ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
	3.2. Investigate relevant technologies to assist effective work performance
4. Update industry knowledge	4.1. Identify and use a range of opportunities to update knowledge of the design industry and monitor current issues of concern to the industry 4.2. Share updated knowledge with colleagues and peer group as appropriate, and incorporate into day-to-day work activities
5. Apply information on ethical and legal work practices	5.1. Source information on ethical and legal work practices in the context of design 5.2. Share updated knowledge on ethical and legal work practice in day-to-day work activities

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to share industry information in day-to-day activities
- learning and self-management skills to take responsibility for ongoing learning and development
- research and literacy skills to source and interpret industry information.

Required knowledge

- concept of a design industry, what it means, the typical questions and issues about whether a design industry exists, and how a design industry relates to other industries
- copyright, moral rights and intellectual property issues and legislation, and their impact on the design industry
- current and emerging technologies used within the design industry
- design industry including different sectors and their interrelationships, plus the historical development of the industry
- etiquette and ethics as they apply to key design disciplines within the industry
- global nature of design activity
- impact of convergence in the design industry
- key design disciplines, how they interrelate and key roles and responsibilities
- key design industry terminology
- nature, role and functions of unions and employer associations, including rights

and responsibilities of employers and employees • obligations of employees, including attendance, ethical behaviour, taking directions, confidentiality, work performance, safety and care • obligations of employers, including safe system of work and non-discrimination • sources of information on the design industry and ways of maintaining current industry knowledge.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • knowledge of the design industry, design as a profession and the relationship between design and other industries • application of industry knowledge to work activities, maximising effective performance • knowledge of ways to maintain currency in design industry trends and practice.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • access to sources of information on the design industry.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of different aspects of the design industry.
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Information on the design industry should relate to:	• different sectors, and products and services available
	• economic and social significance of the industry
	• industry structure
	• prominent design practitioners, companies and practices
	• relationship between design and allied industries such as:
	  • film, television, radio, digital media
	  • journalism
	  • manufacturing
	  • music
	  • photoimaging
	  • retail
	  • scientific/medical
	  • sport
	  • tourism
	  • visual arts and craft

Employment obligations and opportunities may relate to:	• best practice models • career opportunities • professional associations • roles, responsibilities and employment rights of contracted workers • unions and employer bodies
Information on new technology may relate to:	• advances in technology and equipment • likely effects of new technology on current work practices and the structure of the industry • sources of technical advice and support • ways of upgrading skills to allow for the use of new technology

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Future Skills Organisation

RANGE STATEMENT
Opportunities to update knowledge of the design industry may relate to:	• conferences, symposiums, workshops, master classes • discussions with industry practitioners and colleagues • exhibitions/events • expositions • industry associations and organisations • industry functions • industry journals • internet • media • personal observations and experience • policy and procedures manuals • reference manuals • seminars and other professional development opportunities • unions and other sources of industrial relations information
Issues of concern to the industry may be related to:	• changing nature of the marketplace • convergence • government initiatives • industry expansion • labour issues
Information on ethical and legal work practices may relate to:	• contracts • copyright, moral rights and intellectual property issues • legal requirements • permits

Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1. Collect information on history and theory of design	1.1. Identify and access relevant sources of information on design history and theory 1.2. Organise research material and findings for current or future use in design practice, in a manner which facilitates easy access and cross-referencing
2. Apply information to own area of work	2.1. Evaluate information in the context of current design practice 2.2. Assess ways in which aspects of information on design history and theory could be used or adapted to inform current practice 2.3. Use relevant information in a culturally appropriate way to develop an understanding of own area of work
3. Update and maintain knowledge of design trends	3.1. Identify and use opportunities to update and expand knowledge of design trends and developments 3.2. Incorporate and integrate knowledge into design activities

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to generate design solutions in response to a particular design need. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to individuals who generate concepts and solutions in response to a design challenge in any industry context. The starting point may be an open or closed brief; a spontaneous idea; modification of an existing product, service, process or system; or a point in an ongoing design process. This unit builds on BSBDES201A Follow a design process, and places greater focus on research, concept generation and collaboration with others as key aspects of the design process.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.
Required skills
• communication skills to liaise, consult and negotiate with others on potentially complex issues • creative, critical thinking and problem-solving skills to generate a range of ideas and solutions to a particular design challenge • research skills to interpret and develop a wide range of visual and written information sources • planning and organisational skills to collate information, and to coordinate liaison and consultation with others during the design process.

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
Required knowledge
• copyright, moral rights and intellectual property issues and legislation that impact on design in the relevant context • elements and principles of design and their application in the relevant design context • features of the wider industry, economic, social and historical context in which design solutions are being generated • other designs and the work of other design practitioners in the relevant context • sources of information that support the development of technical and other knowledge • technical knowledge of the area for which design solutions are being generated - in terms of materials, tools, equipment, techniques and industry processes and procedures.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • development of a design solution through research, reflection and the generation and refinement of ideas • effective collaboration with others in the design process • knowledge of design trends and technologies in the relevant industry context.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • interaction with others to reflect the collaborative nature of the design process • access to sources of information on design in the relevant industry context.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Future Skills Organisation

EVIDENCE GUIDE
	• direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate • evaluation of a design solution generated by the candidate against an original brief, set of criteria or guiding objectives • evaluation of the process used to reach a design solution in terms of research and ideas generation/refinement • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of technical and context issues that impact on design in a given industry context.
Guidance information for assessment	The design process does not occur in isolation. Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended. Combined assessment with the following unit is appropriate: • BSBCRT301A Develop and extend critical and creative thinking skills.

Range Statement

BSBDES402A Interpret and respond to a design brief

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to interpret and creatively respond to a design brief through the production of work. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to individuals working in any industry or design context where work is prescribed by a commissioning agent/client in the form of a brief. The unit is holistic in nature and focuses on the integration of the creative, communication and planning processes that support effective response to a design brief. In practice, this unit supports and is supported by other units describing the specialist skills and knowledge required by specific design disciplines. Work is carried out independently, although guidance would be available if required. Skills involving the more complex process of negotiating and refining a design brief, or managing the production process are found in BSBDES502A Establish, negotiate and refine a design brief and BSBDES601A Manage design realisation.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1. Interpret design brief	1.1. Correctly interpret the specifications of the design brief 1.2. Establish and clarify user or client for the proposed product/service to inform design decisions 1.3. Identify and clarify specifications, parameters or constraints of the design brief in consultation with relevant colleagues 1.4. Source and evaluate information pertinent to design brief
2. Explore and develop design concept	2.1. Generate ideas for design concept through research, exploration and experimentation 2.2. Develop initial design concept consistent with design brief parameters 2.3. Evaluate and explore options for refining the concept

	to best meet design brief parameters 2.4. Refine options and select the approach which best meets design brief requirements
3. Liaise with client	3.1. Agree on communication process and frequency of communication with the client 3.2. Present concepts for work at appropriate stages during design process as required 3.3. Present and explore different options and creative ideas with client when appropriate 3.4. Pro-actively seek and act on client feedback 3.5. Reach agreement on concept for work which complies with design brief
4. Plan production of work	4.1. Assess specific design production risks 4.2. Identify all components required to produce a prototype 4.3. Assess technical requirements for production against specified guidelines 4.4. Identify and consult with support services required for production 4.5. Produce a prototype and evaluate against design brief requirements 4.6. Analyse prototype and determine any further adjustments to production requirements 4.7. Finalise production specifications supported by accurate and complete documentation
5. Complete production of work	5.1. Collect and/or organise required components for the work 5.2. Produce or monitor the production of work ensuring all parameters of design brief are met 5.3. Accurately document work progress in a format appropriate to the nature of the design and requirements of design brief 5.4. Seek client approval for work where appropriate

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
Required skills
• communication skills to liaise with clients and colleagues on design concepts, and to effectively present potentially complex ideas • creative thinking skills to generate and explore a range of possible responses to design brief requirements • critical thinking and problem-solving skills to work out different ways of meeting different design and production challenges • Research, literacy and analytical skills to interpret a brief and to source and evaluate information pertinent to the brief • planning and organisational skills to integrate and coordinate creative, communication and planning issues into the work process • self-management skills to take pro-active responsibility for all the elements involved in responding to a design brief.
Required knowledge
• copyright, moral rights and intellectual property issues and legislation relevant to the ways design concepts are developed and presented • different ways of presenting, communicating and documenting design concepts (as relevant to the context of work) • format of design brief typically used in the relevant industry or design context • principles and key features of project management relevant to a design project • specific project management factors that apply to a design project • terminology typically used in a range of design briefs.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.
Strategies for developing self as a designer may include:	• being involved in a range of relevant design activities • communicating with peers • experimenting • participating in professional development and other learning opportunities • participating in relevant groups or associations • practising • undertaking training courses • working effectively with supervisor • working with a mentor or coach
Technical skills may include skills in:	• animation • digital/electronic design • entertainment design • fashion/clothing/accessories design • furnishings • furniture design • graphic design

	• illustration/technical drawing • interior design • jewellery design • object design • photoimaging • tableware design • other design disciplines
Testing capabilities refers to:	• experimenting with innovative applications • extending the possibilities of materials, tools and equipment towards their full potential
Relevant media may include:	• catalogues • journals • magazines
Opportunities to develop own skills may include participation in and/or attendance at, some of the following:	• competitions • exhibitions • floor talks at galleries • laboratories • lectures, seminars, conferences, symposiums • manufacturing sites • master classes • professional organisations • trade fairs, expositions
Developing own voice includes:	• analysing and researching the work of others relevant to selected area of specialisation • analysing conventions, practices and customs in design practice • developing repertoire and knowledge • exploring elements and principles of design
Sources of information may include:	• design journals • employer listings • exhibition catalogues and programs • job advertisements • websites • word of mouth
Networks may include:	• alumni organisations • colleagues and teachers • consumer organisations • professional associations
Promotional opportunities may	• applications to funding bodies

