed and disposed of in a manner that minimises risk to the environment. 5.4. All tools and equipment are cleaned and stored according to enterprise guidelines.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit covers the process of planning and establishing plant displays either indoors or as seasonal displays of annual and perennial plants in garden beds and defines the standard required to: select suitable plants for plant display purposes; prepare plans for a plant display; plant or arrange plants for a plant display; maintain a plant display.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to the planning and establishment of plant displays. This standard is applied using established routines, methods and procedures and is likely to be undertaken without supervision. Responsibility for the work of others installing and maintaining the displays may be required. Discretion and judgement is required in the selection of equipment, work organisation, services, actions and achieving outcomes within time constraints.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Prepare a presentation	1.1. Plan and document presentation approach and intended outcomes 1.2. Choose presentation strategies, format and delivery methods that match the characteristics of the target audience, location, resources and personnel needed 1.3. Select presentation aids, materials and techniques that suit the format and purpose of the presentation, and will enhance audience understanding of key concepts and central ideas 1.4. Brief others involved in the presentation on their roles/responsibilities within the presentation 1.5. Select techniques to evaluate presentation effectiveness
2. Deliver a presentation	2.1. Explain and discuss desired outcomes of the presentation with the target audience 2.2. Use presentation aids, materials and examples to support target audience understanding of key concepts and central ideas 2.3. Monitor non-verbal and verbal communication of participants to promote attainment of presentation outcomes 2.4. Use persuasive communication techniques to secure audience interest 2.5. Provide opportunities for participants to seek clarification on central ideas and concepts, and adjust the presentation to meet participant needs and preferences 2.6. Summarise key concepts and ideas at strategic points to facilitate participant understanding

3. Review the presentation	3.1. Implement techniques to review the effectiveness of the presentation 3.2. Seek and discuss reactions to the presentation from participants or from key personnel involved in the presentation 3.3. Utilise feedback from the audience or from key personnel involved in the presentation to make changes to central ideas presented

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- culturally appropriate communication skills to relate to people from diverse backgrounds and people with diverse abilities
- facilitation and presentation skills to communicate central ideas of a message in an informative and engaging manner, and to utilise verbal and non-verbal techniques to sustain participant engagement
- literacy skills to prepare presentation information and to write in a range of styles for different target audiences.

Required knowledge

- data collection methods that will support review of presentations
- industry, product/service
- key provisions of relevant legislation from all forms of government that may affect aspects of business operations, such as:
  - anti-discrimination legislation
  - ethical principles
  - codes of practice
  - privacy laws
  - environmental issues
  - occupational health and safety

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • preparation, delivery and evaluation of the effectiveness of at least two presentations related to the candidate's occupation or area of interest • knowledge of the principles of effective communication.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • access to an actual workplace or simulated environment • access to office equipment, documentation and resources.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • demonstration of preparation, delivery and evaluation of a presentation • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate • observation of presentations • review of selected presentation aids, materials and techniques • review of briefing provided for others involved in the presentation • evaluation of techniques implemented to review the effectiveness of the presentation.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to actively listen and to ask questions of others in a constructive way
- critical thinking and problem-solving skills to formulate and ask relevant questions, and come up with appropriate answers
- comprehension skills to interpret and distil key information of relevance to a given situation.

Required knowledge

- different types of questions and their relevance to different situations
- techniques to assist in forming the habit of asking questions and taking responsibility for answers
- typical blockers to the critical thinking process
- why questions are important and the benefits of asking good questions for individuals, businesses and communities (the importance of critical thinking).

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • application of a conscious process of questioning to achieve new understandings • knowledge and understanding of how critical thinking and questioning impacts on individual lives, the broader community and work situations.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • interactions with specific challenges and situations to demonstrate the application of critical thinking (this would usually involve interactions with others).
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate • evaluation of a candidate blog exploring different ideas and questions • review of candidate response to scenarios that allow the candidate to apply critical thinking techniques to a particular life or work situation, and to demonstrate ability to portray curiosity and exploration of new concepts • evaluation of candidate response to the challenge of adopting different perspectives on a situation, and ability to both develop and respond to questions from those perspectives • observation of the candidate participating in a group problem-solving session • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of typical blockers to the critical thinking process.
Guidance information for assessment	Critical thinking always occurs in a specific context. Therefore holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is highly recommended. Assessors must, however, retain a strong focus on the critical thinking skills as described in this

RANGE STATEMENT
The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.
Value of curiosity and questioning might relate to:	• developing a more efficient way of doing something • developing a new idea • developing and improving products and services • enhancing skills and career opportunities • enhancing the physical environment • financial benefit • greater personal satisfaction • improving interpersonal relationships
Different types of questions may include questions about:	• accuracy • breadth • clarity • depth • emotion • fairness • logic • meaning • precision • relevance • significance • social engagement • society • style • taste
Questions of self may include:	• am I being distracted by irrelevant information?

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

RANGE STATEMENT
	• are claims warranted? • are there any unstated assumptions? • could I do this differently or better? • do I have any ideas to share about this? • have I seen something that may have application here? • how can I do that? • how can I fix this? • how long will that take? • if they are doing that, could I? • is this a reliable source? • is this relevant to me? • was I fair? • what are the real facts of this situation?
Questions of others may include:	• do we have a budget? • how did you come up with that? • how do you feel about that? • how does that work? • what does it mean? • why do you want me to do it like that? • why do we do it like that? • why is it so?
Situations when too much wondering or questioning may be inappropriate or ineffective may relate to:	• contractual agreements • extreme time pressure or non-negotiable deadlines • financial limitations • procedures determined by laws or other regulations • safety issues • when others are totally closed to new ideas
Responsibility for answering questions may involve:	• acknowledging shared responsibility • adopting a positive 'can do' attitude • following up on practical details • pro-actively seeking information • suggesting a new approach • talking to others about possible answers
Key question to be answered may be determined by:	• constraints of the broader context and environment • overall goal - what needs to be achieved • personal hopes and expectations

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

RANGE STATEMENT
Information needed to answer the question may be:	• accessed by observing people • already inside own head • in journals, books or other printed materials • in workplace documents • in a hardware store • on the internet • with colleagues • with friends or family
Other information may be:	• opinions • own assumptions or those of others • personal prejudice • spin or public relations
Preconceptions and assumptions may relate to:	• assumptions about the way others are thinking • established ways of doing things • existing ideas, products and services • risk aversion • self-imposed limitations on what is possible

BSBCRT301A Develop and extend critical and creative thinking skills

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to develop the habit of thinking in a more creative way. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to individuals who need to develop and extend their critical and creative thinking skills. Creative thinking involves looking at things differently, musing, testing, experimenting and challenging existing thought patterns. Creative thinking can take place anywhere - at home, at work, lying in bed at night, in the shower or on the bus. It can be applied to any type of issue or situation. When used effectively it can assist with the improvement of existing, or the development of entirely new or innovative services, products or processes. Sometimes creative thinking may pay off in a seemingly unconnected way at a future time and in an apparently unrelated context. Creative thinking can be learnt and applied through thoughtful application of skills related to observation, analysis, reflection, problem solving, evaluation and critical appraisal. Effective use of creative thinking skills opens up new opportunities for individuals, businesses and communities.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1. Develop a questioning mindset	1.1. Develop the habit of asking questions from different perspectives 1.2. Take responsibility for exploring a variety of information sources to provide relevant answers to own questions 1.3. Sort through information and ideas to identify the central questions, issues and challenges 1.4. Challenge preconceptions and assumptions to determine actual constraints in defining a problem for resolution

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

2. Generate ideas and responses	2.1. Explore and use a range of creative thinking techniques to generate ideas and responses 2.2. Muse on, play around with and have fun with ideas in relation to a perceived objective 2.3. Identify and challenge blockers to creative thinking 2.4. Consider and explore realities beyond the current situation 2.5. Evaluate, and where appropriate, challenge existing boundaries to determine perceived or actual constraints 2.6. Show willingness to take risks with ideas and thought processes 2.7. Look around in familiar and unfamiliar places for new inspiration and habitually record observations, experiences, ideas and reflective thoughts to broaden personal knowledge base 2.8. Acknowledge and accept the opportunity for revelation when least expected 2.9. Identify connections and associations from things that seem unconnected
3. Challenge, test and re invent ideas	3.1. Identify, interrogate and challenge the assumptions behind ideas 3.2. Experiment with variations, and explore and challenge a range of different solutions and ideas 3.3. Consciously change perspectives, and evaluate ideas and situations in new ways 3.4. Where appropriate, involve others in ideas and how they might change or be improved
4. Enhance creative thinking skills	4.1. Consciously challenge and question own thought patterns and ways of responding to work and life situations 4.2. Identify and take opportunities to self-assess and to learn about new ideas and different ways of thinking 4.3. Take opportunities to practise and experiment with creative thinking techniques across work and life situations 4.4. Pro-actively talk to others about ways that new ideas and patterns of thinking can be encouraged and developed

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.
Required skills
• creative thinking skills to participate effectively and actively in a range of creative thinking activities • literacy skills to explore and analyse information dealing with potentially complex concepts from a wide range of sources • problem-solving skills to tease out central themes and issues, and to respond with a range of ideas and solutions • reflective learning and self-management skills to question and challenge own skills and practice, to identify and access learning opportunities, and to be prepared to learn new things in unfamiliar areas.
Required knowledge
• common blockers to creative thinking, both from an individual and organisational perspective • definitions, concepts and history of creativity at an overview level • different creative thinking techniques and how they work, including daydreaming and mental wandering, wishful thinking, use of metaphors and analogies, trigger words, morphological analysis, brainstorming visualisation, mind mapping, lateral thinking games, Edward de Bono's six thinking hats, making associations and storytelling • how creativity applies everywhere, not just in traditionally 'creative' contexts • impacts of creative thinking on individuals, communities and businesses • techniques for filtering to process diverse information • ways of extending and developing individual creative thinking skills.

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
Required knowledge
• concept of shared intellectual property from collaborative creativity • concepts of trust and ethical behaviour in the context of creative endeavour • different roles people may play in a collaborative creative process and how this contributes to the overall effort • how the creative process works in different situations (e.g. as an individual, as part of a group) • how the potential for creativity can be maximised within a team • legal framework that affects copyright, moral rights and intellectual property issues • what stops creativity in a group environment.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • positive and full participation in a collaborative creative process that generates, expands and develops ideas into a well-conceived solution • communication and creative-thinking skills that make a positive contribution to the collaborative effort • knowledge and understanding of the ethical framework in which any type of creative endeavour operates.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • involvement of a team of people in the collaborative creative process.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

EVIDENCE GUIDE
	• direct observation of the candidate participating in collaborative creative activity • interviews with others participating in the process to determine the nature and quality of the candidate's participation and interactions • evaluation of candidate presentation (verbal or written) on the collaborative process, including challenges, benefits and key learning for the future • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of concepts of trust and ethical behaviour in the context of creative endeavour.
Guidance information for assessment	A collaborative creative effort always occurs in a specific context. Therefore holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is highly recommended. Assessors must, however, retain a strong focus on the key aspects of collaboration and creativity detailed in this unit. Combined assessment with the following unit would also be appropriate: • BSBCRT301A Develop and extend critical and creative thinking skills.

BSBCRT501A Originate and develop concepts

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to originate and develop concepts for products, programs, processes or services to an operational level. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to individuals who originate and develop concepts of some complexity and progress that concept to the point where it can be implemented. Individuals may be employed by organisations, be sub contractors or consultants brought in by companies to work on specific projects, or be individuals or part of a team working independently. Concepts could be developed for any business or community activity or process such as marketing campaigns, staff development programs, information technology and communication systems. This unit is also highly relevant to practitioners in the creative industries who develop products such advertising campaigns, radio and television programs, entertainment events, films, exhibitions and digital media products. A person undertaking this role would operate with a high degree of autonomy and at a senior level if working within an organisation. However, the process of generating concepts and ideas is collaborative in nature. Skills associated with writing proposals to support concept development are covered in BSBWRT401A Write complex documents.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • development of at least two concepts, substantiated and supported with sufficient information to allow for implementation to occur • generation of concepts and ideas that provide innovative solutions to identified issues • knowledge of legal requirements that affect work in a given industry context.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • access to the full range of background information required to evaluate the operational factors that will affect the implementation of concepts • interaction with others to reflect the collaborative nature of the concept development process.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate • evaluation of concepts generated by the candidate, of the processes used to generate and test the ideas and the material developed to support the concept • debate and discussion with the candidate to assess knowledge of the operational context and the broader factors that impact on concept development • evaluation of presentation or 'pitch' made by the candidate in relation to a particular concept • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of cultural, social and environmental issues and impacts to be considered in developing new concepts.

EVIDENCE GUIDE
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • While the unit is designed for non-specialist HR managers, there is an expectation that competence will be demonstrated in the implementation of the full range of employee relations activities • Negotiation of employment agreements/contracts and the maintenance of high standards of performance in respect to equal opportunity and the management of diversity are key areas of assessment • Conflict management and early intervention in respect to employee grievances/problems are also key elements of the evidence to be presented during assessment.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • access to appropriate documentation and resources normally used in the workplace.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • assessment of written reports on employee relations • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate • observation of presentations on employee relations management • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of human resources function/s being reviewed and policy frameworks • evaluation of research undertaken • review of documentation analysing the strengths and weaknesses of employee relations' policies and strategies • review of documentation of behaviours associated with managing diversity and, resolving employee problems and grievances.
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to make a pro active and positive contribution to workplace innovation. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to individuals working in any industry or community context, in both small and large organisations. They take a pro active approach to identifying, suggesting and developing ideas about better ways of doing things at a practical operational level in a specific area of activity. While the individual's overall work is undertaken with some supervision and guidance, the nature of this process requires the application of discretion, judgement and effective interpersonal skills. The unit assumes that there is wider organisational and management support for innovation and for individuals at all levels to contribute to the innovation process.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to liaise with other team members, to discuss a range of ideas and to be open to different opinions
- comprehension skills to review and interpret information from a wide range of sources
- organisational skills to articulate practical processes and actions for change
- problem-solving skills to identify and anticipate problems at a practical operational level and to develop possible solutions.

Required knowledge

- role and impact of innovation in the workplace at a practical operational level and the 'bigger picture' for innovation in the relevant work or community context
- role of individuals in suggesting and making improvements and the importance of pro-active involvement
- positive impacts and the challenges of change and innovation
- types of changes that can occur as a result of effective individual participation
- typical reasons why suggested improvements or innovations may not be implemented, including operational and management constraints
- ways in which improvements and change can be suggested to maximise likelihood of support.

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • generation of practical ideas in response to a specific workplace situation • effective and open interaction with others to discuss and develop ideas • knowledge and understanding of the role of individuals in contributing to workplace innovation.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • interaction with others to reflect the collaborative nature of the improvement/innovation process.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate • direct observation of the candidate participating in brainstorming, discussions and other collaborative activities to develop ideas • evaluation of candidate's ability to generate ideas to address a range of practical operational situations • evaluation of feedback from other people involved in the collaborative process about the candidate's communication approaches and abilities • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of the role of innovation, the role of individuals in the innovation process and the types of techniques that can be used.
Guidance information for assessment	Innovation does not occur in isolation. Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is highly recommended.

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT
The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.
Own role may relate to:	• current organisational practice in relation to new ideas • knowledge of ways to suggest new ideas • scope of individual discretion and freedom in relation to new ideas • who needs to be involved in the process
Opportunities for improvement may relate to:	• changes in the physical work environment • different storage or maintenance procedures • different ways of communicating within the team • introduction of new technology • job role changes • new customer base • new work practices or services • staffing changes • work processes and procedures
Information which may be relevant to ideas may include:	• examples of similar approaches in other contexts or organisations • media articles about similar ideas • notes about how the idea could improve efficiency or service levels • pricing information
People who could provide input may include those who might:	• challenge and test the ideas • have supervisory or management responsibility • promote the ideas to others • provide technical knowledge • resource the ideas going forward • review any budgetary implications • work in the same area
Best way of approaching people may be influenced by:	• degree of formality required • location of people (e.g. may not be on-site) • need for any supporting documentation

BSBINN301A Promote innovation in a team environment

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to be an effective and pro active member of an innovative team. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies individuals who play a pro active role in demonstrating, encouraging or supporting innovation in a team environment. The individual may be a team participant or a team leader. The team may 'make itself' or be constructed by others. It may have core members and members who participate at certain times or for particular purposes. It may be permanent or temporary, or come together at different times to work on specific projects. The team could consist of a team of contractors/freelancers, permanent staff, clients and service providers, or any combination of these groups. It may operate within an organisation or across several organisations - or simply across a group of individuals. The key focus of the unit is on what makes for an innovative team, what keeps it working well, how the structure of work can make a difference and what skills and knowledge are needed to maximise opportunities for innovation. Where a greater focus on team leadership is required this unit should be combined with units such as BSBLED401A Develop teams and individuals.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to conceptualise and establish new systems that support and encourage innovation in the workplace. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit may apply to individuals working in any community or industry context, in small or large organisations. While managers are often responsible for the development of new systems, depending on the organisation size and the nature of the system being developed, senior operational personnel or internal/external specialists may also undertake this role. Systems are varied in nature and might apply to human resources management, team management, organisational structures, product development, information technology, marketing or training and assessment. The critical focus is on systems conceived and developed with innovation as the key driver.

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT
The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Copyright refers to:	• the protection of the original expression of ideas from copying and certain other uses, but not the ideas themselves
	• a large range of works, including:
	  • works of art and design, and graphic representations, e.g. drawings, maps, community art
	  • literature and other written material, e.g. reports, manuals, guides
	  • music, e.g. tunes, lyrics
	  • sound recordings
	  • films and other moving images
	  • drama and dance
	  • broadcasts
	  • computer programs, software, games
	  • online or digital content
	  • traditional knowledge

Legislative requirements may include:	• Copyright Act 1968 • Copyright Regulations 1969
Copyright owner may be:	• creator of the work • employer where the employee creates a work in the course of employment as part of their usual duties, or is contracted to create the work for the employer • person to whom copyright has been assigned • person who arranged for a film or sound recording to be made • person who commissioned design work on a commercial basis • State, Territory or Federal Government for material created under their direction or control

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

RANGE STATEMENT
	• Note: there could be more than one owner of copyright

Rights of the copyright owner may include:	• the exclusive right to reproduce, publish, communicate to the public, publicly perform and adapt material
	• assigning their rights to others so that another party becomes the owner or exclusive licensee of the rights
	• licensing their rights, giving another party the permission to use the copyright material but not own the rights
	• licensing of rights associated with derivative works of copyright material, including:
	  • exact copies
	  • enhancements
	  • supplementary works
	  • compilations
	(For example license to use computer software programs - specialist legal advice should be obtained)

	Note: different rights attach to different types of copyright and the term of copyright may also differ

Moral rights:	• refer to the personal legal rights of individual creators in the copyright works they have created. They are separate from the economic rights of the copyright owner and may be held by different people
	• include the right of creators:
	  • to be attributed
	  • not to have their work falsely attributed
	  • not to have their work treated in a derogatory way

Copyright notice may refer to:	• the copyright symbol Â© • name of the copyright owner • year of creation or first publication

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

RANGE STATEMENT
	Note: a copyright notice is not required to obtain copyright protection in Australia, but is recommended to clearly indicate to others that the work is protected and to identify the copyright owner
Sources of information and advice may include:	• IP Australia • Attorney-General's Department • Australian Copyright Council • State and Commonwealth government agencies • lawyers specialising in intellectual property, including trade mark attorneys and patent attorneys • accountants • business advisors • marketing consultants • branding consultants • copyright collecting societies, e.g. CAL, PPCA, MIPI, APRA, AMCOS • publications • websites, Internet • databases, e.g. local and international trade mark databases
Policies and procedures may relate to:	• information technology and computer usage • computer security measures • employment contracts, including responsibility for intellectual property • confidentiality agreements within the organisation or among people who may need to know about the copyright material, so as to keep the copyright secret prior to commercialisation

Direct infringement of copyright may include:	• when a person, without the copyright owner's permission:
	  • reproduces the work (or a substantial portion thereof) in a material form
	  • publishes the work
	  • communicates the work to the public
	  • in the case of literary, dramatic and musical works, performs the work in public

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

RANGE STATEMENT
	• adapts the work
Indirect infringement of copyright may include:	• when a person authorises or facilitates another person to infringe copyright, including through 'inactivity' or 'indifference' • when a person, without the copyright owner's permission, imports certain articles into Australia, e.g. to sell, distribute, exhibit or hire, when the article if made in Australia would have been an infringement of copyright
Implications of copyright infringement may include:	• legal and economic implications of not complying with copyright legislation • legal and economic implications of others infringing the individual or organisation's copyright
Commercialisation potential could include:	• licensing or transferring use of original work • profiting from the sale of the original work • developing a product or creative work under a government grant or other funding source and taking it to a commercial product stage
Copyright collection societies refer to:	• societies that license, collect and distribute royalties on behalf of the copyright owners they represent
Locally refers to:	• copyright protection within Australia which, under the Copyright Act 1968, exists automatically when something is written down or recorded in accordance with the requirements of the copyright legislation
Internationally refers to:	• copyright protection in other countries. Copyright is protected by national laws of each country, usually based on international conventions
Procedures to limit or deter infringement may include:	• making sure there is a copyright notice on all work • statement on works outlining preferred licensing arrangements • access codes in software • encrypting • express agreements on copyright ownership, particularly when work is outsourced
Further action could include:	• seeking legal advice • contacting publisher if the work is published • civil actions, including informal negotiations

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

RANGE STATEMENT

	and letters of cease and desist
	• court order, including:
	  • order to seize infringing goods
	  • injunctions
	• monetary damages/compensation

Restrictions may include:	• not using others' copyright material without authorisation from the copyright owner Note: there are some limited exceptions: • fair dealing for the specific purposes of research or study, criticism or review, and news reporting • reproduction of computer programs, e.g. in the technical processes of running the program, for back-up copy, to correct errors • copying industrial products

	• websites, Internet • databases, e.g. local and international trade mark databases

Intellectual property audit may involve:	• a systematic review of the intellectual property owned, used or acquired by a person or organisation, including:
	  • products or services that are key to the organisation
	  • intangible assets and the legal rights that constitute them in relation to the goods or services
	  • what market advantage these rights give the organisation
	  • rights under which the organisation uses intellectual property
	  • gaps or weaknesses in the organisation's intellectual property and rights
	• the valuation and recording of such intangible assets in accordance with accepted accounting standards

Intangible assets refer to:	• registered forms of intellectual property, such as patents and trade marks • unregistrable forms of intellectual property, such as copyright, client lists, know how, staff and training programs

Strategies may include:	• preparation of employer, contractor and supplier contracts which protect the organisation's intellectual property, so that:
	  • the organisation's intellectual property is not introduced into other organisations
	  • ownership of the intellectual property is established, e.g. external contractors designing training materials for an organisation
	• licensing, assignment or transfer of the organisation's intellectual property to other parties for the benefit of the organisation or its stakeholders
	• conducting appropriate clearance searches and investigations

Documentation may include:	• deeds • registration certificates

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to design and develop a database (including queries, forms and reports) to meet a defined need using existing data. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to individuals employed in a range of work environments who create databases to store and retrieve data using commercially available database software. They may provide administrative support within an enterprise, or may be independently responsible for designing databases relevant to their own work roles.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Design database	1.1. Review organisational and task requirements to confirm scope and functionality of database design, including data redundancy 1.2. Develop a logical data model to identify and classify data into types 1.3. Select appropriate software according to organisational and task requirements and required scope and functionality of database 1.4. Confirm database design with appropriate person
2. Develop database	2.1. Set field attributes according to data type and link databases by a common field in accordance with software procedures 2.2. Identify primary key to uniquely identify data 2.3. Identify foreign keys to establish associations between data 2.4. Use software functions and formulae to meet organisational and task requirements 2.5. Create password and access system according to organisational and task requirements
3. Develop queries, forms and reports	3.1. Develop queries as required by organisational and task requirements 3.2. Develop input screens or forms in order to access required data

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

	3.3. Develop reports according to organisational and task requirements
4. Test and finalise database	4.1. Populate database with sample dataset for testing 4.2. Assess and document effectiveness of data relationships, queries forms and reports 4.3. Address any errors in database design 4.4. Name and store database in accordance with organisational requirements and exit the application without data loss or damage 4.5. Confirm database readiness with appropriate person

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- literacy skills to interpret and evaluate the purposes and features of databases
- numeracy skills to utilise software functions and formulae, and to establish data relationships and queries
- planning and organising skills to establish database design
- problem-solving skills to address inconsistencies in database design and data relationships.

Required knowledge

- advanced functions of database software applications
- impact of formatting and design on the presentation and readability of data
- key provisions of relevant legislation from all forms of government, standards and codes that may affect aspects of business operations, such as:
  - anti-discrimination legislation
  - ethical principles
  - codes of practice
  - privacy laws
  - occupational health and safety.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • producing a database containing a minimum of three tables and incorporating queries, reports and forms • knowledge of advanced functions of database software app.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • access to office equipment and resources • access to sample data.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate • review of databasedesign • review of database testing • demonstration of techniques.
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: • IT use units • other IT analysis and design units.

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT
The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.
Organisational and task requirements may include:	• business requirements • consistent corporate image, including colour schemes and company logo • established guidelines and procedures for data usage • existing database templates • final output requirements for data • house styles • observing copyright legislation • organisation name, time, date, document title, filename or other fields in headers and footers • technical operating environment and platform
Scope and functionality of database may include:	• concurrency of access requirements • data relationships • data structures • forms • queries • reports • screens • security features • table relationships
Software may include:	• commercial software applications • organisational specific software
Appropriate person may include:	• clients • colleagues • supervisors
Software functions may include:	• adding, deleting, moving, re-labelling fields • altering field widths • calculations, formula • data protection • field definitions and attributes • formatting fields • formatting text • headers and footers • inserting and deleting blank lines and spaces • macros • append

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.
Required skills
• communication skills to request advice, to receive feedback and to work with a team • literacy skills to identify work requirements; to understand and process basic, relevant workplace information; and to draft simple correspondence • problem-solving skills to solve routine technology problems.
Required knowledge

• different methods of electronic communication
• key provisions of relevant legislation from all forms of government that may affect aspects of business operations, such as:
  • anti-discrimination legislation
  • ethical principles
  • codes of practice
  • privacy laws
  • occupational health and safety.

EVIDENCE GUIDE
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • sending and receiving email for a range of purposes • attaching and removing documents to email • using software applications to collaborate online • knowledge of relevant legislation.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • access to an actual workplace or simulated environment • access to office equipment and resources • access to software applications likely to be used in the workplace.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate • analysis of responses to case studies and scenarios • demonstration of techniques • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of electronic communication methods and tools • review of attachments prepared for email • review of electronic mailing lists • evaluation of postings and responses to online discussions.
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: • general administration units • other IT use units.

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT
The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Create a simple database	1.1. Design a simple database, with at least two tables, using a database application, basic design principles, software functions and simple formulae 1.2. Develop a table with fields and attributes according to database usage, as well as data considerations and user requirements 1.3. Create a primary key for each table 1.4. Modify table layout and field attributes as required 1.5. Create a relationship between the two tables 1.6. Check and amend data entered, in accordance with organisational and task requirements
2. Create reports and queries	2.1. Determine information output, database tables to be used and report layout to meet task requirements 2.2. Determine data groupings, search and sort criteria to meet task requirements 2.3. Run reports and queries to check that results and formulae provide the required data 2.4. Modify reports to include or exclude additional requirements
3. Use database	3.1. Ensure data input meets designated time lines and organisational requirements for speed and accuracy 3.2. Use manuals, user documentation and online help to overcome problems with database design and

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • designing and producing a minimum of 3 completed business documents, using at least 2 software applications in the production of each document • using appropriate data storage options • knowledge of the functions and features of contemporary computer applications.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • access to an actual workplace or simulated environment • access to office equipment and resources • access to examples of style guides and organisational procedures.
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: • general administration units • other IT use units.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • access to office equipment and resources • access to samples of word processed documents and organisational style guides • that it is in accordance with the current version of AS 2708:2001 Keyboarding speed tests, which specifies the test material, the equipment, the environment and how to conduct and score the test • that a speed statement be issued to individuals assessed as competent against the unit.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate • review of outcomes of keyboarding speed tests • review of documents for accuracy • demonstration of techniques.

Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: • word processing units • other units that include requirements to enter text or numerical data.

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT
The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.
Ergonomic requirements may include:	• avoiding radiation from computer screens • chair height, seat and back adjustment • document holder • footrest • keyboard and mouse position • lighting • noise minimisation • posture • screen position • workstation height and layout
Work organisation may include:	• exercise breaks • mix of repetitive and other activities • rest periods • visual display unit (VDU) eye testing

BSBMGT515A Manage operational plan

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to develop and monitor implementation of the operational plan to provide efficient and effective workplace practices within the organisation's productivity and profitability plans. Management at a strategic level requires systems and procedures to be developed and implemented to facilitate the organisation's operational plan. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to people who manage the work of others and operate within the parameters of a broader strategic and/or business plan. The task of the manager at this level is to develop and implement an operational plan to ensure that the objectives and strategies outlined in the strategic and/or business plan are met by work teams. However in some larger organisations operational plans may be developed by a strategic planning unit. At this level work will normally be carried out within complex and diverse methods and procedures, which require the exercise of considerable discretion and judgement, using a range of problem solving and decision making strategies.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to lead and manage continuous improvement systems and processes. Particular emphasis is on the development of systems and the analysis of information to monitor and adjust performance strategies, and to manage opportunities for further improvements. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to managers who take an active role in managing a continuous improvement process in order to achieve an organisation's objectives. Where managers are closely associated with the creation and delivery of products and services, they play an important part in influencing the ongoing development of the organisation. At this level, work will normally be carried out using complex and diverse methods and procedures which require the exercise of considerable discretion and judgement, using a range of problem-solving and decision-making strategies.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to sustain and develop an environment in which continuous improvement, innovation and learning are promoted and rewarded. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to people with managerial responsibilities, including for building a better and more effective work environment. Continuous improvement and innovation have links with the model of the learning organisation and people working at this level play an important role in building the culture, values and attitudes of the organisation. Links may be made between continuous improvement and formal quality systems, such as International Organization for Standardization (ISO) or quality software. However it is not assumed that formal quality systems or software are in the workplace. Innovation is seen as an important attitude and set of practices, which should be fostered by people working at this level in teams and across the organisation.

