Note regarding version identifiers

Version identifiers will assist users to identify changes to units as follows:

- Where the advice is provided that there is ‘Equivalent outcome’, this indicates equivalence between the CHC08 unit and the corresponding units identified in the table from CHC02.
- A ‘version identifier’ of ‘B’, ‘C’, ‘D’ etc indicates that there has been no change to the competency outcome of a unit – even though the unit code and/or title may have changed.
- An ‘A’ ‘version identifier’ indicates that either this is a new unit or a unit which appeared in CHC02, but in which the competency outcome has changed.
Overview

What is a Training Package?

A Training Package is an integrated set of nationally endorsed competency standards, assessment guidelines and Australian Qualifications Framework (AQF) qualifications for a specific industry, industry sector or enterprise.

Each Training Package:

- provides a consistent and reliable set of components for training, recognising and assessing peoples skills, and may also have optional support materials
- enables nationally recognised qualifications to be awarded through direct assessment of workplace competencies
- encourages the development and delivery of flexible training which suits individual and industry requirements
- encourages learning and assessment in a work-related environment which leads to verifiable workplace outcomes.

How do Training Packages fit within the National Skills Framework?
The National Skills Framework applies nationally, is endorsed by the Ministerial Council for Vocational and Technical Education, and comprises the Australian Quality Training Framework 2010 (AQTF 2010), and Training Packages endorsed by the National Quality Council (NQC).

How are Training Packages developed?
Training Packages are developed by Industry Skills Councils or enterprises to meet the identified training needs of specific industries or industry sectors. To gain national endorsement of Training Packages, developers must provide evidence of extensive research, consultation and support within the industry area or enterprise.

How do Training Packages encourage flexibility?
Training Packages describe the skills and knowledge needed to perform effectively in the workplace without prescribing how people should be trained. Training Packages acknowledge that people can achieve vocational competency in many ways by emphasising what the learner can do, not how or where they learned to do it. For example, some experienced workers might be able to demonstrate competency against the units of competency, and even gain a qualification, without completing a formal training program.

With Training Packages, assessment and training may be conducted at the workplace, off-the-job, at a training organisation, during regular work, or through work experience, work placement, work simulation or any combination of these.

Who can deliver and assess using Training Packages?
Training and assessment using Training Packages must be conducted by a Registered Training Organisation (RTO) that has the qualifications or specific units of competency on its scope of registration, or that works in partnership with another RTO, as specified in the AQTF 2010.

Training Package Components
Training Packages are made up of mandatory components endorsed by the NQC, and optional support materials.

Training Package Endorsed Components
The nationally endorsed components include the Competency Standards, Assessment Guidelines and Qualifications Framework. These form the basis of training and assessment in the Training Package and, as such, they must be used.

Competency Standards
Each unit of competency identifies a discrete workplace requirement and includes the knowledge and skills that underpin competency as well as language, literacy and numeracy; and occupational health and safety requirements. The units of competency must be adhered to in training and assessment to ensure consistency of outcomes.

Assessment Guidelines
The Assessment Guidelines provide an industry framework to ensure all assessments meet industry needs and nationally agreed standards as expressed in the Training Package and the AQTF 2010. The Assessment Guidelines must be followed to ensure the integrity of assessment leading to nationally recognised qualifications.

Qualifications Framework
Each Training Package provides details of those units of competency that must be achieved to award AQF qualifications. The rules around which units of competency can be combined to make up a valid AQF qualification in the Training Package are referred to as the 'packaging rules'. The packaging rules must be followed to ensure the integrity of nationally recognised qualifications issued.

Training Package Support Materials
The endorsed components of Training Packages are complemented and supported by optional support materials that provide for choice in the design of training and assessment to meet the needs of industry and learners.
Training Package support materials can relate to single or multiple units of competency, an industry sector, a qualification or the whole Training Package. They tend to fall into one or more of the categories illustrated below.
Training Package support materials are produced by a range of stakeholders such as RTOs, individual trainers and assessors, private and commercial developers and Government agencies.

Training Package, Qualification and Unit of Competency Codes

There are agreed conventions for the national codes used for Training Packages and their components. Always use the correct codes, exactly as they appear in the Training Package, and with the code always before the title.

Training Package Codes

Each Training Package has a unique five-character national code assigned when the Training Package is endorsed, for example XYZ08. The first three characters are letters identifying the Training Package industry coverage and the last two characters are numbers identifying the year of endorsement.

Qualification Codes

Within each Training Package, each qualification has a unique eight-character code, for example XYZ10108. Qualification codes are developed as follows:

- the first three letters identify the Training Package;
- the first number identifies the qualification level (noting that, in the qualification titles themselves, arabic numbers are not used);
- the next two numbers identify the position in the sequence of the qualification at that level; and
- the last two numbers identify the year in which the qualification was endorsed. (Where qualifications are added after the initial Training Package endorsement, the last two numbers may differ from other Training Package qualifications as they identify the year in which those particular qualifications were endorsed.)

Unit of Competency Codes

Within each Training Package, each unit of competency has a unique code. Unit of competency codes are assigned when the Training Package is endorsed, or when new units of competency are added to an existing endorsed Training Package. Unit codes are developed as follows:

- a typical code is made up of 12 characters, normally a mixture of uppercase letters and numbers, as in CHCAOD201D
- the first three characters signify the Training Package – CHC08 Community Services – in the above example and up to eight characters, relating to an industry sector, function or skill area, follow;
- the last character is always a letter and identifies the unit of competency version. An ‘A’ at the end of the code indicates that this is the original unit of competency. ‘B’, or another incremented version identifier means that minor changes have been made. Typically this would mean that wording has changed in the range statement or evidence guide, providing clearer intent; and
- where changes are made that alter the outcome, a new code is assigned and the title is changed.

Training Package, Qualification and Unit of Competency Titles
There are agreed conventions for titling Training Packages and their components. Always use the correct titles, exactly as they appear in the Training Package, and with the code always placed before the title.

Training Package Titles
The title of each endorsed Training Package is unique and relates the Training Packages broad industry coverage.

Qualification Titles
The title of each endorsed Training Package qualification is unique. Qualification titles use the following sequence:

- first, the qualification is identified as either Certificate I, Certificate II, Certificate III, Certificate IV, Diploma, Advanced Diploma, Vocational Graduate Certificate, or Vocational Graduate Diploma;
- this is followed by the words ‘in’ for Certificates I to IV, and ‘of’ for Diploma, Advanced Diploma, Vocational Graduate Certificate and Vocational Graduate Diploma;
- then, the industry descriptor, for example Telecommunications; and
- then, if applicable, the occupational or functional stream in brackets, for example (Computer Systems).