BSBDES501A Implement design solutions

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to take a design concept or solution to the implementation stage. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to individuals who implement concepts and solutions in response to a design challenge in any industry context. It takes BSBDES401A Generate design solutions, to the next stage focusing on the resourcing and testing of a design concept. The outcome of work could be a completed product, object, system or service, but is more likely to be a complete or partial prototype or model for the design. The focus of the unit is on a general knowledge of design techniques and processes, and practical application to a specific design context.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Organise resources for realising the design solution	1.1. Confirm the nature and scope of the proposed design solution 1.2. Research resources required for developing the design concept to implementation stage 1.3. Investigate different factors that impact on the selection and use of resources 1.4. Select and prepare resources based on research and other legislative or organisational requirements
2. Test the design solution	2.1. Experiment with a range of different techniques and processes to test the design solution 2.2. Evaluate, challenge and refine testing processes 2.3. Gain input and feedback from key stakeholders during the testing process 2.4. Accurately document outcomes of testing 2.5. Select final design solution based on outcomes of

3. Develop the prototype or model	3.1. Create prototype or model based on agreed approaches 3.2. Where appropriate, select and organise materials, tools and equipment according to chosen design solution 3.3. Expose model or prototype to quality checks and ongoing analysis, enhancement and refinement 3.4. Compare completed prototype or model against identified needs and other considerations and make adjustments as required
4. Present the prototype or model	4.1. Identify key stakeholders to whom design should be presented 4.2. Select appropriate format for presentation based on nature of the audience and design 4.3. Present prototype or model in a way that optimises clarity, conciseness and appeal

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to consult with others on testing and refinement of the design solution
- creative thinking skills to develop and adapt responses to experimentation and testing processes
- literacy skills to interpret and develop a wide range of visual and written information sources
- planning and organisational skills to organise resources and to coordinate a testing process, including liaison and consultation with others during the design process
- problem-solving skills to respond to unpredictable issues and challenges that arise during the testing process.

Required knowledge

- copyright, moral rights and intellectual property issues and legislation that impact on design in the relevant context
- elements and principles of design and their application in the relevant design

context • features of the wider industry, economic, social and historical context for the design solution • other designs and the work of other design practitioners in the relevant context • sources of information that support the development of technical and other knowledge • technical knowledge of the area for which design solutions are being implemented - in terms of relevant resources, materials, tools, equipment, techniques and industry processes and procedures.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • critical analysis, testing and development of a model, prototype or aspect of a design solution to meet an identified need • knowledge of design trends and technologies in the relevant industry context.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • interaction with others to reflect the collaborative nature of the design process • access to resources required to test a design solution in a given industry context (e.g. finance, materials, tools, equipment, expertise).
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate • evaluation of a design solution implemented by the candidate against an original brief, set of criteria or guiding objectives • evaluation of the processes used to test and refine the solution • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of technical and context issues that impact on design in a given industry context.

Guidance information for assessment	The design process does not occur in isolation. Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended. Combined assessment with the following unit is appropriate: • BSBDES401A Generate design solutions.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Resources will depend on the nature of the design, but may be:	• financial:
	  • budget allocation
	  • grants
	  • in kind contributions
	  • sponsorship
	• human expertise:
	  • creative
	  • financial • management
	  • technical
	• physical:
	  • hardware or software
	  • materials
	  • tools
	  • workspaces

RANGE STATEMENT
Implementation stage could be the point at which:	• marketing can commence • production can commence • production is confirmed • staff can be employed
Factors that impact on the selection and use of resources may relate to:	• environmental considerations • industry context • social or ethical issues • sustainability • technologies
Legislative or organisational requirements may relate to:	• commonwealth or state/territory legislation • licensing requirements • local regulations and standards • policies or procedures
Techniques and processes to test the design solution will depend on the nature of the design, and may include:	• colour tests • mock ups • models • practice pieces • samples • scenario testing • stress tests
Key stakeholders may include:	• client • employer • end user • peers • supervisor • technical experts • work colleagues
Identified needs and other considerations may relate to:	• access to and availability of resources • aesthetic considerations • budgetary constraints • ease of manufacture • opportunities for innovation • specifications of a brief • wider industry trends
Appropriate format may include:	• drawings or sketches - manual or computer aided design and drafting (CADD) • electronic presentation • verbal presentation • written notes with rationale or description

BSBDES502A Establish, negotiate and refine a design brief

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to work pro actively with a client or commissioning organisation to develop and negotiate a design brief. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to individuals working in any industry or design context where the designer plays a key role in determining the scope and nature of work required. This unit builds on BSBDES402A Interpret and respond to a design brief, which focuses on working with an established brief. Establishment, negotiation and refinement of a design brief requires the integration of highly developed creative thinking, communication and planning skills in a process that may not be linear. Adaptability and effective response to change and new ideas is crucial. In practice, this unit supports and is supported by other units describing the specialist skills and knowledge required by specific design disciplines.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.
Required skills
• communication, presentation and negotiation skills to work with clients to establish and refine design briefs • creative thinking skills to generate and develop concepts and ideas for the design brief, including responses to situations where parameters may be quite broad and open or very restrictive

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Future Skills Organisation

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
• literacy skills to research and evaluate a wide range of source materials for the development of ideas and concepts • numeracy skills to develop realistic costings for realisation of design concept • planning and organisational skills to guide and coordinate the process of negotiating and finalising a design brief • problem-solving skills to pro-actively identify and develop effective solutions to complex challenges of a varied and unpredictable nature • self-management skills to take responsibility for driving and guiding the brief negotiation process.
Required knowledge
• copyright, moral rights and intellectual property issues and legislation that impact on design in the relevant work context • legal issues that affect negotiations and contracts in the relevant work context • scope, nature and potential variations within design briefs relevant to a specific context • sources of information that inform the development of design concepts within a specific industry context.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • practical demonstration of skills through the development and finalisation of at least two design briefs for a specific industry purpose • effective collaboration and communication skills to work with others to develop and refine a design brief • knowledge of the design process within the specific industry context/design discipline.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • access to appropriate equipment and media to communicate and present ideas and concepts • access to sources of information relevant to the

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to manage the process of taking a design from concept to final realisation or production. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to individuals working in any industry context or design discipline who take responsibility for turning design concept into reality - a product or service of value to the end user. This person could be an individual designer-maker or a designer working as part of a larger design/production team. The unit has a strong focus on planning, implementation and monitoring skills, combined with a sound knowledge of design and production issues and challenges in a given context. In practice this unit supports and is supported by other units describing the specialist skills and knowledge required by specific design disciplines.

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to research and critically evaluate global design trends. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to individuals who need to maintain a current and comprehensive knowledge of global design trends to inform their own professional practice. Often the individual would be a designer, but the unit may also be relevant to those who work in related management, marketing and production areas. The unit focuses on research and analysis of information and ideas at a complex level, plus the evaluation and extension of one's own professional skills.

4. Extend own design skills	4.1. Pro-actively identify and use opportunities presented by research to extend own design skills 4.2. Re-evaluate and refine approaches to work in the context of current and emerging trends 4.3. Use practice, discussion and ongoing evaluation to continuously improve skills

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to articulate and debate conceptual or technical ideas
- critical thinking skills to distil and synthesise information from varied sources and to develop own positions and ideas on a complex range of issues
- literacy skills to research complex, varied and unfamiliar information sources
- planning and organisational skills to undertake the research process.

Required knowledge

- broad global design trends that apply to all design disciplines
- business implications/consequences of adopting trends and emergent technologies
- copyright/moral/intellectual property issues associated with research and with design more broadly
- design industry networks and professional development opportunities - local, national and international
- research methodologies and options
- sources of information on global design, design trends and broader references that may inform emerging and innovative design practice
- specific current and emerging design technologies and trends (at a global level) in at least one area of design.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • conducting research on a complex range of design issues, trends and ideas • analysing, critiquing and synthesising complex sources to develop own positions and ideas • design research • knowledge of copyright/moral/intellectual property issues associated with research and with design more broadly.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • use of a current and varied range of familiar and unfamiliar information sources.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate • evaluation of research undertaken by the candidate in terms of scope, depth and the level of critical thinking applied • direct observation of candidate debating issues arising from research into global design trends • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of global design trends in terms of depth and complexity.
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended.