BSBOHS606B Develop and implement crisis management processes

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to develop and implement the planning and management to prevent or mitigate the occupational health and safety (OHS) outcomes of a crisis. The focus is on the development of a number of management processes including emergency assessments, plans and preparation, analysis, monitoring, training and post incident support. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit addresses knowledge, processes and techniques necessary for developing and implementing crisis planning where a 'crisis' is defined as an event with a potentially high consequence outcome in terms of personal injury or damage. Emergency preparedness and management is an important part of crisis management in that it addresses the elements of technical and tactical response. Crisis management involves a number of steps including threat analysis, crisis planning and crisis containment. Useful underpinning knowledge and skills for the OHS practitioner that support this unit are available from BSBOHS404B Contribute to the implementation of strategies to control OHS risk, BSBOHS405B Contribute to the implementation of emergency procedures, and BSBOHS504B Apply principles of OHS risk management.

Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Business plan may include:	• business opportunities, which may be influenced by:
	  • amount and types of finance available
	  • expected financial viability
	  • skills of operator
	• details of ownership/management
	• finance, expenditure statement, balance sheet and cash flow forecast, projections for the initial years of operation assumptions underlying the business plan, expected level of inflation and taxation, expected trend of interest rate, capital expenditure and its timing, stock turnover, debtors collection period, creditor payment period, return on investment
	• level of risk involved, risk assessment and management
	• market focus of the business
	• marketing requirements
	• need to raise finance and requirements of lenders
	• organisation/operational arrangements
	• proposed size and scale of the business
	• recognition of any seasonal or cyclical (time-based) elements which are crucial to the success of the business
	• resources required and available
	• sources of funding
	• specialist services and sources of advice that may be required
	• staffing
	• stages in the business development

Business goals and objectives may include:	• customer needs/marketing projections • family or community benefits

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to effectively measure current resource use and to carry out improvements including reducing the negative environmental impact of work practices. This unit requires the ability to access industry information, and applicable legislative and occupational health and safety (OHS) guidelines. While no licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply holistically to this unit at the time of publication, relevant national, state and territory legislation, regulations and codes of practice impact upon this unit.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to operators/team members under supervision or guidance, who are required to follow workplace procedures and instructions, and to work in an environmentally sustainable manner. It covers: efficient resource use potential environmental hazards regulatory compliance improving environmental performance (within the scope of competency, authority and own level of responsibility). It addresses the knowledge, processes and techniques necessary to participate in environmentally sustainable work practices.

2. Comply with environmental regulations	2.1. Follow workplace procedures to ensure compliance 2.2. Report breaches or potential breaches to appropriate personnel
3. Seek opportunities to improve resource efficiency	3.1. Follow organisational plans to improve environmental practices and resource efficiency 3.2. Work as part of a team, where relevant, to identify possible areas for improvements to work practices in own work area 3.3. Make suggestions for improvements to workplace practices in own work area

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- analytical skills to comply with all relevant legislation associated with job specifications and procedures
- communication and problem-solving skills to question, seek clarification and make suggestions relating to work requirements and efficiency
- communication and teamwork skills to recognise procedures; to follow instructions; to respond to change, such as current workplace environmental/sustainability frameworks; and to support team work and participation in a sustainable organisation
- literacy, numeracy and technology skills to interpret workplace information in relation to work role, and to document and measure resource use
- technology skills to select and use technology appropriate for a task.

Required knowledge

- environmental and resource hazards/risks
- environmental or sustainability legislation, regulations and codes of practice applicable to own work role
- OHS issues and requirements
- organisational structure, and reporting channels and procedures
- relevant environmental and resource efficiency systems and procedures
- sustainability in the workplace

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • accessing, interpreting and complying with a range of environment/sustainability legislation and procedural requirements relevant to daily responsibilities • accurately following organisational information to participate in and support an improved resource efficiency process and reporting as required • developing and/or using tools such as inspection checklists, to collect and measure relevant information on organisation resource consumption, within work role • identifying organisational improvements by applying efficient resource use to daily activities • knowledge of environmental and resource hazards/risks.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • access to an actual workplace or simulated environment • evidence is relevant to the particular workplace role, including work area, equipment, systems, and documentation • review of current work area directly relating to own work, to assess measurement of resources used, hazards and compliance • individual or team discussion about potential for increased resource efficiency within current work area • access to workplace documents, information and resources (such as compliance obligations, enterprise plans, work responsibilities).

Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used t assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate • observation of demonstrated techniques over time and in a range of situations • analysis of responses to case studies and scenarios • review of documentation measuring current resource usage • evaluation of techniques used to document and measure current usage of resources • review of identified and reported workplace environmental hazards • evidence of active participation in organisational plans to improve environmental practices and resource efficiency.
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: • BSBINN201A Contribute to workplace innovation • BSBSMB301A Investigate micro business opportunities • BSBWOR202A Organise and complete daily work activities.

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT
The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. RANGE STATEMENT
efficiency issues may include:	• minimising environmental risks • promoting more efficient production and consumption of natural resources, for example minimising waste by participating in or using a waste management system • using resources efficiently such as material usage, energy usage (seeking alternative sources of energy or energy conservation) or efficient water usage
Appropriate techniques may include:	• examining and documenting resources in work area • examining invoices from suppliers • examining relevant information and data • measuring resource usage under different conditions • reports from other parties involved in the process of identifying and implementing improvements

Compliance may include:	• meeting relevant laws, by-laws and regulations or best practice to support compliance in environmental performance and sustainability at each level as required (such as Environmental Protection or Biodiversity Conservation Act):
	  • international
	  • commonwealth
	  • state/territory
	  • local government
	  • industry
	  • organisation

Organisational plans may include:	• documented policies and procedures • work plans to minimise waste or to increase efficiency of resources such as a green office program, supply chain program for purchasing sustainable products or an environmental management framework
Suggestions may include ideas that help to:	• improve energy efficiency • increase use of renewable, recyclable, reusable and recoverable resources • maximise opportunities such as use of solar power or other alternative forms of energy, where appropriate

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the Performance Criteria, Required Skills and Knowledge, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate this unit of competency:	• The individual being assessed must provide evidence of specified essential knowledge as well as skills • This unit will be most appropriately assessed in the workplace or in a simulated workplace and under the normal range of workplace conditions • It is recommended that assessment or information for assessment will be conducted or gathered over a period of time and cover the normal range of workplace situations and settings • Where, for reasons of safety, space, or access to equipment and resources, assessment takes place away from the workplace, the assessment environment should represent workplace conditions as closely as possible
Access and equity considerations:	• All workers in community services should be aware of access, equity and human rights issues in relation to their own area of work • All workers should develop their ability to work in a culturally diverse environment • In recognition of particular issues facing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, workers should be aware of cultural, historical and current issues impacting on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people • Assessors and trainers must take into account relevant access and equity issues, in particular relating to factors impacting on Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander clients and communities
Context of and specific resources for assessment:	• This unit can be assessed independently, however holistic assessment practice with other community services units of competency is encouraged • Resources required for assessment include: • access to appropriate workplace where assessment

	can take place • simulation of realistic workplace setting for assessment • relevant organisation policy, protocols and procedures
Method of assessment	• Observation in the workplace • Written assignments/projects • Case study and scenario analysis • Questioning • Role play simulation

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT

The Range Statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Add any essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts.

Older people may include:	• Individuals living in residential aged care environments • Individuals living in the community • Prospective individuals to the service or services
Contexts may include:	• Older person's own dwelling • Independent living accommodation • Residential aged care facilities • Community centres • Community/government agencies

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment	This unit of competency could be assessed by observing practical demonstrations of preparing for work in the cleaning industry, which involve at least two different work site environments.
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	A person who demonstrates competency in this unit must be able to provide evidence of the required skills and knowledge specified in this unit. In particular the person should demonstrate the ability to: • identify type and condition of different areas to be cleaned

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

	• use safe and efficient cleaning methods • select cleaning equipment and chemicals • achieve outcomes in relation to customer work order, legislation and company requirements.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment of essential underpinning knowledge may be conducted in an off-site context. It is to comply with relevant regulatory or Australian standards' requirements. Resource implications for assessment include access to: • suitable work site or venue • suitable equipment and chemicals • PPE • equipment operating manuals and MSDS • work order instructions and work plans • assessment instruments, including personal planner and assessment record book.
Method of assessment	Assessment methods must: • satisfy the endorsed Assessment Guidelines of the Property Services Training Package • include direct observation of tasks in real or simulated work conditions, with questioning to confirm the ability to consistently identify and correctly interpret the essential underpinning knowledge required for practical application • reinforce the integration of employability skills with workplace tasks and job roles • confirm that competency is verified and able to be transferred to other circumstances and environments.
Guidance information for assessment	Reasonable adjustments for people with disabilities must be made to assessment processes where required. This could include access to modified equipment and other physical resources, and the provision of appropriate assessment support. Assessment processes and techniques should as far as is practical take into account the language, literacy and numeracy capacity of the candidate in relation to the competency being assessed. This unit could be assessed on its own or in combination with other units relevant to the job function, such as: • CPPCLO1041A Apply basic communication skills • CPPCMN2002A Participate in workplace safety arrangements.

Unit Descriptor

This unit of competency specifies the outcomes required to maintain carpeted floors. The unit applies to both manual and mechanical methods of maintaining carpeted floors. It requires the ability to assess the extent of the cleaning task through understanding client requirements and applying company policies and procedures. Selecting the appropriate equipment, chemicals and methods is essential to performing the task safely and efficiently.

Application of the Unit

This unit of competency supports employees without managerial or supervisory responsibilities. Performance would usually be carried out under routine supervision and within company guidelines.

performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1	Assess area to be cleaned.	1.1	Area to be cleaned is assessed, work order is reviewed according to company requirements, and issues are clarified with appropriate persons**.
		1.2	Work site hazards are identified and risks are controlled according to company, legislative, and occupational health and safety (OHS) requirements.
		1.3	Type and condition of carpeted floor are identified by observation according to work order and company requirements.
		1.4	Soil type is identified by observation according to work order and company requirements.
		1.5	Cleaning techniques for the carpeted floor are selected according to work order and company requirements.
		1.6	Size and usage pattern of work site are determined to ensure safety of personnel and efficient use of equipment and chemicals.
		1.7	Pre-existing damage is identified and reported to appropriate persons according to company requirements.
2	Select equipment and chemicals.	2.1	Suitable personal protective equipment (PPE) is selected and used according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.
		2.2	Equipment and chemicals are selected for work order according to OHS and company requirements.
		2.3	Operational effectiveness of equipment is checked according to manufacturer specifications and company requirements.
		2.4	Equipment is adjusted to suit operator’s requirements according to manufacturer specifications and OHS requirements.
		2.5	Chemicals are prepared according to manufacturer

			specifications, and OHS and company requirements.
3	Prepare work site.	3.1	Hazards in work site are confirmed and risks are controlled and reassessed according to legislative, OHS and company requirements.
		3.2	Furniture and fittings that impede cleaning operations are removed according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
		3.3	Signage and barriers are installed as required to maximise public safety during cleaning operations according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
		3.4	Work restrictions affecting the completion of work order are identified and appropriate persons are promptly notified.
4	Clean work site	4.1	Carpeted floor is cleaned using equipment, PPE, chemicals and cleaning techniques according to work order, manufacturer specifications and OHS and company requirements.
		4.2	Follow-up action for spot and stain removal is identified according to work order and company requirements.
		4.3	Work is performed according to work order, manufacturer specifications and legislative, OHS and company requirements.
5	Tidy work site.	5.1	Collected soil and waste are disposed of according to client specifications, work order, manufacturer specifications and legislative, OHS, company and environmental requirements.
		5.2	Furniture and fittings are replaced according to client requests, work order and OHS requirements.
		5.3	Signage and barriers are removed according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.

6	Clean and safety check equipment, and store equipment and chemicals.	6.1	Equipment and PPE are cleaned according to manufacturer specifications and environmental, OHS and company requirements.
		6.2	Equipment and PPE are safety checked according to manufacturer specifications and OHS requirements, and required maintenance is recorded according to company requirements.
		6.3	Equipment and PPE are stored and maintained to allow ready access according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.
		6.4	Chemicals are stored according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- customer service skills to:
  - establish rapport with clients
  - gain clients' trust
  - identify client expectations
- interpersonal skills to relate to people from a range of backgrounds
- language, literacy and numeracy skills to:
  - communicate clearly and concisely verbally and in writing
  - perform mathematical calculations required for:
    - diluting and mixing chemicals as specified on product labels
    - measuring area
  - read and interpret directions and safety instructions, including:
    - chemical labels
    - equipment manuals
    - material safety data sheets (MSDS)
  - request advice or further information
  - seek and receive feedback
  - source, organise and record information
- planning and organising skills to:
  - manage time

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

    - sequence tasks
- problem-solving skills to manage contingencies
- skills to work safely when:
    - handling and disposing of chemicals
    - handling and disposing of contaminated and toxic waste
    - identifying hazards and controlling risks
    - manual handling
    - using equipment for:
        - raking
        - sweeping
        - vacuuming
- self-management skills to work alone and in a team

Required knowledge

- cleaning chemicals and equipment and their applications for carpet
- company management structure and procedures, including:
    - biological and viral control
    - emergency response and evacuation procedures
    - environmental protection procedures
    - injury, dangerous occurrence and incident reporting
    - OHS procedures
    - quality systems
- legislation, regulations, codes of practice and industry advisory standards that apply to maintaining a carpeted floor, including OHS legislation
- routes of entry and potential symptoms of exposure to chemicals
- safe work practices for using:
    - chemicals
    - equipment, including PPE
- types of carpeted floors, including:
    - characteristic of carpets
    - relevant cleaning methods

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment	This unit of competency could be assessed by observing practical demonstrations of maintaining carpeted floor surfaces involving at least two different surfaces and two different work site environments.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	A person who demonstrates competency in this unit must be able to provide evidence of the required skills and knowledge specified in this unit. In particular the person should demonstrate the ability to: • identify type and characteristics of carpeted floor • comply with company and legislative requirements • use safe and efficient cleaning methods • select cleaning equipment and chemicals • achieve outcomes in relation to customer work order and company requirements.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment of essential underpinning knowledge may be conducted in an off-site context. It is to comply with relevant regulatory or Australian standards' requirements. Resource implications for assessment include access to: • suitable work site or venue with carpeted floors • suitable equipment and chemicals • PPE • equipment operating manuals and MSDS • work order instructions and work plans • assessment instruments, including personal planner and assessment record book.
Method of assessment	Assessment methods must: • satisfy the endorsed Assessment Guidelines of the Property Services Training Package • include direct observation of tasks in real or simulated work conditions, with questioning to confirm the ability to consistently identify and correctly interpret the essential underpinning knowledge required for practical application • reinforce the integration of employability skills with workplace tasks and job roles • confirm that competency is verified and able to be transferred to other circumstances and environments.
Guidance information for assessment	Reasonable adjustments for people with disabilities must be made to assessment processes where required. This could include access to modified equipment and other physical resources, and the provision of appropriate assessment support. Assessment processes and techniques should as far as is practical take into account the language, literacy and numeracy capacity of the candidate in relation to the competency being assessed.

	This unit could be assessed on its own or in combination with other units relevant to the job function, such as: • CPPCCL2002A Use bonnet cleaning • CPPCCL2007A Perform basic stain removal.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Work order information may include:	• access to work site, including:
	  • access and egress points
	  • timing of access
	• budget allocations
	• completion times and dates
	• human resource requirements to complete the work tasks
	• job requirements and tasks
	• legislative and local government requirements
	• OHS requirements and emergency response procedures
	• requirements for working in isolated and remote locations
	• resource requirements, such as equipment and materials
	• specific client requirements, such as:
	  • dress and presentation requirements
	  • relationships with other activities
	• use of signage and barriers
	• work schedules
	• work site contact persons
	• work site requirements for specific industries, such as:
	  • hospitals and medical centres
	  • nursing homes
	  • retail food courts
	  • schools
	  • tourism and hospitality.

Company requirements may include:	• business and performance plans • client communication procedures • client confidentiality procedures • client service standards

		5.3	Signage and barriers are removed according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
6	Clean and safety check equipment, and store equipment and chemicals.	6.1	Equipment and PPE are cleaned according to manufacturer specifications and environmental, OHS and company requirements.
		6.2	Equipment and PPE are safety checked according to manufacturer specifications and OHS requirements, and required maintenance is recorded according to company requirements.
		6.3	Equipment and PPE are stored and maintained to allow ready access according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.
		6.4	Chemicals are stored according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- customer service skills to:
  - establish rapport with clients
  - gain clients' trust
  - identify client expectations
- interpersonal skills to relate to people from a range of backgrounds
- language, literacy and numeracy skills to:
  - communicate clearly and concisely verbally and in writing
  - perform mathematical calculations required for:
    - diluting and mixing chemicals as specified on product labels
    - measuring area
  - read and interpret directions and safety instructions, including:
    - chemical labels
    - equipment manuals

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

    - material safety data sheets (MSDS)
  - request advice or further information
  - seek and receive feedback
  - source, organise and record information
- planning and organising skills to:
  - manage time
  - sequence tasks
- problem-solving skills to manage contingencies
- skills to work safely when:
  - handling and disposing of chemicals
  - handling and disposing of contaminated and toxic waste
  - identifying hazards and controlling risks
  - manual handling
  - using equipment for cleaning glass
- self-management skills to work alone and in a team

Required knowledge

- cleaning chemicals and equipment and their applications for glass surfaces
- company management structure and procedures, including:
  - biological and viral control
  - emergency response and evacuation procedures
  - environmental protection procedures
  - injury, dangerous occurrence and incident reporting
  - OHS procedures
  - quality systems
- legislation, regulations, codes of practice and industry advisory standards that apply to cleaning glass surfaces, including OHS legislation
- routes of entry and potential symptoms of exposure to chemicals
- safe work practices for using:
  - chemicals
  - equipment, including PPE
- types of glass surfaces, their characteristics and appropriate cleaning methods

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment	This unit of competency could be assessed by observing practical demonstration of cleaning glass surfaces involving at least two different surfaces and two different work site environments.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	A person who demonstrates competency in this unit must be able to provide evidence of the required skills and knowledge specified in this unit. In particular the person should demonstrate the ability to: • identify type and characteristics of glass surface • select cleaning equipment and chemicals • use safe and efficient cleaning methods • comply with company and legislative requirements • achieve outcomes in relation to customer work order and company requirements.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment of essential underpinning knowledge may be conducted in an off-site context. It is to comply with relevant regulatory or Australian standards' requirements. Resource implications for assessment include access to: • suitable venue with a number of types of glass surfaces • suitable equipment and chemicals • PPE • equipment operating manuals and MSDS • work order instructions, work plans and schedules • assessment instruments, including personal planner and assessment record book.
Method of assessment	Assessment methods must: • satisfy the endorsed Assessment Guidelines of the Property Services Training Package • include direct observation of tasks in real or simulated work conditions, with questioning to confirm the ability to consistently identify and correctly interpret the essential underpinning knowledge required for practical application • reinforce the integration of employability skills with workplace tasks and job roles • confirm that competency is verified and able to be transferred to other circumstances and environments.
Guidance information for assessment	Reasonable adjustments for people with disabilities must be made to assessment processes where required. This could include access to modified equipment and other physical resources, and the provision of appropriate assessment support. Assessment processes and techniques should as far as is practical take into account the language, literacy and numeracy capacity of the candidate in relation to the competency being assessed.

	This unit could be assessed on its own or in combination with other units relevant to the job function, such as: • CPPCLO2015A Maintain furniture, fittings and room dressing • CPPCLO2037A Clean external surfaces.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Glass surfaces may include:	• coated glass • frosted glass • laminated glass • ordinary window glass • textured glass • tinted glass.

Work order information may include:	• access to work site, including:
	  • access and egress points
	  • timing of access
	• budget allocations
	• completion times and dates
	• human resource requirements to complete the work tasks
	• job requirements and tasks
	• legislative and local government requirements
	• OHS requirements and emergency response procedures
	• requirements for working in isolated and remote locations
	• resource requirements, such as equipment and materials
	• specific client requirements, such as:
	  • dress and presentation requirements
	  • relationships with other activities
	• use of signage and barriers
	• work schedules
	• work site contact persons
	• work site requirements for specific industries, such as:
	  • hospitals and medical centres
	  • nursing homes
	  • retail food courts

	• schools • tourism and hospitality.

Company requirements may include:	• business and performance plans
	• client communication procedures
	• client confidentiality procedures
	• client service standards
	• communication channels and reporting procedures
	• company goals, objectives, plans, systems and processes
	• company issued identification badges, cards or passes
	• company policies and procedures, including:
	  • access and equity policy, principles and practice
	  • OHS policies and procedures, including control procedures
	  • maintenance procedures for equipment and PPE
	  • those relating to own role, responsibility and delegation
	  • work site access security clearance procedures
	• company service standards
	• dress and presentation requirements
	• duty of care, code of conduct, and code of ethics
	• emergency response and evacuation procedures
	• employer and employee rights and responsibilities
	• environmental protection procedures
	• personnel practices and guidelines
	• quality and continuous improvement processes and standards
	• records and information systems and processes
	• training materials (induction, refresher and new skills)
	• use of contractors.

Appropriate persons may include:	• clients • colleagues • managers • persons in control of work sites • supervisors.
Hazards may include:	• allergic reactions to chemicals or equipment, including latex allergies • biological and animal waste • bites and stings • blood and blood-stained products • confined or restricted spaces • contaminated clothing, materials or equipment • damaged or inappropriate equipment • dust and fibres • electrical hazards arising from:

	• cables
	• electrical fittings:
	  • switches
	  • lights
	• untested electrical equipment
	• fatigue
	• fire
	• gas
	• heights
	• inadequate lighting and ventilation
	• infectious and zoonotic diseases, such as:
	  • Q fever
	  • scabies
	• mobile equipment and vehicle hazards around plant and vehicles
	• moving or unguarded parts
	• noise
	• occupational violence and bullying
	• poor personal hygiene practices
	• spill, splash and spray
	• release of substances with negative environmental impact
	• synergistic chemical reactions, such as:
	  • hazardous incompatibility
	  • reactivity
	• syringes or other sharps
	• temperature extremes
	• ultraviolet light
	• unsafe manual-handling techniques, including awkward and repetitive postures
	• unsafe underfoot conditions, such as slippery, uneven and rough surfaces
	• work in unfamiliar isolated or remote environments.

Legislative requirements may include:	• Australian standards, quality assurance and certification requirements
	• award and enterprise agreements
	• industry advisory standards and codes, such as:
	  • building codes
	  • dangerous goods codes
	• relevant commonwealth, state and territory legislation and local government regulations affecting company operation, including:
	  • anti-discrimination and diversity policies

	• microfibre products • squeegees of various sizes • window wash applicators • window washers, such as lamb's wool.
Chemicals may include:	• acid cleaners • low environmental-impact chemicals • alkaline cleaners • neutral cleaners • solvent cleaners.
Personal protective equipment may include:	• ear muffs and plugs • gloves, such as non-permeable • goggles • high-visibility vests and clothing • overalls and other protective clothing • respirators • safety glasses • safety harness • safety shoes • splash-proof face masks • sun protection • tongs • ultraviolet protection • wet-work clothing.

Manufacturer specifications may include:	• equipment operating manuals
	• instructional guides
	• MSDS
	• other resources supplied by the manufacturer, such as:
	  • laminated cards
	  • notices
	  • wall posters
	• product labels
	• safety instructions pre-printed on equipment.

Signage and barriers may include:	• physical barriers and restraints erected to restrict access to a site
	• signs complying with legislative requirements and Australian standards warning of danger or adverse conditions, including:
	  • cleaning in progress
	  • hazardous chemicals in use or present in work area.

Window coverings and fittings may include:	• blinds • curtains • sunshades.
Work restrictions may	• amount of cleaning anticipated

CPPCLO2010A Clean ceiling surfaces and fittings

Modification History

Revised unit

Unit updated and equivalent to PRMCL10B Clean ceiling surfaces and fittings

Unit Descriptor

This unit of competency specifies the outcomes required to clean ceiling surfaces and fittings. The unit requires the ability to assess the extent of the cleaning task through knowledge of characteristics of the ceiling surface and fittings and the type of soiling. It requires an understanding of client requirements and the ability to apply company policies and procedures.

Selecting the appropriate equipment, chemicals and cleaning methods is essential to performing the task safely and efficiently. Where ladders are being used, the work is usually done in pairs.

Application of the Unit

This unit applies to ceiling surfaces less than three metres high, as use of specialised equipment, cleaning methods and safety procedures are required above this height.

This unit of competency supports employees without managerial or supervisory responsibilities. The work may be performed in teams or individually. Performance would usually be carried out under routine supervision and within company guidelines.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Pre-Requisites

Not applicable.

Employability Skills Information

This unit contains employability skills.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1	Assess area to be cleaned.	1.1	Area to be cleaned is assessed, work order is reviewed according to company requirements, and issues are clarified with appropriate persons**.
		1.2	Hazards are identified and risks controlled in work site according to company, legislative, and occupational health and safety (OHS) requirements.
		1.3	Type of ceiling surface and fittings is identified by observation according to work order and company requirements.
		1.4	Soil types on ceiling surfaces and fittings are identified by observation according to work order and company requirements.
		1.5	Work site access arrangements are confirmed according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
		1.6	Cleaning techniques are selected according to work order and company requirements.
		1.7	Size and usage pattern of work site are determined to ensure safety of personnel and efficient use of equipment and chemicals.
		1.8	Pre-existing damage is identified and reported to appropriate persons according to company requirements.
2	Select equipment and chemicals.	2.1	Personal protective equipment (PPE) is selected and used according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.
		2.2	Equipment and chemicals are selected for work order

			according to OHS and company requirements.
		2.3	Operational effectiveness of equipment is checked according to manufacturer specifications and company requirements.
		2.4	Equipment is adjusted to suit operator's requirements according to manufacturer specifications and OHS requirements.
		2.5	Chemicals are prepared according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.
3	Prepare work site.	3.1	Hazards in work site are confirmed and risks are controlled and reassessed according to legislative, OHS and company requirements.
		3.2	Signage and barriers are installed as required to maximise public safety during cleaning operation according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
		3.3	Floor, furniture and equipment are covered with drop sheets according to work order and company requirements.
		3.4	Work restrictions affecting the completion of work order are identified and appropriate persons are promptly notified.
4	Clean work site.	4.1	Cobwebs and dry dust are removed according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
		4.2	Difficult to reach areas are vacuumed according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
		4.3	Fittings are wiped according to work order and company requirements.
		4.4	Chemical solution is rinsed from all surfaces according to work order and company requirements.
		4.5	Work is performed according to work order, manufacturer specifications and legislative, OHS and company requirements.

5	Tidy work site.	5.1	Collected soil and waste are disposed of according to client specifications, work order, manufacturer specifications and legislative, OHS, company and environmental requirements.
		5.2	Furniture and fittings are replaced according to client requests, work order and OHS requirements.
		5.3	Signage and barriers are removed according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
6	Clean and safety check equipment, and store equipment and chemicals.	6.1	Equipment and PPE are cleaned according to manufacturer specifications and environmental, OHS and company requirements.
		6.2	Equipment and PPE are safety checked according to manufacturer specifications and OHS requirements, and required maintenance is recorded according to company requirements.
		6.3	Equipment and PPE are stored and maintained to allow ready access according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.
		6.4	Chemicals are stored according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- correct cleaning techniques for:
  - various surface types
  - various types and textures of fittings
- customer service skills to:
  - establish rapport with clients
  - gain clients' trust
  - identify client expectations

interpersonal skills to relate to people from a range of backgrounds

- language, literacy and numeracy skills to:
  - communicate clearly and concisely verbally and in writing
  - perform mathematical calculations required for:
    - diluting and mixing chemicals as specified on product labels
    - measuring area
  - read and interpret directions and safety instructions, including:
    - chemical labels
    - equipment manuals
    - material safety data sheets (MSDS)
  - request advice or further information
  - seek and receive feedback
  - source, organise and record information
- planning and organising skills to:
  - manage time
  - sequence tasks
- problem-solving skills to manage contingencies
- skills to work safely when:
  - handling and disposing of chemicals
  - handling and disposing of contaminated and toxic waste
  - identifying hazards and controlling risks
  - manual handling
- self-management skills to work alone and in a team

Required knowledge

- cleaning chemicals and equipment and their application for surfaces of ceilings and fittings
- company management structure and procedures, including:
  - biological and viral control
  - emergency response and evacuation procedures
  - environmental protection procedures
  - injury, dangerous occurrence and incident reporting
  - OHS procedures
  - quality systems
- legislation, regulations, codes of practice and industry advisory standards that apply to clean ceiling surfaces and fittings, including OHS legislation
- routes of entry and potential symptoms of exposure to chemicals
- safe work practices for using:
  - chemicals
  - equipment, including PPE
- types of ceiling and fitting surfaces, their characteristics and appropriate cleaning methods

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment	This unit of competency could be assessed by observing practical demonstrations of cleaning ceiling surfaces and fittings involving at least two different surfaces and two different work site environments.
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	A person who demonstrates competency in this unit must be able to provide evidence of the required skills and knowledge specified in this unit. In particular the person should demonstrate the ability to: • identify type and characteristics of ceiling surface and fittings • select cleaning equipment and chemicals • use safe and efficient cleaning methods • comply with company and legislative requirements • achieve outcomes in relation to customer work order and company requirements.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment of essential underpinning knowledge may be conducted in an off-site context. It is to comply with relevant regulatory or Australian standards' requirements. Resource implications for assessment include access to: • suitable work site or venue with ceiling surfaces and fittings • suitable equipment and chemicals • PPE • equipment operating manuals and MSDS • work order instructions, work plans and schedules • assessment instruments, including personal planner and assessment record book.
Method of assessment	Assessment methods must: • satisfy the endorsed Assessment Guidelines of the Property Services Training Package • include direct observation of tasks in real or simulated work conditions, with questioning to confirm the ability to consistently identify and correctly interpret the essential underpinning knowledge required for practical application • reinforce the integration of employability skills with workplace tasks and job roles • confirm that competency is verified and able to be transferred to other circumstances and environments.