For example: CHC30212 - Certificate III in Aged Care

Unit of Competency Titles
Each unit of competency title is unique. Unit of competency titles describe the competency outcome concisely, and are written in sentence case.

For example: CHCADMIN302D - Provide administrative support

Introduction to the Community Services Training Package

Content of the CHC08 Community Services Training Package
The endorsed components of the CHC08 Community Services Training Package are presented as follows:

- Volume 1 — Training Package Overview and Assessment Guidelines
- Volume 2 — Qualifications Framework
- Volume 3 — Employability Skills Qualification Summaries
- Competency standards are presented as individual files.
  These may be accessed electronically on CD-ROM through hyperlinks from the Qualifications Framework.

The Community Services industry in Australia, like most others, is in the midst of significant ongoing changes that are redefining the workforce and its training needs. The Community Services Training Package must continue to meet these changing needs.

The Community Services Training Package was first endorsed in February 1999. Review of this version focused on:
Introduction to the Community Services Training Package

- Enhancing community capacity, including a strong focus on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander health and well being initiatives
- Importing units of competency to address certain ancillary functions
- Strategies and associated skills in prevention and early intervention as well as crisis intervention and casework
- A trend towards performance measurement.

Since the endorsement of the Community Services Training Package in 2002, social, political, economic and workforce changes have affected both work roles and the skill profiles of workers. This section describes changes and current trends in the community sector and how these have been addressed.

Work in the community sector

The community services sector assists and supports individuals, families and communities in need, contributing to the well being and quality of life of these Australians. Activities within the sector predominantly fall into two categories:

- Direct community service activities provided to individuals and families
- Other community sector activities including working with groups and communities, social planning, advocacy and social action, assistance to other organisations.

There is, however, no agreed approach to defining the community sector industry or workforce either by sector of work, occupation or profession. Many professionals work across sectors and across industries.

A person classified as a community services professional may equally well be employed within other industry sectors. Conversely, people with skills and experience in other occupations may be employed in community services organisations in areas such as administration, management and maintenance work.

In addition it is common practice for people employed in the sector to have a particular professional qualification but to be employed in a job which is classified differently. For example a person qualified for social work may be employed as a child protection worker or as a family support worker.

This lack of agreement and definition regarding the workforce has meant a lack of reliable consistent data with neither ANZSIC or ASCO codes enabling the identification of community services as a distinct area with some sectors being well identified and others not identifiable at all.

Diagram 1 outlines the different ways in which community services work may be classified.

Diagram 1: Classifications of Community Services Work
Introduction to the Community Services Training Package

Community Services Work

By sector e.g.
- Children's services
- Disability work
- Aged care
- Youth work
- Mental health
- Alcohol and other drugs

By client type e.g.
- Child
- Youth
- Person with a disability
- Older person
- Community
- Person in crisis
- Family needing support

By occupation e.g.
- Social worker
- Youth worker
- Community development worker

By client interaction e.g.
- Individual
- Family
- Group
- Community

By business operation e.g.
- Service management
- Service coordination
- Client administration

By service type e.g.
- Personal care
- Support for living
- Advocacy
- Counselling
- Mediation
- Community development
- Intervention
- Case management
One difficulty of working in the community sector is the shortage of usable data regarding the workforce as a whole. While some sections of the workforce have extensive data collected (for example the Australian Department of Families, Community Services and Indigenous Affairs has conducted an annual census of Child Care Services since 1986) other sectors have no consistent data available at all.

In general, however, the community sector workforce has a different profile from the general Australian workforce. In short the community sector workforce is:

- predominantly employed in not-for-profit community based organisations
- predominantly female
- predominantly employed on a part time or casual basis
- predominantly older with a high proportion of workers nearing retirement
- more likely to have a non-school qualification than workers across all industries but have a lower gross weekly income.

It is also worth noting that 12% of employed Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people work in community services or health industries.

The unpaid workforce

The Australian Bureau of Statistics definition of the workforce is based on paid employment, with people engaged in unpaid activities being excluded from their data. However, it is imperative to take into account the unpaid workers in the community sector workforce.

In June 2000 there were 211,700 volunteers\(^2\) working in the community services industry representing an increase of 31% in volunteer numbers since 1996\(^3\). These workers make an important contribution which would have a considerable impact on both the industry and the general community (including Australia’s economic structure) should this contribution cease. Two types of unpaid workers are involved in the delivery of community services, volunteers and unpaid carers. Unpaid carers provide the largest contribution to total time spent providing community and welfare services with 7.4 million households directly caring for relatives and friends\(^4\). Australia’s Welfare 2007 estimated unpaid carers as equivalent to over one million full-time-equivalent workers with an imputed value of unpaid care as $41.4 billion. As with the paid workforce the unpaid workforce is ageing with the average age of volunteers in community services at 53 years; with all volunteers at 44 years.\(^5\)

Characteristics of work in the community services industry

Work in the community services industry reflects a complex inter-relationship of duty of care, ethical behaviours, personal values, service delivery standards, and methodologies.

It involves:

- working with individuals, the family, groups and the community
- focusing on community benefits including maximising community development
- unpaid and paid work
- working successfully with cultural diversity including:
  - females and males across a range of age groups
  - people from linguistically and culturally diverse backgrounds
  - Aboriginal people and Torres Strait Islander people
  - people with mental and other health issues, and those with developmental differences.

Work in the community services industry entails understanding that successful service delivery requires the inter-relationship of individuals, groups and community organisations.

The ethical framework for working in the industry has now largely been formally documented through agreed legislative statutes. All work undertaken in the industry reflects understanding and compliance with relevant local, state, national and international statutory and legislative requirements, including those relating to:

- workplace practices
- human and civil rights
- specific client service delivery.

All work undertaken in the industry needs to comply with accepted industry standards of ethical practice, including those related to:

- client relationships
- financial management
- information collection, storage and dissemination
- workplace behaviours
- operation of community (and other) organisations.