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.
Formal and informal research strategies may include:	• formal study • participating actively in relevant industry associations • participating in, and contributing to, discussion through conferences, meetings, seminars, courses and journals • participating in professional development and other learning opportunities • reading current literature, including specialist journals and industry magazines • web research
Information on global design trends may relate to:	• best practice examples • emerging and future technology • history • philosophy • role of design in the broader social, economic and political environment • sustainability

New and alternative sources may include:	• inspirations from nature
	• work from other areas of community or business activity for example:
	  • artists
	  • authors
	  • business people
	  • entertainers
	  • film makers
	  • historians
	  • philosophers
	  • photographers
	  • scientists

Critical analysis may include:	• analysing and evaluating actions and policies • clarifying issues, values and standards

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Research design theory	1.1. Use a range of research techniques to source information about design theory 1.2. Identify and explore new, emerging and alternative sources of ideas and thinking about design 1.3. Expand own knowledge and understanding of design through review and critical analysis of information 1.4. Analyse, compare and contrast a range of theoretical perspectives and thinking on design
2. Apply theories of design to professional practice	2.1. Evaluate the relevance and application of different theories of design based on analysis of own professional and personal experience 2.2. Analyse the ways in which different aspects of history, theory and other influences are applied, adapted or challenged in practice 2.3. Assess the ways in which theories and thinking about design may be applied in ways that provide benefits to individuals, businesses and communities

3. Develop, articulate and debate own perspectives on theories of design	3.1. Take a critical approach to different theories and reflect on own ideas and responses 3.2. Develop own substantiated positions in response to research and analysis 3.3. Articulate own positions in a manner which demonstrates clarity of thought and conceptual understanding of different theories and thinking 3.4. Debate own positions on design showing belief in own and ideas and a willingness to remain open to new perspectives

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to articulate and debate complex concepts
- critical thinking skills to analyse complex information, and to develop and substantiate own positions and responses to theories and thinking around design
- literacy skills to research information dealing with complex concepts and theories
- self-management skills to develop and substantiate own views and ideas.

Required knowledge

- different theories of design, including different historical perspectives and current and emerging thinking
- relationship between theories of design and design in practice (in a particular work or broader social context)
- relationships, similarities and differences at a conceptual and practical level between the concepts of design, innovation and creativity
- systemic impacts on design - social, economic, political and environmental.

EVIDENCE GUIDE
Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • research into past, current and emerging theories of design • development of substantiated positions on design and its application in response to own analysis and research • knowledge of different theories and thinking on design and its application in different social and work contexts.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • use of current and emerging sources of information and thinking on design.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate • evaluation of research undertaken by the candidate into design theory and its application • evaluation of candidate's participation in discussion and debate on theories of design
Guidance information for assessment	The design process does not occur in isolation. Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended.

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT
The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. BSBFIM701A Manage financial resources

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to manage financial resources in a complex environment for a substantial business unit or organisation. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	Leaders in learning operations are typically required to forecast future financial resource needs, analyse current asset performance and capacity to a standard expected in a commercial environment, and to set business targets. There will be a requirement to manage compliance mechanisms, to mange financial risk within agreed plans and mechanisms, and to monitor compliance with financial projections. This unit will have specific relevance for leaders or managers working to leverage how learning can enhance individual, team and organisational capabilities. Management of financial resources relating to complex and diverse training operations or projects is an important aspect of work for managers in training and/or assessment organisations or leaders seeking to implement organisational learning. The unit may relate equally to small scale learning activities within a small to medium sized organisation or a significant activity in a large organisation.

BSBHRM507A Manage separation or termination

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to deal with redeployment, resignation, retirement, dismissal and redundancy, including the conduct of exit interviews. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to human resources managers or human resources personnel who take responsibility for overseeing all aspects of managing the termination of employment, voluntary and involuntary. The unit addresses separation at an individual level, through resignations and dismissal, and at the level of the group, through redundancy and restructuring. It is not assumed that the manager will be directly involved in terminating employees, although this may well be the case. In small organisations this role may belong to someone who is not a dedicated human resources professional; the unit however will still be applicable.

BSBHRM509A Manage rehabilitation or return to work programs

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to process and analyse both workers compensation and sick leave claims. It also covers the establishment of rehabilitation needs and return to work programs, and their monitoring, ongoing review and evaluation. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to human resources managers or specialists who manage claims and ensure that the organisation provides appropriate support for the worker. Note that the unit does not in any way address the process of curing the worker of their injury or illness as this is the task of the health professional. Instead the unit focuses on the process of dealing with claims and ensuring that the organisation supports the worker through return to work programs. In large organisations this work may be a full time role for some people, in smaller organisations it would typically be a part of a broader role with a human resources focus.

BSBHRM510A Manage mediation processes

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to develop, implement and review guidelines and procedures for mediation within an organisation, or on behalf of an organisation. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to human resources practitioners who have a role in the management of mediation within their organisation, or who may work as consultants providing mediation services to organisations. The unit covers the policy framework required for the management of mediation and the skills associated with the provision of mediation. Mediation is a process in which the parties to a dispute, with the assistance of a neutral third party (the mediator), identify the disputed issues, develop options, consider alternatives and endeavour to reach an agreement; the mediator has no advisory or determinative role in regard to the content of the dispute or the outcome of its resolution, but may advise on or determine the process of mediation whereby resolution is attempted. Co mediation is where the neutral third party is a team comprising two or more persons (the mediators).

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to liaise with other team members, to discuss a range of ideas and to be open to different opinions
- comprehension skills to review and interpret information from a wide range of sources
- organisational skills to articulate practical processes and actions for change
- problem-solving skills to identify and anticipate problems at a practical operational level and to develop possible solutions.

Required knowledge

- role and impact of innovation in the workplace at a practical operational level and the 'bigger picture' for innovation in the relevant work or community context
- role of individuals in suggesting and making improvements and the importance of pro-active involvement
- positive impacts and the challenges of change and innovation
- types of changes that can occur as a result of effective individual participation
- typical reasons why suggested improvements or innovations may not be implemented, including operational and management constraints
- ways in which improvements and change can be suggested to maximise likelihood of support.

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • generation of practical ideas in response to a specific workplace situation • effective and open interaction with others to discuss and develop ideas • knowledge and understanding of the role of individuals in contributing to workplace innovation.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • interaction with others to reflect the collaborative nature of the improvement/innovation process.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate • direct observation of the candidate participating in brainstorming, discussions and other collaborative activities to develop ideas • evaluation of candidate's ability to generate ideas to address a range of practical operational situations • evaluation of feedback from other people involved in the collaborative process about the candidate's communication approaches and abilities • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of the role of innovation, the role of individuals in the innovation process and the types of techniques that can be used.
Guidance information for assessment	Innovation does not occur in isolation. Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is highly recommended.

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT
The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.
Own role may relate to:	• current organisational practice in relation to new ideas • knowledge of ways to suggest new ideas • scope of individual discretion and freedom in relation to new ideas • who needs to be involved in the process
Opportunities for improvement may relate to:	• changes in the physical work environment • different storage or maintenance procedures • different ways of communicating within the team • introduction of new technology • job role changes • new customer base • new work practices or services • staffing changes • work processes and procedures
Information which may be relevant to ideas may include:	• examples of similar approaches in other contexts or organisations • media articles about similar ideas • notes about how the idea could improve efficiency or service levels • pricing information
People who could provide input may include those who might:	• challenge and test the ideas • have supervisory or management responsibility • promote the ideas to others • provide technical knowledge • resource the ideas going forward • review any budgetary implications • work in the same area
Best way of approaching people may be influenced by:	• degree of formality required • location of people (e.g. may not be on-site) • need for any supporting documentation

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Future Skills Organisation

RANGE STATEMENT
	• time pressures and priorities
Feedback could be gained in a range of ways and may include:	• asking questions • talking to colleagues or supervisors • using brainstorming techniques • using 'what if' scenarios
Options and possible variations development may occur by:	• considering resources needed • considering time required • taking on board ideas from other people • thinking through all aspects of the ideas • whole new concepts that come out of discussions
Routine changes may include:	• adjustments to work practices with minimal impact on others or within a small team • changes that do not require management approvals • changes that have the support of management and for which authority is given for immediate action to be taken
Issues and practical processes may relate to:	• any approvals required • cost of implementation • internal politics • need for a planned communication approach (internal or external) • personalities and philosophies of others in the workplace • relationship of the idea to organisation priorities

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to be an effective and pro active member of an innovative team. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies individuals who play a pro active role in demonstrating, encouraging or supporting innovation in a team environment. The individual may be a team participant or a team leader. The team may 'make itself' or be constructed by others. It may have core members and members who participate at certain times or for particular purposes. It may be permanent or temporary, or come together at different times to work on specific projects. The team could consist of a team of contractors/freelancers, permanent staff, clients and service providers, or any combination of these groups. It may operate within an organisation or across several organisations - or simply across a group of individuals. The key focus of the unit is on what makes for an innovative team, what keeps it working well, how the structure of work can make a difference and what skills and knowledge are needed to maximise opportunities for innovation. Where a greater focus on team leadership is required this unit should be combined with units such as BSBLED401A Develop teams and individuals.

BSBINN501A Establish systems that support innovation

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to conceptualise and establish new systems that support and encourage innovation in the workplace. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit may apply to individuals working in any community or industry context, in small or large organisations. While managers are often responsible for the development of new systems, depending on the organisation size and the nature of the system being developed, senior operational personnel or internal/external specialists may also undertake this role. Systems are varied in nature and might apply to human resources management, team management, organisational structures, product development, information technology, marketing or training and assessment. The critical focus is on systems conceived and developed with innovation as the key driver.

Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • identification of the different types of intellectual property within the organisation • identification, use and/or maintenance of an organisation's intellectual property policies and procedures • identification of potential non-compliance issues in an organisation
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • access to relevant information about an organisation's intellectual property policies and procedures if applicable, or opportunity to contribute to the development of the policies and procedures
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of a portfolio of evidence • oral or written presentation to stakeholders outlining the organisation's approach to intellectual property protection and infringement avoidance • analysis of case studies identifying potential intellectual property issues and proposed actions
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: • other administrative units from BSB07

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Intellectual property refers to:	• the output of the mind or intellect rather than tangible objects. It includes:
	  • copyright
	  • trade marks
	  • patents
	  • designs
	  • plant breeder's rights
	  • circuit layout rights
	  • confidential information/trade secrets

Policies, procedures and information may include:	• intellectual property policy • licensing agreements • procedures for ensuring copyright protection • procedures for registering intellectual property rights • register of intellectual property assets
Own role may include:	• checking that other areas of the organisation are compliant • communicating policy and procedure changes to others • ensuring fees are paid • entering data as it arises • updating schedules and documents as requested e.g. register of intellectual property • keeping up to date with intellectual property issues through subscriptions to intellectual property services, e.g. IP Australia News Alert
Infringement refers to:	• deliberate or inadvertent misuse or non-compliance with legislation, regulation, policy, codes of conduct etc. in relation to intellectual property
Internal and external stakeholders may include:	• internal stakeholders: • other people within the organisation who may be affected by intellectual property, e.g. designers, writers, trainers, marketing staff, researchers whose efforts may

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to use and respect copyright. It covers maintaining control over the copyright owner's work, commercialising copyright material, preventing the unauthorised use of an original work, and using other party's original work legitimately. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to people who may be authors, creators or other owners of works covered by copyright. It also applies to employees who have a role in ensuring that their organisation's copyright is protected and/or that their organisation uses others' copyright appropriately to benefit the organisation without infringing the rights of copyright owners. These people may work in a wide range of industry and business contexts.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- research skills to identify a range of issues and information relating to copyright ownership and use
- organisational skills to review and maintain policies and procedures
- communication skills to provide relevant advice to others about copyright protection
- problem solving skills to monitor copyright policies and procedures and make recommendations for action if required
- technology skills to research copyright information

Required knowledge

- principal features of legislative framework for copyright and its application to the organisation:
  - Australia
    - Copyright Act 1968 and Copyright Regulations 1969
  - internationally
    - WIPO Treaties, in particular the Berne Convention, the WIPO Copyright Treaty and the WIPO Performances and Phonograms Treaty
  - International Trade Agreements, in particular the WTO TRIPS Agreement and the impact of free trade agreements to which Australia is a party (including AUSFTA)
- what works are protected by copyright and how long copyright lasts
- rights of copyright owners
- sources of information and advice on copyright
- methods for preventing unauthorised use of copyright material and action to take if infringement of copyright occurs
- when authorisation for use of copyright materials is needed and how to obtain it
- licensing and the role of collecting societies
- open source copyright licences, such as creative commons, AEShareNet, NEALS, GPL and other similar licences for copyright material
- impact of the internet on copyright

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • identification of issues for the use, management and protection of original works with copyright • implementation of policies and procedures for the use, management and protection of original works with copyright and legitimate use of others' original material
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • access to relevant information on the individual or organisation's copyright requirements and procedures • access to reliable and appropriate explanatory material and guidelines • access to appropriate computer resources for establishment and maintenance of policies and procedures
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolio of evidence • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of copyright and its implications for the organisation • development of action plans for implementation of copyright policies and procedures, and commercialisation of original works • analysis of case studies around copyright issues, with recommendations for action
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: • other units from BSB07 including other units relating to intellectual property

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Copyright refers to:	• the protection of the original expression of ideas from copying and certain other uses, but not the ideas themselves
	• a large range of works, including:
	  • works of art and design, and graphic representations, e.g. drawings, maps, community art
	  • literature and other written material, e.g. reports, manuals, guides
	  • music, e.g. tunes, lyrics
	  • sound recordings
	  • films and other moving images
	  • drama and dance
	  • broadcasts
	  • computer programs, software, games
	  • online or digital content
	  • traditional knowledge

Legislative requirements may include:	• Copyright Act 1968 • Copyright Regulations 1969
Copyright owner may be:	• creator of the work • employer where the employee creates a work in the course of employment as part of their usual duties, or is contracted to create the work for the employer • person to whom copyright has been assigned • person who arranged for a film or sound recording to be made • person who commissioned design work on a commercial basis • State, Territory or Federal Government for material created under their direction or control

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Future Skills Organisation

RANGE STATEMENT
	• Note: there could be more than one owner of copyright

Rights of the copyright owner may include:	• the exclusive right to reproduce, publish, communicate to the public, publicly perform and adapt material
	• assigning their rights to others so that another party becomes the owner or exclusive licensee of the rights
	• licensing their rights, giving another party the permission to use the copyright material but not own the rights
	• licensing of rights associated with derivative works of copyright material, including:
	  • exact copies
	  • enhancements
	  • supplementary works
	  • compilations
	(For example license to use computer software programs - specialist legal advice should be obtained)

	Note: different rights attach to different types of copyright and the term of copyright may also differ

Moral rights:	• refer to the personal legal rights of individual creators in the copyright works they have created. They are separate from the economic rights of the copyright owner and may be held by different people
	• include the right of creators:
	  • to be attributed
	  • not to have their work falsely attributed
	  • not to have their work treated in a derogatory way

Copyright notice may refer to:	• the copyright symbol Â© • name of the copyright owner • year of creation or first publication

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Future Skills Organisation

RANGE STATEMENT
	Note: a copyright notice is not required to obtain copyright protection in Australia, but is recommended to clearly indicate to others that the work is protected and to identify the copyright owner
Sources of information and advice may include:	• IP Australia • Attorney-General's Department • Australian Copyright Council • State and Commonwealth government agencies • lawyers specialising in intellectual property, including trade mark attorneys and patent attorneys • accountants • business advisors • marketing consultants • branding consultants • copyright collecting societies, e.g. CAL, PPCA, MIPI, APRA, AMCOS • publications • websites, Internet • databases, e.g. local and international trade mark databases
Policies and procedures may relate to:	• information technology and computer usage • computer security measures • employment contracts, including responsibility for intellectual property • confidentiality agreements within the organisation or among people who may need to know about the copyright material, so as to keep the copyright secret prior to commercialisation

Direct infringement of copyright may include:	• when a person, without the copyright owner's permission:
	  • reproduces the work (or a substantial portion thereof) in a material form
	  • publishes the work
	  • communicates the work to the public
	  • in the case of literary, dramatic and musical works, performs the work in public

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Future Skills Organisation

	• adapts the work
Indirect infringement of copyright may include:	• when a person authorises or facilitates another person to infringe copyright, including through 'inactivity' or 'indifference' • when a person, without the copyright owner's permission, imports certain articles into Australia, e.g. to sell, distribute, exhibit or hire, when the article if made in Australia would have been an infringement of copyright
Implications of copyright infringement may include:	• legal and economic implications of not complying with copyright legislation • legal and economic implications of others infringing the individual or organisation's copyright
Commercialisation potential could include:	• licensing or transferring use of original work • profiting from the sale of the original work • developing a product or creative work under a government grant or other funding source and taking it to a commercial product stage
Copyright collection societies refer to:	• societies that license, collect and distribute royalties on behalf of the copyright owners they represent
Locally refers to:	• copyright protection within Australia which, under the Copyright Act 1968, exists automatically when something is written down or recorded in accordance with the requirements of the copyright legislation
Internationally refers to:	• copyright protection in other countries. Copyright is protected by national laws of each country, usually based on international conventions
Procedures to limit or deter infringement may include:	• making sure there is a copyright notice on all work • statement on works outlining preferred licensing arrangements • access codes in software • encrypting • express agreements on copyright ownership, particularly when work is outsourced
Further action could include:	• seeking legal advice • contacting publisher if the work is published • civil actions, including informal negotiations

	and letters of cease and desist
	• court order, including:
	  • order to seize infringing goods
	  • injunctions
	• monetary damages/compensation

Restrictions may include:	• not using others' copyright material without authorisation from the copyright owner Note: there are some limited exceptions: • fair dealing for the specific purposes of research or study, criticism or review, and news reporting • reproduction of computer programs, e.g. in the technical processes of running the program, for back-up copy, to correct errors • copying industrial products

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to protect and use new inventions and innovations as the exclusive intellectual property of an organisation or individual. It covers identifying the need for protection of new inventions or innovations, working with specialists to file a successful patent application, monitoring and protecting intellectual property rights, and using the patent for business growth. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to individuals who are actively involved in work concerning the development or ownership of inventive and innovative products. They may work as individual inventors or innovators in a range of industries or organisational contexts, as part of a research and development team within an organisation or be commissioning or employing others to develop new inventions or innovations. This unit will give individuals an understanding of patent law and how patents are assigned, to develop an understanding of the actions of patent specialists employed to patent the organisation's new inventions or innovations.