Guidance information for assessment	Reasonable adjustments for people with disabilities must be made to assessment processes where required. This could include access to modified equipment and other physical resources, and the provision of appropriate assessment support. Assessment processes and techniques should as far as is practical take into account the language, literacy and numeracy capacity of the candidate in relation to the competency being assessed. This unit could be assessed on its own or in combination with other units relevant to the job function, such as: • CPPCLO2015A Maintain furniture, fittings and room dressing.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Environmental requirements may include:	• clean-up, containment and isolation
	• company policies and guidelines
	• emergency chemical spill control measures
	• environmental protection agency and requirements of government departments, such as:
	  • agriculture
	  • emergency services
	• hazardous materials handling
	• local government regulations and by-laws
	• low-energy cleaning methods
	• low environmental-impact chemicals
	• low-moisture cleaning methods
	• low water-use equipment and water-efficient cleaning methods
	• non-chemical cleaning methods.

CPPCLO2017A Clean wet areas

Modification History

Revised unit

Unit updated and equivalent to PRMCL17B Clean a wet area

Unit Descriptor

This unit of competency specifies the outcomes required to clean a wet area so that it is free from soil, odour and hazards. It requires the ability to assess the extent of the cleaning task through understanding client requirements and special characteristics of wet areas, and to apply company policies and procedures in order to perform the task. Selecting the appropriate equipment, chemicals and methods is essential to performing the task safely and efficiently, as is recognising the importance of paying careful attention to health and safety issues.

Application of the Unit

This unit of competency supports employees without managerial or supervisory responsibilities. Wet areas include bathrooms, toilets and changing rooms. Areas such as swimming pools, kitchens, laundries and clinics generally require specialised cleaning methods. Performance would usually be carried out under routine supervision and within company guidelines.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Pre-Requisites

Not applicable.

Employability Skills Information

Elements and Performance Criteria

1	Assess area to be cleaned.	1.1	Hazards are identified and risks controlled in work site according to company, legislative, and occupational health and safety (OHS) requirements.
		1.2	Operation and condition of fixtures and fittings are checked and pre-existing damage at work site is reported to appropriate persons according to work order and company requirements.
		1.3	Soil is identified by observation according to work order and company requirements.
		1.4	Areas that require special attention, including graffiti, are identified according to work order and company requirements.
		1.5	Size and usage pattern of work site are determined to ensure safety of, and minimal disruption to, personnel and efficient use of cleaning equipment and chemicals.
		1.6	Cleaning techniques for wet areas are selected according to work order and company requirements.
2	Select equipment and chemicals.	2.1	Suitable personal protective equipment (PPE) is selected and used according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.
		2.2	Equipment and chemicals are selected for work order according to OHS and company requirements.
		2.3	Operational effectiveness of equipment is checked according to manufacturer specifications and company requirements.
		2.4	Equipment is adjusted to suit operator’s requirements according to manufacturer specifications and OHS requirements.

		2.5	Chemicals are prepared according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.
3	Prepare work site	3.1	Hazards in work site are confirmed and risks are controlled and reassessed according to legislative, OHS and company requirements.
		3.2	Signage and barriers are installed as required to maximise public safety during cleaning operation according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
		3.3	Work restrictions affecting completion of work order are identified and appropriate persons are notified.
4	Clean work site.	4.1	Loose soil is removed prior to commencing surface cleaning according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
		4.2	Fixtures, fittings and surfaces are cleaned using equipment, chemicals and cleaning techniques according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
		4.3	Remaining heavy soil, graffiti and stained surfaces are treated or reported to appropriate persons for follow-up action according to work order and company requirements.
		4.4	Soiled items are laundered according to work order and company requirements.
		4.5	Work is performed according to work order, manufacturer specifications, and legislative, OHS and company requirements.
5	Replenish consumables and tidy work site.	5.1	Consumable items are replenished according to client requests, work order and company requirements.
		5.2	Collected soil and waste are disposed of according to client specifications, work order, manufacturer specifications and legislative, OHS, company and environmental requirements.

		5.3	Signage and barriers are removed according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
6	Clean and safety check equipment, and store equipment and chemicals.	6.1	Equipment and PPE are cleaned according to manufacturer specifications and environmental, OHS and company requirements.
		6.2	Equipment and PPE are safety checked according to manufacturer specifications and OHS requirements, and required maintenance is recorded according to company requirements.
		6.3	Equipment and PPE are stored and maintained to allow ready access according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.
		6.4	Chemicals are stored according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- customer service skills to:
  - establish rapport with clients
  - gain clients' trust
  - identify client expectations
- interpersonal skills to relate to people from a range of backgrounds
- language, literacy and numeracy skills to:
  - communicate clearly and concisely verbally and in writing
  - perform mathematical calculations required for:
    - diluting and mixing chemicals as specified on product labels
    - measuring area
  - read and interpret directions and safety instructions, including:
    - chemical labels
    - equipment manuals
    - material safety data sheets (MSDS)
  - request advice or further information

  - seek and receive feedback
  - source, organise and record information
- observation skills to:
  - identify soil and stains
  - identify surface types to determine cleaning method
- organisational skills to plan and organise work
- problem-solving skills to manage contingencies
- skills to work safely when:
  - handling and disposing of chemicals
  - handling and disposing of contaminated and toxic waste
  - identifying hazards and controlling risks
  - manual handling
  - using equipment for:
    - cleaning glass
    - damp wiping
    - hosing
    - mopping
    - squeegeeing
    - sweeping
    - washing
- self-management skills to work alone and in a team

Required knowledge

- cleaning chemicals and equipment for wet areas
- cleaning methods for:
  - wet areas
  - sterilising
- company management structure and procedures, including:
  - biological and viral control
  - emergency response and evacuation procedures
  - environmental protection procedures
  - injury, dangerous occurrence and incident reporting
  - OHS procedures
  - quality systems
- legislation, regulations, codes of practice and industry advisory standards that apply to cleaning a wet area, including OHS legislation
- routes of entry and potential symptoms of exposure to chemicals
- safe work practices for using:
  - chemicals
  - equipment, including PPE

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment	This unit of competency could be assessed by observing practical demonstrations of cleaning a wet area involving at least two different work site environments.
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	A person who demonstrates competency in this unit must be able to provide evidence of the required skills and knowledge specified in this unit. In particular the person should demonstrate the ability to: • identify hazards and risks associated with wet areas • identify fittings, surfaces and soil types found in wet areas • select cleaning equipment and chemicals • use safe and efficient cleaning methods • achieve outcomes in relation to customer work order and company requirements • comply with company and legislative requirements.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment of essential underpinning knowledge may be conducted in an off-site context. It is to comply with relevant regulatory or Australian standards' requirements. Resource implications for assessment include access to: • suitable wet area venue • suitable equipment and chemicals • PPE • equipment operating manuals and MSDS • work order instructions, work plans and schedules • assessment instruments, including personal planner and assessment record book.
Method of assessment	Assessment methods must: • satisfy the endorsed Assessment Guidelines of the Property Services Training Package • include direct observation of tasks in real or simulated work conditions, with questioning to confirm the ability to consistently identify and correctly interpret the essential underpinning knowledge required for practical application • reinforce the integration of employability skills with workplace

	tasks and job roles • confirm that competency is verified and able to be transferred to other circumstances and environments.
Guidance information for assessment	Reasonable adjustments for people with disabilities must be made to assessment processes where required. This could include access to modified equipment and other physical resources, and the provision of appropriate assessment support. Assessment processes and techniques should as far as is practical take into account the language, literacy and numeracy capacity of the candidate in relation to the competency being assessed. This unit could be assessed on its own or in combination with other units relevant to the job function, such as: • CPPCLO2001A Maintain hard floor surfaces • CPPCLO2015A Maintain furniture, fittings and room dressing • CPPCLO3002A Restore hard floor surfaces.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Hazards may include:	• allergic reactions to chemicals or equipment, including latex allergies
	• biological and animal waste
	• bites and stings
	• blood and blood-stained products
	• confined or restricted spaces
	• contaminated clothing, materials or equipment
	• damaged or inappropriate equipment
	• dust and fibres
	• electrical hazards arising from:
	  • cables
	  • electrical fittings:
	  • switches
	  • lights
	  • untested electrical equipment
	• fatigue
	• fire

	• mobile equipment and vehicle hazards around plant and vehicles
	• moving or unguarded parts
	• noise
	• occupational violence and bullying
	• poor personal hygiene practices
	• spill, splash and spray
	• release of substances with negative environmental impact
	• synergistic chemical reactions, such as:
	  • hazardous incompatibility
	  • reactivity
	• syringes or other sharps
	• temperature extremes
	• ultraviolet light
	• unsafe manual-handling techniques, including awkward and repetitive postures
	• unsafe underfoot conditions, such as slippery, uneven and rough surfaces
	• work in unfamiliar isolated or remote environments.

Company requirements may include:	• business and performance plans
	• client communication procedures
	• client confidentiality procedures
	• client service standards
	• communication channels and reporting procedures
	• company goals, objectives, plans, systems and processes
	• company issued identification badges, cards or passes
	• company policies and procedures, including:
	  • access and equity policy, principles and practice
	  • OHS policies and procedures, including control procedures

	  • job plans
	  • job safety analyses
	  • risk assessments
	  • safe operating practices and procedures
	  • safe system of work statements
	  • safe work instructions
	  • work method statements
	• reporting injury and dangerous occurrences
	• routes of entry and potential symptoms of exposure to chemicals
	• safe work practices for equipment, PPE and chemical storage, including interpretation of:
	  • MSDS
	  • hazardous substance information, such as long latency periods
	• safety training, induction and refresher training
	• selection and use of PPE and clothing appropriate to the hazard
	• ultraviolet light
	• up-to-date electrical test and tag compliance
	• use of chemicals according to MSDS
	• use of residual current devices
	• use, storage and maintenance of equipment according to manufacturer specifications and equipment operating manuals.

Fixtures and fittings may include:	• baths • bidets • cleaner's sluices • hand basins • hand dryers • mirrors • paper dispensers • personal item product dispensers • racks • rubbish receptacles • showers • sinks • soap dispensers • spas

CPPCLO2019A Sort and remove waste and recyclable materials

Modification History

Revised unit

Element structure and performance criteria expanded to reflect workplace requirements

Skills and knowledge requirements and the range statement updated

New unit title

Unit based on PRMCL19B Remove waste

Unit Descriptor

This unit of competency specifies the outcomes required to remove waste from an area that is being cleaned and transfer it to a waste disposal point, usually specified by the client. Waste collection is usually conducted on a daily basis as part of a regular cleaning routine.

The unit requires the ability to assess the extent and types of waste through understanding client requirements and applying company policies and procedures. Selecting the appropriate equipment, chemicals and methods is essential to performing the task safely and efficiently. It is very important to pay careful attention to health and safety issues affecting both the cleaner and the general public.

Application of the Unit

This unit of competency supports employees without managerial or supervisory responsibilities. Performance would usually be carried out under routine supervision and within company guidelines.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1	Assess waste to be removed.	1.1	Waste and recyclable materials are assessed, work order is reviewed according to company requirements, and issues are clarified with appropriate persons.
		1.2	Hazards are identified and risks controlled in work site according to company, legislative, and occupational health and safety (OHS) requirements.
		1.3	Waste and recyclable types to be collected are identified by observation according to work order and company requirements.
2	Select equipment and chemicals.	2.1	Personal protective equipment (PPE) is selected and used according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.
		2.2	Equipment and chemicals are selected for work order according to OHS and company requirements.
		2.3	Operational effectiveness of equipment is checked according to manufacturer specifications and company requirements.
		2.4	Equipment is adjusted to suit operator's requirements according to manufacturer specifications and OHS requirements.
		2.5	Chemicals are prepared according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.
3	Transfer waste to waste carrier.	3.1	Waste is transferred to waste carrier according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

		3.2	Rubbish bins and surrounds are spot cleaned according to work order and company requirements.
		3.3	Soiled rubbish bin liners are replaced according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
		3.4	Work restrictions affecting the completion of work order are identified and appropriate persons are promptly notified.
4	Deliver waste to disposal unit.	4.1	Waste is promptly removed from site according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
		4.2	Waste is transported to disposal unit by shortest practical and safest route according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
5	Sort and deliver recyclable materials.	5.1	Recyclable materials are identified, separated and sorted according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
		5.2	Recyclable materials are moved safely and according to work orders to recycling collection units used for each type of material.
		5.3	Recycling containers and surrounds are spot cleaned according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
		5.4	Recycling containers are checked and replaced in designated locations, with signage indicating use.
		5.5	Records of recyclable materials that have been sorted and transferred are made according to work orders.
6	Clean and safety check equipment, and store equipment and chemicals.	6.1	Cleaning techniques are used to clean equipment and PPE according to manufacturer specifications and OHS, company and environmental requirements.
		6.2	Equipment and PPE are safety checked according to manufacturer specifications and OHS requirements, and required maintenance is recorded according to company requirements.

6.3 Equipment and PPE are stored and maintained to allow ready access according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.

6.4 Chemicals are stored according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- customer service skills to:
  - establish rapport with clients
  - gain clients' trust
  - identify client expectations
- interpersonal skills to relate to people from a range of backgrounds
- language, literacy and numeracy skills to:
  - communicate clearly and concisely verbally and in writing
  - perform mathematical calculations required for diluting and mixing chemicals as specified on product labels
  - read and interpret directions and safety instructions, including:
    - chemical labels
    - equipment manuals
    - material safety data sheets (MSDS)
    - work orders
  - request advice or further information
  - seek and receive feedback
  - source, organise and record information
- observation skills to:
  - identify waste types
  - identify hazards
- planning and organising skills to sort and deliver recyclable materials
- problem-solving skills to manage contingencies
- skills to work safely when:
  - controlling risks
  - damp wiping and spot cleaning
  - handling and disposing of contaminated and toxic waste

  - selecting, handling and disposing of chemicals
- self-management skills to work alone and in a team

Required knowledge

- cleaning chemicals and equipment for required cleaning
- company management structure and procedures, including:
  - biological and viral control
  - emergency response and evacuation procedures
  - environmental protection procedures
  - first aid procedures
  - injury, dangerous occurrence and incident reporting
  - OHS procedures
  - quality systems
- legislation, regulations, codes of practice and industry advisory standards that apply to sorting and removing waste and recyclable materials, including OHS legislation
- routes of entry and potential symptoms of exposure to chemicals
- safe work practices for using:
  - chemicals
  - equipment, including PPE
- waste transfer procedures, including:
  - location of disposal units
  - location of waste pick-up equipment
  - types of waste handling equipment
  - types of waste storage receptacles and the selection and use of liners

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Waste may be either solid or liquid and include:	• chemical and metal, such as:
	  • computing consumables
	  • photocopying consumables
	  • printing consumables
	• contaminated and hazardous biological, such as:
	  • blood and other human waste
	  • cytotoxic waste
	  • soiled and disposable linen
	  • syringes and needles
	• general waste, such as:
	  • drinks
	  • foodstuffs.

Recyclable materials will be determined by company policy and client requirements and may include:	• packaging materials • paper • cardboard • food stuffs • plastics • glass • metals, such as aluminium • other items that are designated for re-use, such as toner cartridges.

Work order information may include:	• access to work site, including:
	  • access and egress points
	  • timing of access
	• budget allocations
	• completion times and dates
	• human resource requirements to complete the work tasks
	• job requirements and tasks
	• legislative and local government requirements

Modification History

Revised unit

Unit updated and equivalent to PRMCL35B Maintain a cleaning storage area

Unit Descriptor

This unit of competency specifies the outcomes required to maintain cleaning equipment and consumable storage areas, which may be a vehicle or premises. The movement and control of equipment, chemicals and consumables used in the provision of cleaning services are also addressed.

The unit requires the ability to maintain and operate a safe and efficient cleaning storage area according to legislative requirements. Maintaining the storage area requires the ability to follow established procedures, understand issues associated with storing and using chemicals, and adhere to legislative and public health and safety requirements.

Application of the Unit

This unit of competency supports employees without managerial or supervisory responsibilities. The unit applies to persons whose major function is cleaning, not storekeeping.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Pre-Requisites

Not applicable.

- communicate clearly and concisely verbally and in writing
- perform mathematical calculations required for diluting and mixing chemicals as specified on product labels
- read and interpret directions and safety instructions, including:
  - chemical labels
  - equipment manuals
  - material safety data sheets (MSDS)
- request advice or further information
- seek and receive feedback
- source, organise and record information

- planning and organising skills to:
  - control stock
  - sequence tasks
- problem-solving skills to manage contingencies
- skills to work safely when:
  - handling and disposing of chemicals
  - handling and disposing of contaminated and toxic waste
  - identifying hazards and controlling risks
  - manual handling
- self-management skills to work alone and in a team

Required knowledge

- company management structure and procedures, including:
  - biological and viral control
  - emergency response and evacuation procedures
  - environmental protection procedures
  - injury, dangerous occurrence and incident reporting
  - OHS procedures
  - quality systems
- documentation requirements
- hazards and risks of storing, preparing, using and disposing of chemicals
- legislation, regulations, codes of practice and industry advisory standards that apply to maintaining cleaning storage areas, including OHS legislation
- product knowledge, including manufacturer specifications for equipment and chemicals being used
- routes of entry and potential symptoms of exposure to chemicals
- safe work practices for using:
  - chemicals
  - equipment, including PPE

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment	This unit of competency could be assessed by observing at least two practical demonstrations of maintaining cleaning storage areas.
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	A person who demonstrates competency in this unit must be able to provide evidence of the required skills and knowledge specified in this unit. In particular the person should demonstrate the ability to: • comply with company, legislative and regulatory requirements • maintain a secure and accessible storage area • use emergency response procedures • use good storage and housekeeping practices, particularly those relating to labelling and security of chemicals • use systematic stock control records.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment of essential underpinning knowledge may be conducted in an off-site context. It is to comply with relevant regulatory or Australian standards' requirements. Resource implications for assessment include access to: • suitable venue, including stores and store records • suitable equipment and chemicals • PPE • equipment operating manuals and MSDS • work order instructions, work plans and schedules • assessment instruments, including personal planner and assessment record book.
Method of assessment	Assessment methods must: • satisfy the endorsed Assessment Guidelines of the Property Services Training Package • include direct observation of tasks in real or simulated work conditions, with questioning to confirm the ability to consistently identify and correctly interpret the essential underpinning knowledge required for practical application • reinforce the integration of employability skills with workplace tasks and job roles • confirm that competency is verified and able to be transferred to other circumstances and environments.
Guidance information for	Reasonable adjustments for people with disabilities must be made to assessment processes where required. This could include access to assessment	modified equipment and other physical resources, and the provision of appropriate assessment support. Assessment processes and techniques should as far as is practical take into account the language, literacy and numeracy capacity of the candidate in relation to the competency being assessed. This unit could be assessed on its own or in combination with other units relevant to the job function, such as: • CPPCLO2033A Plan for safe and efficient cleaning activities • CPPCMN2002A Participate in workplace safety arrangements.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Storage area may be a vehicle, room, storage cupboard or other secure area separate from normal client functions and may include:	• chemical cupboards • clothes racks • desks • equipment storage bays • in-built vehicular storage arrangement to keep consumables and equipment secure during transport • slop sinks.

Legislative requirements may include:	• Australian standards, quality assurance and certification requirements
	• award and enterprise agreements
	• industry advisory standards and codes, such as:
	  • building codes

Unit Descriptor

This unit of competency specifies the outcomes required to clean a range of window coverings to remove dirt and grime. The unit requires the ability to assess the extent of the cleaning task through understanding client requirements and the type of window coverings and fixtures, and applying company policies and procedures. Selecting the appropriate equipment, chemicals and methods is essential to performing the task safely and efficiently.

Application of the Unit

This unit of competency supports employees without managerial or supervisory responsibilities. Performance would usually be carried out under routine supervision and within company guidelines. Where ladders are being used, the work is usually done in pairs.

performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1	Assess items to be cleaned.	1.1	Window coverings and fixtures to be cleaned are assessed, work order is reviewed according to company requirements, and issues are clarified with appropriate persons.
		1.2	Hazards are identified and risks controlled in work site according to legislative, occupational health and safety (OHS) and company requirements.
		1.3	Type of window coverings and fixture method are identified by observation according to work order and company requirements.
		1.4	Soil type is identified by observation according to work order and company requirements.
		1.5	Size and usage pattern of work site are determined to ensure safety of personnel and efficient use of equipment and chemicals.
		1.6	Pre-existing damage is identified and reported to appropriate persons according to company requirements.
2	Select equipment and chemicals.	2.1	Personal protective equipment (PPE) is selected and used according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.
		2.2	Equipment and chemicals are selected for work order according to OHS and company requirements.
		2.3	Operational effectiveness of equipment is checked according to manufacturer specifications and company requirements.
		2.4	Equipment is adjusted to suit operator’s requirements according to manufacturer specifications and OHS requirements.
		2.5	Chemicals are prepared according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.

3	Prepare for cleaning.	3.1	Hazards in work site are confirmed and risks controlled and reassessed according to legislative, OHS and company requirements.
		3.2	Locations of washing and drying sites are selected according to work order and legislative, OHS and company requirements.
		3.3	Signage and barriers are installed as required according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
		3.4	Window coverings and fixtures are removed according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
		3.5	Window coverings and loose fittings are tagged to ensure correct refit according to work order and company requirements.
		3.6	Work restrictions affecting the completion of work order are identified and appropriate persons are notified.
4	Clean and refit window coverings.	4.1	Window coverings are sorted according to washing method, work order and company requirements.
		4.2	Window coverings are washed and rinsed, and excess water is removed using equipment, PPE, chemicals and cleaning techniques and according to OHS requirements.
		4.3	Window coverings are dried according to work order and company requirements.
		4.4	Window coverings are checked and spot cleaned if necessary according to work order and company requirements.
		4.5	Window coverings are refitted and checked to be in working order according to work order, manufacturer specifications and OHS and company requirements.
		4.6	Work is performed according to work order, manufacturer specifications and legislative, OHS and company requirements.

5	Tidy work site.	5.1	Wash area is cleaned according to work order and company requirements.
		5.2	Signage and barriers are removed according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
		5.3	Collected soil and waste are disposed of according to client specifications, work order, manufacturer specifications and legislative, OHS, company and environmental requirements.
6	Clean and safety check equipment, and store equipment and chemicals.	6.1	Equipment and PPE are cleaned according to manufacturer specifications and environmental, OHS and company requirements.
		6.2	Equipment and PPE are safety checked according to manufacturer specifications and OHS requirements and required maintenance is recorded according to company requirements.
		6.3	Equipment and PPE are stored and maintained to allow ready access according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.
		6.4	Chemicals are stored according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- correct working skills for:
  - identifying surface types and their suitability for either wet or dry cleaning
  - performing basic wash-down and full immersion wash
  - spot cleaning
- customer service skills to:
  - establish rapport with clients
  - gain clients' trust
  - identify client expectations
- interpersonal skills to relate to people from a range of backgrounds

- language, literacy and numeracy skills to:
  - communicate clearly and concisely verbally and in writing
  - perform mathematical calculations required for diluting and mixing chemicals as specified on product labels
  - read and interpret directions and safety instructions, including:
    - chemical labels
    - equipment manuals
    - material safety data sheets (MSDS)
  - request advice or further information
  - seek and receive feedback
  - source, organise and record information
- planning and organising skills to:
  - manage time
  - sequence tasks
- problem-solving skills to manage contingencies
- skills to work safely when:
  - handling and disposing of chemicals
  - handling and disposing of contaminated and toxic waste
  - identifying hazards and controlling risks
  - manual handling
- self-management skills to work alone and in a team

Required knowledge

- cleaning chemicals and equipment and their application for surfaces of window coverings
- cleaning methods for window coverings
- company management structure and procedures, including:
  - biological and viral control
  - emergency response and evacuation procedures
  - environmental protection procedures
  - injury, dangerous occurrence and incident reporting
  - OHS procedures
  - quality systems
- legislation, regulations, codes of practice and industry advisory standards that apply to cleaning window coverings, including OHS legislation
- routes of entry and potential symptoms of exposure to chemicals
- safe work practices for using:
  - chemicals
  - equipment, including PPE

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment	This unit of competency could be assessed by observing practical demonstrations of cleaning window coverings involving at least two different surfaces and two different work site environments.
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	A person who demonstrates competency in this unit must be able to provide evidence of the required skills and knowledge specified in this unit. In particular the person should demonstrate the ability to: • identify type and characteristics of window coverings and fixtures • select cleaning equipment and chemicals • select safe and efficient cleaning methods • remove, clean and refit window coverings according to customer work order, and company and legislative requirements • achieve outcomes in relation to customer work order and company requirements.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment of essential underpinning knowledge may be conducted in an off-site context. It is to comply with relevant regulatory or Australian standards' requirements. Resource implications for assessment include access to: • suitable work site or venue with a range of window covering types • suitable equipment and chemicals • PPE • equipment operating manuals and MSDS • work order instructions, work plans and schedules, and policy documents • assessment instruments, including personal planner and assessment record book.
Method of assessment	Assessment methods must: • satisfy the endorsed Assessment Guidelines of the Property Services Training Package • include direct observation of tasks in real or simulated work conditions, with questioning to confirm the ability to consistently identify and correctly interpret the essential underpinning knowledge required for practical application • reinforce the integration of employability skills with workplace tasks and job roles • confirm that competency is verified and able to be transferred to other circumstances and environments.

Guidance information for assessment	Reasonable adjustments for people with disabilities must be made to assessment processes where required. This could include access to modified equipment and other physical resources, and the provision of appropriate assessment support. Assessment processes and techniques should as far as is practical take into account the language, literacy and numeracy capacity of the candidate in relation to the competency being assessed. This unit could be assessed on its own or in combination with other units relevant to the job function.

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Window coverings and fixtures can be made from cloth, metal, plastic, textile, vinyl or wood and include:	• awnings • coverings encompassing new technologies • fixed pelmet systems • flywire • Holland blinds • lined curtains • Roman blinds • security screens • shutter systems • unlined curtains • Venetian blinds • vertical blinds.

Work order information may include:	• access to work site, including:
	  • access and egress points
	  • timing of access
	• budget allocations
	• completion times and dates
	• human resource requirements to complete the work tasks
	• job requirements and tasks

CPPCLO3016A Wash furniture and fittings

Modification History

Revised unit

Unit updated and equivalent to PRMCL16B Wash furniture and fittings

Unit Descriptor

This unit of competency specifies the outcomes required to wash furniture and fittings. This function is usually part of client specifications for periodic rather than routine cleaning and covers a range of surface types and cleaning methods.

Application of the Unit

This unit of competency supports employees without managerial or supervisory responsibilities. Performance would usually be carried out under routine supervision and within company guidelines.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Pre-Requisites

Not applicable.

Employability Skills Information

This unit contains employability skills.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1	Assess furniture and fittings to be cleaned.	1.1	Furniture and fittings are assessed, work order is reviewed according to company requirements, and issues are clarified with appropriate persons*.
		1.2	Hazards are identified and risks controlled in work site according to legislative, occupational health and safety (OHS) and company requirements.
		1.3	Type and condition of furniture and fittings are identified by observation according to work order and company requirements.
		1.4	Soil type is identified by observation according to work order and company requirements.
		1.5	Cleaning techniques are selected according to work order and company requirements.
		1.6	Size and usage pattern of work site are determined to ensure safety of personnel and efficient use of equipment and chemicals.
		1.7	Pre-existing damage is identified and reported to appropriate persons according to company requirements.
2	Select equipment and chemicals.	2.1	Personal protective equipment (PPE) is selected and used according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.
		2.2	Equipment and chemicals are selected for work order according to OHS and company requirements.
		2.3	Operational effectiveness of equipment is checked according to manufacturer specifications and company requirements.
		2.4	Equipment is adjusted to suit operator's requirements according to manufacturer specifications and OHS requirements.
		2.5	Chemicals are prepared according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.