All work undertaken in the industry includes an understanding and application of:

- knowledge about the changing social, economic and political climate as it impacts on the industry
- principles of social justice, human rights, anti-discrimination and confidentiality
- practices to address cross-cultural issues
- relevant OHS and employment equity principles and practices
- principles of non-discriminatory service
- the impact of personal biases and experiences
- individual differences of clients and colleagues, including those relating to cultural, social, economic, physical and health
- consideration of the needs and rights of the individual, the family, the community and society
• a client-centred approach to work
• the diversity of relevant models and practices
• the holistic needs and rights of clients (as individuals and as a community).

Work practices include strategies to empower individuals and groups, promote individual independence, and to respect the rights and dignity of clients and colleagues.

Coverage by the Community Services Training Package

The Community Services Training Package is designed to address the full range of services, modes of delivery and client profiles that are characteristic of the community sector.

Diagram 2 represents an overview of the breadth of coverage of work within the sector and the Training Package, without intending to depict all areas of work.

Diagram 2: Community Services Training Package – Range of Work
Relationship between community services and health

There are many areas of synergy between work in the community sector and in health.

Diagram 3 depicts the relationship between areas of work covered within the Community Services Training Package and areas of work covered within the Health Training Package.

The diagram is not intended to depict all areas of work but to provide an example of the types of relationships.

Stakeholder issues addressed in CHC02 review

The following changes have been made during the review of CHC02 Community Services Training Package to address issues raised by stakeholders and outlined in the Scoping Report for the Project.

- The Training Package has been reorganised to reflect common areas of work and service type to facilitate access and to allow for greater commonality and clearer pathways. Qualifications have been grouped as follows:
  - Pathway qualifications
  - Individual client support qualifications
  - Community services and development qualifications
  - Children’s and youth services qualifications
  - Client services qualifications
  - Qualifications in coordination and management for the community sector
  - Advanced practice qualifications.
- Vocational graduate qualifications have been included in line with industry consultation and areas for further consultation and development have been identified.
- Qualifications and units of competency have been reviewed and streamlined to:
  - meet industry needs now and as far as appropriate into the future
  - provide improved career pathways
  - ensure sufficient flexibility for use across a range of sectors where appropriate
  - facilitate specialised outcomes in line with identified requirements of employers in sectors where this is required and appropriate.
- Skill sets have been explicitly included in line with development priorities identified by industry.
- Critical areas of knowledge for community sector work have been addressed, including human development (child and adult), psychology and sociology. This includes the development of new units of competency as well as clearer articulation in existing units.
- The essential skills and knowledge components of each unit of competency have been given greater emphasis and included in assessment requirements.
- Units of competency which apply across different AQF levels have been identified and revised as required or new units written to support consistent assessment and delivery.
- Where appropriate, common units of competency have been used and/or developed to facilitate clear pathways and better articulation between qualifications, including use of imported units to avoid duplication.
- New unit codes have been assigned to reflect an ‘indicative’ AQF level which identifies the AQF level of qualifications in which they are most commonly packaged.
- Information technology content has been better articulated in existing units of competency and additional units of competency have been imported and/or developed to address information technology knowledge and skills.
- New qualifications and units of competency have been developed to address identified ‘gaps’.

Coverage for specific groups in the industry

The Qualifications Framework has been structured to avoid embedded bias or discrimination for any individuals or groups. The aim is to ensure that:
• entry level qualifications reflect realistic jobs and do not present barriers to new industry entrants by defining unrealistic qualification requirements
• real career pathways and progressions through job roles are identified via the structure of qualifications and the defined scope of coverage of individual units of competency
• where qualifications are structured to include entry requirements, they reflect the needs of the work function without excluding or complicating industry entrance or progression of those who could perform appropriately at the qualification level
• literacy and numeracy requirements identified match job requirements rather than training requirements, with training providers needing to be responsible for tailoring training to meet learner needs
• qualifications and units are culturally inclusive and where necessary identify skills required to work within specific communities or with specific groups
• VETiS (VET in Schools) pathways are available to facilitate transition from school to work
• Australian Apprenticeship pathways are available to provide for structured entry-level pathways and to promote access to industry jobs
• qualifications and units address the needs of unpaid and paid workers in the industry
• qualifications and units are written in a way that will enable flexible delivery of training and assessment to ensure the needs of existing workers are addressed
• specific attention has been given to ensuring the needs of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities will be addressed in the skills development framework.
Qualifications Framework

The Australian Qualifications Framework

What is the Australian Qualifications Framework?
A brief overview of the Australian Qualifications Framework (AQF) follows. For a full explanation of the AQF, see the AQF Implementation Handbook.

The AQF provides a comprehensive, nationally consistent framework for all qualifications in post-compulsory education and training in Australia. In the vocational education and training (VET) sector it assists national consistency for all trainees, learners, employers and providers by enabling national recognition of qualifications and Statements of Attainment.

Training Package qualifications in the VET sector must comply with the titles and guidelines of the AQF. Endorsed Training Packages provide a unique title for each AQF qualification which must always be reproduced accurately.

Qualifications
Training Packages can incorporate the following eight AQF qualifications.

- Certificate I in ...
- Certificate II in ...
- Certificate III in ...
- Certificate IV in ...
- Diploma of ...
- Advanced Diploma of ...
- Vocational Graduate Certificate of ...
- Vocational Graduate Diploma of ...

On completion of the requirements defined in the Training Package, a Registered Training Organisation (RTO) may issue a nationally recognised AQF qualification. Issuance of AQF qualifications must comply with the advice provided in the AQF Implementation Handbook and the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration.

Statement of Attainment
A Statement of Attainment is issued by a Registered Training Organisation when an individual has completed one or more units of competency from nationally recognised qualification(s)/course(s). Issuance of Statements of Attainment must comply with the advice provided in the current AQF Implementation Handbook and the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration.

Under the AQTF 2010, RTOs must recognise the achievement of competencies as recorded on a qualification or Statement of Attainment issued by other RTOs. Given this, recognised competencies can progressively build towards a full AQF qualification.

AQF Guidelines and Learning Outcomes
The AQF Implementation Handbook provides a comprehensive guideline for each AQF qualification. A summary of the learning outcome characteristics and their distinguishing features for each VET related AQF qualification is provided below.

Certificate I

Characteristics of Learning Outcomes
Breadth, depth and complexity of knowledge and skills would prepare a person to perform a defined range of activities most of which may be routine and predictable. Applications may include a variety of employment related skills including preparatory access and participation skills, broad-based induction skills and/or specific workplace skills. They may also include participation in a team or work group.