Innovations may include:	• any device, substance, method or process that involves an 'innovative step', i.e. a change that distinguishes the invention from what is currently known about the technology
Legislative requirements may include:	• the Patents Act 1990; in particular section 18 which stipulates the inventive threshold
Types of patent may include:	• standard patents, which last for twenty years from when the application is filed and cover as many claims as is deemed necessary to protect the invention • innovation patents, which last for eight years from the date of filing and protect up to five claims
Prior art is defined as:	• all information in the public domain relating to previous patents, inventions or innovations that may impact on an invention's or innovation's originality
Patent information refers to:	• the technical and legal information contained in a patent document
Usefulness includes:	• source of technical information • learning about current research and innovations • locating business partners or suppliers • avoiding possible infringement problems • assessing patentability of own invention or innovation • exploitation of out of date patents

Commercialisation potential may include:	• the potential profitability of an innovation which takes into account market size, competitors and investment required to get the invention or innovation to market
	• alternative income stream, such as:
	  • licensing the patent to another party, allowing them to exploit it for a set price or royalties for a set time

Registrable trade marks may include:	• letters, words, names, signatures, phrases, numerals, sounds, smells, shapes, logos, pictures, aspects of packaging, or any combination of these that can be represented graphically A trade mark can be difficult to register if it is: • a generic word • a term that other traders may need to use in relation to the same kinds of goods or services • identical with or deceptively similar to a pending or registered trade mark • likely to mislead the public about the nature of the goods or services • scandalous or against the law Note: registration of a business, company or domain name does not in itself give proprietary rights

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Future Skills Organisation

Legislative requirements may include:	• the Trade Marks Act 1995 • Section 52 of the Trade Practices Act 1974
Other forms of trade mark protection include:	• common law by the passing off action • consumer protection provisions of Trade Practices Act (Commonwealth) and State fair trading acts • reviewing and proliferating confidentiality agreements within organisation or among people who may need to know about the trade mark before application for registration is lodged so as to keep the trade mark secret
Benefits include:	• trader protection, e.g. protecting reputation of traders, facilitating advertising, encouraging brand loyalty, building brand value, persuading consumers to try new products under the established brand • consumer protection, e.g. to facilitate choice between competing goods and services
Commercialisation potential may include:	• considering the trade mark as an asset that can be bought, sold or licensed • utilisation of the trade mark as a marketing tool and the basis for building a brand
Sources of information and advice may include:	• IP Australia • Attorney-General's Department • Australian Copyright Council • State and Commonwealth government agencies • lawyers specialising in intellectual property • trade mark attorneys and patent attorneys • accountants • business advisors • marketing consultants • branding consultants • copyright collecting societies, e.g. CAL, PPCA, MIPI, APRA, AMCOS • publications • websites, Internet • databases e.g. local and international trade mark databases
Searching databases may include using the following:	• IP Australia's trade marks database which lists all the registered and pending trade marks • the Australian Securities and Investment Commission database, which lists all registered and reserved business names (www.asic.gov.au)

	• any other information source that is relevant to the goods or services provided by the applicant, e.g. trade directories, Yellow Pages
Investigating may involve:	• using search engines on the Internet • reviewing relevant industry journals, articles, advertising, etc. Note: The purpose is to determine whether competitors have used the proposed trade mark, or a similar mark, and developed a reputation in the mark
Processes include:	• completing an approved form prescribed by the regulations, including graphically representing the trade mark on the application • paying a specified fee • having the application approved by a trade marks examiner
International trade mark registration includes:	• filing for protection with the trade mark offices of overseas countries • filing for protection under the Madrid Protocol through IP Australia to seek trade mark registration in a range of countries with a single application
Monitoring may include:	• observing the activities of competitors • watching the market for potential trade mark infringements

Measures may include:	• bringing actions against an alleged infringer under:
	  • the Trade Marks Act 1995
	  • Section 52 of the Trade Practices Act 1974
	  • the common law tort of passing off
	• bringing an opposition against, or seeking removal of, other trade marks which may infringe

Payment of renewal fees may refer to:	• ensuring that the required fees are paid to periodically renew the trade mark registration • licence fees to ensure the use of another organisation's trade mark
Proper use of trade mark includes:	• ensuring that the trade mark is used 'as a trade mark', otherwise it may become vulnerable for removal • using the mark with the correct notation (e.g.TM or (R))

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • identification of issues for the use, management and protection of innovative designs • implementation of policies and procedures for the use, management and protection of innovative designs and legitimate use of others' designs
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • access to relevant information on the individual or organisation's innovative design protection requirements and procedures • access to reliable and appropriate explanatory material and guidelines • access to appropriate computer resources for establishment and maintenance of policies and procedures
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolio of evidence • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of protection of innovative designs and its implications for the organisation • development of action plans for implementation of policies and procedures for the protection of innovative designs, and commercialisation of innovative designs • analysis of case studies ofissues about protection of innovative designs, with recommendations for action
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended,

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Registrable design refers to:	• the appearance or look of a manufactured or hand made article that is:
	  • new and distinctive
	  • not substantially similar in overall impression to designs in the prior art
	  • distinctive in the view of the Informed User
	  • not used or shown in public before first application
	• design protection may not be appropriate to protect:
	  • how a product works or functions
	  • items that are primarily artistic or literary in nature

Exclusive rights are defined as:	• the right to prevent others from making, using and exploiting a design for a product, in relation to which the design is registered, for a specified period of time
	• exclusive rights are limited in the following ways:
	  • infringement may not occur if the design is used on a product outside of the scope to that for which the design was registered
	  • certain repairs may not infringe the design where the product is a component part of a complex product

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Future Skills Organisation

RANGE STATEMENT
	• protection does not cover the design features if only the idea of the general functional features are copied, as a product's function cannot be protected under design • protection does not cover the underlying idea of the design, only the actual design
Legislative requirements refer to:	• Designs Act 2003 • Design Regulations • Copyright Act 1968
Prior art is defined as:	• all information in the public domain relating to previous designs that may impact on the design's originality
Non-registrable protection may include:	• trade secrets • confidentiality agreements and non-disclosure agreements
Commercialisation potential may include:	• licensing the design to third parties for a fee or under certain conditions • profiting from the manufacture and sale of a registered design
Sources of information and advice include:	• IP Australia • Attorney-General's Department • Australian Copyright Council • State and Commonwealth government agencies • lawyers specialising in intellectual property • trade mark attorneys and patent attorneys • accountants • business advisors • marketing consultants • branding consultants • copyright collecting societies, eg CAL, PPCA, MIPI, APRA, AMCOS • publications • websites, Internet • design databases
Processes may include:	• reviewing and proliferating confidentiality agreements within organisation or among people who may need to know about the design before application for registration is lodged so as to keep the design secret

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Future Skills Organisation

	• carrying out searches on relevant databases including:
	  • bibliographic and pictorial searches on IP Australia's website
	  • pictorial or representation searches in the public domain
	  • drafting a completed application form
	  • preparing copies of representations of the design in relation to a product
	• the application process may also include, if desired or requested:
	  • requesting an examination
	  • considering the value of a Statement of Newness and Distinctiveness to identify particular visual features of the design as new and distinctive
	  • responding to any adverse findings the Registrar of Designs may identify during the examination process
	  • considering any material submitted by a third party to dispute the Newness and Distinctiveness of the design

International design registration may include:	• filing for design registration with the relevant offices of a foreign country Signatory states to the international convention for design protection allow for the priority date assigned to the design in Australia to be obtained internationally if applied for within six months of lodgement in Australia
Maintain protection may include:	• keeping track of registration expiration dates • applying for renewal of registration
Monitoring may include:	• observing the activities of competitors • scanning the market for potential design infringements • regular or ad-hoc searching of design applications and/or registrations locally or internationally
Legal measures may include:	• seeking legal advice from an appropriate professional • requesting examination of suspected infringements

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Future Skills Organisation

RANGE STATEMENT
	• bringing infringement proceedings against a party • suing a party who has imported any infringing designs into Australia • suing a party who has sold, or offered for sale, any product infringing their rights in the design • implementing other business, regulatory or market strategies within legal means

BSBIPR405A Protect and use intangible assets in small business

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to effectively protect and exploit the intellectual property of a small business. It focuses on identifying and valuing intangible assets, implementing measures to protect and commercialise these assets as well avoiding the infringement of others' intellectual property rights. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to individuals who either operate a small business or who are investigating the establishment of a small business. It particularly applies to small businesses that have intangible assets with market value which require protection, and which can be used to improve business performance. Intangible assets refer to assets which may be protected under a range of intellectual property legislation, including patents, trade marks, designs and copyright, as well as protection under other techniques, such as common or contract law. This unit encourages small business owners to seek expert advice from intellectual property professionals when required for the protection of intellectual property.

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.
Required skills
• communication skills to question, clarify and report on proposed strategy and develop any required documentation, such as licence agreements • financial and analytical skills to prepare a business case for the proposed strategy • information technology and research skills to find and interpret relevant information about intellectual property • conceptual skills to design an organisational strategy • demonstration of characteristics of responsible business practice and ethical behaviour
Required knowledge
• types of intellectual property as they relate to the organisation • alternative strategies for the organisation's intellectual property • relevant legislation and regulations relating to the organisation's intellectual property rights • potential sources of information and advice about intellectual property

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • identification of intellectual property rights appropriate to the types of intellectual property within the organisation and the relevant legislation • establishment of strategies for the management of intellectual property • feasibility study outlining alternative strategies, with risk analysis and cost-benefit analysis of each alternative • recommendations for and implementation of commercialisation of intellectual property

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Future Skills Organisation

EVIDENCE GUIDE
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • access to relevant legislation and regulations as they relate to intellectual property • access to appropriate computer resources for online search and report preparation • access to sources of information and advice
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • analysis of intellectual property strategy alternatives • direct questioning combined with review of portfolio of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate, to demonstrate the establishment of strategies to manage an organisation's intellectual property • presentation to appropriate personnel on the commercialisation of a range of intellectual property within the organisation, or the chosen intellectual property strategy • oral or written questioning about relevant legislation as it relates to the organisation's intellectual property strategy
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: • other management units from BSB07

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT
The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.
Intellectual property refers to:	• the output of the mind or intellect rather than tangible objects, including:

BSBITA601A Configure and optimise customer contact technology

Modification History

Release	Comments
Release 2	New release of this Qualification released with version 6 of BSB07 Business Services Training Package. Outdated advice removed

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to establish optimal functionality and efficiency from technologies by configuring them to best suit operational needs.

Application of the Unit

This unit is applied in a customer contact environment where complex technology is employed and where the configuring of this technology is undertaken on an ongoing basis to maximise efficiencies and benefits to the organisation.