3	Prepare work site.	3.1	Hazards in work site are confirmed and risks are controlled and reassessed according to legislative, OHS and company requirements.
		3.2	Signage and barriers are installed as required to maximise public safety during cleaning operation according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
		3.3	Furniture and fittings that impede cleaning operation are moved according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
		3.4	Floor, furniture and fittings are covered by drop sheets as necessary according to work order and company requirements.
		3.5	Work restrictions affecting completion of work order are identified and appropriate persons are notified.
4	Clean furniture and fittings.	4.1	Soil is removed from surfaces, and furniture and fittings are washed using equipment, PPE, chemicals and cleaning techniques.
		4.2	Work area is restored according to work order and company requirements.
		4.3	Work is performed according to work order, manufacturer specifications and legislative, OHS and company requirements.
5	Tidy work site.	5.1	Collected soil and waste are disposed of according to client specifications, work order, manufacturer specifications and legislative, OHS, company and environmental requirements.
		5.2	Furniture and fittings are replaced according to client requests, work order and OHS requirements.
		5.3	Signage and barriers are removed according to work order, and OHS and company requirements.
6	Clean and safety check equipment,	6.1	Equipment and PPE are cleaned according to manufacturer specifications and environmental, OHS and company requirements.

and store equipment and chemicals.	6.2	Equipment and PPE are safety checked according to manufacturer specifications and OHS requirements and required maintenance is recorded according to company requirements.
	6.3	Equipment and PPE are stored and maintained to allow ready access according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.
	6.4	Chemicals are stored according to manufacturer specifications, and OHS and company requirements.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- analytical skills to:
  - identify soil and stains
  - identify surface types
- customer service skills to:
  - establish rapport with clients
  - gain clients' trust
  - identify client expectations
- interpersonal skills to relate to people from a range of backgrounds
- language, literacy and numeracy skills to:
  - communicate clearly and concisely verbally and in writing
  - perform mathematical calculations required for diluting and mixing chemicals as specified on product labels
  - read and interpret directions and safety instructions, including:
    - chemical labels
    - equipment manuals
    - material safety data sheets (MSDS)
  - request advice or further information
  - seek and receive feedback
  - source, organise and record information
- planning and organising skills to:
  - manage time

  - sequence tasks
- problem-solving skills to manage contingencies
- skills to work safely when:
  - handling and disposing of chemicals
  - handling and disposing of contaminated and toxic waste
  - identifying hazards and controlling risks
  - manual handling
- self-management skills to work alone and in a team

Required knowledge

- cleaning chemicals and equipment and their application for surfaces of furniture and fittings
- cleaning methods for furniture and fittings, including:
  - pre-spotting and stain removal
  - low-water
- company management structure and procedures, including:
  - biological and viral control
  - emergency response and evacuation procedures
  - environmental protection procedures
  - injury, dangerous occurrence and incident reporting
  - OHS procedures
  - quality systems
- legislation, regulations, codes of practice and industry advisory standards that apply to washing furniture and fittings, including OHS legislation
- routes of entry and potential symptoms of exposure to chemicals
- safe work practices for using:
  - chemicals
  - equipment, including PPE

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment	This unit of competency could be assessed by observing practical demonstrations of washing furniture and fittings involving at least two different work site environments.
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate	A person who demonstrates competency in this unit must be able to provide evidence of the required skills and knowledge specified in this unit.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

competency in this unit	In particular the person should demonstrate the ability to: • identify type and characteristics of furniture and fittings and their surfaces • use safe and efficient cleaning methods • select cleaning equipment and chemicals • comply with company and legislative requirements • achieve outcomes in relation to customer work order and company requirements.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment of essential underpinning knowledge may be conducted in an off-site context. It is to comply with relevant regulatory or Australian standards' requirements. Resource implications for assessment include access to: • suitable venue with a range of furniture and fittings • suitable equipment and chemicals • PPE • equipment operating manuals and MSDS • work order instructions, work plans and schedules, and policy documents • assessment instruments, including personal planner and assessment record book.
Method of assessment	Assessment methods must: • satisfy the endorsed Assessment Guidelines of the Property Services Training Package • include direct observation of tasks in real or simulated work conditions, with questioning to confirm the ability to consistently identify and correctly interpret the essential underpinning knowledge required for practical application • reinforce the integration of employability skills with workplace tasks and job roles • confirm that competency is verified and able to be transferred to other circumstances and environments.
Guidance information for assessment	Reasonable adjustments for people with disabilities must be made to assessment processes where required. This could include access to modified equipment and other physical resources, and the provision of appropriate assessment support. Assessment processes and techniques should as far as is practical take into account the language, literacy and numeracy capacity of the candidate in relation to the competency being assessed. This unit could be assessed on its own or in combination with other units relevant to the job function, such as: • CPPCLO2015A Maintain furniture, fittings and room dressing.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit of competency specifies the outcomes required to determine asset maintenance requirements and implement and review appropriate strategies to meet the needs of individual clients. It requires the ability to develop and document strategies effectively to improve the ongoing quality of maintenance.

The unit may form part of the licensing requirements for persons working in the property industry, including in the real estate, business broking, stock and station agency and property operations and development sectors, in those States and Territories where these are regulated activities.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit

This unit of competency supports the work of those involved in determining asset maintenance requirements and implementing and reviewing appropriate strategies to meet the needs of individual clients.

Employability Skills Information

Employability skills The required outcomes described in this unit of competency contain applicable facets of employability skills. The Employability Skills Summary of the qualification in which this unit of competency is packaged, will assist in identifying employability skills requirements.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1 Determine asset maintenance system requirements.	1.1 Asset maintenance specifications and other relevant documentation are obtained and analysed to establish maintenance requirements. 1.2 Risk assessment is conducted on anticipated project outcomes according to legislative and organisational requirements. 1.3 Industry benchmarks are reviewed to determine maintenance intervals and other requirements. 1.4 OHS and other applicable legislative requirements are interpreted and allowed for within parameters of project requirements.
2 Design asset maintenance strategy.	2.1 Maintenance strategy is designed that details a range of activities that accurately reflect client, legislative and organisational requirements. 2.2 Reliable maintenance methods are used according to organisational requirements, making efficient use of time and resources. 2.3 Contract specifications for maintenance services are developed and incorporated into tender documents according to legislative and organisational requirements. 2.4 Client safety and security requirements are incorporated into maintenance strategy according to legislative and organisational requirements.

	2.5 Situations requiring specialist advice are identified and assistance is sought as required according to organisational requirements.
3 Estimate resource requirements.	3.1 Viability to provide required maintenance services is assessed against maintenance specifications and organisational operational capacity.
	3.2 Financial, physical and human resources to support maintenance requirements are determined and arranged according to organisational requirements.
	3.3 Organisational rate schedules and conditions are applied to established costings where appropriate according to organisational requirements.
	3.4 Factors that may affect capacity to meet project requirements are identified through risk analysis and accounted for in resource estimates.
	3.5 Availability of resources is negotiated and confirmed with relevant people according to organisational requirements.
	3.6 Information is reviewed to ensure an accurate and detailed budget is prepared according to organisational requirements.
4 Review and evaluate asset maintenance strategy.	4.1 Maintenance strategy is reviewed and evaluated in consultation with client and relevant people using appropriate communication strategies.
	4.2 Systematic review processes and established evaluation methods are identified and used to evaluate strategy processes and outcomes.
	4.3 Evaluation results are prepared in required format, style and structure and presented to relevant people within agreed timeframes.
	4.4 Recommendations for improvement of strategy are presented to relevant people according to organisational procedures.
	4.5 Business equipment and technology are used to securely maintain documentation according to legislative and organisational procedures.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, the range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Overview of assessment

This unit of competency could be assessed through practical demonstration of determining asset maintenance requirements and implementing and reviewing appropriate strategies to meet the needs of individual clients. Targeted written (including alternative formats where necessary) or verbal questioning to assess the candidate's underpinning knowledge would provide additional supporting evidence of competence. The demonstration and questioning would include collecting evidence of the candidate's knowledge and application of ethical standards and relevant federal, and state or territory legislation and regulations. This assessment may be carried out in a simulated or workplace environment.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

A person who demonstrates competency in this unit must be able to provide evidence of:

- designing a maintenance strategy that includes procedures to select maintenance contractors and ensure the safety and security of clients and others
- determining maintenance system requirements and intervals using industry benchmarks and OHS considerations
- determining asset maintenance requirements and implementing and reviewing appropriate strategies to meet the needs of individual clients
- knowledge of organisation's practices, ethical standards and legislative requirements associated with preparing a detailed budget, including a risk analysis and estimate of resource requirements
- reviewing and evaluating an asset maintenance strategy and presenting the results.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Resource implications for assessment include:

- a registered provider of assessment services
- assessment materials and tools
- candidate special requirements
- competency standards
- cost and time considerations
- suitable assessment venue and equipment
- workplace documentation.

Where applicable, physical resources should include equipment modified for people with disabilities.

Access must be provided to appropriate learning and/or assessment support when required.

Assessment processes and techniques must be culturally appropriate, and appropriate to the language and literacy capacity of the candidate and the work being performed.

Validity and sufficiency of evidence require that:

- competency will need to be demonstrated over a period of time reflecting the scope of the role and the practical requirements of the workplace
- where the assessment is part of a structured learning experience the evidence collected must relate to a number of performances assessed at different points in time and separated by further learning and practice with a decision of competence only taken at the point when the assessor has complete confidence in the person's competence
- all assessment that is part of a structured learning experience must include a combination of direct, indirect and supplementary evidence
- where assessment is for the purpose of recognition (RCC/RPL), the evidence provided will need to be current and show that it represents competency demonstrated over a period of time
- assessment can be through simulated project-based activity and must include evidence relating to each of the elements in this unit.

In all cases activity and must include evidence relating to each of the where practical assessment is used it will be combined with targeted questioning to assess the underpinning knowledge. Questioning will be undertaken in such a manner as is appropriate to the language and literacy levels of the candidate and any cultural issues that may affect responses to the questions, and will reflect the requirements of the competency and the work being performed.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, the range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Overview of assessment

This unit of competency could be assessed through practical demonstration of providing facilities and amenities and associated services for property users. Targeted written (including alternative formats where necessary) or verbal questioning to assess the candidate's underpinning knowledge would provide additional supporting evidence of competence. The demonstration and questioning would include collecting evidence of the candidate's knowledge and application of ethical standards and relevant federal, and state or territory legislation and regulations. This assessment may be carried out in a simulated or workplace environment.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

A person who demonstrates competency in this unit must be able to provide evidence of:

- coordinating the implementation of facilities and amenities, ensuring equipment and services meet manufacturer and supplier specifications, and expenditure and resource use are monitored against budgets
- evaluating effectiveness of facilities and amenities and feedback from users, and making recommendations for improvements to processes
- identifying requirements of facilities and amenities through consultation with clients and others and by reviewing documentation
- knowledge of organisation's practices, ethical standards and legislative requirements associated with providing facilities, amenities and associated services for property users
- planning the provision of facilities and amenities, incorporating strategies for monitoring and reporting, risk management, resource needs and gaining necessary approvals.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Resource implications for assessment include:

- a registered provider of assessment services
- assessment materials and tools

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- candidate special requirements
- competency standards
- cost and time considerations
- suitable assessment venue and equipment
- workplace documentation.

Where applicable, physical resources should include equipment modified for people with disabilities.

Access must be provided to appropriate learning and/or assessment support when required.

Assessment processes and techniques must be culturally appropriate, and appropriate to the language and literacy capacity of the candidate and the work being performed.

Validity and sufficiency of evidence require that:

- competency will need to be demonstrated over a period of time reflecting the scope of the role and the practical requirements of the workplace
- where the assessment is part of a structured learning experience the evidence collected must relate to a number of performances assessed at different points in time and separated by further learning and practice with a decision of competence only taken at the point when the assessor has complete confidence in the person's competence
- all assessment that is part of a structured learning experience must include a combination of direct, indirect and supplementary evidence
- where assessment is for the purpose of recognition (RCC/RPL), the evidence provided will need to be current and show that it represents competency demonstrated over a period of time
- assessment can be through simulated project-based activity and must include evidence relating to each of the elements in this unit.

In all cases activity and must include evidence relating to each of the where practical assessment is used it will be combined with targeted questioning to assess the underpinning knowledge. Questioning will be undertaken in such a manner as is appropriate to the language and literacy levels of the candidate and any cultural issues that may affect responses to the questions, and will reflect the requirements of the competency and the work being performed.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit of competency specifies the outcomes required to ensure the safety of persons at risk under various security assignment conditions. It requires the ability to plan and prepare security arrangements, implement security and safety policies during escort activities, and monitor and review the effectiveness of the security assignment.

This unit may form part of the licensing requirements for persons engaged in security operations in those states and territories where these are regulated activities.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit

This unit of competency has wide application in the security industry in those roles involving operational activities. Competency requires legal and operational knowledge applicable to relevant sectors of the security industry. The knowledge and skills described in this unit are to be applied within relevant legislative and organisational guidelines.

- emergency and evacuation procedures
- escort procedures
- first aid procedures and their application
- instructions and procedures for responding to security risk situations
- legal provisions relating to 'use of force' guidelines
- limits of own responsibility and authority
- observation and monitoring techniques
- operational functions and procedures for the use of communications, security and personal protection equipment
- principles of effective communication including interpersonal techniques
- procedures and requirements for documenting security incidents
- reporting structure and processes
- security incidents and appropriate responses
- security risk assessment methods.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	A person who demonstrates competency in this unit must be able to provide evidence of: • accurately assessing assignment needs and instructions and determining approaches and resources to be applied

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- accurately identifying and assessing factors which might impact on the safety and security of VIPs and formulating and implementing appropriate responses
- reviewing and evaluating security operations through a process of continual assessment, feedback and exchange of information with relevant personnel
- systematically monitoring security activities and varying operational plans as required to meet changing circumstances.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Context of assessment includes:

- a setting in the workplace or environment that simulates the conditions of performance described in the elements, performance criteria and range statement.

Resource implications for assessment include:

- access to plain English version of relevant statutes and procedures
- access to a registered provider of assessment services
- access to a suitable venue and equipment
- assessment instruments including personal planner and assessment record book
- work schedules, organisational policies and duty statements.

Reasonable adjustments must be made to assessment processes where required for people with disabilities. This could include access to modified equipment and other physical resources, and the provision of appropriate assessment support.

Method of assessment

This unit of competency could be assessed using the following methods of assessment:

- observation of processes and procedures
- questioning of underpinning knowledge and skills.

Guidance information for assessment

Assessment processes and techniques must be culturally appropriate and suitable to the language, literacy and numeracy capacity of the candidate and the competency being assessed. In all cases where practical assessment is used, it should be combined with targeted questioning to assess the underpinning knowledge.

Oral questioning or written assessment may be used to assess underpinning knowledge. In assessment situations where the candidate is offered a choice between oral questioning and written assessment, questions are to be identical.

Supplementary evidence may be obtained from relevant authenticated correspondence from existing supervisors, team leaders or specialist training staff.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	The following evidence is critical to the judgement of competence in this unit: • ability to complete a range of simple vision system tasks safely and in accordance with instructions • introductory knowledge of the major types of vision systems, including key features and safety issues.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	The assessment context must provide for: • practical demonstration of skills through the completion of a range of preparatory and set up tasks with industry-current vision systems equipment • project or work activities that allow knowledge to be applied to specific live production contexts and situations • completion of tasks within workplace-realistic time constraints.
Method of assessment	Assessment may incorporate a range of methods to assess performance and the application of essential underpinning knowledge, and might include: • direct observation of the candidate working with equipment and completing tasks • inspection of equipment set up by the candidate • oral questioning/interviewing to assess knowledge of equipment and procedures • review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate. Assessment methods should closely reflect workplace demands and the needs of particular groups (e.g. people with disabilities, and people who may have literacy or numeracy difficulties such as speakers of languages other than English, remote communities and those with interrupted schooling).

5	Carry out post-performance procedures.	5.1 Correctly power down equipment or set to standby between performances as required.
		5.2 Store and/or cover control in accordance with organisational procedures.
		5.3 Make accurate changes to documentation and file in accordance with organisation procedures.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills:

communication skills to allow for effective collaboration with other technicians and designers numeracy skills sufficient to complete simple mathematical calculations and recall numbers for channel selection literacy skills sufficient to interpret production documentation.

Required knowledge:

knowledge of general lighting terms, including how terms may vary between different systems or how different terms can refer to the same functions on different systems knowledge of lighting control concepts used in various lighting systems industry terminology and protocols particularly in relation to the operation of lighting knowledge of the main types of lanterns, including profile, Fresnel, PC, flood, and PAR lamps, their uses and operations (optical and mechanical) and accessories understanding of the basic elements of lighting design problem-solving techniques particularly in relation to lighting console operation documentation and back-up systems used in conjunction with lighting control colour recognition in display equipment.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	The following evidence is critical to the judgement of competence in this unit: ability to accurately record and reproduce lighting cues to instruction in a given timeframe knowledge of lighting terminology.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	The assessment context must provide for: practical demonstration of skills through the use of a lighting console on multiple occasions for multiple productions use of industry-current equipment.
Method of assessment	Assessment may incorporate a range of methods to assess performance and the application of essential underpinning knowledge, and might include: direct observation of the candidate operating a lighting console during production direct observation of the lighting effects produced by the candidate during a production oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of console features and functions review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports on on-the-job performance by the candidate.

Assessment methods should closely reflect workplace demands and the needs of particular groups (eg people with disabilities, and people who may have literacy or numeracy difficulties such as speakers of languages other than English, remote communities and those with interrupted schooling).

Assessment of this unit requires access to:

a range of lighting equipment as identified in the Range Statement a production and production venue.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Venue lights may include:

3. Coordinate production meetings	3.1. Liaise with relevant personnel and allocate times for production meetings to ensure most efficient and cost effective use of time 3.2. Chair production meetings and ensure that all artistic and technical issues are discussed and resolved 3.3. Provide current, clear and accurate reports on the progress of various aspects of the pre-production activities 3.4. Notify all relevant colleagues of meeting outcomes which affect their work activities 3.5. Keep accurate records of decisions made and actions required
4. Monitor the production planning phase	4.1. Take an active role in maintaining a creative and technical overview of the project 4.2. Continually liaise with the technical and artistic production team to ascertain and act upon requirements which can be organised on their behalf 4.3. Assess the progress of pre-production activities against timelines and budget and make adjustments accordingly 4.4. Determine any need for additional resources to be applied and take necessary action to ensure production requirements are met 4.5. Communicate with appropriate personnel regularly throughout the pre-production phase in an open manner to maintain positive working relations and to ensure efficient, safe and disciplined production practices
5. Prepare, distribute and maintain required production documentation and information	5.1. Prepare and/or check production documentation and information and ensure it is complete, accurate and legible and meets with production requirements 5.2. Unit descriptor	This unit describes the skills and knowledge required to coordinate all back-of-house services during the delivery of a live production/event. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	Senior stage managers apply the skills and knowledge outlined in this unit which focuses on back-of-house set-up just prior to the production/event and the delivery of the actual performance. Stage managers need to possess high level communication, negotiation and problem solving skills. This unit has strong linkages to other stage management units and combined training and/or assessment with those units may be appropriate, e.g.: • CUESMT09B Plot and rehearse cues • CUESMT08B Call the production/event.

	that timing is maintained and precise 4.5. Communicate with personnel in a clear and concise manner to ensure efficient, safe and disciplined production practices
5. Finalise the performance/event	5.1. Accurately prepare post-performance documentation according to organisational procedures 5.2. Organise the clearance and cleaning of the production/event sites as required, including appropriate security, storage and disposal 5.3. Maintain required production facilities and stocks of consumables for use in future productions 5.4. Identify any repairs or maintenance required and take appropriate action 5.5. Identify the need for and make any necessary adjustments to production documentation to ensure consistency and quality of future performances

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.
Required skills
• literacy skills sufficient to interpret complex documentation and write simple reports
Required knowledge
• broad understanding of artistic and technical elements of the production/event such as staging, lighting and sound elements • the key factors involved in the successful stage management of a production, including typical problems and responses • effective communication, team leading and delegation in relation to the stage management of a production • problem solving and decision making processes and their application in an immediate production/event environment • relevant occupational health and safety legislation and regulations as they apply to maintaining a safe backstage environment

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	The following evidence is critical to the judgement of competence in this unit: • ability to manage a range of tasks concurrently and in accordance with immediate time constraints • knowledge of all delivery aspects of the production • ability to effectively communicate and delegate.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	The assessment context must provide for: • practical demonstration of skills through the stage management of at least two different productions • interaction with and involvement of a production and performance team to reflect the collaborative nature of the unit.
Method of assessment	Assessment may incorporate a range of methods to assess practical skills and the application of essential underpinning knowledge, and might include: • direct observation of the stage management of a production/event for which the candidate is responsible • review of production schedules and other stage management reference material and reports prepared by the candidate • review of reports prepared by the candidate on the planning and implementation of the stage management of a production • written or oral questioning to test knowledge of the industrial and occupational health and safety issues and regulations • review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the job performance by the candidate. Assessment methods should closely reflect workplace demands and the needs of particular groups (e.g. people with disabilities, and people who may have literacy or

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the skills and knowledge required to coordinate the overall rehearsal process for live productions/events. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	Coordinating rehearsals is typically the role of a production manager or stage manager in conjunction with a producer or director. The core of the job involves setting up the logistics and communication channels to ensure rehearsals run smoothly. It entails preparing essential documentation, liaising with cast and crew, and locating and preparing rehearsal venues. This unit has linkages to a range of other stage management units, and combined training and/or assessment with those units may be appropriate, e.g.: • CUESMT11B Create, update and use production reference documents • CUESMT12B Analyse performance outline/script.

CUESOU07B Apply a general knowledge of audio to work activities

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the foundation skills and knowledge required to complete a range of general audio-related tasks in a live venue environment. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	People assisting with audio operations in the screen, media and entertainment industries apply the skills and knowledge outlined in this unit. They are working under the direct supervision of an experienced sound technician. The role includes the need for an understanding of the role of sound technicians, the process for setting up audio equipment and the functions of a range of sound equipment. Equipment operation is at a routine level. This unit underpins and has linkages to general technical units and all other audio units, and combined training and assessment with those units may be appropriate, e.g.: • CUSOHS301A Follow occupational health and safety procedures • CUETGE15B Handle physical elements safely during bump in/bump out.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1. Make preparations for audio set-up	1.1. Extract key information from audio installation plans and confirm requirements with supervisor 1.2. Correctly identify preferred rigging and positioning points for audio equipment 1.3. Correctly identify cables used to connect different audio components 1.4. Correctly identify and sort equipment and accessories in preparation for set-up, ensuring appropriate handling and taking account of equipment differences

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
2. Complete tasks using audio equipment	2.1. Correctly connect, disconnect and position audio system cables, including microphone, speaker, multicore and power feeds, in accordance with supervisor's instructions and safety requirements 2.2. Wire the audio system in correct sequence and confirm with supervisor 2.3. Set start up and operating settings in correct sequence and correctly use features of audio desk in accordance with instructions 2.4. Identify any problems with equipment promptly, take action within scope of individual responsibility or report to supervisor 2.5. Use positioning and equalising techniques to create optimum sound quality 2.6. Communicate appropriately with other technicians, performers or customers during the completion of tasks

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.
Required skills
• literacy skills sufficient to extract key information from audio installation plans • numeracy skills sufficient to sort and count equipment
Required knowledge
• the general scope and potential of audio operations within different live production contexts, e.g. theatre, music, corporate • the relationship between audio operations and other technical and performance areas, including lighting, vision systems and performance • typical roles and responsibilities of audio technicians in different contexts, including different career paths • fundamentals of sound in a circuit, including understanding that microphone level is 40 to -60dB line level • features and meaning of a typical sound system signal flow chart, including signal chains, gain structure and levels • decibel levels and basic sound pressure level measurement, including that frequency is measured in Hertz, understanding the differences between 100Hz and

1kHz
• understanding of phase, including phase cancellation, and that at 180 degree phase difference signals do cancel each other out
• common terminology used in relation to audio
• occupational health and safety requirements and legislation that relate to audio personnel, in particular with regard to working safely with electricity
• requirements for the storage of audio equipment
• key features, purpose and basic operating procedures of major types of audio equipment, including different types of loudspeakers, audio mixing consoles, signal processing equipment, input source equipment and common accessories
• different types of cable, their usage in different situations and how to care for them, including:
  • microphone cables; how to run safely and neatly and where to store excess
  • speaker cables; how to run safely and neatly and avoid lighting components
  • multicore cables, how to run safely and neatly and where to store excess
  • power cables, how to run safely and neatly and where to store excess

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	The following evidence is critical to the judgement of competence in this unit: • recognition of sound equipment, including key features and purpose • understanding of signal flow through the audio chain • completion of audio-related tasks in accordance with health and safety procedures.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	The assessment context must provide for: • practical demonstration of skills through the completion of a range of preparatory and set-up tasks with industry-current audio equipment • project or work activities that allow knowledge to be applied to specific production contexts and situations.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

EVIDENCE GUIDE
Method of assessment	Assessment may incorporate a range of methods to assess performance and the application of essential underpinning knowledge, and might include: • direct observation of the candidate completing audio-related tasks • evaluation of equipment which has been set-up by the candidate • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of equipment and audio theory • review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate. Assessment methods should closely reflect workplace demands and the needs of particular groups (e.g. people with disabilities, and people who may have literacy or numeracy difficulties such as speakers of languages other than English, remote communities and those with interrupted schooling).
Guidance information for assessment	Assessment of this unit requires access to: • a range of sound equipment as identified in the Range Statement • a sound system • an environment in which an audio system can be run.

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT
The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.
Equipment must include:	• audio mixing consoles • input source equipment • loudspeakers

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

RANGE STATEMENT
Accessories used in live audio may include:	• active splits • analysis software • continuity and phase testers • DI boxes • insolation transformers • spectrum analysers • SPL meters • white or pink noise generators
Equipment differences for loudspeakers may include:	• features of high frequency compression driver types • size of paper cone loudspeakers
Equipment differences for audio mixing consoles may include:	• how front of house consoles differ from stage monitor consoles, particularly the difference between pre and post fade auxiliary sends
Equipment differences for input source equipment may include:	• devices in the main signal chain, e.g. equalisers, CD, cassette, mini disk • devices inserted over individual channels, such as noise gates, limiters, compressors, preamps
Correct start up sequence and operating settings for an audio system would include:	• ensuring all amplifier volume controls are down (at minimum settings) • ensuring all output faders on console are down (at minimum settings or muted) • powering up all front-of-house equipment first • powering up amplifiers last • winding up amplifier volumes after all equipment is powered up
Correct sequencing of wiring would include:	• connection of adequate mains to all components and understanding of power isolation • patching to create a complete signal chain from input to output • safe and neat positioning of cables and multicore
Sound equipment may include:	• amplifiers to suit the system • analogue FOH mixing desk of at least 24:8:2 format • CD player • computer DAT • effects rack • hard disc recorder • microphones of different pickup patterns and

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to install a range of staging elements for any production within the cultural industries. It builds on the skills found in the unit CUESTA05C Apply a general knowledge of staging to work activities. The National Standard for Licensing Persons Performing High Risk Work applies to persons performing dogging and rigging work. Completion of the following units is required for certification at either basic, intermediate or advanced levels. CPCCLDG3001A Licence to perform dogging CPCCLRG3001A Licence to perform rigging basic level CPCCLRG3002A Licence to perform rigging intermediate level CPCCLRG4001A Licence to perform rigging advanced level. Sets and staging for some performances or events may fall within the definition of construction work. If so, people entering a construction site are required to complete the general induction training program specified by the National Code of Practice for Induction Training for Construction Work (Australian Safety Compensation Council, May 2007). Achievement of the unit 'CPCCOHS1001A Work safely in the construction industry' fulfils this requirement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	Mechanists apply the skills and knowledge outlined in this unit. In this role they are responsible for installing a range of scenery and set items for performances or events. These include soft scenery, as well as weight and non-weight bearing set items. This unit has linkages with a range of other staging and technical production units, and combined assessment and/or training with those units may be appropriate.

The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is critical to the judgement of competence in this unit: • ability to organise and coordinate the work of a team for bump in/bump out • detailed knowledge of the bump in/bump out process in a given industry context.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	The assessment context must provide for: • practical demonstration of skills through the coordination of a bump in/bump out process for multiple productions • involvement of and interaction with a team for whom the candidate can plan and organise work.
Method of assessment	Assessment may incorporate a range of methods to assess performance and the application of essential underpinning knowledge, and might include: • evaluation of a bump in/bump out process coordinated by the candidate • evaluation of reports prepared by the candidate detailing the methods used to organise a bump in/bump out, challenges faced and how these were resolved • case studies and problem solving exercises to assess ability to plan for different operational situations and contexts • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of equipment procedures or safety issues • review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate.
Guidance information for assessment	Assessment of this unit requires access to: • a production venue • equipment and materials to be used during the bump in/bump out process.