Distinguishing Features of Learning Outcomes

Do the competencies enable an individual with this qualification to:

- demonstrate knowledge by recall in a narrow range of areas;
- demonstrate basic practical skills, such as the use of relevant tools;
- perform a sequence of routine tasks given clear direction;
- receive and pass on messages/information.

Certificate II

Characteristics of Learning Outcomes

Breadth, depth and complexity of knowledge and skills would prepare a person to perform in a range of varied activities or knowledge application where there is a clearly defined range of contexts in which the choice of actions required is usually clear and there is limited complexity in the range of operations to be applied. Performance of a prescribed range of functions involving known routines and procedures and some accountability for the quality of outcomes. Applications may include some complex or non-routine activities involving individual responsibility or autonomy and/or collaboration with others as part of a group or team.

Distinguishing Features of Learning Outcomes

Do the competencies enable an individual with this qualification to:

- demonstrate basic operational knowledge in a moderate range of areas;
- apply a defined range of skills;
- apply known solutions to a limited range of predictable problems;
- perform a range of tasks where choice between a limited range of options is required;
- assess and record information from varied sources;
- take limited responsibility for own outputs in work and learning.

Certificate III

Characteristics of Learning Outcomes

Breadth, depth and complexity of knowledge and competencies would cover selecting, adapting and transferring skills and knowledge to new environments and providing technical advice and some leadership in resolution of specified problems. This would be applied across a range of roles in a variety of contexts with some complexity in the extent and choice of options available. Performance of a defined range of skilled operations, usually within a range of broader related activities involving known routines, methods and procedures, where some discretion and judgement is required in the section of equipment, services or contingency measures and within known time constraints. Applications may involve some responsibility for others. Participation in teams including group or team co-ordination may be involved.
Distinguishing Features of Learning Outcomes
Do the competencies enable an individual with this qualification to:

- demonstrate some relevant theoretical knowledge
- apply a range of well-developed skills
- apply known solutions to a variety of predictable problems
- perform processes that require a range of well-developed skills where some discretion and judgement is required
- interpret available information, using discretion and judgement
- take responsibility for own outputs in work and learning
- take limited responsibility for the output of others.

Certificate IV
Characteristics of Learning Outcomes
Breadth, depth and complexity of knowledge and competencies would cover a broad range of varied activities or application in a wider variety of contexts most of which are complex and non-routine. Leadership and guidance are involved when organising activities of self and others as well as contributing to technical solutions of a non-routine or contingency nature. Performance of a broad range of skilled applications including the requirement to evaluate and analyse current practices, develop new criteria and procedures for performing current practices and provision of some leadership and guidance to others in the application and planning of the skills. Applications involve responsibility for, and limited organisation of, others.

Distinguishing Features of Learning Outcomes
Do the competencies enable an individual with this qualification to:

- demonstrate understanding of a broad knowledge base incorporating some theoretical concepts
- apply solutions to a defined range of unpredictable problems
- identify and apply skill and knowledge areas to a wide variety of contexts, with depth in some areas
- identify, analyse and evaluate information from a variety of sources
- take responsibility for own outputs in relation to specified quality standards
- take limited responsibility for the quantity and quality of the output of others.

Diploma
Characteristics of Learning Outcomes
Breadth, depth and complexity covering planning and initiation of alternative approaches to skills or knowledge applications across a broad range of technical and/or management requirements, evaluation and co-ordination.
The self directed application of knowledge and skills, with substantial depth in some areas where judgment is required in planning and selecting appropriate equipment, services and techniques for self and others.
Applications involve participation in development of strategic initiatives as well as personal responsibility and autonomy in performing complex technical operations or organising others. It may include participation in teams including teams concerned with planning and evaluation functions. Group or team co-ordination may be involved.

The degree of emphasis on breadth as against depth of knowledge and skills may vary between qualifications granted at this level.

Distinguishing Features of Learning Outcomes

Do the competencies or learning outcomes enable an individual with this qualification to:

- demonstrate understanding of a broad knowledge base incorporating theoretical concepts, with substantial depth in some areas
- analyse and plan approaches to technical problems or management requirements
- transfer and apply theoretical concepts and/or technical or creative skills to a range of situations
- evaluate information, using it to forecast for planning or research purposes
- take responsibility for own outputs in relation to broad quantity and quality parameters
- take some responsibility for the achievement of group outcomes.

Advanced Diploma

Characteristics of Learning Outcomes

Breadth, depth and complexity involving analysis, design, planning, execution and evaluation across a range of technical and/or management functions including development of new criteria or applications or knowledge or procedures.

The application of a significant range of fundamental principles and complex techniques across a wide and often unpredictable variety of contexts in relation to either varied or highly specific functions. Contribution to the development of a broad plan, budget or strategy is involved and accountability and responsibility for self and others in achieving the outcomes is involved.

Applications involve significant judgement in planning, design, technical or leadership/guidance functions related to products, services, operations or procedures.

The degree of emphasis on breadth as against depth of knowledge and skills may vary between qualifications granted at this level.

Distinguishing Features of Learning Outcomes

Do the competencies or learning outcomes enable an individual with this qualification to:

- demonstrate understanding of specialised knowledge with depth in some areas
- analyse, diagnose, design and execute judgements across a broad range of technical or management functions
- generate ideas through the analysis of information and concepts at an abstract level
- demonstrate a command of wide-ranging, highly specialised technical, creative or conceptual skills
- demonstrate accountability for personal outputs within broad parameters
- demonstrate accountability for personal and group outcomes within broad parameters.

Vocational Graduate Certificate

Characteristics of competencies or learning outcomes
The self-directed development and achievement of broad and specialised areas of knowledge and skills, building on prior knowledge and skills.

Substantial breadth and complexity involving the initiation, analysis, design, planning, execution and evaluation of technical and management functions in highly varied and highly specialised contexts.

Applications involve making significant, high-level, independent judgements in major broad or planning, design, operational, technical and management functions in highly varied and specialised contexts. They may include responsibility and broad-ranging accountability for the structure, management and output of the work or functions of others.

The degree of emphasis on breadth, as opposed to depth, of knowledge and skills may vary between qualifications granted at this level.

Distinguishing features of learning outcomes

- Demonstrate the self-directed development and achievement of broad and specialised areas of knowledge and skills, building on prior knowledge and skills.
- Initiate, analyse, design, plan, execute and evaluate major broad or technical and management functions in highly varied and highly specialised contexts.
- Generate and evaluate ideas through the analysis of information and concepts at an abstract level.
- Demonstrate a command of wide-ranging, highly specialised technical, creative or conceptual skills in complex contexts.
- Demonstrate responsibility and broad-ranging accountability for the structure, management and output of the work or functions of others.