Competence in this unit requires comprehensive knowledge of customer contact technology, an appreciation of alternative and emerging trends and options in technology, and highly developed analytical skills to maximise the effectiveness and efficiency of the technology. Well developed understanding of business objectives and goals and cost benefit analysis are also required.

This role may be undertaken by those with managerial responsibility or specialist staff, depending on the size and structure of the centre.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.*

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Analyse current capability of customer contact technology	1.1. Clearly specify the role of customer contact technology in customer contact operations 1.2. Recognise the scope of the functions supplied by the technology 1.3. Accurately align the capabilities of the technology to current and potential operational needs
2. Benchmark competing new technology applications	2.1. Identify specific operational needs that can be met by technology 2.2. Identify range of functions and capabilities supplied by benchmarking competing technologies 2.3. Select critical features of competing technologies for analysis 2.4. Conduct an analysis of technologies using cost effective processes 2.5. Select or report on appropriate new technology by considering the analysis of critical features
3. Develop a customer contact system configuration	3.1. Identify and analyse business model to be facilitated by technology 3.2. Identify the required technology components 3.3. Identify all specific contact pathways to be managed

	by technology 3.4. Arrange configuration of technology to satisfy the business model and contact pathways 3.5. Develop comprehensive testing program to ensure delivery and reliability of new configuration 3.6. Evaluate configuration against business model dimensions
4. Develop a strategy to optimise current technology	4.1. Identify unused capacity in existing technology 4.2. Identify applications for unused capacity appropriate to operational or business models 4.3. Develop a strategy for exploiting additional capacity 4.4. Assess the cost and efficiency of the strategy against available resources and budgets 4.5. Recommend a course of action in accordance with the assessment

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- analytical skills to interpret, report and recommend actions from complex data and information
- attention to detail
- interpersonal skills to establish rapport, to build relationships with team members and stakeholders, and to establish effective networks
- literacy skills to develop reports which deal with complex ideas and concepts, and to articulate ideas and information effectively
- numeracy skills to analyse, manipulate and validate data, specifications and reports
- problem-solving skills to develop creative and innovative solutions
- project management skills to ensure that quality project management techniques are employed at all times
- research skills to ensure that all options are explored and recommendations are comprehensive and balanced
- report writing and presentation skills
- risk management skills to ensure that planning is balanced and risk averse.

Required knowledge

- benchmarking principles
- budgeting and cost benefit analysis principles

- business case preparation principles
- business objectives and goals
- customer contact technologies - communications technologies, automatic call distributor (ACD) systems, interactive voice response (IVR) systems, databases, computer telephony integration (CTI) systems, prescriptive dialling, computer-based customer relationship management (CRM) systems, information management systems
- formal and informal communication and consultation processes, and key personnel related to communication
- needs of both internal and external customers
- operational budget and business plan.

Evidence Guide

The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • analysis, benchmarking, configuration and optimisation of customer contact technology • knowledge of customer contact technologies.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • access to workplace information, reporting and data • access to either stakeholder feedback or stakeholders • access to relevant standards and guidelines.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate • review of documentation and research related to technology, benchmarking, business objectives, financial imperatives • review of benchmarking reports • review of stakeholder feedback • review of documentation of a strategy for optimising unused capacity in customer contact technology • oral and/or written questioning to assess knowledge

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to improve business, learning and knowledge outcomes through implementing advanced electronic technologies, as a member of a senior management team. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to leaders or managers working to ensure learning advances individual and organisational capabilities. Leaders in learning should be able to implement advanced electronic technologies such as those associated with electronic business (e business) models; electronic retail (e retail) sales, service and payment solutions; mobile and wireless technologies; and technologies relating to the management of the supply chain. Operational management in relation to introducing technologies to enhance business processes may involve complex judgements. This unit may relate to learning activities within a small to medium sized organisation or to a significant unit of activity in a large organisation.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.
Required skills

• communication and teamwork skills to consult with stakeholders and system users
• problem-solving, initiative and enterprise skills to:
  • assess vulnerabilities in e-commerce systems and infrastructure set up
  • manage risks and implications of electronic payment systems
  • monitor business customer satisfaction
  • map business customer needs and expectations
  • evaluate competitive technologies for implementing electronic payments
• teamwork skills to provide leadership in occupational health and safety (OHS) practice and observance of ethical standards, legislative requirements and good corporate governance requirements
• technology skills to:
  • use appropriate technology to achieve system and business outcomes
  • use appropriate terminology
  • use high levels of accounting (mathematical), technological and e-commerce systems
  • assess suitability and reliability of hardware and software
  • compare and recommend new technology solutions that have potential to improve organisational outcomes.

Required knowledge
• business policies and procedures impacting on job role or function • capabilities and limitations of infrastructure • customer needs • electronic payment and processing • facilities and infrastructural management • information sources on product and supply arrangements for customers • manufacturers' specifications for use and maintenance of equipment and systems • methods for assuring safe and secure payment using electronic medium

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Future Skills Organisation

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
• planning techniques • principles of supply chain management • quality measures and principles • relevant legislation, codes and regulations that affect business operations, especially in regard to OHS and environmental issues, equal opportunity, industrial relations and anti-discrimination • relevant obligations under the Australian Quality Training Framework (AQTF) Standards for Registered Training Organisations • resource investment and maintenance solutions • resource requirements and limitations • secure electronic system for merchant transactions • technology underlying secure transmission and verification of information • trends in business to business e-commerce and e-business systems • written policies and internal procedures on trading, e-trading and associated contractual documents.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • research and evaluation of appropriate electronic technology for a given business system • capacity to analyse, develop and implement plans for an effective e-business solution, e-retail solution, mobile business solution and electronic supply chain management solution to meet specific organisational needs • knowledge of methods for assuring safe and secure payment using electronic medium.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • competence is consistently demonstrated over time, and over a range and variety of situations • access to required assessment facilities and resources.

EVIDENCE GUIDE
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate • review of applied projects or learning activities, for instance related to implementing effective electronic solutions across e-commerce, mobile, e-retail and electronic supply chain management for a specific business requirement • direct observation of contextual application of skills • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of capabilities and limitations of infrastructure • review of research and evaluation of the appropriate electronic technology for a given business system.
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: • BSBLED704A Review enterprise e-learning systems and solutions implementation.

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT
The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Communication to stakeholders includes:	• electronic or physical means to inform:
	  • business partners
	  • customers
	  • executive management
	  • other employees
	  • public

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

1. Select and prepare resources	1.1. Adjust workspace, furniture and equipment to suit user ergonomic, work organisation and occupational health and safety (OHS) requirements 1.2. Use energy and resource conservation techniques to minimise wastage in accordance with organisational and statutory requirements 1.3. Identify spreadsheet task requirements and clarify with relevant personnel as required
2. Create simple spreadsheets	2.1. Ensure data is entered, checked and amended in accordance with organisational and task requirements, to maintain consistency of design and layout 2.2. Format spreadsheet using software functions, to adjust page and cell layout to meet information requirements, in accordance with organisational style and presentation requirements 2.3. Ensure formulae are used and tested to confirm output meets task requirements, in consultation with appropriate personnel as required 2.4. Use manuals, user documentation and online help to overcome problems with spreadsheet design and production
3. Produce simple charts	3.1. Select chart type and design that enables valid representation of numerical data and meets

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to clarify requirements of spreadsheet
- editing and proofreading skills to check own work for accuracy
- keyboarding skills to enter text and numerical data
- literacy skills to read and understand organisation's procedures, and to use basic models to produce a range of spreadsheets
- numeracy skills to create and use spreadsheet formulae.

Required knowledge

- formatting of workplace documents
- organisational requirements for ergonomic standards, work periods and breaks, and conservation techniques
- organisational guidelines on spreadsheet manipulation and processing
- purpose and range of use of spreadsheet functions.

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • designing a minimum of two spreadsheets • using cell-based formulae • creating charts using relevant data • knowledge of purpose and range of use of spreadsheet functions.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • access to an actual workplace or simulated environment • access to office equipment and resources • access to examples of spreadsheets and simple formulae.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate • review of final spreadsheets • analysis of responses to case studies and scenarios • demonstration of techniques • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of spreadsheet software functions.
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: • general administration units • other IT use units.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

1. Prepare to produce word processed documents	1.1. Use safe work practices to ensure ergonomic, work organisation, energy and resource conservation requirements are addressed 1.2. Identify document purpose, audience and presentation requirements, and clarify with relevant personnel as required 1.3. Identify organisational and task requirements for text-based business documents to ensure consistency of style and image
2. Design word processed documents	2.1. Design document structure and layout to suit purpose, audience and information requirements of the task 2.2. Design document to enhance readability and appearance, and to meet organisational and task requirements for style and layout 2.3. Use style sheets and automatic functions to ensure consistency of design and layout
3. Add tables and other data	3.1. Insert a standard table into a document, changing cells to meet information requirements 3.2. Insert and delete columns and rows as necessary 3.3. Insert images and other data to meet required

4. Produce text documents	4.1. Use advanced software functions to enable efficient production of documents 4.2. Enter or import, and edit text and other data to meet required specifications 4.3. Preview, adjust and print documents in accordance with organisational and task requirements 4.4. Name and store text documents, in accordance with organisational requirements and exit the application without information loss/damage 4.5. Prepare text documents within designated time lines and organisational requirements for speed and accuracy 4.6. Use manuals, user documentation and online help to overcome problems with document design and production

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to clarify requirements of documents
- editing and proofreading skills to check own work for accuracy against original
- keyboarding skills to enter text and numerical data
- literacy skills to read and understand the organisation's procedures, and to use models to produce a range of documents
- problem-solving skills to use processes flexibly and interchangeably.