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT
The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.
Physical elements include any equipment or materials used for a production, including:	• costumes • props • scenic art • sets • staging • support equipment, e.g. furniture, performer amenities • technical equipment
Production documentation may include:	• equipment lists • technical plans.
Other production personnel may include:	• production managers • stage managers • technical managers • other technical specialists
Transport requirements may relate to:	• road vehicles (organisation or hired) • other modes of transport
Transportation requirements may be needed to or from:	• outside facilities • rehearsal facilities • storage facilities • suppliers' facilities • workrooms • workshops

CUETEM07B Tour the production

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the skills and knowledge required to coordinate arrangements for a touring production. The unit focuses only on the additional skills and knowledge for touring and would always be combined with other stage management and technical units in the workplace. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	Touring responsibilities will vary in accordance with the job role but the unit is particularly relevant for stage managers and other senior technical production personnel who make general touring arrangements and need to adapt aspects of a production for touring. This unit has linkages with a wide range of other technical and stage management units, and combined assessment and/or training with those may be appropriate.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to compile schedules for productions or events in the screen, media and entertainment industries. The task of compiling production schedules is a significant aspect of pre-production planning in the screen, media and entertainment industry sectors. Even though people in this role operate with a high degree of autonomy, they are members of a production team and need to work collaboratively with colleagues. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	Senior production personnel, such as production or event managers and coordinators, apply the skills and knowledge described in this unit. Depending on the size of the production, this person may also be responsible for developing the resource schedule on which the production schedule is based. More complex skills associated with managing pre-production activities are covered in: • CUFPPM601A Plan and manage film and media pre-production.

Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • effective use of scheduling tools and techniques to create accurate and practical production schedules that take account of relevant issues • effective communication, negotiation and problem solving skills • collaborative approach to work.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • development of more than one production schedule for an actual production, to ensure that skills can be adapted to different circumstances • development of production schedules within commercially-realistic time constraints • involvement of and interaction with others to reflect the collaborative nature of the scheduling process • access to appropriate learning and assessment support when required • use of culturally appropriate processes and techniques appropriate to the language and literacy capacity of learners and the work being performed.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance • evaluation of production schedules compiled by the candidate, including discussion with candidate about the process followed to produce schedules • written or oral questioning to test knowledge as listed in the required skills and knowledge section of this unit.
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example:

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to write content for a range of media. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	The person applying the skills and knowledge outlined in this unit could be expected to write both original and re-purposed non-narrative content for a range of media. The content could include such things as information for websites; community, news and promotional announcements for radio stations; organisation newsletters and audio or visual presentations. In larger organisations or in the development of e-learning resources, the person would usually be re-purposing material written by other writers or content experts. This work is usually undertaken with some supervision and guidance. The writing of narrative content is covered in: • CUFWRT302A Write simple stories.

- cultural protocols that impact on installing and dismantling, including those for Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander material
- conservation issues to be considered when handling collection material
- security issues to be considered when work is underway
- record-keeping procedures
- organisational procedures and guidelines relating to installing and dismantling exhibition elements.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to: • handle collection material with care, using safe manual-handling techniques • implement procedures and processes for installing and dismantling exhibitions • install and dismantle physical elements of exhibitions • work cooperatively with others involved in staging exhibitions.

Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure:
	• involvement of and interaction with a team during the installation or dismantling process
	• access to:
	  • plans and other exhibition documentation
	  • physical exhibition elements
	  • a physical venue to install or dismantle.

Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance • direct observation of the candidate installing and dismantling physical elements of an exhibition • verbal or written questioning to assess knowledge of different types of exhibitions, and safety and security issues

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

	• analysis of problem-solving exercises undertaken by the candidate to assess ability to respond to different operational situations and contexts. Assessment methods should closely reflect workplace demands and the needs of particular client groups (consider the requirements of different age groups, clients with English as a second language, clients with disabilities, remote library users, etc.).
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: • CULEVP402A Design and develop interpretive displays.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Exhibition documentation may include:	• event orders • floor plans • handling notes • installation instructions • site plans • travelling condition reports • work instructions.
Requirements may include:	• deadlines • duration • permanent or temporary • restrictions • safety requirements.
Relevant personnel may include:	• collection manager • conservator • curator • exhibition designer • registrar • security personnel.
Site alterations may	• access to utilities

include:	• change to signage or access routes • clearing unnecessary items • installation requirements • introduction of new utilities or furniture • removal of existing fittings or displays • safety and licensing requirements • security • sustainable work practices.
On-site construction may be completed in-house or by external contractors, and many relate to:	• carpentry • electrical • installation requirements • metalwork • plumbing • safety and licensing requirements • security.
Exhibition elements may include:	• art works • computer equipment • customised supports • display cases • drawers • electronic support material • environmental monitoring and control systems • film and video screens • hanging system supports • light fittings • objects • plinths • racks • sound outlets • special exhibition features • stands • tracks.

Exhibitions may be:	• developed in-house or externally
	• hired, borrowed or presented on behalf of another organisation or community group
	• permanent or temporary
	• travelling
	• staged in venues or events, such as:
	  • corporate events
	  • festivals
	  • galleries

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

	• libraries • museums • other visitor attractions • theme parks.
Scope of individual responsibility may relate to:	• authority to handle certain objects • licensing requirements for undertaking particular types of work.
Organisational procedures may relate to:	• cleaning • conservation • environment • handling methods • national and international standards relating to installing and dismantling exhibition elements • purchasing • security • storage of packaging materials • waste disposal.
Recordkeeping may include:	• electronic files and databases • logs and registers • paper documents.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Element	Performance Criteria
Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Identify physical resource requirements	1.1 With reference to exhibition documentation, determine the scope and type of exhibition elements required 1.2 Confirm budget and resources required for exhibitions 1.3 Provide appropriate input into the overall planning of exhibitions 1.4 Check inventory to determine availability of physical resources 1.5 Order additional resources as required and according to organisational procedures and budgetary guidelines 1.6 Assess the need for specialist or external assistance and where required, organise according to organisational procedures
2. Plan the installation and dismantling of exhibitions	2.1 Liaise with exhibition personnel to determine the most effective sequence for installing and dismantling exhibitions 2.2 Document plans for installation or dismantling according to organisational procedures 2.3 Confirm availability of resources in advance of installation and dismantling 2.4 Organise physical resources
3. Coordinate operations	3.1 Provide clear instructions to relevant personnel in relation to installation or dismantling to ensure safety and avoid damage to physical elements 3.2 Monitor operations to ensure that work is carried out according to instructions 3.3 Deal with problems that arise in ways that minimise disruption to work operations and schedules 3.4 Organise appropriate storage and security of exhibition elements, including valuable items and hazardous materials

4. Complete exhibition operations	4.1 Complete relevant exhibition documentation and reports and forward to relevant personnel as required 4.2 Seek feedback from stakeholders and team members about ways to improve processes 4.3 Identify aspects of operations that worked well and ways in which those aspects could be enhanced in future projects

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to:
  - liaise and agree on work requirements with colleagues
  - liaise with specialised or external assistance
  - provide clear instructions to others
- initiative and enterprise skills to contribute ideas to the planning of exhibitions
- learning skills to improve outcomes through continuous evaluation of operations
- literacy skills to read and interpret work plans, procedures, drawings, exhibition documentation and records
- negotiation skills to:
  - purchase required items efficiently
  - maximise internal and external resource availability
- numeracy skills to:
  - calculate measurements and material requirements
  - estimate costs
  - work with budgets
- planning and organising skills to:
  - establish procedures according to agreed timelines
  - organise work plans for self and others
  - monitor interrelated elements of exhibition installation and dismantling
- problem-solving skills to deal efficiently with a range of potentially disruptive issues that may arise in the context of installing and dismantling exhibitions
- safety awareness skills to:
  - handle collection material safely
  - minimise hazards
  - use equipment and tools safely

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- self-management skills to:
  - prioritise work tasks and meet deadlines
  - provide a role model to others
- teamwork skills to:
  - consult with stakeholders
  - coordinate input from colleagues
  - provide leadership
- technical skills to select appropriate installation and dismantling techniques.

Required knowledge

- conservation issues to be considered when handling collection material
- cultural protocols that impact on installation and dismantling, including those for Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander material
- environmental and other risk factors for people and physical elements
- exhibition components relevant to the work or industry context
- inventory systems and procedures used for equipment and materials in the context of exhibitions
- organisational procedures and guidelines relating to installing and dismantling exhibitions
- packing materials and techniques used for different types of exhibition elements
- principles of universal access and impact on installation
- range of tools commonly used for installing and dismantling exhibitions
- record-keeping procedures
- relevant organisational and legislative work health and safety requirements, including those that affect the allocation of work and the movement of physical elements
- roles and responsibilities of personnel involved in staging exhibitions
- security issues to be considered when work is underway
- sources of exhibition equipment and supplies
- sources of specialist assistance relevant to the work context
- technical procedures for handling physical elements, including artworks and historical objects
- typical procedures and processes for exhibition installation.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to: • coordinate and supervise the installation and dismantling of exhibitions • apply detailed knowledge of the exhibition set-up process • organise and manage resources allocated for installing and dismantling exhibitions.

Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure:
	• involvement of and interaction with a team for whom the candidate can plan and organise work
	• access to:
	  • an exhibition and exhibition venue
	  • physical exhibition elements
	  • exhibition documentation
	  • organisational procedures.

Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance • evaluation of an installation or dismantle coordinated by the candidate • evaluation of reports prepared by the candidate detailing methods used to organise installation or dismantling of an exhibition, challenges faced and how these were resolved • evaluation of candidate responses to case studies and problem-solving exercises to assess ability to plan for different situations and contexts. Assessment methods should closely reflect workplace demands and the needs of particular client groups (consider the requirements of different age groups, clients with English as a second language, clients with disabilities, remote library users, etc.).
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: • BSBWOR402A Promote team effectiveness.

Modification History

Release	Comments
Release 1	This unit of competency first released with CUL11 Library, Information and Cultural Services Training Package version 1.0

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to explore potential themes and storylines to inform the overall development of exhibition concepts.

Application of the Unit

This unit applies to individuals who explore and develop concepts and ideas for a cultural exhibition.

The unit is relevant to generalists in small museums and galleries, and to individual creative practitioners who may develop exhibition concepts for their own work.

Work is undertaken autonomously, but in consultation and collaboration with others.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

Evidence of the following is essential:

- general knowledge of the museum industry and ways to maintain currency of knowledge
- understanding of the ways in which industry knowledge can be applied to work activities to enhance work outcomes
- sourcing and application of industry information to specific contexts and work activities.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure:

- access to sources of industry information.

Method of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate
- evaluation of candidate's response to different scenarios to assess ability to apply knowledge to different industry contexts and situations
- oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of different aspects of the museum industry.

Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit

This unit brings together the wide range of highly-developed creative, technical and business skills required by an exhibition designer operating autonomously in consultation with a broad range of stakeholders. This unit goes beyond the skills normally required by an individual creative practitioner to exhibit his or her own work.

The unit has strong links to a wide range of other units dealing with specific creative, technical and business skills. This unit is focused on physical exhibition design.

	emerging technologies to inform the design
	2.5 Collect, collate and adapt materials to develop initial design concepts
3 Generate and assess ideas	3.1 Generate a range of ideas for the design which respond sympathetically to the brief and provide creative solutions to technical issues
	3.2 Discuss ideas and collaborate with relevant personnel to ensure contribution of ideas to the initial concept
	3.3 Continuously reflect on and appraise ideas for implications on cost and time, technical feasibility, and suitability to meet the brief
4 Develop and document the design	4.1 Hold ongoing discussions with relevant personnel so that additional or changed requirements and new ideas are considered and incorporated during the development of the design
	4.2 Ensure that agreement is reached with relevant personnel in relation to consistent artistic interpretation
	4.3 Evaluate initial concepts and select the most appropriate approach, giving consideration to budget, research findings and ongoing reflection/discussion
	4.4 Develop the exhibition designs from the initial concepts ensuring: • consistency with the exhibition concept • collection needs are taken into account • research findings are incorporated • ideas are technically feasible and demonstrate awareness of parameters and resource constraints • ideas demonstrate effective use of materials • integration of universal access principles
	4.5 Organise or undertake testing and experimentation with selected exhibition design
	4.6 Develop accurate records of the design, including all relevant information

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

Evidence of the following is essential:

- development and realisation of creative exhibition design concepts which assist in the realisation of the overall exhibition concept and which address operational requirements and constraints
- effective communication, negotiation and project management skills to facilitate the design process
- research skills, including creative interpretation and adaptation of design concepts.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure:

- assessment over an extended period of time to reflect the nature of the design process and to assess the experimental and implementation aspects of this unit
- involvement of, and interaction with, an exhibition team to reflect the collaborative nature of the design process
- access to an exhibition venue
- access to resources for both the development and realisation of designs (collection items, equipment, materials, financial and human resources).

Method of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

EVIDENCE GUIDE

reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate
- evaluation of an exhibition design for which the candidate has been responsible in terms of meeting concept and resource practicality
- evaluation of reports produced by the candidate which demonstrate the processes used in developing and realising the creative concept, including challenges faced and how these were resolved
- oral or written questioning aimed at evaluating the processes used in developing and realising the creative concept.

Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example:

- CUEDES04B Establish and refine a brief
- CUEDES05B Manage design realisation
- CUEFIN01C Develop a budget
- CUEFIN02C Manage a budget
- CUVCOR09B Select and apply drawing techniques and media to represent and communicate the concept
- CUVDSP15B Research and apply techniques for application to spatial design.

CUVACD302A Produce computer-aided drawings

Modification History

Version	Comments
CUVACD302A	This version first released with CUV11 Visual Arts, Craft and Design Training Package version 1.0

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to use a range of computer-aided design and drafting (CADD) program functions to produce drawings.

The focus of this unit is on the technical skills required to operate CADD, not on design skills which are covered in other units in CUV11 Visual Arts, Craft and Design Training Package.

Application of the Unit

People working in many industries apply the skills and knowledge outlined in this unit.

In the cultural industries, computer-aided drawing skills are required in many design disciplines, and in contexts such as stage and set design. In the visual arts, computer-aided drawings could be used to develop concepts for artworks or for mounting installations and exhibitions.

At this level, work is undertaken independently but within established parameters. Supervision or guidance is available as required.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Pre-Requisites

Not applicable.

Employability Skills Information

This unit contains employability skills.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Element	Performance Criteria
Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Prepare for computer-aided drawing work	1.1 Clarify drawing requirements with reference to concept or project information
	1.2 Identify hardware, software, tools and equipment required for computer-aided design and drafting projects
	1.3 Set up hardware and software according to operating instructions and organisational procedures
	1.4 Identify and retrieve digitised information relevant to projects
2. Gather object parameters and/or measurements	2.1 Establish and record critical dimensions and data for required designs
	2.2 Identify requirements in relation to accuracy, tolerances and other critical information
3. Prepare plots or drawings	3.1 Access and use CADD functions and features according to operating instructions
	3.2 Access and use peripheral equipment required for projects
	3.3 Prepare and review preliminary drawings in consultation with relevant colleagues as required
4. Finalise drawings	4.1 Check designs against project objectives and specifications according to organisational procedures
	4.2 Identify and make required adjustments to designs based on review and consultation with relevant colleagues as required
	4.3 Store data files according to operating instructions and organisational procedures
	4.4 Submit final drawings within agreed time parameters

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- learning skills to improve own skills through feedback and review
- literacy skills to interpret and use digital information, including instructions required for the production of computer-aided drawings
- numeracy skills to interpret and correctly apply calculations and measurements required for the production of computer-aided drawings
- planning and organising skills to plan work tasks in a logical sequence
- problem-solving skills to identify and respond to the need for adjustments in drawings
- self-management skills to complete work within agreed timeframes
- technology skills to use a range of features of CADD software.

Required knowledge

- ways in which CADD is used within specific industry contexts
- basic principles of CADD
- typical features and functions of CADD programs, including drawing tools, view displays, edit functions, working with layers, plotting and printing
- intellectual property issues and legislation associated with the use of CADD
- OHS issues associated with the use of computers.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to: • use the standard features and functions of a CADD program to produce drawings for a specific workplace purpose • apply knowledge of CADD capabilities and uses in a specific industry context.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure access to: • CADD equipment and software.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • evaluation of drawings produced by the candidate • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of CADD features and functions • direct observation of the candidate undertaking CADD work • review of portfolios of evidence • review of third-party reports from experienced practitioners. Assessment methods should closely reflect workplace demands and the needs of particular groups (e.g. people with disabilities, and people who may have literacy or numeracy difficulties, such as speakers of languages other than English, remote communities and those with interrupted schooling).

Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Information may relate to:	• creative objectives • measurements/dimensions of objects or space • scope for making adjustments • statutory requirements • technical objectives • timelines.

Computer-aided design may be required for a wide range of work situations which may include:	• costume or fashion design
	• layouts:
	  • rooms
	  • sites
	  • stage
	• lighting plots
	• object or product design
	• set design
	• visual arts projects:

	• artworks in any form • community installations • public art.

CADD functions and features must include:	• drawing tools to support methods for drawing:
	  • lines
	  • arcs
	  • polylines
	  • texts
	  • dimensions
	• edit functions
	• plotting and printing
	• view displays
	• working with layers.

CADD functions and features may include:	• three-dimensional (3-D) techniques:
	  • displaying 3-D views
	  • entering coordinates
	• how CADD works in an integrated environment
	• isometrics and perspectives
	• macros
	• use of attributes to make project reports.

Peripheral equipment may include:	• plotters • printers • scanners.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to: • research, analyse, critique and apply industry information • maintain effective industry networks • enhance professional practice.

Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure:
	• access to:
	  • a range of relevant and current creative arts industry information materials
	  • an appropriate environment to enhance professional practice
	  • appropriate technology to research and apply creative arts industry information
	  • relevant creative arts industry networks, including opportunity for collaboration
	  • appropriate learning and assessment support when required
	• the use of culturally appropriate processes, and techniques appropriate to the oracy, language and literacy capacity of the candidate and the work being performed.

Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • case studies to assess candidate's ability to research industry information and apply knowledge to different contexts and situations • direct observation of candidate analysing, critiquing and sharing industry information

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

	• problem-solving activities to assess candidate's critical thinking skills • review of third-party reports from experienced practitioners • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of technical or context issues that impact on professional practice in a given industry context. Assessment methods should closely reflect workplace demands (e.g. literacy) and the needs of particular groups (e.g. people with disabilities, and people who may have literacy or numeracy difficulties, such as speakers of languages other than English, remote communities and those with interrupted schooling).
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended. It should be noted that this unit underpins effective performance in all creative arts industry work practices, and as such could be assessed in conjunction with other operational and technical units at an equivalent level.

Range Statement

Structure and operation may include:	• economic, historical and social significance of the creative arts industry • creative arts industry sectors and their products, services, revenue flow and interrelationships • local, regional, national and international creative arts enterprises • major industry bodies and associations • markets and distribution channels for products and services • prominent creative arts practitioners and practices • relationship with other industries • working arrangements within the industry.

HLTAID011 Provide First Aid

Modification History

Not applicable.

Application

This unit describes the skills and knowledge required to provide a first aid response to a casualty in line with first aid guidelines determined by the Australian Resuscitation Council (ARC) and other Australian national peak clinical bodies.

The unit applies to all persons who may be required to provide a first aid response in a range of situations, including community and workplace settings.

Specific licensing/regulatory requirements relating to this competency, including requirements for refresher training should be obtained from the relevant national/state/territory Work Health and Safety Regulatory Authorities.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENTS	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
Elements describe the essential outcomes	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element.
1. Respond to an emergency situation.	1.1. Recognise and assess an emergency situation. 1.2. Ensure safety for self, bystanders and casualty. 1.3. Assess the casualty and recognise the need for first aid response. 1.4. Seek assistance from emergency services.
2. Apply appropriate first aid procedures.	2.1. Perform cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) in accordance ARC guidelines. 2.2. Provide first aid in accordance with established first aid principles. 2.3. Display respectful behaviour towards casualty. 2.4. Obtain consent from casualty where possible. 2.5. Use available resources and equipment to make the casualty as comfortable as possible. 2.6. Operate first aid equipment according to manufacturers' instructions. 2.7. Monitor the casualty's condition and respond in accordance with first aid principles.

Assessment Requirements for HLTAID011 Provide First Aid

Modification History

Not applicable.

Performance Evidence

Evidence of the ability to complete tasks outlined in elements and performance criteria of this unit in the context of the workplace or community setting.

There must be evidence that the candidate has completed the following tasks in line with State/Territory regulations, first aid codes of practice, first aid guidelines determined by the Australian Resuscitation Council (ARC) and other Australian national peak clinical bodies and workplace or site procedures:

- managed, in line with ARC guidelines, the unconscious, breathing casualty including appropriate positioning to reduce the risk of airway compromise
- managed, in line with ARC guidelines, the unconscious, non-breathing adult, including:
  - performing at least 2 minutes of uninterrupted single rescuer cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) (5 cycles of both compressions and ventilations) on an adult resuscitation manikin placed on the floor
  - following the prompts of an automated external defibrillator (AED) to deliver at least one shock
  - demonstrating a rotation of single rescuer operators with minimal interruptions to compressions
  - responding appropriately in the event of regurgitation or vomiting
- managed, in line with ARC guidelines, the unconscious, non-breathing infant, including:
  - performing at least 2 minutes of uninterrupted single rescuer CPR (5 cycles both compressions and ventilations) on an infant resuscitation manikin placed on a firm surface
- managed casualties, with the following:
  - anaphylaxis
  - asthma
  - non-life-threatening bleeding
  - choking
  - envenomation, using pressure immobilisation
  - fractures, dislocations, sprains and strains, using appropriate immobilisation techniques
  - minor wound cleaning and dressing
  - nosebleed
  - shock

- responded to at least one simulated first aid incident contextualised to the candidate's workplace or community setting, where the candidate has no knowledge of the casualty's condition prior to starting treatment, including:
  - identifying the casualty's illness or injury through history, signs and symptoms
  - using personal protective equipment (PPE) as required
  - providing appropriate first aid treatment
  - conveying incident details to emergency services or advising casualty on any required post incident action
  - providing an accurate verbal and written report of the incident
  - reviewing the incident.

Knowledge Evidence

Demonstrated knowledge required to complete the tasks outlined in elements and performance criteria of this unit:

- guidelines and procedures including:
  - ARC guidelines relevant to the provision of first aid
  - first aid guidelines from Australian national peak clinical bodies
  - potential incident hazards and risk minimisation processes when providing first aid
  - infection control procedures, including use of standard precautions and resuscitation barrier devices
  - requirements for currency of skill and knowledge
  - first aid codes of practice
  - appropriate workplace or site procedures relevant to the provision of first aid
  - contents of first aid kits
- legal, workplace and community considerations including:
  - duty of care requirements
  - own skills and limitations
  - consent and how it relates to the conscious and unconscious casualty
  - privacy and confidentiality requirements
  - awareness of potential need for stress management techniques and available support for rescuers
- considerations when providing CPR, including:
  - upper airway and effect of positional change
  - appropriate duration and cessation of CPR
  - appropriate use of an AED
  - safety and maintenance procedures for an AED
  - chain of survival
  - how to access emergency services
- techniques for providing CPR to adults, children and infants including:
  - how to recognise that a casualty is unconscious and not breathing normally

    - rate, ratio and depth of compressions and ventilations
    - correct hand positioning for compressions
    - basic anatomy, physiology and the differences between adults, children and infants relating to CPR
- signs, symptoms and management of the following conditions and injuries:
    - allergic reaction
    - anaphylaxis
    - asthma
    - non-life-threatening and life-threatening bleeding
    - burns
    - cardiac conditions, including chest pain
    - choking
    - diabetes
    - drowning
    - envenomation - all current treatments
    - eye injuries
    - fractures, dislocations, strains and sprains
    - head, neck and spinal injuries
    - hypothermia
    - hyperthermia
    - minor wounds
    - nose-bleed
    - poisoning
    - seizures
    - shock
    - sharps injuries
    - stroke.

Assessment Conditions

Each candidate to demonstrate skills in an environment that provides realistic in-depth, scenarios and simulations to assess candidates' skills and knowledge.

Due to the nature of this type of training, it is acceptable for the performance evidence to be collected in a simulated environment.

Compression and ventilation skills must be demonstrated on resuscitation manikins following ARC guidelines for the purpose of assessment of CPR procedures.

Assessment must ensure access to:

- adult and infant resuscitation manikins following ARC guidelines for the purpose of assessment of CPR procedures
- adrenaline auto-injector training device

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- AED training devices
- workplace first aid kit
- placebo bronchodilator and spacer device
- different types of wound dressings and bandages
- blankets and items to treat for shock
- personal protective equipment (PPE)
- workplace injury, trauma or illness record, or other applicable workplace or site incident report form.

Simulated assessment environments must simulate real-life situations where these skills and knowledge would be performed, with all the relevant equipment and resources of that workplace or community environment.

Assessors must satisfy the Standards for Registered Training Organisations' requirements for assessors and must hold this unit or demonstrate equivalent skills and knowledge to that contained within this unit.

- Communicate constructively with clients and other staff to ensure best service
- Identify and assist in developing a care plan for particular client groups
- Modify meals and menus according to specific nutritional and dietary needs

In addition, the candidate must be able to effectively do the task outlined in elements and performance criteria of this unit, manage the task and manage contingencies in the context of the identified work role

This includes the ability to:

- Demonstrate safe food handling practices
- Plan and evaluate meals and menus
- Use literacy, numeracy and oral communication skills required to fulfil the position in a safe manner as specified by the health care facility
- Use numeracy skills that may range from the ability to complete basic arithmetic calculations to the collating to recording of numbers and costing of menus

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the Performance Criteria, Required Skills and Knowledge, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate this competency unit:	• The individual being assessed must provide evidence of specified essential knowledge as well as skills • Consistency of performance should be demonstrated over the required range of workplace situations

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Concurrent assessment and relationship with other competency units:	This unit can be assessed independently, however it may be assessed in conjunction with: • HLTNA301B Provide assistance to nutrition and dietetic services • HLTNA304C Plan meals and menus to meet cultural and religious needs

Context of and specific resources for assessment:	• Assessment should replicate workplace conditions as far as possible
	• Simulations may be used to represent workplace conditions as closely as possible
	• Resources essential for assessment include:
	  • food safety and HACCP procedure manuals
	  • manufacturers' manuals and recommendations for equipment
	  • food packaging and storage requirements
	  • WHS, cultural diversity and other relevant legislation
	  • work plan
	  • enterprise policy, mission statements, procedures

Method of assessment	• Observation in the work place (if possible) • Written assignments/projects • Case study and scenario as a basis for discussion of issues and strategies to contribute to best practice • Questioning
Access and equity considerations:	• All workers in the health industry should be aware of access and equity issues in relation to their own area of work • All workers should develop their ability to work in a culturally diverse environment • In recognition of particular health issues facing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, workers should be aware of cultural, historical and current issues impacting on health of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people • Assessors and trainers must take into account relevant access and equity issues, in particular relating to factors impacting on health of Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander clients and communities

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT

The Range Statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Add any essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts.

Conditions requiring dietary modification include but are not limited to:

- Acquired brain injury
- Cancer
- Chewing/swallowing difficulties
- Coeliac disease
- Constipation
- Diabetes
- Food allergies and intolerance's
- Gastro-intestinal disorders
- Heart disease
- HIV/AIDS
- Hypertension
- Malnutrition
- Overweight and obesity
- Poor dental health
- Renal disease
- Stroke

Other nutrition-related conditions include, for example:

- Absence of teeth or poorly fitting dentures
- Coeliac disease
- Constipation
- Iron deficiency anaemia
- Poor appetite

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

RANGE STATEMENT

Nutrient imbalance may include but is not limited to:	• Food intake patterns • High fat and/or cholesterol • Low fibre • Low Kjs • Low fluid • High salt • High sugar • Excess kilojoules
Special dietary needs include but are not limited to	• Allergy/food intolerance diets (e.g. lactose-free) • Fluid diets • Gluten-free • High energy, high protein • Modified energy • Modified fat • Modified fibre • Modified protein • Modified sodium (or more rarely potassium) • Texture modified

Texture modification may include:	• Food textures:
	  • unmodified
	  • texture A (soft)
	  • texture B (minced and moist)
	  • texture C (smooth puree)
	• Thickened fluids:
	  • unmodified fluids (regular)
	  • level 150 (mildly thick)
	  • level 400 (moderately thick)
	  • level 900 (extremely thick)

Nutritional requirements of 'at risk' client groups may include but are not limited to:	• Specific requirements for common lifestyle related diseases/disorders such as diabetes, heart disease, obesity, hypertension, dental caries, and constipation • High energy and/or high protein for those with: • inadequate dietary intake

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

RANGE STATEMENT

- poor appetite
- unintentional weight loss
- increased energy needs due to illness

- Nutritional imbalances such as food intake patterns, high fat and/or cholesterol, low fibre, high salt, high sugar, excess kilojoules

'At risk' groups may include but are not limited to:

- Low socio-economic status
- Older persons
- People with disabilities
- Extended care
- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- Pregnant women
- Those with acute or chronic diseases/disorders requiring dietary management

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to use digital devices in a home or small office environment.

Application of the Unit

This unit applies to workers who require the information technology (IT) literacy skills to use a digital device, such as a digital camera, video camera, or personal digital assistant (PDA) device to support their work in a home office or to work in a small office environment.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement but users should confirm requirements with the relevant federal, state or territory authority.

Pre-Requisites

Not applicable.

Employability Skills Information

This unit contains employability skills.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to:
  - communicate with peers and supervisors
  - read and write basic workplace documents
  - seek assistance and expert advice
- literacy skills to interpret user manuals and help functions
- technical skills to:
  - access and use audiovisual devices
  - apply power-management settings
  - back up and save information
  - connect and use peripheral devices
  - input user access details for accessing a personal computer (PC), possibly a networked environment
  - manage mouse (button usage) for different applications
  - navigate a digital graphical user interface (GUI)
  - save and move files to various locations
  - use a keyboard.

Required knowledge

- audiovisual devices
- basic security functions
- basic software operation and associated applications
- digital device functions
- digital device settings
- peripheral devices
- storage devices.

Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to: • use a digital device • use menu features and navigate around a GUI interface • use device features to perform tasks • save results of work.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure access to: • digital device • computer device • storage device • printer • use of device-specific application currently used in industry • appropriate learning and assessment support when required. Where applicable, physical resources should include equipment modified for people with special needs.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • verbal or written questioning to assess candidate's knowledge of digital device operations • direct observation of candidate performing basic device-relevant practical skills • direct observation of candidate performing a sequence of routine tasks following clear directions.
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, where appropriate. Assessment processes and techniques must be culturally appropriate, and suitable to the communication skill level, language, literacy and numeracy capacity of the candidate and the work being performed. Indigenous people and other people from a non-English speaking background may need additional support. In cases where practical assessment is used it should be combined with targeted questioning to assess required

non-use may include:	• monitor power saver settings.
Advanced features may include:	• advanced operations • customising standard settings • integrating with other devices.
Computer devices may include:	• tablet • laptop • notebook • PDA • PC.

Storage devices may include:	• disks:
	  • CD
	  • DVD
	  • blu-ray
	• flash drives
	• server
	• solid-state hard drives
	• virtual devices.

Connectivity may include:	• audiovisual
	• cable, wireless, infra-red or Bluetooth
	• internal or via universal serial bus (USB) dongle
	• network or stand-alone computer
	• ports:
	  • Firewire
	  • high definition multimedia interface (HDMI)

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit covers using a range of hand tools for a variety of general engineering applications.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	Applications may include hand tools used for adjusting, dismantling, assembling and finishing of items or components, and the finishing, cutting, scraping of metallic and non-metallic material to size and shape. This includes simple tapping and threading and routine maintenance of hand tools. This unit should not be selected if the hand tool is dedicated to a single operation or machine and if only a machine specific/customised tool is used. When using hand held power tools or power tools used for hand held operations, refer to Unit MEM18002B (Use power tools/hand held operations). Band: A Unit Weight: 2

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment	A person who demonstrates competency in this unit must be able to use hand tools for a range of general engineering applications.
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Assessors must be satisfied that the candidate can competently and consistently perform all elements of the unit as specified by the criteria, including required knowledge, and be capable of applying the competency in new and different situations and contexts.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	This unit may be assessed on the job, off the job or a combination of both on and off the job. Where assessment occurs off the job, that is the candidate is not in productive work, then an appropriate simulation must be used where the range of conditions reflects realistic workplace situations. The competencies covered by this unit would be demonstrated by an individual working alone or as part of a team. The assessment environment should not disadvantage the candidate. This unit could be assessed in conjunction with any other units addressing the safety, quality, communication, materials handling, recording and reporting associated with using hand tools or other units requiring the exercise of the skills and knowledge covered by this unit.
Method of assessment	Assessors should gather a range of evidence that is valid, sufficient, current and authentic. Evidence can be gathered through a variety of ways including direct observation, supervisor's reports, project work, samples and questioning. Questioning techniques should not require language, literacy and numeracy skills beyond those required in this unit of competency. The candidate must have access to all tools, equipment, materials and documentation required. The candidate must be permitted to refer to any relevant workplace procedures, product and manufacturing specifications, codes, standards, manuals and reference materials.

MSS405070A Develop and manage sustainable energy practices

Modification History

New unit, superseding MSACMT670A Develop and manage sustainable energy practices - Equivalent

Unit Descriptor

This unit of competency covers the skills and knowledge required to identify opportunities for, and make improvements in, sustainable energy practices in an organisation. Areas covered include efficient use of raw materials, management of waste, electricity conservation, heat conservation and management, water management, environment protection and environment obligations of enterprises.

Application of the Unit

This unit applies to an individual who is required to establish systems for improved energy practices in an organisation. The unit involves analysis of energy used in processes and operations and categorising the energy use according to lean principles. The unit covers categorising energy into necessary use and waste with the waste being further categorised into necessary waste and unnecessary waste. Strategies for eliminating or minimising energy waste are covered with benefit/cost analyses being required for strategies.

This unit primarily requires the application of communication and problem solving skills associated with collecting and analysing information. An ability to analyse energy use of technology or processes will be applied. Initiative and enterprise, and planning and organising are also required to develop plans for efficient energy use. This unit also requires aspects of self-management and learning to ensure feedback and new learning is integrated into the development of processes.

Where the quantum of energy used is not easily available or a formal calculation of energy use is required through an energy balancing calculation (e.g. for regulatory purposes) the unit MSS015011A Conduct a sustainability energy audit may also be required.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1	Analyse energy use	1.1	Identify all energy consuming processes
		1.2	Determine quantity and nature of energy consumed
		1.3	Analyse energy consumed and generated in different parts of the process
		1.4	Determine source of energy consumed in process
2	Develop energy conservation plans	2.1	Determine the efficiency of use of energy by all energy consuming processes
		2.2	Determine causes of low efficiency of use
		2.3	Develop plans for increasing the efficiency of energy use
		2.4	Determine benefit/cost of plans
3	Develop energy trading plans	3.1	Compare energy generating activities with energy consuming activities
		3.2	Determine feasibility of energy consuming activities using energy generated by other activities

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

		3.3	Develop plans for energy trading
		3.4	Determine benefit/cost of plans
4	Investigate alternative sources of energy	4.1	Develop a specification for energy required
		4.2	Identify a range of sources for that energy
		4.3	Determine benefit/cost for alternative energy sources
5	Develop plans for more efficient energy use	5.1	Compare benefit/costs for different alternatives developed
		5.2	Rank proposals based on benefit/cost compare to limited resources
		5.3	Check proposals meet regulatory requirements
		5.4	Recommend proposals for improving energy efficiency
6	Implement selected plans	6.1	Liaise with relevant people to implement energy efficiency plans
		6.2	Follow through to ensure implementation occurs
		6.3	Monitor implementation and make adjustments, as required
		6.4	Check new energy usage to ensure improvements have occurred

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

Required skills include:

- using common units, symbols and formulae common in energy-related calculations
- applying mathematics

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- communicating with a variety of groups and individuals using different media
- solving complex problems individually and as part of a team
- reviewing range of existing data for suitability and determining where new data gathering is required
- planning and organising complex whole of organisation activities relating to energy use, including objectives, timelines, implementation procedures and monitoring strategy
- determining where energy balancing techniques are required
- accessing manufacturers' data and other sources of energy consumption for individual equipment and processes
- mapping processes and energy flows
- calculating, manipulating and interpreting numerical data
- ranking energy consumption and waste for area, sites or processes
- calculating the efficiency of use of energy by equipment and processes
- consulting with technical and operative staff on possible non-obvious energy wastes
- consulting and negotiating with stakeholders on implementation process for sustainability improvement

Required knowledge

Required knowledge includes:

- types and sources of energy
- methods of analysing energy efficiency for different types of energy
- methods of converting energy values from one form to another
- alternative sources of energy
- principles of energy efficiency
- relevant regulatory/legislative requirements
- energy trading schemes and procedures
- organisation and process needs for energy

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	A person who demonstrates competency in this unit must be able to provide evidence of their ability to: • gather appropriate data to allow energy analyses • categorise energy use into necessary use and waste • develop options for energy reduction including presenting of alternatives and benefit/cost analyses • develop strategies and plans for energy use and monitor implementation.

Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment of performance must be undertaken in a workplace using or implementing one or more competitive systems and practices. Access may be required to: • workplace procedures and plans relevant to work area • specifications and documentation relating to planned, currently being implemented, or implemented changes to work processes and procedures relevant to the assessee • documentation and information in relation to production, waste, overheads and hazard control/management • reports from supervisors/managers • case studies and scenarios to assess responses to contingencies.
Method of assessment	A holistic approach should be taken to the assessment. Competence in this unit may be assessed by using a combination of the following to generate evidence: • demonstration in the workplace • workplace projects • suitable simulation • case studies/scenarios (particularly for assessment of contingencies, improvement scenarios, and so on) • targeted questioning • reports from supervisors, peers and colleagues (third-party reports) • portfolio of evidence. In all cases it is expected that practical assessment will be combined with targeted questioning to assess underpinning knowledge. Where applicable, reasonable adjustment must be made to work environments and training situations to accommodate ethnicity, age, gender, demographics and disability.
Guidance information for assessment	Assessment processes and techniques must be culturally appropriate and appropriate to the oracy, language and literacy capacity of the candidate and the work being performed.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Competitive systems and practices	Competitive systems and practices may include, but are not limited to: • lean operations • agile operations • preventative and predictive maintenance approaches • monitoring and data gathering systems, such as Systems Control and Data Acquisition (SCADA) software, Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) systems, Materials Resource Planning (MRP) and proprietary systems • statistical process control systems, including six sigma and three sigma • Just in Time (JIT), kanban and other pull-related operations control systems • supply, value, and demand chain monitoring and analysis • 5S • continuous improvement (kaizen) • breakthrough improvement (kaizen blitz) • cause/effect diagrams • overall equipment effectiveness (OEE) • takt time • process mapping • problem solving • run charts • standard procedures • current reality tree Competitive systems and practices should be interpreted so as to take into account: • the stage of implementation of competitive systems and practices • the size of the enterprise

Waste	Waste (also known as muda in the Toyota Production System and its derivatives) is any activity which does not contribute to customer benefit/features in the product. Within operations, categories of waste include: • excess production and early production • delays • movement and transport • poor process design • inventory • inefficient performance of a process • making defective items • activities which do not yield any benefit to the organisation or any benefit to the organisations customers
Necessary waste	Necessary waste is: • any activity or cost which does not contribute directly to customer benefit/feature in the product, and which cannot be avoided (e.g. regulatory compliance and fixed costs). Necessary waste cannot be eliminated but should be managed
Unnecessary waste	Unnecessary waste is: • any activity or cost which does not contribute directly to customer benefit/features in the product and can be avoided. Unnecessary waste should be eliminated as quickly as practical
Energy	Energy includes: • all sources of energy used by the process be it electricity, gas or mobile transport fuel The uses of the energy will also be potentially wide and include: • heating and cooling • moving materials (e.g. pumps and conveyors) • modifying materials (e.g. cutting, forming, weaving, knitting, reacting, moulding, extruding and mixing) • generating pressure/vacuum or providing motive power for equipment and transport
Energy trading	Energy trading means both formal trading where the organisation investigates alternatives to:

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

	• the buying of energy through alternative suppliers and tender processes • selling of excess energy produced by the organisation to energy companies or other producers and • internal trading of excess energy from one area to an energy consuming area elsewhere in the organisation

PUAPOLGD015A Employ media strategies

Modification History

PUAPOLGD015A Release 3: Unit Descriptor revised.

PUAPOLGD015A Release 2: Layout adjusted. No changes to content.

PUAPOLGD015A Release 1: Primary release.

Unit Descriptor

This unit covers the competency required to employ media strategies to enhance work outcomes.

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of publication.

Application of the Unit

Media strategies may be used for a range of reasons including to increase community confidence or to seek information from witnesses to events.

This unit applies to people required to effectively employ media strategies in a work context. It requires the purpose for media involvement and potential media interest in the information to be balanced with legal, operational and organisational requirements. It also requires a planned release of authorised, relevant information in an appropriate format.

In liaising with the media, this unit requires the establishment of an effective relationship with media personnel, compliance with organisational protocols and the maintenance of a positive organisational image at all times.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a Unit of Competency.

Performance Criteria describe the required performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the Range Statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the Evidence Guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1. Determine media involvement	1.1 Purpose of media involvement is identified and recorded in relevant documents as appropriate
	1.2 Media's potential interest is assessed to determine the type of information to be released
	1.3 Legal, operational and organisational responsibilities are balanced against providing information to the media
2. Provide information to the media	2.1 Release of information is planned to avoid the release of unauthorised information
	2.2 Relevant and succinct information is supplied to the media in accordance with organisational policies and guidelines
3. Liaise with media	3.1 Relationship is established with the media that facilitates the release of information as planned
	3.2 Positive image of the organisation is maintained when dealing and/or corresponding with the media
	3.3 Organisational protocols are followed when liaising with the media

Required Skills and Knowledge

This describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Required Skills

- attend to detail
- communicate facts in a fluent, clear and interesting manner
- liaise with media and other organisational personnel

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- make media presentations
- prioritise between operational responsibilities and provision of information to media
- retain professionalism under duress
- show empathy with victims and operational personnel
- undertake public speaking as required

Required Knowledge

- communication techniques
- establishing media relationships
- organisational policies and procedures (such as relevant legislation; operational, corporate and strategic plans; operational performance standards; operational policies and procedures; organisational personnel and occupational health and safety practices and guidelines; organisational quality standards; organisation's approach to environmental management and sustainability)
- organisational protocols relating to media liaison, such as legal and organisational requirement relating to confidentiality, disclosure, libel, accuracy, discrimination
- requirements of media to present information in a newsworthy/informative manner
- role of media in disseminating information

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the Performance Criteria, Required Skills and Knowledge, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

Assessment must confirm the ability to:

- identify, select and use various media strategies suited to specific instances
- communicate authorised information to the media accurately and in accordance with relevant jurisdictional policies and procedures
- liaise with the media portraying a positive image of the organisation within established organisational protocols

Consistency in performance

Competency should be demonstrated over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the outcome and apply the competence in different situations or environments.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Context of assessment

Competency should be assessed in the workplace or an environment that closely resembles normal work practice and replicates the range of conditions likely to be encountered in the workplace, including coping with difficulties, irregularities and breakdowns in routine.

Specific resources for assessment

There are no specific resource requirements for this unit.

Method of assessment

In a public safety environment assessment is usually conducted via direct observation in a training environment or in the workplace via subject matter supervision and/or mentoring, which is typically recorded in a competency workbook.

Assessment is completed using appropriately qualified assessors who select the most appropriate method of assessment.

Assessment may occur in an operational environment or in an industry-approved simulated work environment. Forms of assessment that are typically used include:

- direct observation
- interviewing the candidate
- journals and workplace documentation
- third party reports from supervisors
- written or oral questions.

Range Statement

The Range Statement relates to the Unit of Competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording in the Performance Criteria is detailed below.

Media includes:

- Community and ethnic television
- Internal media teams/units
- Mainstream media
- Print and broadcast media

Relevant documents may include:

- Email or other correspondence to internal media teams/units
- Investigation plan
- Media release forms

Type of information may include:

- Content of information to be released (who, what, when, where)
- Format of information to be released (text, video footage, photos and other relevant forms)

Legal, operational and

- Ensuring the accuracy of the content

organisational responsibilities may include:	• Presenting information relevant to the public • Preserving life and property, which is the principal concern to all public • Safety personnel • Understanding the legal implications of releasing information
Relevant and succinct information may include:	• Information that according to protocol is available for public release • Information that matches the purpose of media involvement • Not supplying classified information • Providing information that is fascinating or appealing to the public • Reporting facts and avoiding speculation • Using language that can be readily understood by all to avoid misinterpretation
Positive image of the organisation may include:	• Cooperative and responsive organisational personnel • Handling media in most positive manner in even the most adverse conditions/circumstances • Heroic actions of personnel • Promoting the relevance and efficiency of the service • Reporting facts • Well presented organisational personnel
Organisational protocols may include:	• Acknowledging support of other organisations • Ensuring media liaison person is fully briefed and prepared • Ensuring personal presentation is as presentable as possible considering • Limiting comments on role of own service • Operational circumstances • Organisational policies and procedures • Referring to relevant federal and state/territory legislation and regulations • Seeking advice from headquarters where appropriate

PUAWER004B Respond to workplace emergencies

Modification History

Release	TP version	Comments
2	PUA12 V1	Layout adjusted. Application revised.
1	PUA00 V8.1	First release in TGA.

Unit Descriptor

This unit covers the competency required to recognise emergencies in the workplace, to report emergencies and to take appropriate action.

For this unit workplace is defined as the area encompassed by an individual's responsibilities.

This unit has been developed to cover the broad range of emergencies and workplaces as considered in Australian Standard 3745—2010.

Application of the Unit

This unit applies to all personnel within an organisation, within all industries and in all contexts.

This unit places responsibility on individual employees in the workplace to recognise, report and take action during workplace emergency situations. This requirement is consistent with the legislative obligations of employees as prescribed in OHS legislation.

The knowledge and skills gained through the completion of this unit may be applied by all employees across all industries.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a Unit of Competency.	Performance Criteria describe the required performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the Range Statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the Evidence Guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1. Prepare for emergency situations	1.1 Current workplace emergency procedures to be used by employees and other workplace occupants are identified and followed. 1.2 Emergency resources in the workplace are identified and located. 1.3 Emergency response exercises are participated in according to workplace emergency procedures.
2. Report emergencies and potential emergencies	2.1 Emergencies and potential emergencies are identified and reported according to workplace emergency procedures. 2.2 People in any immediate danger from the emergency or potential emergency are alerted according to workplace emergency procedures.
3. Respond to emergency warnings and advice	3.1 Emergency warnings and advice are responded to according to workplace emergency procedures. 3.2 Instructions from emergency control response personnel are complied with during an emergency. 3.3 Sources of additional information are identified and information is sought from relevant people if the situation is not clear.
4. Evacuate from the work area	4.1 Need to evacuate from the work area is determined according to the level of immediate danger or instruction issued under the workplace emergency procedures. 4.2 Work area is prepared for evacuation according to workplace emergency procedures and the nature of the emergency. 4.3 Area of danger is evacuated according to workplace emergency procedures. 4.4 Where it is safe to do so, assistance is provided to people who may require assistance. 4.5 Evacuation procedures and instructions from emergency control organisation or emergency response personnel are followed. 4.6 Alternative pathways or methods of evacuation are identified, assessed and chosen according to workplace emergency procedures if usual means of evacuation are blocked or endangered. 4.7 Communication systems are used according to workplace procedures.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Required Skills

- communicate effectively in an emergency situation as outlined in the workplace emergency procedures
- identify an emergency/potential emergency
- adhere to documented workplace emergency procedures

Required Knowledge

- circumstances where evacuation may need to be modified
- emergency reporting systems and procedures used on site
- emergency warning system, signals and instructions used on site
- evacuation alarms and workplace emergency procedures used at the workplace
- location of assembly areas and post-evacuation actions
- location of emergency equipment in the workplace
- procedures for reporting emergencies
- roles, responsibilities and authority of emergency personnel, emergency control organisation and emergency response team
- types of emergencies, the hazards and the evacuation actions associated with each one

Evidence Guide

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

Assessment must confirm the ability to apply workplace procedures; to maintain own safety and the safety of others in emergency situations; and to follow workplace emergency procedures and the advice of emergency control organisation members.

Consistency in performance

Competency should be demonstrated over time with a range of emergencies that could be expected in the workplace including assisting people who may need assistance.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Context of assessment

Competency should be assessed in the workplace or in a simulated workplace.

Specific resources for assessment

Access to:

- scenarios that reflect a range of emergency situations that may be expected in the workplace
- appropriate emergency resources
- range of communication equipment relevant to the workplace
- workplace emergency procedures and documentation

Range Statement

The Range Statement relates to the Unit of Competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording in the Performance Criteria is detailed below.

Emergency response exercises may include

- briefings
- debriefings
- emergency exercises, simulations and reviews
- table/desk top exercises

Emergency warnings may include

- audible/visual alarms
- audible or vibrating pagers
- coded or uncoded public address announcements
- e-mail
- screen alerts
- stench alarms

Unit Descriptor

This unit covers the operating of a range of small plant and equipment in resources and infrastructure industries. It includes the planning and preparation for work, the conducting of pre-operational checks, the use of the plant and/or equipment, and carrying out operator maintenance and cleaning up.

Application of the Unit

This unit is appropriate for those working in operational, service and maintenance roles, at worksites within:

- Civil construction
- Coal mining
- Drilling
- Extractive industries
- Metalliferous mining

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1. Plan and prepare	1.1. Access, interpret and apply compliance documentation relevant to operate small plant and equipment 1.2. Obtain, confirm and apply work instructions for the allotted task 1.3. Obtain, confirm and apply to the allotted task safety requirements from the site safety plan and organisational policies and procedures 1.4. Select plant, tools and equipment to carry out tasks are consistent with the requirements of the job 1.5. Identify, confirm and apply to the allotted task environmental protection requirements from the project environmental management plan
2. Conduct pre-operational checks	2.1. Select fuel and lubricants according to manufacturer's specifications 2.2. Check and adjust fuel, oil, hydraulic fluid and water levels according to manufacturer's manual 2.3. Secure/tighten and maintain bolts, nuts, guards and attachment couplings in accordance with manufacturer's instructions 2.4. Check and adjust function of controls and gauges where necessary to comply with manufacturer's manual 2.5. Conduct standard start-up and shutdown procedures according to requirements of operator's manual
3. Use small plant and equipment	3.1. Identify site hazards associated with small plant and equipment operations and establish appropriate controls in accordance with the requirements of the site safety plan 3.2. Identify and apply operating techniques for small plant and equipment to achieve optimum output in accordance with

4. Carry out operator maintenance	4.1. Shutdown plant/equipment and prepare it for maintenance as per manufacturer's manual and organisational requirements 4.2. Conduct inspection and fault finding in accordance with the manufacture's specifications and/or organisational requirements 4.3. Remove and replace defective parts safely and effectively according to manufacturer's manual and organisational requirements 4.4. Carry out regular programmed maintenance tasks in accordance with the manufacturer's and/or organisational requirements
5. Clean up	5.1. Clear work area and dispose of or recycle materials in accordance with project environmental management plan 5.2. Clean, check, maintain and store plant, equipment and tools in accordance with manufacturer's recommendations and standard work practices

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.
Required skills
Specific skills are required to achieve the performance criteria in this unit, particularly for the application in the various circumstances in which this unit may be applied. This includes the ability to carry out the following as required to operate small plant and equipment: • apply legislative, organisation and site requirements and procedures • apply clear and direct speaking and active listening skills • apply teamwork to a range of situations, particularly in a safety context

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

• apply problem solving techniques, particularly in teams and in dealing with safety issues • interpret and apply information • show initiative in adapting to changing work conditions or contexts particularly when working across a variety of work placements • manage time, particularly in organising priorities and planning work • take responsibility for self organisation of work priorities • use a range of mediums to learn
Required knowledge
Specific knowledge is required to achieve the Performance Criteria of this unit, particularly its application in a variety of circumstances in which the unit may be used. This includes knowledge of the following, as required to operate small plant and equipment : • small plant and equipment types, characteristics, technical capabilities and limitations • basic soil types and characteristics • site and equipment safety requirements • small plant and equipment operating techniques related to essential tasks • operational, maintenance and basic diagnostic procedures • site isolation and traffic control responsibilities and authorities • materials safety data sheets (MSDS)and materials handling methods • project quality requirements • industry and site specific terminology • JSA's/Safe work method statement

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	The evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit must be relevant to worksite operations and satisfy all of the requirements of the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge and the range statement of this unit and include evidence of the following: • knowledge of the requirements, procedures and instructions to operate small plant and equipment • implementation of requirements, procedures and techniques for the safe, effective and efficient operating of small plants and equipment • working with others to operate small plants and equipment that meets all of the required outcomes • consistent timely operating of small plants and equipment that safely, effectively and efficiently meets the required outcomes

Context of and specific resources for assessment	• This unit must be assessed in the context of the work environment. Where personal safety or environmental damage are limiting factors, assessment may occur in a simulated environment provided it is realistic and sufficiently rigorous to cover all aspects of workplace performance, including task skills, task management skills, contingency management skills and job role environment skills. • The assessment environment should not disadvantage the participant. For example, language, literacy and numeracy demands of assessment should not be greater than those required on the job. • Customisation of assessment and delivery environment to sensitively accommodate cultural diversity. • Aboriginal people and other people from a non English speaking background may have second language issues. • Assessment of this competency requires typical resources normally used in the work environment. Selection and use of resources for particular worksites may differ due to site circumstances. • Where applicable, physical resources should include equipment modified for people with disabilities. • Access must be provided to appropriate learning and/or assessment support when required.
Method of assessment	This unit may be assessed in a holistic way with other units of competency. The assessment strategy for this unit must verify required knowledge and skill and practical application using more than one of the following assessment methods:

	• written and/or oral assessment of the candidate's required knowledge
	• observed, documented and/or first hand testimonial evidence of the candidate's:
	  • implementation of appropriate requirement, procedures and techniques for the safe, effective and efficient achievement of required outcomes
	  • consistently achieving the required outcomes
	• first hand testimonial evidence of the candidate's:
	  • working with others to operate small plants and equipment

Guidance information for assessment	Consult the SkillsDMC User Guide for further information on assessment including access and equity issues.

Range Statement

Relevant compliance documentation may include:	• legislative, organisation and site requirements and procedures • manufacturer’s guidelines and specifications • Australian standards • code of practice • Employment and workplace relations legislation • Equal Employment Opportunity and Disability Discrimination legislation
Work instructions may include:	• verbal or written and graphical instructions, signage, work schedules/plans/specifications, work bulletins, charts and hand drawings, memos, materials safety data sheets (MSDS) and diagrams or sketches • plans and specifications • quality requirements, including dimensions, tolerances, standards of work and material standards • safe work procedures related to the operation of small plant and equipment on construction sites
Safety requirements may	• protective clothing and equipment

sales.

Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure access to: • a real or simulated retail work environment • relevant documentation, such as policy and procedures manuals • a range of customers with different requirements • a range of merchandise and products appropriate to the retail workplace • product labels and sources of product information.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • observation of the candidate in the workplace • customer feedback • answers to questions about specific skills and knowledge • review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance.
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the individual, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Product knowledge may include:	• features and benefits • handling and storage requirements • price • safety features • stock availability • use-by dates • warranties.
Relevant sources of information may include:	• demonstrations • internet • labels • product profiles consistent with the Evidence Guide.

1. Conduct pool water tests.	1.1. Complete routine pool water tests according to public health regulatory requirements, organisational policies and procedures and relevant legislation.
	1.2. Compare and interpret pool water test results with public health regulatory requirements.
	1.3. Report pool water test irregularities to aquatic facility or to service personnel for corrective action.
	1.4. Respond to contamination incidents according to public health regulatory requirements, organisational policies and procedures and relevant legislation.
	1.5. Perform continual visual checks of pool water quality and initiate corrective actions.
2. Record results.	2.1. Record routine pool water test results according to aquatic facility specifications and public health regulatory requirements.
	2.2. Update swimming pool log according to aquatic facility specifications and organisational policies and procedures.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to:
  - report irregularities to aquatic facility or service personnel
  - initiate corrective actions
- problem-solving skills to:
  - conduct a variety of routine pool water tests
  - identify irregularities in results
  - respond to contamination incidents
- planning and organisational skills to conduct regular pool water tests according to facility schedule
- literacy skills to:
  - record pool water test results
  - update swimming pool log
- numeracy skills to identify and interpret routine test results.

Required knowledge

- legislation and organisational policies and procedures that enable:
  - safe conduct of pool water tests
  - appropriate response to contamination incidents
  - correct maintenance of swimming pool logs
- public health regulatory requirements and aquatic facility specifications for:
  - comparing and interpreting pool water test results
  - recording pool water test results
- pool water chemistry to understand scientific terms related to tests such as pH levels, alkalinity, chlorine, bromine, temperature and calcium hardness
- equipment and resources used for testing pool water quality.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the Performance Criteria, Required Skills and Knowledge, Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • conducts pool water tests and reports irregularities to aquatic facility or service personnel promptly, according to public health regulatory requirements and organisational policies and procedures • records pool water test results and updates pool log according to organisational policies and procedures and relevant legislation • performs routine visual checks for pool water quality and proposes corrective actions in response to contamination incidents.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure conduct of regular pool water tests to monitor water quality over a realistic aquatic facility timeframe. Assessment must also ensure access to: • an aquatic facility with a suitable pool • equipment, resources and pool water testing apparatuses to test water quality • public health regulatory requirements, relevant legislation and organisational policies and procedures.

Method of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- observation of the candidate using pool water testing apparatuses and equipment
- oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of the application of routine pool water quality tests
- observation of reading and recording test results
- portfolio of written recordings detailing test irregularities, pool water test results and log updates
- third-party reports from a supervisor detailing the candidate's performance on the job.

Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example:

- SISXOHS101A Follow occupational health and safety policies

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Routine pool water tests may include:

- free chlorine
- total bromine
- total chlorine
- combined chlorine
- pH
- alkalinity
- cyanuric acid
- calcium hardness
- total hardness
- temperature.

Public health regulatory requirements may include:

- health and poisons acts
- infectious diseases regulations
- dangerous goods act and regulations
- metropolitan water supply, sewerage and

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency .	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Clarify role and responsibilities in the assessment process	1.1 Discuss and confirm purpose of assessment with relevant people
	1.2 Discuss and confirm benchmarks for assessment with qualified assessor
	1.3 Access, read and clarify assessment plan with qualified assessor
	1.4 Discuss and agree with qualified assessor the specific responsibilities in gathering evidence and types of evidence to be gathered
2. Confirm organisational arrangements for evidence gathering	2.1 Access and confirm relevant assessment system policies and procedures; organisational, legal and ethical requirements; and other relevant advice on assessment
	2.2 Clarify nominated assessment tools and methods for collecting evidence with qualified assessor, to ensure that procedures to be followed and instruments to be used are clear
	2.3 Discuss and confirm with relevant people assessment context, including candidate's characteristics and any need for reasonable adjustments
	2.4 Confirm and arrange resource requirements in consultation with relevant people
3. Collect evidence in accordance with the assessment plan	3.1 Explain assessment process to candidate, including the different responsibilities of the parties involved, and refer any candidate issues or concerns to qualified assessor prior to undertaking assessment activities
	3.2 Use assessment instruments to gather quality evidence within available time and resources, according to organisational, legal and ethical requirements
4. Record and report findings	4.1 Organise and provide evidence to the qualified assessor in a format suitable for analysis according to assessment system policies and procedures

	4.2 Actively seek feedback from the qualified assessor on whether evidence-gathering activities meet the principles of assessment and whether evidence collected meets the rules of evidence 4.3 Document areas for improvement in collecting evidence, for future assessment activities

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- observation skills to observe candidate performance
- cognitive and interpretation skills to ensure collection of valid and reliable evidence
- organisational skills to collect evidence
- time-management skills to schedule assessment events and activities
- literacy skills to:
  - read and interpret relevant information
  - prepare required documentation and collate evidence in required format
- communication skills to:
  - discuss evidence-gathering processes with practitioners and candidates
  - provide constructive and supportive feedback
  - ask appropriate questions to clarify and confirm instructions for evidence gathering
  - provide clear and concrete options and advice.