Vocational Graduate Diploma

Characteristics of competencies or learning outcomes

- The self-directed development and achievement of broad and specialised areas of knowledge and skills, building on prior knowledge and skills.
- Substantial breadth, depth and complexity involving the initiation, analysis, design, planning, execution and evaluation of major functions, both broad and highly specialised, in highly varied and highly specialised contexts.
- Further specialisation within a systematic and coherent body of knowledge.
- Applications involve making high-level, fully independent, complex judgements in broad planning, design, operational, technical and management functions in highly varied and highly specialised contexts. They may include full responsibility and accountability for all aspects of work and functions of others, including planning, budgeting and strategy development.
- The degree of emphasis on breadth, as opposed to depth, of knowledge and skills may vary between qualifications granted at this level.

Distinguishing features of learning outcomes

- Demonstrate the self-directed development and achievement of broad and highly specialised areas of knowledge and skills, building on prior knowledge and skills.
- Initiate, analyse, design, plan, execute and evaluate major functions, both broad and within highly varied and highly specialised contexts.

- Generate and evaluate complex ideas through the analysis of information and concepts at an abstract level.
- Demonstrate an expert command of wide-ranging, highly specialised, technical, creative or conceptual skills in complex and highly specialised or varied contexts.
- Demonstrate full responsibility and accountability for personal outputs.
- Demonstrate full responsibility and accountability for all aspects of the work or functions of others, including planning, budgeting and strategy.

Qualifications and Packaging Rules

Skill Sets

Definition
Skill sets are defined as single units of competency, or combinations of units of competency from an endorsed Training Package, which link to a licence or regulatory requirement, or defined industry need.

Wording on Statements of Attainment
Skill sets are a way of publicly identifying logical groupings of units of competency which meet an identified need or industry outcome. Skill sets are not qualifications. Where skill sets are identified in a Training Package, the Statement of Attainment can set out the competencies a person has achieved in a way that is consistent and clear for employers and others. This is done by including the wording ‘these competencies meet [insert skill set title or identified industry area] need’ on the Statement of Attainment. This wording applies only to skill sets that are formally identified as such in the endorsed Training Package. See the 2010 edition of the AQF Implementation Handbook for advice on wording on Statements of Attainment. http://www.aqf.edu.au/Portals/0/Documents/Handbook/AQF_Handbook_07.pdf

Skill Sets in this Training Package

This section provides information on Skill Sets within this Training Package, with the following important disclaimer: Readers should ensure that they have also read the part of the Training Package that outlines licensing and regulatory requirements. Where this section is blank, nationally recognised Skill Sets have yet to be identified in this industry.

Two types of skill set have been identified for the community sector:

a) Skill sets that meet identified industry requirements for work in key areas of the community sector. Each of these skill sets has been endorsed by industry as appropriate for people who hold a relevant qualification or commensurate industry skills as evaluated through appropriate recognition of prior learning processes.

b) Skill sets primarily for voluntary work where candidates may not hold an existing qualification.
Units of competency from each skill set are also available individually in qualifications in this Training Package in line with stated Packaging Rules for each qualification. Please note that all requirements included in units of competency making up a skill set must be addressed, including those for pre-requisite and related units.

(a) Skill sets to meet identified industry requirements for specific work
It is important to note that these skill sets have been endorsed by industry as appropriate for people who hold a relevant qualification to enable the candidate to undertake work in the area addressed by the skill set. Skill sets do not replace qualifications as the foundation for undertaking work in the community sector. They enable a qualified worker to move laterally into work areas addressed by the skill set or to broaden their skill base in relation to the services they provide.

Individual client support skill sets
- Alcohol and other drugs skill set
- Basic foot care skill set – health focus
- Basic foot care skill set – community services focus
- Case management skill set
- Chronic disease self management skill set
- Dementia support skill set – service delivery
- Dementia support skill set – planning and coordination
- Disability work skill set – active support of clients with a disability
- Disability work skill set – behaviour support
- Disability work skill set – disability advocacy
- Disability work skill set – disability support in employment
- Disability work skill set – people with a disability who are older
- High support and complex care skill set – aged care
- High support and complex care skill set – disability work
- Leisure and recreation skill set – program support
- Leisure and recreation skill set – planning and delivery
- Management skill set - to promote and establish a Mental Health Peer Workforce
- Mediation skill set
- Medication assistance skill set
- Mental health skill set – including respond to risk of suicide
- Mental health skill set – including recognise individuals at risk
- Mental health peer leadership skill set
- Oral health care skill set – personal client support (community services)
- Oral health care skill set – to work with Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander people
- Oral health care skill set – to work with aged care clients
- Oral health care skill set – to work with children’s services
- Oral health care skill set – to work with people with disability
- Oral health information skill set
- Palliative approach skill set – provide support
- Palliative approach skill set – plan and provide care
- Quality systems skill set for aged and community care sector

Community services and development skill sets
Assessment Guidelines

- Assessment, carer support and respite coordination skill set (community services)
- Development and Humanitarian Assistance – development assistance
- Development and Humanitarian Assistance – humanitarian assistance
- Homelessness support work skill set
- Pastoral care skill set
- Problem gambling skill set
- Social housing work skill set

Children’s and youth services skill sets
- Education support work skill set
- Family support services work (Qld) skill set – provide support
- Family support services work (Qld) skill set – coordination
- Middle childhood development skill set
- Working with families skill set

Client services skill sets
- Career development practice skill set
- Employment services skill set – service delivery
- Employment services skill set – service coordination
- Financial literacy education skill set

Management and leadership skill sets
- Community sector team leadership skill set
- Orientation skill set for managers new to the community sector

Assessment Guidelines

Introduction
These Assessment Guidelines provide the endorsed framework for assessment of units of competency in this Training Package. They are designed to ensure that assessment is consistent with the Australian Quality Training Framework (AQTF) Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration. Assessments against the units of competency in this Training Package must be carried out in accordance with these Assessment Guidelines.