Required knowledge

- formatting styles and their impact on formatting, readability and appearance of documents
- organisational requirements for ergonomics, work periods and breaks, and conservation techniques
- organisational style guide
- purposes, uses and functions of word processing software.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • applying document design principles • knowledge of organisation's style guide • production of a minimum of three text documents using advanced software functions.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • access to an actual workplace or simulated environment • access to office equipment and resources • access to examples of text documents and style guides.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • demonstration of techniques • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of word processing software functions • review of text documents.
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: • BSBWRT301AWrite simple documents • general administration units • other IT use units.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.
Ergonomic requirements may include:	• avoiding radiation from computer screens • chair height, seat and back adjustment • document holder • footrest • keyboard and mouse position • lighting • noise minimisation • posture • screen position • workstation height and layout
Work organisation requirements may include:	• exercise breaks • mix of repetitive and other activities • rest periods
Energy and resource conservation requirements may include:	• double-sided paper use • recycling used and shredded paper • re-using paper for rough drafts (observing confidentiality requirements) • using power-save options for equipment
Documents may include:	• brochures • calendars • faxes • flyers • forms • mail merge documents, including labels • memos • multi-page letters • promotional material • reports • schedules • tables
Organisational requirements may include:	• company colour scheme • company logo

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

1. Prepare to produce desktop published documents	1.1. Use safe work practices including addressing ergonomic requirements and using work organisation strategies 1.2. Use energy and resource conservation techniques 1.3. Identify document purpose, audience and presentation requirements, and clarify with relevant personnel as required 1.4. Identify organisational and task requirements for desktop published documents to ensure consistency of style and image
2. Set up desktop published document	2.1. Design content structure and layout to ensure information and graphics are arranged according to related topics and logical sequences 2.2. Select appropriate formatting and create templates or master pages to ensure consistency of design and layout 2.3. Confirm layout with appropriate person
3. Create desktop published document	3.1. Prepare, format and enter required text 3.2. Import text from other applications and resolve any formatting issues 3.3. Scan or import graphics from other applications and resolve any formatting issues 3.4. Arrange text and graphics according to organisational and task requirements

4. Finalise desktop published document	4.1. Review text for possible errors and omissions, and resolve any issues 4.2. Check page order, structure and linkages 4.3. Produce completed document in required format 4.4. Name and store text documents, in accordance with organisational requirements and exit the application without information loss/damage 4.5. Prepare text documents within designated time lines and organisational requirements for speed and accuracy 4.6. Use manuals, user documentation and online help to overcome problems with document design and production

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to clarify requirements of documents
- culturally appropriate communication skills to relate to people from diverse backgrounds and people with diverse abilities
- editing and proofreading skills to check own work for accuracy against original
- keyboarding skills to enter text and numerical data
- literacy skills to read and understand the organisation's procedures and to use models or exemplars to produce a range of documents
- problem-solving skills to edit documents and to resolve issues of consistency of design.

Required knowledge

- energy and resource conservation techniques
- organisational requirements for ergonomics, work periods and breaks
- organisational style guides
- purposes, uses and functions of desktop publishing software
- styles and their effect on formatting, readability and appearance of document.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • knowledge of document design and layout principles • producing desktop published documents.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • access to office equipment and resources in a workplace or simulated environment • access to samples of relevantworkplace desktop published documents.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate • review of desktop published documents • demonstration of techniques • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of desktop publishing software functions.
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: • general administration units • other IT use units.

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to analyse and improve personal leadership style and professional competence, and to lead organisational transformation and learning for strategic outcomes. The unit also covers leading transformational practices, cultivating collaborative practices, completing ongoing professional development, and providing strategic leadership in a dynamic context. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to leaders or managers working in organisations where learning is used to build capabilities. Their effectiveness is based on professional expertise and personal integrity, and they provide a role model for others. The unit may relate to learning activities within a small to medium sized organisation or a significant unit of activity in a large organisation. Leaders in learning must be able to respond strategically, acting as transformational agents in response to multiple drivers for change - they seek to improve competitive advantage through transformation of individual, team and operational capabilities.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to provide professional leadership in improving organisational learning, and the quality of training and assessment products and services. The unit also covers leading strategy formation; designing, developing and implementing an organisational learning strategy; and reviewing and improving overall organisational learning and development. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to senior leaders or managers working in an enterprise where learning is used to build capabilities. The unit may relate to leadership of a small to medium sized organisation or a significant unit of activity in a large organisation. Effective leadership requires the professional respect of colleagues, contacts, clients and the community. When applied to the development of organisational learning strategies this involves contributing to organisational strategies, business plans, goals, values and the bottom line by providing learning related services either directly, through partnerships or by using external providers. Learning leaders must be able to collaboratively implement relevant organisational strategies to ensure learning has a strategic role among the ever changing context and complex influences that affect learners, employees, and business and learning processes.

Wider operational needs may include:	• managing assessment and reporting of outcomes relating to:
	  • compliance
	  • human capital
	  • knowledge
	  • performance
	  • service standards
	  • talent

Learning resources may include:	• learning resources and learning materials developed under the Workplace English Language and Literacy (WELL) program
	• manuals
	• organisational learning resources
	• published, commercially available support materials for Training Packages or accredited courses
	• record or log books
	• references and texts

BSBLED703A Implement improved learning practice

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to initiate and implement advanced learning practice that supports the improvement of learning strategies in an organisational context. The unit also covers evaluating ways to improve learning practice, managing and monitoring means to improve learning, and analysing and advancing adoption of improved learning practice. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to leaders or managers using learning to build organisational capabilities. It focuses on using research, theoretical analysis and professional investigation to identify ways of improving learning practice and implementing appropriate pedagogy. Methods for improving learning practice include developing individual staff members from the perspective of the organisation's needs and imperatives, and enhancing outcomes for learners and candidates. The unit may relate to learning activities within a small to medium sized organisation, or to a significant unit of activity in a large organisation.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1. Evaluate ways to improve learning practice	1.1. Review advances in learning practice within a given vocational, training, educational or content area 1.2. Review and challenge existing learning practice to develop and test improved approaches 1.3. Analyse interests, abilities, relationships and contextual needs of relevant individuals when promoting improved learning practice 1.4. Research how a range of appropriate learning theories and instructional design principles can improve learning practice 1.5. Ensure learning practice reflects qualification requirements for nominated qualification/s

2. Manage and monitor means to improve learning	2.1. Observe and assess learner styles with respect to appropriateness of current vocational, training and educational learning strategies 2.2. Evaluate the role and impact of new technologies on learners and training techniques 2.3. Plan improved learning practice based on how learners currently learn 2.4. Plan improved learning practice based on experience and personal interests of the learner
3. Analyse and advance adoption of improved learning practice	3.1. Develop improved vocational, training and educational learning practice appropriate to learner characteristics 3.2. Advocate for improved vocational, training and educational learning practice 3.3. Initiate research into improved learning practice 3.4. Design and test improved learning practice in real-world situations 3.5. Mentor colleagues to promote improved learning practice

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to:
  - demonstrate and model varied delivery and facilitation methods and techniques
  - give instruction, presentations and lectures
  - guide facilitation of individual and group learning activities, group work and case studies
  - initiate and facilitate group discussions
  - brainstorm activities
  - provide and guide practice opportunities
  - enable and support effective learner participation
  - tutor
  - conduct project-based activities
  - coach and mentor

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Future Skills Organisation

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

- undertake blended delivery
- learning-related skills to monitor learner progress, difficulties and readiness for assessment or new areas of learning
- planning and organising skills to evaluate effectiveness of learning practice, and to analyse and identify suitable learning practice and learning strategies for groups and individual learners
- teamwork skills to monitor group and individual interactions
- technology skills to complete electronic research, and to review and discuss learning modes and practice that involves information and communication technology.

Required knowledge

- contemporary policy and approaches to vocational learning and assessment
- content and requirements of the relevant delivery and assessment strategies
- content of learning resources and learning materials
- design and management of learning objects and content
- different learning styles and how to encourage learners, for example:
  - theoretical learners
  - pragmatic learners
  - activist learners
  - reflective learners
  - kinaesthetic learners
  - audio learners
  - visual learners
  - tactile learners
  - left and right brain learners
- learners and context of learning
- learning principles, for example connections of learning and experience, and adult learning principles
- range of appropriate learning strategies, and teaching and assessment methods
- research skills relating to pedagogical theory and practice, learner interests and changing learning styles, and application of information and communication technology to learning and teaching
- sources and availability of relevant learning resources and learning materials
- theory and practice relating to adult learning
- training techniques which enhance learning and when to use them, for example using:
  - instruction and explanation
  - questioning
  - practice

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • knowledge of adult learning practice • construction of pedagogically sound contextually relevant learning strategies and improved learning practice • research on theory and practice in relation to advanced learning practice, especially where these are enabled by new content solutions, vocational, training and educational approaches, or technologies.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • competence is consistently demonstrated over time, and over a range and variety of complex situations • access to required assessment facilities and resources.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate • review of applied projects or learning activities, relating to the research, construction and testing of advanced learning practice for a specific target audience and learning content in a given vocational, training and educational context • direct observation of contextual application of skills