Required knowledge

- competency-based assessment, including:
  - criterion referenced
  - competency standards as the benchmarks for assessment
  - competency-based reporting
- principles of assessment
- rules of quality evidence
- different purposes of assessment
- diversity of assessment contexts
- evidence, including different types of evidence
- evidence-gathering methods – what are assessment methods and different types of methods
- purpose and features of assessment tools and assessment plans
- potential barriers and processes relating to evidence-gathering procedures and assessment processes
- organisational assessment system policies and procedures relevant to this unit of competency

- technical or subject area being assessed
- cultural sensitivity and equity considerations
- relevant policy, legislation, codes of practice and national standards, including commonwealth and state or territory legislation, that may affect training and assessment in the vocational education and training sector
- OHS relating to the work role, and OHS considerations to be included in collecting evidence, including:
  - hazard identification and risk control measures
  - requirements for reporting hazards and incidents
  - emergency procedures
  - procedures for use of relevant personal protective equipment
  - safe use of relevant equipment
  - sources of OHS information
  - role of key workplace personnel
  - responsibilities of learners.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to: • carry out a minimum of three evidence-gathering activities, with different candidates for each activity • present documentation of the evidence in a clear and concise manner • present documented feedback from others involved in the assessment.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Evidence must be gathered in the workplace wherever possible. Where no workplace is available, a simulated workplace must be provided.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Purpose of assessment may be:	• recognise current existing competency of candidates • determine if competency has been achieved following learning • establish candidate progress towards achievement of competence • determine language, literacy and numeracy needs of candidate • certify competence through a Statement of Attainment • establish progress towards a qualification • determine training gaps of candidate • measure work performance • classify employee and support career progression • meet organisational requirements for work, such as operating equipment or developing new skills • satisfy licensing or regulatory requirements.
Relevant people must include:	• qualified assessors • candidates.
Benchmarks for assessment:	• refer to criteria against which candidate is assessed • may be a competency standard/unit of competency, assessment criteria of course curricula, performance specifications, or product specifications.
Assessment plan must include:	• purpose and aims of assessment • context of assessment • relevant benchmarks for assessment • other assessment information and documentation identified as relevant.
Assessment system policies and procedures may include:	• candidate selection • rationale and purpose of competency-based assessment • assessment records, data management and information management • recognition of current competency, recognition of prior learning and credit arrangements.
Assessment tools include:	• the learning or competency unit(s) to be assessed • the target group, context and conditions for the assessment • the tasks to be administered to the candidate • an outline of the evidence to be gathered from the candidate • the evidence criteria used to judge the quality of performance

	(i.e. the assessment decision-making rules) • the administration, recording and reporting requirements • the evidence of how validity and reliability have been tested and built into the design and use of the tool.
Assessment context may include:	• environment in which assessment will be carried out • relationship between units of competency and candidate's workplace • time period over which assessment takes place.

Reasonable adjustments may include:	• taking into account candidate's language, literacy and numeracy requirements
	• providing personal support services, such as arranging for:
	  • member of the community to accompany the candidate
	  • reader
	  • interpreter
	  • attendant carer
	  • scribe
	• using adaptive technology or special equipment
	• providing flexible assessment sessions to allow for such things as fatigue or administering of medication
	• format of assessment materials, such as:
	  • in Braille
	  • in first language
	  • use of audiotape or videotape
	• making adjustments to the physical environment
	• revising proposed assessment methods and instruments
	• considering age and gender
	• considering cultural beliefs, traditional practices and religious observances.

Resource requirements may include:	• resources specific to evidence-gathering activities • access to assessors • access to policy and procedures • access to subject and technical experts • OHS requirements • plant, equipment and technology.

Assessment instruments may include:	• instruments developed by an assessor as part of formative or summative assessment activities, including:
	  • profiles of acceptable performance measures
	  • templates and proformas
	  • specific questions or activities
	  • evidence and observation checklists
	  • checklists for the evaluation of work samples

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment	Assessment must address the scope of this unit and reflect all components of the unit. A range of appropriate assessment methods and evidence-gathering techniques must be used to determine competency. A judgement of competency should only be made when the assessor is confident that the required outcomes of the unit have been achieved and that consistent performance has been demonstrated.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the ability to:
	• carry out aminimum of three training sessions, involving demonstrating and instructing particular work skills for different groups; with each session addressing:
	  • different learning objectives
	  • a range of techniques and effective communication skills appropriate to the audience.

Context of and specific resources for assessment	Evidence must be gathered in the workplace wherever possible. Where no workplace is available, a simulated workplace must be provided.

	  • support
	  • guidance in personal or career growth
	• relationship, not just a procedure or activity
	• one person professionally assisting the career development of another.

Ground rules may include:	• training for mentoring partners • mentoring agreement • active involvement of both partners in the mentoring process.

Legislation, policy and procedures may include:	• commonwealth and state or territory legislation and regulations, such as:
	  • privacy legislation
	  • equal employment opportunity, anti-discrimination and harassment legislation
	  • OHS legislation
	  • user choice
	• organisational policy, procedures and protocols.

Techniques for resolving differences	• finding a mutually beneficial solution • self-disclosure

may include:	• inviting discussion • providing explanations • accessing assistance.
Mentoring relationship may include:	• informal workplace development program • formal mentoring process associated with a contracted apprenticeship or traineeship, involving a formal training plan.
Stakeholders may include:	• trainee or apprentice • manager or supervisor • RTO • learning support services, including assistive technology and diagnostic testing • funding organisation • supplier of learning resources.
Benefits may include:	• insights into organisational culture, attitudes and expected behaviours • supportive environment in which successes and failures can be evaluated • networking opportunities • development of workplace competence and self-confidence • recognition and job satisfaction • mutual respect.
Benefits to the organisation may include:	• increased productivity • new competencies in the person being mentored • staff motivation • more committed, involved and responsible learners.

Unit Descriptor

Unit Descriptor

This unit involves the skills and knowledge required to carry out basic servicing and maintenance of a commercial vehicle, including action to implement vehicle manufacturers specifications for routine checks and maintenance and to ensure that all specified safety requirements are met, and that the vehicle is operational to the requirements of both the workplace and the relevant state/territory roads and traffic authority. Licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements are applicable to this unit.

Application of the Unit

Application of the Unit

Work must be carried out in compliance with the regulations of the relevant roads and traffic authority.

Work is performed with limited or minimum supervision, and with limited accountability and responsibility for self and others in achieving the prescribed outcomes. It involves the application of routine vehicle checking and maintenance principles and procedures to service and maintain a commercial vehicle across a variety of operational contexts.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.

Performance criteria describe the required performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1 Maintain and service the vehicle systems	1.1 Fluid levels are checked and adjusted following manufacturers specifications and workplace procedures
	1.2 Air levels are checked and adjusted following manufacturers specifications and workplace procedures
	1.3 Routine checks are made of vehicle systems and appropriate action is initiated for maintenance where required in accordance with workplace procedures
	1.4 Appropriate precautions and procedures are followed when servicing/maintaining a vehicle to ensure adequate protection of the environment
	1.5 OH&S procedures are followed when carrying out routine servicing and maintenance of a vehicle
2 Carry out minor repairs to a vehicle	2.1 Vehicle components are removed, repaired or replaced and refitted to the vehicle using the correct tools and following manufacturers instructions and workplace procedures
	2.2 Tyres on vehicle are repaired or replaced following workplace procedures and manufacturers instructions
	2.3 Worn brakes are identified and action taken in accordance with workplace procedures and manufacturers specifications
	2.4 The need for more complex maintenance procedures is identified and the problem correctly referred following workplace procedures
3 Diagnose minor vehicle faults and undertake repairs for the safe operation of a vehicle	3.1 Minor faults in the vehicle systems are identified, diagnosed and repaired following manufacturers specifications and workplace procedures
	3.2 Identified faults which create a safety hazard are reported and

	appropriate action is taken to remove the vehicle from operation pending repair
4 Complete documentation	4.1 Records of routine servicing, maintenance and repairs are kept in accordance with workplace procedures

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED KNOWLEDGE AND SKILLS

This describes the essential knowledge and skills and their level required for this unit.

Required knowledge:

- Relevant 'duty of care' requirements for the routine servicing and maintenance of vehicles
- Relevant OH&S and pollution control procedures
- Procedures for the checking and routine service and maintenance of a commercial vehicle in accordance with workplace and the manufacturer's requirements and established safety rules and regulations
- Problems that may occur during the routine servicing and maintenance of a vehicle and appropriate action and solutions
- Recognition and diagnosis of faults and vehicle irregularities
- Basic principles of operation of systems on commercial vehicles, including: electrical systems, fuel systems, cooling systems, steering systems, exhaust systems, tyres and brakes
- Basic fault finding procedures required during routine servicing and maintenance of vehicles
- Procedures required to minimise waste during routine servicing and maintenance
- Housekeeping standards required for routine servicing and maintenance
- Procedures for the use and maintenance of the materials, tools and parts required for routine servicing and maintenance
- Reporting and documentation requirements

Required skills:

- Communicate effectively with others when carrying out vehicle servicing and maintenance
- Read and interpret instructions, procedures, information and signs relevant to vehicle servicing and maintenance
- Interpret and follow operational instructions and prioritise work
- Complete documentation related to vehicle servicing and maintenance
- Operate electronic communication equipment to required protocol

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Required skills:

- Work collaboratively with others
- Adapt appropriately to cultural differences in the workplace, including modes of behaviour and interactions with others
- Promptly report and/or rectify any identified problems, faults or malfunctions identified when carrying out vehicle servicing and maintenance in accordance with regulatory requirements and workplace procedures
- Implement contingency plans for unplanned events
- Apply precautions and required action to minimise, control or eliminate hazards that may exist during vehicle servicing and maintenance
- Monitor work activities in terms of planned schedule
- Modify activities depending on differing operational contingencies, risk situations and environments
- Apply fatigue management knowledge and techniques
- Work systematically with required attention to detail without injury to self or others, or damage to vehicle or equipment
- Operate and adapt to differences in equipment in accordance with standard operating procedures
- Select and use required personal protective equipment conforming to industry and OH&S standards
- Monitor performance of equipment
- Service equipment in terms of maintenance schedule and standard operating procedures
- Check and replenish fluids and carry out lubrication processes in the course of vehicle servicing and maintenance

Context of and specific resources for assessment	• Performance is demonstrated consistently over a period of time and in a suitable range of contexts
	• Resources for assessment include:
	  • a range of relevant exercises, case studies and/or other simulated practical and knowledge assessment, and/or
	  • access to an appropriate range of relevant operational situations in the workplace
	• In both real and simulated environments, access is required to:
	  • relevant and appropriate materials and equipment, and
	  • applicable documentation including workplace procedures, regulations, codes of practice and operation manuals

Method of assessment	• Assessment of this unit must be undertaken by a registered training organisation
	• As a minimum, assessment of knowledge must be conducted through appropriate written/oral tests
	• Practical assessment must occur:
	  • through activities in an appropriately simulated environment at the registered training organisation, and/or
	  • in an appropriate range of situations in the workplace

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance.

Maintenance may be carried out in typical road transport situations, including:	• operations conducted at day or night • typical weather conditions • in tight or confined spaces, exposed conditions and controlled or open environments • while in a depot, base or warehouse • while in the vehicle on the road • while at a client's workplace

commercial road transport vehicle including:	• heavy vehicle • combination vehicle
Maintenance checks may include:	• routine inspections of vehicle systems • checks prior to operations • checks on completion of operations • checks on completion of maintenance activities
Minor routine repairs may include:	• replacement of blown globes in vehicle lights • replacement of broken fan belt • replacement of blown fuse • door mirrors • repairs to rear tail-light lens • changing of tyres • repair of tyre punctures • replacement of broken coolant hose
Minor routine servicing may include:	• topping-up of water levels • replacement of oils • replacement of air in tyres
Environmental hazards may include:	• leaking oil and fuel • defective or inappropriately adjusted exhaust systems • inappropriate disposal of vehicle fluids in drains or sewerage systems
Depending on the type of organisation concerned and the local terminology used, workplace procedures may include:	• company procedures • enterprise procedures • organisational procedures • established procedures
Information/records may include:	• workplace routine servicing and maintenance procedures, checklists and instructions • relevant state/territory roads and traffic authority vehicle maintenance regulations • maintenance checklists and records • vehicle manufacturers instructions, specifications and recommended procedures • precautions and procedures to be adopted to protect the environment when servicing and maintaining vehicles • OH&S procedures to be followed when servicing and maintaining vehicles
Applicable regulations and legislation may include:	• relevant state/territory roads and traffic authority vehicle maintenance regulations and requirements • relevant state/territory OH&S legislation • relevant state/territory environmental protection legislation

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.

Performance criteria describe the required performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1 Operate commercial vehicle	1.1 Engine power is managed to ensure efficiency and performance and to minimise engine and transmission damage 1.2 Driving hazards are identified and/or anticipated and avoided 1.3 Vehicle lights and indicators are used in accordance with traffic regulations and manufacturers instructions 1.4 The vehicle is secured in accordance with manufacturers specifications, traffic regulations and workplace procedures 1.5 Appropriate procedures are followed in the event of a driving emergency 1.6 The behaviours displayed by operators towards other road users is appropriately aligned with workplace procedures 1.7 Vehicle positioning and movement are convenient and safe for loading and unloading in accordance with regulatory and workplace instruction 1.8 All associated equipment is operated in accordance with manufacturers and workplace instructions
2 Monitor traffic and road conditions	2.1 The most efficient route of travel is taken through monitoring and anticipation of traffic flows and conditions, road standards and other factors likely to cause delays or route deviations 2.2 Traffic and road conditions are constantly monitored and acted upon to enable safe operation and ensure no injury to people or damage to property, equipment, loads and facilities
3 Monitor and maintain vehicle performance	3.1 Vehicle performance and safety is maintained through pre-operational inspections and checks of the vehicle 3.2 Performance and efficiency of vehicle operation is monitored during use

This describes the essential knowledge and skills and their level required for this unit.

Required knowledge:

- Relevant road rules, regulations, permit and licence requirements of the relevant state/territory road traffic authority
- Relevant OH&S and environmental/emissions procedures and regulations
- Vehicle controls, instruments and indicators and their use
- Vehicle handling procedures
- Workplace driving and operational instructions
- Driving hazards and related defensive driving techniques
- Procedures to be followed in the event of a driving emergency
- Engine power management and safe driving strategies
- Efficient driving techniques
- Pre-operational checks carried out on vehicle and related action
- Differences between transmission types
- Map reading and road navigation techniques
- Factors which may cause traffic delays and diversions, and related action that can be taken by a driver
- Principles of stress management when driving a vehicle
- Causes and effects of fatigue on drivers
- Factors which increase fatigue-related accidents
- Fatigue management strategies including on-road techniques
- Lifestyles which promote the effective long-term management of fatigue

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.

Performance criteria describe the required performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1 Operate four wheel drive vehicles on normal roads	1.1 Pre-start checks of vehicle and equipment are carried out to manufacturers specifications and roadworthy requirements 1.2 Tyres are checked for pressure suitable for terrain and/or changed in accordance with workplace procedures 1.3 Loads are secured in accordance with workplace and legislative requirements 1.4 Vehicle is driven on-road and off-road to legislative and workplace requirements, at appropriate speeds for conditions and hazards 1.5 Vehicle is parked and shut down in accordance with workplace and manufacturers requirements
2 Operate vehicle on, or across, a slope	2.1 Pre-start checks of vehicle and equipment are carried out to manufacturers specifications and roadworthy requirements 2.2 Tyres are checked for pressure suitable for terrain and/or changed to operational guidelines 2.3 Loads are secured in accordance with workplace and legislative requirements 2.4 Vehicle is driven on-road and off-road to regulatory and workplace requirements at appropriate speeds for conditions and hazards
3 Operate vehicle ascending a steep slope	3.1 Intended vehicle path is inspected prior to negotiation of slope

REQUIRED KNOWLEDGE AND SKILLS

This describes the essential knowledge and skills and their level required for this unit.

Required knowledge:

- Road rules, regulations, permit and licence requirements of the relevant state/territory road traffic authority
- Relevant OH&S and environmental procedures and regulations
- Workplace procedures for the operation of four wheel drive vehicle in both on-road and off-road situations
- Problems that may occur when operating a four wheel drive vehicle, and action that can be taken to report or resolve the problems
- Hazards that may exist when operating a four wheel drive vehicle in both on-road and off-road situations, and ways of controlling the risks involved
- Vehicle controls, instruments and indicators and their use
- Vehicle handling procedures and techniques for a range of conditions, including rock, mud, sand, ice and snow
- Procedures to be followed in the event of a driving emergency
- Efficient driving techniques and safe driving strategies
- The effect on the centre of gravity of changing fluid loads
- Hazards and risks associated with traversing cross slopes
- Effects of hard surface driving (such as highway wind up) on the 4x4 system

- Implement contingency plans for unexpected situations that may arise when operating a four wheel drive vehicle
- Apply precautions and required action to minimise, control or eliminate hazards that may exist during work activities
- Monitor work activities in terms of planned schedule
- Modify activities depending on differing operational contingencies, risk situations and environments
- Apply fatigue management knowledge and techniques
- Work systematically with required attention to detail without injury to self or others, or damage to goods or equipment
- Operate and adapt to differences in equipment in accordance with standard operating procedures
- Select and use required personal protective equipment conforming to industry and OH&S standards
- Monitor performance of four wheel drive vehicle and its equipment, and take appropriate action if required
- Conduct pre-start checks
- Monitor and anticipate traffic hazards and take appropriate action
- Drive vehicles in a range of conditions

Unit Descriptor

Unit Descriptor

This unit involves the skills and knowledge required to operate a passenger coach/bus safely. It includes maintaining systematic and efficient control of all coach/bus functions; monitoring traffic and road conditions; managing coach/bus condition and performance; and effectively managing hazardous situations. Licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements may be applicable to this unit.

Application of the Unit

Application of the Unit

Operation of a passenger coach/bus is performed with limited or minimum supervision, with limited accountability and responsibility for self and others in achieving the prescribed outcomes.

This unit involves the application of routine vehicle driving principles and procedures to maintain the safety and operation of a commercial coach/bus across a variety of contexts.

The entry requirement for this unit is the attainment of applicable licence from the state regulatory authority to operate a bus/coach.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.

Performance criteria describe the required performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1 Operate the coach/bus	1.1 The coach/bus is started, steered, manoeuvred, positioned and stopped in accordance with manufacturers instructions
	1.2 Engine power is managed to ensure efficiency and performance and to minimise engine and transmission damage
	1.3 Engine operation is maintained within the manufacturers specified torque range and temperature through effective transmission use
	1.4 Braking system of coach/bus is managed and operated to ensure effective control of the coach/bus under all conditions
	1.5 Hazards are identified and/or anticipated and avoided or controlled through defensive driving techniques
	1.6 The coach/bus is driven in reverse, maintaining visibility and achieving accurate positioning in accordance with workplace procedures
	1.7 The coach/bus is parked, shut down and secured in accordance with manufacturers specifications and workplace procedures
	1.8 The behaviours displayed by operators towards other road users is appropriately aligned with workplace procedures
2 Monitor and respond to traffic and road conditions	2.1 The most efficient route of travel is taken through monitoring and anticipation of traffic flows and conditions, road standards and other factors likely to cause delays or route deviations
	2.2 Traffic and road conditions are constantly monitored and acted upon to enable safe operation and ensure no injury to people or damage to property, equipment, loads and facilities
3 Monitor and maintain coach/bus performance	3.1 Coach/bus performance is maintained through pre-operational inspections and checks of the coach/bus and ancillary

	equipment
	3.2 Performance and efficiency of coach/bus operation is monitored during use
	3.3 Defective or irregular performance or malfunctions are repaired or reported to the appropriate authority in accordance with workplace procedures
	3.4 Coach/bus records are maintained/updated and information is processed in accordance with workplace procedures
	3.5 Vehicle monitoring devices (such as tachographs) are operated in accordance with workplace procedures
4 Operate the coach/bus safely	4.1 Passenger positioning and dispersion is in accordance with manufacturers instructions and workplace procedures
	4.2 Bus/coach doors are operated safely for entry and exit from coach/bus in accordance with manufacturers and workplace instructions
	4.3 Visual checks are conducted on entry to and exit from bus stops in accordance with workplace instructions
	4.4 Vehicle positioning and movement are convenient and safe for passengers embarking and disembarking in accordance with regulatory and workplace instructions
5 Operate bus/coach associated equipment	5.1 All bus/coach associated equipment is operated in accordance with manufacturers and workplace instructions
	5.2 Faults with all bus/coach associated equipment are reported according to manufacturers and workplace instructions
	5.3 Route destination is clearly displayed on the vehicle as required by workplace instructions
6 Provide customer service to passengers on coach/bus	6.1 Comfort and wellbeing of passengers are in accordance with workplace instructions
	6.2 Lost property processing is in accordance with organisational procedures
	6.3 Assistance is provided for identified special needs and/or any luggage and ancillary equipment requirements in accordance with workplace instructions

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED KNOWLEDGE AND SKILLS

This describes the essential knowledge and skills and their level required for this unit.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

REQUIRED KNOWLEDGE AND SKILLS

Required knowledge:

- Relevant road rules, regulations, permit and licence requirements of the relevant state/territory road traffic authority
- Relevant OH&S and environmental procedures and regulations
- Relevant state and territory regulations and procedures in relation to bus stops
- Coach/bus controls, instruments and indicators and their use
- Coach/bus handling procedures
- Workplace driving and operational instructions
- Driving hazards and related defensive driving techniques
- Procedures to be followed in the event of a driving emergency
- Engine power management and safe driving strategies
- Efficient driving techniques
- Pre-operational checks carried out on coaches/buses and related action
- Differences between transmission types
- Map reading and road navigation techniques
- Factors which may cause traffic delays and diversions and related action that can be taken by a driver
- Principles of stress management when driving a vehicle
- Causes and effects of fatigue on drivers
- Factors which increase fatigue-related accidents
- Fatigue management strategies including on-road techniques
- Lifestyles which promote the effective long-term management of fatigue

Required skills:

- Communicate effectively with others when driving a commercial coach or bus
- Read and interpret instructions, procedures, information and signs relevant to the operation of a commercial coach or bus
- Interpret and follow operational instructions and prioritise work
- Complete documentation related to the operation of a commercial coach or bus
- Operate electronic communication equipment to required protocol including on-board intercom and communications equipment
- Work collaboratively with others when operating a commercial coach or bus
- Adapt appropriately to cultural differences in the workplace, including modes of behaviour and interactions with others
- Promptly report and/or rectify any identified problems, faults or malfunctions that may arise when operating a commercial coach or bus in accordance with workplace procedures

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Required skills:

- Implement contingency plans for unexpected events that may occur when operating a commercial coach or bus
- Apply precautions and required action to minimise, control or eliminate hazards that may exist during the operation of a commercial coach or bus
- Monitor work activities in terms of planned schedule
- Modify activities depending on differing operational contingencies, risk situations and environments
- Apply fatigue management knowledge and techniques
- Work systematically with required attention to detail without injury to self or others, or damage to goods or equipment
- Operate and adapt to differences in equipment in accordance with standard operating procedures
- Select and use required personal protective equipment conforming to industry and OH&S standards
- Monitor performance of coach or bus and its equipment and take appropriate action where required
- Service coach or bus and its equipment in terms of maintenance schedule and standard operating procedures
- Check and replenish fluids and carry out lubrication processes in the course of work activities

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required knowledge and skills, the range statement and the assessment guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

- The evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit must be relevant to and satisfy all of the requirements of the elements and performance criteria of this unit and include demonstration of:
  - undertaking pre-operational checks&vehicle handling procedures
  - implementing responses to changing road conditions
  - applying knowledge of relevant legislation and workplace procedures
  - applying customer service skills in accordance with industry requirements and organisational procedures

EVIDENCE GUIDE

Context of and specific resources for assessment	• Performance is demonstrated consistently over a period of time and in a suitable range of contexts
	• Resources for assessment include:
	  • a range of relevant exercises, case studies and/or other simulated practical and knowledge assessment, and/or
	  • access to an appropriate range of relevant operational situations in the workplace
	• In both real and simulated environments, access is required to:
	  • relevant and appropriate materials and equipment, and
	  • applicable documentation including workplace procedures, regulations, codes of practice and operation manuals

Method of assessment	• Assessment of this unit must be undertaken by a registered training organisation
	• As a minimum, assessment of knowledge must be conducted through appropriate written/oral tests
	• Practical assessment must occur:
	  • through activities in an appropriately simulated environment at the registered training organisation, and/or
	  • in an appropriate range of situations in the workplace

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance.

Type of vehicle includes:	• all coaches and buses relevant to specific licence classifications
Operate a passenger coach/bus may be carried out in typical road transport situations pertaining to a coach/bus, including:	• operations conducted at day or night • typical weather conditions • on the open road • on a private road • while at a depot, base or warehouse • while at a client's workplace or work site

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

RANGE STATEMENT

	• kerb side bus stops • within shopping centres • within railway complexes • within tourist attractions car parks
Special needs may include:	• temporarily physically impaired persons • visually and hearing impaired persons • mentally impaired persons • frail and elderly persons • school children
Bus/coach associated equipment may include:	• ticket machines • electronic doors • manual doors • toilet units
Vehicle handling procedures may include:	• starting a vehicle • steering and manoeuvring a vehicle • accelerating and braking • positioning and stopping a vehicle • reversing a vehicle • operating vehicle controls, instruments and indicators • operating door opening and closing equipment • using defensive driving techniques • managing engine performance
Pre-operational checks may include:	• exterior vehicle checks • internal vehicle checks • checking and topping up of fluid levels • checks of tyre pressures • checks of operation of vehicle lights and indicators • checks of brakes • microphone operational • equipment such as jack, wheel brace, spare tyre • trailers such as jockey wheel, coupling of trailer
Minor routine repairs may include:	• replacement of blown globes in vehicle lights • replacement of broken fan belt • replacement of blown fuse • replacement of door mirrors • repairs to rear tail-light lens • changing of tyres • repair of tyre punctures • replacement of broken coolant hose

Driving hazards may include (examples only):	• wet and iced roads • oil on road • animals and objects on road • fire in vehicle • leaking fuel • faulty brakes • parked vehicles on the road • faulty steering mechanism on vehicle • pedestrians crossing the road • flooded sections of road • windy sections of road • foggy conditions
Factors that can cause traffic delays and diversions may include (examples only):	• traffic accidents • flooded sections of road • road damage • bridge/tunnel damage • road works • building construction • emergency situations such as bushfires, building fires, etc. • road closures for special events such as marches, parades, sporting events, etc. • holiday traffic • road closures for utility works such as electricity, water, sewerage, telecommunications, gas, etc.
Depending on the type of organisation concerned and the local terminology used, workplace procedures may include:	• company procedures • enterprise procedures • organisational procedures • established procedures
Documentation/records may include:	• state/territory coach/bus driving licence requirements • state/territory road rules • workplace driving instructions and procedures • coach/bus manufacturers instructions, specifications and recommended driving procedures, including pre-operational checks of coach/bus • emergency procedures • vehicle log book or record book (where required)
Applicable procedures and codes may include:	• relevant state/territory roads and traffic authority driving regulations and licence requirements pertaining to coaches/buses • relevant state/territory road rules

Unit Descriptor

Unit Descriptor

This unit involves the skills and knowledge required to carry out basic routine workplace calculations, including carrying out required mathematical operations; preparing basic estimates of mass, size and volume; and interpreting basic graphical representations of mathematical information. It includes calculations for routine industry-related tasks using manual and electronic processes. It specifically includes the skills and knowledge needed to estimate/calculate manual load shifting requirements. Licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements may be applicable to this unit.

Application of the Unit

Application of the Unit

Calculations are carried out as an integral part of routine work in the context of the workplace concerned.

Work is performed under some supervision, generally within a team environment.

Work involves the application of established mathematical principles and techniques in day-to-day work activities.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.

Performance criteria describe the required performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1 Carry out calculations	1.1 Items are counted singly and in batches and sorted numerically, as required in workplace tasks
	1.2 Calculations needed to complete work tasks are performed using the four basic processes of addition, subtraction, multiplication and division
	1.3 Calculations involving fractions, percentages and mixed numbers, and using the four basic processes, are performed as required to complete workplace tasks
	1.4 The functions of a calculator, numeric keypad or computer are used to perform workplace tasks
	1.5 Numerical information is self-checked and corrected for accuracy
2 Prepare estimates	2.1 Quantities of materials and resources required to complete a work task are estimated
	2.2 The time needed to complete a work activity is estimated
	2.3 Accurate estimates for work completion are made
3 Interpret graphical representations of mathematical information	3.1 Information represented in symbols, diagrams and pictorial representations is recognised, interpreted and acted upon in workplace tasks

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED KNOWLEDGE AND SKILLS

This describes the essential knowledge and skills and their level required for this unit.