Assessment System Overview
This section provides an overview of the requirements for assessment when using this Training Package, including a summary of the AQTF requirements; licensing and registration requirements; and assessment pathways. Quality assessment underpins the credibility of the vocational education and training sector. The Assessment Guidelines of a Training Package are an important tool in supporting quality assessment.
Assessment within the National Skills Framework is the process of collecting evidence and making judgements about whether competency has been achieved to confirm whether an individual can perform to the standards expected in the workplace, as expressed in the relevant endorsed unit of competency. Assessment must be carried out in accordance with the:

- benchmarks for assessment
- specific industry requirements
- principles of assessment
- rules of evidence
- assessment requirements set out in the AQTF

Benchmarks for Assessment
The endorsed units of competency in this Training Package are the benchmarks for assessment. As such, they provide the basis for nationally recognised Australian Qualifications Framework (AQF) qualifications and Statements of Attainment issued by Registered Training Organisations (RTOs).

Industry Requirements
The following information is relevant for trainers and assessors in working with particular groups in the community services industry.

Assessment of competency will be in accordance with the relevant legislation applying in each state and territory. This will include:

- consumer protection
- anti-discrimination acts and regulations.

In certain circumstances other legislation will also be relevant including:

- poisons
- health
- privacy
- therapeutic goods acts and regulations.

Wherever possible, integrated (holistic) assessment is the preferred means of assessment. Holistic assessment should reflect the grouping of competencies as they would be demonstrated in an actual work role. The context of the assessment is defined in each unit of competency.

Where units of competency have been imported from another Training Package (i.e. the unit code does NOT have the ‘CHC’ prefix), the Registered Training Organisation responsible for the assessment should check the Assessment Guidelines covering those units of competency in their source Training Package.

The community services workforce contains significant numbers of workers from disadvantaged groups. These include:

- people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds
- those using alternative, non-verbal communication (e.g. users of Auslan or Braille)
• Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Australians
• people with various disabilities.

Assessors need to consider the needs of these groups, including the language used and any cultural issues that may affect the response of the person being assessed. Evidence gathering methods must be equitable to all groups of participants. Assessment procedures should also be culturally appropriate for the individual and the situation. Reasonable adjustments are made to assessment procedures for people with special needs such as people with disabilities or with language or literacy difficulties. The language and literacy requirements of the assessment process should not exceed the language and literacy requirements of the particular level of work in the industry. RTOs working with Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander communities are expected to identify the content and the type of training and assessment that is appropriate to the community. It is essential that all components of planning, delivery and evaluation of training and assessment be carried out in consultation with the particular community.

Implementing and supporting the recognition assessment process

The conduct of quality recognition processes is a vital factor to the Community Services industry in being able to meet the challenges of the future. Through quality recognition assessment processes, our industry has the ability to recognise existing skills and competencies, award qualifications and Statements of Attainment to the many thousands of workers in our sector who are highly skilled, but at present have had no avenue to gain a qualification, other than attending courses.

Effective use of the recognition assessment process also:

• allows our industry to identify relevant skills gaps and up-skill our workers in an approach that does not make ‘learning’ a burdensome and repetitive experience
• enables the skills and knowledge they possess to be validated and ‘gap learning needs’ can be identified and provided for either by ongoing ‘on the job learning and assessment’ or by other approaches.

Organised learning can occur:

• in the workplace
• in an educational institution.

Both provide important and valued opportunities for people to learn skills, knowledge and attitudes for work. However, these are not the only ways in which people learn. Individuals gain skills and knowledge through a range of work, study, life and other experiences. Previous learning however achieved, can contribute greatly to a person’s current competence. This has led educators to establish ways in which evidence of such learning may be examined and judged to confirm competence. Alternative terminology to describe this process is Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL). This term focused on previous learning and how this contributed to the person’s current competence. Later processes tended to use the term Recognition of Current Competence or RCC. In this guide, the term Skills Recognition is used as the preferred alternative to RPL and RCC, to describe this important process.
What is skills recognition?
Skills recognition is a process where evidence is collected and a judgment made by an assessor against the requirements of one or more units of competency from a relevant industry Training Package. The judgment is made on evidence provided by learners of the skills and knowledge that they previously learnt through:

- paid work
- unpaid work
- study
- life and other experiences.

Competencies already held by individuals can be formally assessed against the units of competency in this Training Package, and should be recognised regardless of how, when or where they were achieved. In an assessment-only or skills recognition assessment pathway:

- the candidate is supported to provide current, quality evidence of their competency against the relevant unit of competency
- this process may be directed by the candidate and verified by the assessor, such as in the compilation of portfolios; or directed by the assessor, such as through observation of workplace performance and skills application, and oral and/or written assessment
- where the outcomes of this process indicate that the candidate is competent, structured training is not required.

As with all assessment, the assessor must be confident that the evidence indicates that the candidate is currently competent against the endorsed unit of competency. This evidence may take a variety of forms and might include:

- records of workplace training and previous qualifications
- current performance reviews
- workplace documentation (products produced processes followed and implemented)
- assessment of current skills and knowledge
- third party reports and testimonials from current and previous employers, supervisors, trainers, managers and customers or clients
- confirmation of relevant unpaid or volunteer experience.

Best practice skills recognition is a process based on a collaborative partnership to assist learners to recognise valuable skills and knowledge that they may have gained in current and previous life experiences that may include:

- life skills
- volunteer activities
- previous work experience.

In broad terms the skills recognition assessment process involves matching the learner’s job role or previous job roles to what the learner already knows and can do and aligning that to the outcomes of a stated qualification.

- recognition assessment enables learners to focus on developing their skills and knowledge in new areas, rather than relearning what they already know.
- candidates should not be required to repeat learning and/or assessment programs if they can provide evidence that they already have the competency outcomes targeted by these programs.

Benefits of the recognition pathway

Benefits include:

- enabling employees to have their workplace skills and knowledge validated and be acknowledged by gaining a qualification or Statement of Attainment
- identifying skills gaps in individuals or workforce
- assessing the current skills and knowledge of new and existing employees
- assisting with assessing competency requirements of licensing and regulatory bodies
- developing real career pathways for employees.

Access and equity issues in the community sector

Access and equity is an important principle for trainers and assessors in the community sector using the Community Services Training Package. The community sector attracts to its workforce many groups in the general services and support areas that are traditionally disadvantaged in terms of access to employment or to training. The industry is characterised by significant representation by women, casual or part time employees, people with disabilities, people from non-English speaking backgrounds and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples. Additionally, services provided in the industry are highly utilised by these groups and organisations generally have defined policies and practices relating to access and equity.