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Future Skills Organisation

EVIDENCE GUIDE
	• oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of constructing and implementing advanced vocational, training and educational learning practice.
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: • BSBINN801A Lead innovative thinking and practice • BSBLED701A Lead personal and strategic transformation • BSBLED702A Lead learning strategy implementation.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.
Learning practice may be:	• applicable pedagogy or learning theories and their relationship to the vocational, training and educational strategies, techniques and approaches that can be used to improve learning
Relevant individuals may include:	• employers • employees, staff • government agencies and departments • industry associations, employer bodies • industry representatives • learners/students • national Industry Skills Councils • professional associations • regulatory, licensing, compliance authorities • research agencies • state and territory industry training advisory bodies • subject or technical specialists and experts

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Future Skills Organisation

	• unions • universities
Appropriate learning theories may include:	• action science • applied learning models • behavioural learning theory • cognitive learning theory • constructivist • discovery learning • humanistic • information processing theory • problem-based • situational • social learning
Instructional design principles may include:	• application of adult learning principles • inclusion of a variety of approaches and techniques for presenting information and activities and for encouraging participation by learning • need for learner activity and interactivity • opportunities for review of material and repetition • presenting material in a logical order and sequence • presenting material in order of increasing difficulty • structuring information effectively

Qualification requirements may include:	• relevant Training Package qualification packaging rules
	• Australian Qualifications Framework (AQF) guidelines for qualifications, including:
	  • key features of each qualification
	  • guidelines for each qualification title
	  • national guidelines on cross-sector linkages
	  • issuing a qualification
	• Australian Quality Training Framework (AQTF) Standards for State and Territory Registering/Course Accrediting Bodies
	• levels and aspects of communication as described in the National Reporting System (NRS)

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Future Skills Organisation

Learner styles may include:	• activist • auditory • global, analytical • kinaesthetic • left and right brain • pragmatist • theoretical • reflective • visual
Learning strategies would include:	• being logical, innovative and engaging to the learner group • establishing the learning context • identifying learner and client needs • identifying the delivery and assessment arrangements • identifying units of competency or other criteria which best reflect these needs • indicating pathways to, from and within the qualification; identifying the operational resources needed to deliver the strategy • outlining the learning framework which has been designed and sequenced to maximise learning • providing a review process both before and after implementation
Training techniques may include:	• demonstration • group, pair and team activities • individual activities • instruction and explanation • practice • questioning • written information
Learner characteristics may include:	• cultural background and needs • employment status • language, literacy and numeracy requirements • level of formal schooling in Australia or overseas • level of maturity • past learning experiences • preferred learning styles • specific needs, physical or psychological

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Future Skills Organisation

RANGE STATEMENT
Research may be compiled through:	• evaluations of existing products • focus groups • informal discussions • internet • interviews • literature reviews • questionnaires • workshops

BSBLED704A Review enterprise e learning systems and solutions implementation

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to design, review and implement advanced enterprise electronic learning (e learning) solutions as a member of a senior management team. The unit covers evaluating trends in e learning in relation to organisational plans, monitoring e learning resources, and ensuring any proposed solutions are tested and evaluated against organisational requirements. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to leaders or managers working to ensure learning can enhance individual, team and organisational capabilities. Managing the introduction of information and communication technology (ICT) to positively affect learning related processes and procedures may involve a complex range of considerations and choices. Processes to oversee and guide the evaluation of e learning technologies and systems are often necessary to support the provision of quality training and assessment services. The unit may relate to learning activities within a small to medium sized organisation or to a significant unit of activity in a large organisation. Leaders in learning can be required to improve how an organisation adopts, modifies or integrates existing ICT learning and related processes.

2. Monitor e learning resource alignment to organisational requirements	2.1. Research trends in teaching methods associated with different types of electronic learning resources 2.2. Determine organisation's strategic and learning requirements 2.3. Analyse and report risks associated with e-learning implementation 2.4. Devise policy and procedures to ensure brief, focus and type of e-learning resources are designed appropriate to organisational requirements 2.5. Establish how international e-learning regimes, human resources and learning policies and procedures will affect the design of e-learning resources
3. Test and evaluate e learning solutions	3.1. Set the parameters for testing e-learning solutions consistent with technical, user and organisational requirements 3.2. Review e-learning resources and e-learning systems or solutions against criteria tied to learner and organisational requirements 3.3. Adjust learning resource design or delivery methods where required to meet changing user and organisational requirements 3.4. Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.
Required skills
• communication skills to: • collaborate and work with vendors and consultants

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Future Skills Organisation

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

- share ideas and information
- seek feedback on e-learning design
- research suitability of learning content for electronic development
- identify constraints, resources, standards and guidelines required to design and developing e-learning resources

- learning-related skills to represent e-learning design in a variety of ways such as:
  - describing learner's pathway through a program to a designer
  - writing e-learning pathways in a report
  - describing e-learning pathways in a sketch or drawing
  - referring to examples of other e-learning products with similar attributes to the desired online outcome
- planning and organising skills to:
  - develop a learning strategy for an organisation
  - anticipate or predict risks
  - plan for contingencies
  - generate options for e-learning resources
- problem-solving, initiative and enterprise skills to:
  - research and analyse learning theory and processes
  - design e-learning resources that meet Australian Quality Training Framework (AQTF) and other formal requirements, for example when designing resources to support endorsed Training Packages
- teamwork skills to collect and respond to user feedback to improve e-learning solutions and resources
- technology skills to:
  - use and understand electronic technology
  - identify international standards regimes and specifications that apply to the design of e-learning
  - confirm the technology to be used for different modes of teaching and learning.

Required knowledge

- assessment instrument and strategy design
- continuous improvement processes
- e-learning resource and systems testing and evaluation strategies
- information technology principles and terminology for example those related to using the internet, reviewing technology capabilities, describing e-learning methodologies and using related vocabulary
- how to create an effective learning experience using electronic technology, for example by using:
  - multiple perspectives
  - opportunities for reflection

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to plan, develop and implement a mentoring program and to review the outcomes for those involved in the program. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to leaders working to ensure learning advances individual and organisational capabilities. The mentoring program may apply to a: particular section or group within an educational organisation (for example, as part of a Registered Training Organisation's professional development activities) specific business purpose or objective within an enterprise whose core business is not education collaborative partnership that spans more than one organisation (such as to advance occupational or industry specific skill needs). This unit may relate equally to small scale learning activities within a small to medium sized organisation or to a significant activity in a large organisation. Leaders in learning must be able to plan, implement, monitor and evaluate a mentoring program that results in learning forged through a defined and active learning partnership with a mentor. The program should develop and use tools that enhance both the learning and the phased relationship, and it should be monitored and evaluated to ensure it explores and meets the mentee's

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to:
  - maintain appropriate relationships with colleagues and individuals in the mentoring program
  - establish trust
  - value and be open to, the opinions of others
  - work as part of a team
  - use active listening techniques
  - negotiate
  - encourage and accept feedback
- language skills to:
  - communicate organisational ideas, policies and procedures
  - encourage participation across all levels of personnel and clients
  - seek opinions and elicit feedback from a range of stakeholders
- planning and organising skills to plan a mentoring program and to schedule mentor-mentee interviews and sessions
- problem-solving skills to select and screen applicants for mentoring program, and to assist with resolution of issues that might arise during the program
- self management skills to evaluate personal effectiveness and to manage own time and resources
- teamwork skills to conduct mentor and mentee selection, and to monitor the progress of mentoring program in a team context
- technology skills to undertake record keeping and reporting using agreed technology, and to complete electronic communication and data sharing.

Required knowledge

- content and data reporting and storage options
- how to complete the required data collection
- legislation, regulations, codes and policies relevant to the organisation's operations and methods for mentoring
- mentoring program design principles
- relevant communication processes and methods
- reporting methods
- requirements for mentoring tools
- screening techniques, and confidentiality and privacy issues.

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
• access to records • filing systems and record management processes • medical coding as required to access and maintain patient records.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • using record and file management systems to ensure organisation and accuracy of practice files • communicating with internal staff and other external health care providers to maintain accuracy of patient data • applying knowledge of the healthcare system, and practice policies and procedures to ensure accessibility of records.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • access to records system • documented procedures • access to an actual workplace or simulated environment • access to office equipment and resources.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate • review of new records created • analysis of responses to case studies and scenarios • demonstration of techniques • observation of presentations

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Future Skills Organisation

EVIDENCE GUIDE
	• oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of workplace emergencies, risks and hazards • observation of performance in role plays • assessment of archived patient files • assessment of recommendations made for improvements to the procedures and processes for maintaining patient records.
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: • other general administration or medical services administration units.

Range Statement

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to manage the performance of staff who report to them directly. Development of key result areas and key performance indicators and standards, coupled with regular and timely coaching and feedback, provide the basis for performance management. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to all managers and team leaders who manage people. It covers work allocation and the methods to review performance, reward excellence and provide feedback where there is a need for improvement. The unit makes the link between performance management and performance development, and reinforces both functions as a key requirement for effective managers. This is a unit that all managers/prospective managers who have responsibility for other employees should strongly consider undertaking.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to develop and monitor implementation of the operational plan to provide efficient and effective workplace practices within the organisation's productivity and profitability plans. Management at a strategic level requires systems and procedures to be developed and implemented to facilitate the organisation's operational plan. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit applies to people who manage the work of others and operate within the parameters of a broader strategic and/or business plan. The task of the manager at this level is to develop and implement an operational plan to ensure that the objectives and strategies outlined in the strategic and/or business plan are met by work teams. However in some larger organisations operational plans may be developed by a strategic planning unit. At this level work will normally be carried out within complex and diverse methods and procedures, which require the exercise of considerable discretion and judgement, using a range of problem solving and decision making strategies.