Required knowledge:

- Relevant procedures and duty of care requirements
- Relevant OH&S responsibilities
- Basic mathematical operations and techniques
- Ways of representing basic mathematical information
- Procedures for identifying and using relevant workplace technology when carrying out workplace calculations
- Typical mathematical problems, and appropriate action and solutions

Required skills:

- Communicate effectively with others when carrying out basic workplace calculations
- Read and interpret instructions, procedures and information relevant to basic workplace calculations
- Interpret and follow operational instructions and prioritise work
- Complete documentation related to work activities
- Operate electronic communication equipment to required protocol
- Work collaboratively with others when carrying out basic workplace calculations
- Adapt appropriately to cultural differences in the workplace, including modes of behaviour and interactions with others
- Promptly report and/or rectify any identified problems that may arise when carrying out basic workplace calculations
- Monitor work activities in terms of planned schedule
- Modify activities depending on differing operational contingencies and environments
- Work systematically with required attention to detail
- Operate and adapt to differences in equipment in accordance with standard operating procedures

Unit Descriptor

Unit Descriptor 1) Scope:

1.1) Descriptor

This Competency Standard Unit covers the filling of gas cylinders for the distribution of LPG to customers. It includes persons; equipment; inspection and testing for correct date on cylinder; company's ownership; corrosion and impact damage; leaks; component and part damage; legislative and regulatory requirements for this standard as set out in AS 1596, AS 2030 and AS 3509 or its/their replacements.

Application of the Unit

Application of the Unit 2)

This competency standard shall apply to work sites where the distribution of liquefied petroleum gas occurs.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

License to practice 3)

The skills and knowledge described in this unit are not subject to licence regulation other than those directly related to Occupational Health and Safety, gas/electricity/water industry safety and compliance, industrial relations, environmental protection, telecommunications, anti discrimination and training. Commonwealth, State/Territory or Local Government legislation and regulations may exist that limits the age of operating certain equipment.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1 Prepare for filling of cylinders	1.1	Work instructions are received and confirmed
	1.2	Relevant requirements and established procedures to be followed for the work to be performed are discussed with all persons to establish and confirm the work schedule
	1.3	OHS, environmental and sustainable energy policies and procedures to be followed for the work to be performed are received and confirmed
	1.4	Suggestions to assist with the filling of gas cylinders are made to others involved in the work
	1.5	Hazards are identified, OHS risks assessed and control measures are prioritised, implemented and monitored including emergency exits kept clear according to established procedures
	1.6	Scope of responsibility under the relevant work permit are received and confirmed according to requirements and established procedures with relevant persons
	1.7	Resources including equipment, tools and personal protective equipment required for the job are obtained and in working order according to established procedures
	1.8	Relevant responsibilities associated with First Aid and other related work safety procedures at the worksite are confirmed in accordance with requirements and established procedures to ensure safety measures and followed in the instance of an incident.
	1.9	Client issues are referred to appropriate persons in accordance with industry and community standards

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
	1.10	Site is prepared according to given instructions and the work schedule for a quality outcome and to minimise risk and damage to property, commerce and individuals in accordance with established procedures
2 Fill cylinders	2.1	OHS policies and procedures and safe work practices are followed to eliminate or minimise incidents and hazards
	2.2	Lifting, climbing, working in confined spaces or aloft, and use of power tools, techniques and practices are safely followed in accordance with given instructions and according to requirements confirmed to eliminate the prospects of incidents
	2.3	Operational knowledge for the filling of gas cylinders is confirmed to ensure completion in an agreed timeframe and to quality standards with a minimum of waste according to requirements and established procedures
	2.4	The filling of gas cylinders is carried out in accordance with given instructions and established procedures
	2.5	Cylinders with defects such as leaks, damage etc are identified, marked and quarantined and identified hazards and OHS risks are reported to the immediate authorised persons for directions according to established procedures
	2.6	Non-routine events are referred to the immediate authorised persons for directions according to established procedures
	2.7	Problems associated with the filling of gas cylinders are dealt with using acquired known solutions and skills related to routine procedures to ensure work instructions and established procedures are met
	2.8	Ongoing checks of quality of the work are undertaken in accordance with given instructions and established procedures
3 Move and store	3.1	Cylinders are lifted and moved according to

cylinders safely		standard operating procedures against the work schedule and anomalies reported to authorised persons
	3.2	Accidents and incidents are actioned and reported to authorised persons in accordance with established procedures
	3.3	Work site is rehabilitated, cleaned up and made safe in accordance with given instructions and established procedures
	3.4	Tools, equipment and any surplus resources and materials are, where appropriate, cleaned, checked and returned to storage in accordance with established procedures
	3.5	Appropriate persons are notified of work completion according to established procedures
	3.6	Work completion records, report forms and data sheets are completed accurately in accordance with given instructions and established procedures

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

8)This describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Evidence shall show that knowledge has been acquired of safe working practices for the filling of gas cylinders.

All knowledge and skills detailed in this unit should be contextualised to current industry practices and technologies.

conducted in the Gas Industry, specifically:

- The Gas Industry in Australia
- Australian gas resources
- Types of gas and uses
- Combustion.

G 2.1.2 Identify roles of statutory authorities

Evidence shall show an understanding of the roles of statutory authorities (government agencies, both State and Federal) that operate in the Gas Industry, including identifying:

- Statutory bodies
- Roles of statutory bodies
- Employer and employee responsibilities to statutory bodies.

G 2.1.3 Identify employment roles and responsibilities

Evidence shall show an understanding of the roles of major groups in the Gas Industry, that is employers and employees, including:

- The role of the employer
- Industry associations
- Employer obligations to safety
- Identification of disadvantaged and minority groups in Australian society
- Employers obligations to persons from disadvantaged and minority groups
- Employers obligations to occupational health and safety
- The role of commonwealth and state training regulatory authorities and industry skills councils and state training advisory bodies
- Roles and responsibilities of gas industry employees
- The employment contract
- Working to safety requirements
- Work according to lawful commands
- Belonging to employee organisations
- How to work with people from disadvantaged and minority groups
- Understanding the employees obligations to occupational health and safety
- Sources of support.

health and safety legislation and how this applies to individuals in a Gas Industry workplace, indicated by the following:

- Employer's responsibilities to relevant OHS legislation
- Employee's responsibilities to OHS legislation and organisation's policies and procedures
- OHS policies and procedures at the worksite.
- Australian Standards, guidelines and codes of practice

G 2.1.5 Work safely in the gas industry by reducing risk and using correct PPE

Evidence shall show an understanding of how to work safely in the gas industry indicated by the ability to:

- Correctly interpret and comply with Safety Signs including workplace Hazards, Warnings and PPE requirements
- Correctly interpret gas markers
- Identify the correct PPE required for work in the Gas Industry
- Locate and comply with procedures for correctly checking, maintaining and storing PPE
- Apply the process of Hazard identification, Risk assessment and Control
- Complete Risk Assessment forms such as Work Permits and JHA’s, JSA’s, JSEA’s, SWM’s etc
- Report workplace hazards

G 2.1.6 Work safely with hazardous materials and equipment

Evidence shall show an understanding of what constitutes hazardous materials and the equipment and processes used to safely work with these indicated by the following:

- Identify hazardous materials and equipment
- Location and purpose of Material Safety Data Sheets (MSDS)
- Read, interpret and discuss MSDS
- Knowledge of methods for safe disposal of hazardous waste materials
- Read, interpret and discuss relevant manufacturer's specifications
- Use and dispose of hazardous materials and equipment safely
- Use of spill kits and PPE

G 2.1.7 Apply safe manual handling techniques in the workplace

Evidence shall show an understanding of manual handling and how to apply this knowledge to handling heavy and awkward objects in a Gas Industry workplace, specifically:

- Principles for managing manual handling
- Characteristics and types of safe manual handling
- Safe manual handling techniques
- Manual handling and risk management

G 2.1.8 Control traffic at the work site

Evidence shall show knowledge and skills in coordinating traffic flow at a workplace where traffic control is required, that is, where work is conducted on or near a road, indicated by the following:

- Read and interpret relevant traffic authority regulations for traffic control at a worksite
- Identify signs and devices required to control pedestrians and traffic at a worksite depending on traffic flow volumes
- Apply techniques for controlling pedestrians and traffic at various worksites
- Use procedures for monitoring traffic controls
- Set up and monitor pedestrian and traffic controls

G 2.1.9 Respond to emergency and accident situations

Evidence shall show knowledge and skills in dealing with emergency or accident situations at a Gas Industry workplace, indicated by the following:

- Situations of accidents and emergency
- Comply with procedures for accidents and incidents
- Correct use of emergency equipment and procedures for a fire
- Correct use of breathing apparatus
- Correct use of gas detectors/oxygen monitoring devices
- Correct use of emergency equipment and procedures for a gas leak or vapour emission
- Report emergencies and accidents

G 2.1.14 Read and interpret Gas Industry documents

Evidence shall show an ability to read and interpret Gas Industry documents indicated by the following:

- Understand and use signs, symbols terminology and legends as used in gas industry procedures and documents
- Identify, locate and implement gas industry standards, policies and procedures

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- Interpret and read basic drawings and diagrams

G 2.1.15 Complete workplace forms, and reports

Evidence shall show an ability to complete routine Gas Industry forms, memos and reports either written or electronic, indicated by the following:

- Identify, locate, interpret and use workplace forms, and reports
- Enter the required information accurately on gas industry forms and reports

G 2.1.16 Identify requirements of work activity

Evidence shall show ability to:

- Clarify expected outcomes of a work activity in a Gas Industry workplace
- Receive, clarify and respond to verbal work instructions for work activity
- Interpret and discuss an organisation's policies, quality requirements and specifications for work activity

G 2.1.17 Apply basic planning skills

Evidence shall show a demonstrated ability to apply basic planning skills in a Gas Industry workplace, indicated by the following:

- Develop checklists of tasks
- Prioritise tasks
- Identify resources required to complete tasks safely and efficiently
- Identify resource or scheduling conflicts and apply solutions
- Develop time lines to complete tasks

G 2.1.18 Conduct tasks to complete work activities

Evidence shall show ability to organise the activities to complete a job in a Gas Industry workplace, indicated by the following:

- Locate and organise equipment, tools and machinery required to complete tasks safely and efficiently
- Complete tasks according to planned sequences and within appropriate timeframes
- Understand quality assurance and work according to established and standard operating procedures

G 2.1.19 Review work activities

Evidence shall show an ability to review work activities undertaken in a Gas Industry workplace, indicated by the following:

- Check work activities against a work plan
- Seek feedback on the outcome of work activities with appropriate persons
- Report outcomes of work activities in writing or orally according to enterprise procedures

G 2.1.20 Customer relations

Evidence shall show an understanding of the requirements for providing good customer relations to Gas Industry stakeholders, indicated by the following:

- Notify stakeholders of activities
- Communicate with stakeholders within scope of responsibilities
- Refer stakeholders to appropriate parties
- Demonstrate understanding of ring fencing requirements (if applicable)
- Keep the customer informed on job progress
- Provide good customer relations

G 2.1.21 Undertake problem solving

Evidence shall show an understanding of the requirements to undertake basic problem solving in a Gas Industry workplace, indicated by the following:

- Demonstrate problem solving and diagnostics methodology
- Identify possible solutions
- Recommend probable solutions and
- Apply basic problem solving techniques

G 2.1.22 Operate in confined spaces

Evidence shall show an understanding of the requirements to recognise and operate in confined spaces in a Gas Industry workplace, indicated by the following:

- Knowledge of the requirements of Legislation, Regulations, Australian Standards and enterprise specific procedures for safe working in confined spaces
- Ability to recognise what a confined space is and the entry safety requirements
- Ability to understand and comply with manufacturers' guidelines for the safe use of PPE used in confined spaces
- Understand how and when to use gas detectors for confined spaces entry

- Understand how and when to use breathing apparatus and rescue and recovery equipment

Note: A confined spaces entry ticket would satisfy and exceed the requirements of this EKAS clause

G 2.1.25 Protect the environment

- Evidence shall show an understanding and ability to perform work in the gas industry in a manner that protects the environment indicated by the following:Understanding of the relevant Commonwealth/State/Territory environmental legislation, regulations and codes of practice
- Understanding of employee's and employer's responsibilities to relevant environmental legislation, regulations and codes
  - Understanding and compliance with enterprise procedures for flora control
  - erosion control
  - fauna control
  - the protection of indigenous and cultural heritage sites
- Understanding the role of regulatory bodies in monitoring environmental activities, risk and incident compliance
- Understanding community expectations for protecting the environment
- Correct use of environment protection procedures, records, inspections and incident reporting
- Identifying environmental hazards
- Assessing environmental risks
- Implementing environmental control measures
- Ability to respond to workplace environmental incidents

Note: Environmental damage can be caused by chemicals, oil, water contamination, carcinogenic agents, gases, dusts, waste contamination and noise

G 2.1.26 Communicate in the workplace

Evidence shall show an understanding and ability to communicate effectively in a Gas Industry work team indicated by the following:

- Effective use oral and written communications methods to achieve work related outcomes and solutions.
- Effectively receive, interpret and respond to workplace information and instructions
- Effectively convey and report work related information to fellow workers and customers
- Interact with fellow workers in a socially and culturally appropriate manner

G 2.6.1 Occupational Health and Safety for working with LPG

Evidence shall show an understanding of the specific OHS and working procedures required to work with LPG gas, indicated by awareness of:

- OHS and environmental legislation
- Australian Dangerous Goods Code (ADG)
- inspection procedures
- properties of LPG
- operational capacity of safety equipment on tankers
- standard operating procedures for dealing with LPG
- position and manoeuvrability of tankers
- appropriate ability to read meters
- and understanding of manufacturer's specifications
- out of gas procedures.

G 2.6.3 Operate equipment within its limitations

Evidence shall show an understanding of the specific knowledge required to operate equipment within its limitation in the LPG environment, indicated by the following:

- identify and understand the equipment used in the transporting of LPG
- use equipment for storing and transporting LPG.

G 2.6.6 Gas storage processes

Evidence shall show an understanding of the requirements to undertake tasks in the storage of LPG, indicated by the following:

- inspection procedures for cylinders and valves
- filling and storing of gas cylinders and valves.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

9) The Evidence Guide forms an integral part of this Competency Standard Unit and shall be used in conjunction with all components parts of this unit and performed in accordance with the Assessment Guidelines of this Training Package.

Overview of Assessment 9.1)

Longitudinal competency development approaches to assessment, such as Profiling, require data to be reliably gathered in a form that can be consistently interpreted over time. This approach is best utilised in Apprenticeship programs and reduces assessment intervention. It is the Industry's preferred model for apprenticeships. However, where summative (or final) assessment is used it is to include the application of the competency in the normal work environment or, at a minimum, the application of the competency in a realistically simulated work environment. It is recognised that, in some circumstances, assessment in part or full can occur outside the workplace. However, it must be in accord with Industry and Regulatory policy in this regard.

Methods chosen for a particular assessment will be influenced by various factors. These include the extent of the assessment, the most effective locations for the assessment activities to take place, access to physical resources, additional safety measures that may be required and the critical nature of the competencies being assessed.

The critical safety nature of working with electricity, electrical equipment, gas or any other hazardous substance/material carries risk in deeming a person competent. Hence, sources of evidence need to be 'rich' in nature so as to minimise error in judgment.

Activities associated with normal every day work have a bearing on the decision as to how much and how detailed the data gathered will contribute to its 'richness'. Some skills are more critical to safety and operational requirements while the same skills may be more or less frequently practiced. These points are raised for the assessors to consider when choosing an assessment method and developing assessment instruments. Sample assessment instruments are included for Assessors in the Assessment Guidelines of this Training Package.

Critical aspects of evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

9.2)

Before the critical aspects of evidence are considered all prerequisites shall be met.

Evidence for competence in this unit shall be considered holistically. Each element and associated Performance Criteria shall be demonstrated on at least two occasions in accordance with the 'Assessment Guidelines — UEG11'. Evidence shall also comprise:

- A representative body of work performance demonstrated within the timeframes typically expected of the discipline, work function and industrial environment. In particular this shall incorporate evidence that shows a candidate is able to:
  - Implement Occupational Health and Safety workplace procedures and practices including the use of risk control measures as specified in the Performance Criteria and range
  - Apply sustainable energy principles and practices as specified in the Performance Criteria and range
  - Demonstrate an understanding of the essential knowledge and associated skills as described in this unit to such an extent that the learner's performance outcome is reported in accordance with the preferred approach; namely a percentile graded result, where required by the regulated environment
  - Demonstrate an appropriate level of employability skills
  - Conduct work observing the relevant Anti discrimination legislation, regulations, polices and workplace procedures
- Demonstrate performance across a representative range of contexts from the prescribed items below.

E	At least one occasion	Deal with an unplanned event by drawing on essential knowledge and associated skills to provide appropriate solutions incorporated in the holistic assessment with the above listed items

Context of and specific resources for assessment 9.3)

This unit should be assessed as it relates to normal work practice using procedures, information and resources typical of a workplace. This should include:

- OHS policy and work procedures and instructions.
- Suitable work environment, facilities, equipment and materials to undertake actual work as prescribed by this Competency Standard Unit.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- Appropriate environmental regulation and work practices.
- Appropriate organisational requirements.
- Appropriate work environment, equipment and tools.

In addition to the resources listed above, in Context of and specific resources for assessment, evidence should show demonstrated competency in filling gas cylinders.

Assessment of this competency must also be undertaken in either an actual workplace or under a simulated work environment. Assessment must also integrate the employability skills.

Method of assessment 9.4)

This Competency Standard Unit shall be assessed by methods given in Volume 1, Part 3 'Assessment Guidelines'.

Note: Competent performance with inherent safe working practices is expected in the Industry to which this Competency Standard Unit applies. This requires that the specified Essential Knowledge and Associated Skills are assessed in a structured environment which is primarily intended for learning/assessment and incorporates all necessary equipment and facilities for learners to develop and demonstrate the essential knowledge and associated skills described in this unit.

Concurrent assessment and relationship with other units 9.5)

There are no recommended concurrent assessments with this unit, however in some cases efficiencies may be gained in terms of learning and assessment effort being concurrently managed with allied Competency Standard Units where listed.

Application

This unit of competency describes the skills and knowledge required to provide a first aid response to a casualty. The unit applies to all workers who may be required to provide a first aid response in a range of situations, include community and workplace settings.

Specific licensing requirements relating to this competency, including requirements for refresher training, should be obtained from the relevant state/territory Work Health and Safety Regulatory Authority.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
Elements define the essential outcomes.	Performance criteria specify the level of performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element.
1. Respond in an emergency situation	1.1 Recognise an emergency situation 1.2 Identify, assess and manage immediate hazards to health and safety of self and others 1.3 Assess the casualty and recognise the need for first aid response 1.4 Assess the situation and seek assistance from emergency response services where required

Performance Evidence

The candidate must show evidence of the ability to complete tasks outlined in elements and performance criteria of this unit, manage tasks and manage contingencies in the context of the job role.

There must be demonstrated evidence that the candidate has completed the following tasks at least once in line with state/territory regulations, first aid codes of practice, Australian Resuscitation Council (ARC) guidelines and workplace procedures:

- conducted a hazard assessment and identified strategies to minimise risk
- demonstrated safe manual handling techniques
- assessed airway, breathing and responsiveness of casualty
- performed at least four minutes of uninterrupted CPR on both an infant resuscitation manikin and an adult resuscitation manikin placed on the floor, demonstrating the following techniques on each:
  - checking for response and normal breathing
  - recognising abnormal breathing
  - opening and clearing the airway
  - using correct hand location, compression depth rate in line with the ARC recommended ratio of compressions and ventilations
  - acting in the event of regurgitation or vomiting
  - following single rescuer procedure, including the demonstration of a rotation of operators with minimal interruptions to compressions
- followed the prompts of an Automated External Defibrillator (AED)
- conducted a verbal secondary survey

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- applied first aid procedures for the following:
  - allergic reactions
  - anaphylaxis
  - asthma
  - basic wound care
  - severe bleeding
  - burns
  - cardiac arrest
  - choking and airway obstruction
  - convulsions
  - envenomation (using pressure immobilisation)
  - fractures, sprains and strains (using arm slings, roller bandages or other appropriate immobilisation techniques)
  - poisoning
  - respiratory distress
  - shock
- provided an accurate verbal report of the incident
- responded to at least two simulated emergency scenarios contextualised to the candidate's workplace/community setting.

Knowledge Evidence

The candidate must be able to demonstrate essential knowledge required to effectively complete tasks outlined in elements and performance criteria of this unit, manage tasks and manage contingencies in the context of the work role. This includes knowledge of:

- state/territory regulations, first aid codes of practice and workplace procedures including:
  - ARC Guidelines relevant to provision of CPR and first aid
  - safe work practices to minimise risks and potential hazards
  - infection control principles and procedures, including use of standard precautions
  - requirements for currency of skill and knowledge
- legal, workplace and community considerations including:
  - need for stress-management techniques and available support following an emergency situation
  - duty of care requirements
  - respectful behaviour towards a casualty
  - own skills and limitations
  - consent
  - privacy and confidentiality requirements
  - importance of debriefing
- considerations when providing first aid including:
  - airway obstruction due to body position

  - appropriate duration and cessation of CPR
  - appropriate use of an AED
  - standard precautions and infection control
- principles and procedures for first aid management of the following scenarios:
  - abdominal injuries
  - allergic reactions
  - anaphylaxis
  - bleeding control
  - burns
  - cardiac conditions
  - choking and airway obstruction
  - cold and crush injuries
  - diabetes
  - dislocations
  - drowning
  - envenomation
  - environmental impact (including hypothermia, hyperthermia, dehydration and heat stroke)
  - epilepsy
  - eye and ear injuries
  - fractures
  - head, neck and spinal injuries
  - minor skin injuries
  - needle stick injuries
  - poisoning and toxic substances
  - respiratory distress, including asthma and other respiratory conditions
  - seizures
  - severe allergic and anaphylactic reactions
  - shock
  - soft tissue injuries
  - unconsciousness, abnormal breathing or not breathing
- basic anatomy and physiology relating to:
  - absence of normal breathing
  - anatomy of the external chest
  - physiology relating to response/consciousness
  - upper airway anatomy and effect of positional change
  - anatomy and physiology considerations in provision of first aid for specified conditions

Assessment Conditions

Skills must be demonstrated working individually:

- in an environment that provides realistic in-depth, industry-validated scenarios and simulations to enable assessment of candidates' skills and knowledge.

Assessment resources must include:

- adult and infant resuscitation manikins in line with ARC Guidelines for the purpose of assessment of CPR procedures
- first aid equipment including
  - roller bandages
  - triangular bandages cloth
  - trauma dressings
  - placebo bronchodilator and spacer device
  - adrenalin auto-injector training device
  - an AED training device
  - emergency rescue blanket
  - workplace first aid kit.

Simulated assessment environments must simulate the real-life working environment where these skills and knowledge would be performed, with all the relevant equipment and resources of that working environment.

Assessors must satisfy the NVR/AQTF mandatory competency requirements for assessors.

In addition, assessors must hold:

- a current advanced first aid certificate

OR

- at least three years' experience as a health professional, nurse or emergency services provider.

Significant changes to elements and performance criteria, changes to scope of unit. New evidence requirements for assessment, including use of contextualised remote scenarios.

Application

This unit of competency describes the skills and knowledge required to provide first aid response and emergency life support to a casualty in a remote and/or isolated situation.

The unit applies to workers who may be required to prepare for and provide a first aid response in locations beyond the reach of timely medical assistance.

Specific licensing requirements relating to this competency, including requirements for refresher training, should be obtained from the relevant state/territory Work Health and Safety Regulatory Authority.

SIFCBGM001 Provide general grounds care

Modification History

Not applicable.

Application

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to carry out basic maintenance of grassed and planted areas, such as garden beds and landscape works. It applies to general grounds maintenance staff whose work involves working under supervision and according to work health and safety, relevant legislation and workplace policies and procedures.

No licensing, legislative or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of publication.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENTS	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
Elements describe the essential outcomes.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element.
1. Maintain grassed areas.	1.1 Liaise with supervisor to identify and confirm the mowing height, pattern and distances from tree trunks and shrubs. 1.2 Select, prepare and use mowing tools and equipment. 1.3 Trim edges according to work requirements. 1.4 Apply fertiliser according to manufacturer guidelines. 1.5 Dispose of grass trimmings and other waste.
2. Weed grassed and planted areas.	2.1 Identify weeds to be removed. 2.2 Select, prepare and use weeding tools and equipment. 2.3 Prepare and administer weed treatments according to manufacturer guidelines. 2.4 Remove and dispose of weeds using wastage disposal methods that prevent weed spread. 2.5 Clean site according to workplace policies and procedures.

3. Water grassed and planted areas.	3.1 Select, prepare and use watering tools and equipment. 3.2 Apply water to grass and plants according to their health requirements. 3.3 Drain, clean and store equipment according to manufacturer guidelines.
4. Maintain plants in healthy condition.	4.1 Apply fertiliser according to manufacturer guidelines. 4.2 Treat dead, diseased and damaged plants as required after regular inspection. 4.3 Clean, maintain and store tools and equipment according to manufacturer guidelines.

Foundation Skills

This section describes those language, literacy, numeracy and employment skills that are essential to performance.

Assessment Requirements for SIFCBGM001 Provide general grounds care

Modification History

Not applicable.

Performance Evidence

Evidence of the ability to:

- select, prepare, use, clean and maintain the required tools and equipment according to supervisor instructions and manufacturer guidelines
- maintain grassed and planted areas including: the application of fertiliser; the treatment and removal of weeds, and diseased and damaged plants; the watering of grass and plants; and clean up of the work site
- apply safe handling techniques for chemicals, tools and equipment.

Evidence of performance of providing general grounds care on two or more occasions is required to demonstrate consistency of performance and ability to respond to different situations.

Knowledge Evidence

Demonstrated knowledge of:

- tools and equipment used for general grounds care, including those for mowing, weeding and watering needs
- different weed types and associated treatment controls
- types and characteristics of annual and perennial weeds
- water and general health requirements of plants
- differences between chemical and non-chemical weed treatment controls
- federal, state or territory, and local government legislation and regulations that impact on grounds maintenance
- environmental impacts in relation to general grounds care and minimal impact practices to reduce these, especially those that relate to resource, water and energy use
- environmentally sound disposal methods for all types of waste and in particular for hazardous substance, spoiled and diseased plant material and those that have a propensity to propagate weeds
- workplace policies and procedure in regard to carrying out general grounds care.

Assessment Conditions

Skills must be demonstrated in the workplace or in a simulated environment that is as industry realistic as possible. In a simulated environment, it is essential that assessment is conducted:

- using suitable facilities, equipment and resources, including:
  - an environment that has plants and grass, including plants in different states of repair
  - weed treatments, fertilisers, watering, weeding and mowing equipment and personal protective equipment
- under industry conditions where there is:
  - integration of tasks with possible interruptions to work typical of the job role
  - speed and timing requirements that reflect commercial operating conditions
  - interaction with supervisor

Assessors must satisfy the NVR/AQTF mandatory competency requirements for assessors.

Assessment Requirements for SIFCBGM002 Maintain property and structures

Modification History

Not applicable.

Performance Evidence

Evidence of the ability to:

- select, prepare, use, maintain and clean the required tools and equipment according to supervisor instructions, workplace policies and procedures, and manufacturer guidelines
- maintain and repair property and structural finishes
- collect and dispose of all types of waste
- use safe handling techniques for tools and equipment.

Evidence of performance of maintaining property and structures on two or more occasions is required to demonstrate consistency of performance and ability to respond to different situations.

Knowledge Evidence

Demonstrated knowledge of:

- cemetery property and structures:
  - fences
  - drains
  - waterways
  - roads
  - car parks
  - vegetation
  - windbreaks
  - paths
  - buildings
  - landscape features
  - sheds
  - benches
  - shelters
- types of structural finishes, including:
  - paint
  - stains

  - cladding, such as:
    - corrugated iron
    - shade cloth
    - plastic
    - cement sheeting.
- different types of waste and recyclable materials and associated disposal techniques
- federal, state or territory, and local government legislation and regulations that impact on maintaining property structures
- tools and equipment used in maintaining property structures, including cleaning and personal protective equipment
- waste and recyclable material and range of waste receptacles and disposal points
- environmental impacts in relation to maintaining property structures and minimal impact practices to reduce these, especially those that relate to resource, water and energy use
- correct and environmentally sound disposal methods for all types of waste and in particular for hazardous substance, including materials and equipment containing blood and body fluid, contaminated garments and dressings, sharps, etc
- workplace policies and procedures regarding maintaining property and structures.

Assessment Conditions

Skills must be demonstrated in the workplace or in a simulated environment that is as industry realistic as possible. In a simulated environment, it is essential that assessment is conducted:

- using suitable facilities, equipment and resources, including:
  - an environment that allows for application of minor maintenance works and identification, collection and disposal of hazardous and general waste
  - maintenance tools and equipment, including personal protective equipment and waste disposal points
- under industry conditions where there is:
  - integration of tasks with possible interruptions to work typical of the job role
  - speed and timing requirements that reflect commercial operating conditions
  - interaction with supervisor and team members

Assessors must satisfy the NVR/AQTF mandatory competency requirements for assessors.