The following access and equity statement is contained in units of competency specific to the community sector (i.e. with the code prefix CHC):

- All workers in community services should be aware of access, equity and human rights issues in relation to their own area of work
- All workers should develop their ability to work in a culturally diverse environment
- In recognition of particular issues facing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, workers should be aware of cultural, historical and current issues impacting on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- Assessors and trainers must take into account relevant access and equity issues, in particular relating to factors impacting on Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander clients and communities.

The following advice is provided to guide trainers and assessors in interpreting and implementing this statement:

- Awareness of access, equity and cultural diversity issues related to areas of work addressed by each qualification is an essential component of training. In assessment for award of a qualification or Statement of Attainment candidates should be able to demonstrate:
- understanding of issues specific to their area of work relating to access, equity and cultural diversity
- ability to adapt their approach in an appropriate manner in order to promote access and provide equity in their work with clients ability to recognise and respond appropriately where their knowledge and skills are not sufficiently well developed to address needs of a client, due, for example to language or cultural differences.

Whilst it is recognised that there are significant cross-cultural issues faced by many people in Australia, issues impacting on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people have been highlighted in recognition of their status as First Nation people.

All candidates should have at least a broad awareness of relevant cultural, historical and current issues impacting on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people to inform their interactions and to provide a culturally safe work environment for clients.

Where candidates need a higher level of knowledge and skill in this area, they should be referred to detailed units of competency specific to working with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people and/or working in a culturally diverse environment.

In addition, all work in the community sector is to be conducted within a human rights framework. This requires that workers are aware of the rights and responsibilities of all members of the community, including their own, in relation to the work they are undertaking. Trainers and assessors should ensure students are aware of these issues and are able to apply them in the area of work being addressed.

Safety issues in the community sector
Workers in the community sector need to be aware of and able to address both Work Health and Safety (WHS) issues and issues relating to the safety of clients.

- Community sector workers may be required to visit clients in their homes and/or to work in a range of ‘external’ venues, such as schools and community halls.
- Common WHS issues for workers in the community sector involve:
  - manual handling
  - slips and trips
  - exposure to mental (and physical) stress factors
  - violent incidents
  - vehicle accidents
  - falls from a height.

Other WHS issues for community sector workers may include:

- use of equipment, including suitability for purpose and fitness for use as well as electrical hazards such as faulty wiring in equipment
- biological hazards including body fluids, contaminated food, soiled clothing and linen, clinical waste, syringes and other ‘sharps’
- personal threat by clients and/or visitors
- chemicals, such as toxic or hazardous substances, gases and liquids under pressure, includes cleaning chemicals
- work environment (e.g. underfoot, lighting, space, noise, air quality, furniture/fittings, car parking etc)
- work organisation issues such as shift work or irregular hours/on call.

Broad-based WHS units of competency should be customised in delivery and assessment to reflect issues specific to the sector and to the particular work environment.
In addition, community sector workers need to be able to provide appropriate services to clients in relation to issues such as:

- fire safety in the home
- safety of children
- safety of vulnerable clients, including clients identified as at risk of abuse (e.g. children, elderly, disabled and mental health clients).

As well as monitoring these safety issues, ‘appropriate services’ in relation to these aspects of safety may involve providing safety information to clients, carers and staff as well as risk management and reporting or documenting hazards. These aspects of safety are embedded in individual units of competency and, where appropriate, separate units of competency are provided.

Awareness of key and emerging issues in the community sector

Work in the community sector is impacted by ongoing changes in the political and funding environment, in approaches and interventions and in areas of particular client need. Trainers and assessors should ensure candidates are aware of these changes, and in particular the following issues have been identified:

- Complexity of client issues – community sector workers need to be:
  - aware of and able to recognise the complex nature of client issues
  - able to work appropriately with and refer to colleagues to provide good practice services
  - aware of limits of own knowledge and skills and service delivery boundaries

- Incidence of depression – community sector workers need to be:
  - aware of indicators of depression requiring referral

- Chronic diseases – community sector workers need to be:
  - aware of broad impacts of chronic disease on people
  - oriented toward enabling clients in self management.

Training, learning and assessment approaches

Delivery and assessment strategies need to be designed and implemented to enhance and encourage participation by all groups. Trainers and assessors need to be able to identify and address particular needs of different groups. Some specific issues and/or community groupings which trainers and assessors may need to respond to, include:

Long term unemployed or those returning to study, who may:

- require additional support with learning skills
- lack confidence about working and/or study, specifically related to working in the community sector

Gender stereotyping, which may:

- impact on workforce participation patterns
- result in over representation by women in the industry
- result in casual and part time patterns, especially amongst women
- carry implications for skills development and access to training opportunities

People from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds (CALD), who may:

- have language and literacy issues and needs
- require different or extra input and experience of trainers and assessors
- have preferred learning styles and assessment methods
• require sensitivity to cross-cultural issues

People with disabilities, who may:

• require specific training and assessment that is responsive to the particular disability and alternative experiences offered and negotiated
• require trainers and assessors to be sensitive to the impact of the disability on work practices and legislative responsibilities.

Workforce participation patterns
The community sector is often characterised by part time, and casual work patterns. This can impact on access to training and assessment opportunities. Therefore, trainers and assessors need to accommodate individual needs for specific timing and participation.

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander needs
The special needs of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people and communities are recognised as a key focus for the Community Services Training Package. The issues include:

• potential language and literacy needs that impact both clients and workers in the community sector
• impact of rural and isolated communities and experiences on the training, learning and assessment needs
• need for trainers and assessors to be aware of the impact of European colonialism on the experiences of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples
• potential for particular consultative requirements by Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities which may impact the training and assessment experience
• the inclusion (by assessors) of methods which refer to community activities and reflect community culture and standards
• need for trainers and assessors to be conscious of community protocols, codes of ethics and guides to consultation with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and communities
• the impact of cultural safety issues on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander workers in the community sector, both in their work in Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander communities and in mainstream community sector work.

Evidence gathering methods and assessment procedures
These must:

• be equitable to all groups of participants
• be culturally appropriate for the individual and the situation
• enable reasonable adjustments to be made to assessment procedures for people with special needs such as people with disabilities or with language or literacy difficulties
• ensure the language and literacy requirements of the assessment process do not exceed the language and literacy requirements of the particular level and type of work in the industry
• provide outcomes and utilise processes that ensure safety to practice in each particular area of service delivery.
Special considerations in implementing qualifications

It is essential that a student completing a course of training by a RTO, based on the Community Services Training Package, has a sound understanding of the specific regulatory environment in which he/she will be working. The Community Services Training Package has been constructed to ensure coverage of this essential component but the primary responsibility for these lies with the RTO and the course assessor. Trainers and assessors will need to ensure students have a sound understanding of the legal and ethical issues relevant to their work, including:

- duty of care, consent and the principles of negligence
- principles of contract
- duty of confidentiality and privacy legislation
- acceptance of limits of personal competence and the need for appropriate referral of clients to other practitioners
- ethical practice issues, particularly inappropriate client relationships
- limits on practice and boundary/licensing/registration issues with other practitioners
- regulation of advertising and promotion of services under consumer protection legislation including the Trade Practices Act and State/Territory Fair Trading Acts — particularly the provisions relating to misleading and deceptive conduct
- regulation of poisons and therapeutic goods
- regulation of infection control and public health legislation
- food standards and labelling regulations
- complaints resolution and applicability of complaints legislation
- compliance, risk management and insurance
- general business and corporate governance principles (for managers and those setting up a business and trading as such).

Selection of electives

Electives have been grouped to facilitate selection. Some qualifications include units that are ‘recommended’ for selection as electives.

- Where units are ‘recommended’ for selection as electives, the intention is to highlight the relevance of the units in relation to specific areas of work
- They have not been included as ‘compulsory’ because, whilst they may be preferred or even mandated in some jurisdictions or workplaces, they are not required for all work roles covered by the qualification
- In some qualifications, where industry has identified numerous electives, with specific units recommended for particular areas of work, electives are presented in tables
- Employers working in partnership with RTOs should review all aspects of the structure and packaging rules of qualifications relevant to their work area and identify and select electives which address their jurisdictional and work requirements.

Specific requirements for assessment of competence

1. Many qualifications and units of competency in the CHC08 Community Services Training Package have specific requirements relating to assessment involving observation in the workplace and acceptable simulation. Evidence of workplace application should be provided as detailed in the unit of competency. Where observation is undertaken in the workplace for assessment purposes, the assessor must ensure that safety of practice and duty of care requirements are addressed appropriately.
Assessors should clarify and address specific requirements, some of which are outlined and clarified below.
Some units of competency specify as a critical aspect for assessment:
‘Observation of workplace performance is essential for assessment of this unit’.
The intention of this statement is that:

- assessment of the skills and knowledge described in the unit of competency should include observation of workplace performance
- some aspects of ‘workplace performance’ may need to be demonstrated under simulated conditions, which approximate the workplace, in order to address safety requirements or in order to assess skills and knowledge which it may not be possible to assess in the workplace.

Most units of competency specify that a simulated work environment may be used for assessment, with statements such as:

- ‘This unit can be assessed in the workplace, in the community or in relevant simulation’.
- ‘This unit will be most appropriately assessed in the workplace or in a simulated workplace and under the normal range of workplace conditions’.
- ‘Where, for reasons of safety, space, or access to equipment and resources, assessment takes place away from the workplace, the assessment environment should represent workplace conditions as closely as possible’.
- ‘This unit may be assessed on the job using appropriate relevant materials and examples or through an appropriately simulated environment’.
- ‘In cases where the learner does not have the opportunity to cover all categories of the Range Statement in the work environment, the remainder should be assessed through realistic simulations, projects, previous relevant experience or oral questioning on "What if?" scenarios’.
- ‘Assessment of competency may be made through practical demonstration in the work environment or in an industry approved simulated work environment’.
- ‘This unit is best assessed in the workplace or in a realistic simulated workplace setting under the normal range of workplace conditions, for a range of age groups, a range of conditions and over a number of assessment situations’
- ‘Assessment should be on the job and/or related to actual workplace evidence. Simulated situations and hypothetical questioning may be used as a supplement to such assessment if this is necessary to enable the trainee/teacher aide to demonstrate all aspects of the competency’.

2. All CHC units of competency include under ‘Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required’ the following statement:
‘The individual being assessed must provide evidence of specified essential knowledge as well as skills’.
In order to clarify the requirements in assessing listed items of Essential Knowledge, each CHC unit of competency includes the following (or similar) statement:
‘The candidate must be able to demonstrate essential knowledge required to effectively perform task skills; task management skills; contingency management skills and job/role environment skills as outlined in elements and performance criteria of this unit.
These include knowledge of: ’
The implications for assessment are as follows:
• all items of Essential Knowledge should be addressed during the assessment processes
• some items of Essential Knowledge are quite specific, others are more broadly stated
• the assessor must refer to the elements and performance criteria to determine the depth and breadth of coverage of assessment of each item of knowledge
• the assessment should also take into account the particular work application, especially in relation to more generic units of competency and should ensure (for example through questioning) that the candidate has specific knowledge they require in order to:
  • perform the task(s) addressed by the elements and performance criteria
  • manage the task within the broader context of other tasks that need to be performed within the work role
  • manage contingencies that may arise in relation to the task(s), such as unexpected problems, changes in routine, interruptions, faulty equipment or behavioural issues
  • perform the task effectively within the specific work context in line with workplace expectations and requirements.

Similarly, in order to clarify the requirements in assessing listed items of Essential Skills, each CHC unit of competency includes the following (or similar) statements:
‘It is critical that the candidate demonstrate the ability to:
In addition, the candidate must be able to demonstrate relevant task skills; task management skills; contingency management skills and job/role environment skills.
These include the ability to:’
The implications for assessment are as follows:
• all items of Essential Skills should be addressed during the assessment processes
• abilities identified as ‘critical’ must be demonstrated comprehensively to ensure the candidate can perform the work as expressed in the elements and performance criteria
• the ‘additional’ items of Essential Skills tend to be more broadly stated
• the assessment of these items should take into account the particular work application, and should ensure the candidate can demonstrate the ability to:
  • perform the task(s) addressed by the elements and performance criteria
  • manage the task within the broader context of other tasks that need to be performed within
    the work role
  • manage contingencies that may arise in relation to the task(s), such as unexpected problems, changes in routine, interruptions, faulty equipment or behavioural issues
  • perform the task effectively within the specific work context in line with workplace expectations and requirements.

3. All CHC units of competency have now been coded to include an ‘AQF indicator’.
• This is the first of three digits in each unit code (e.g. CHCDIS313A) and it indicates the AQF level of qualification in which the unit is commonly found.
• For example CHCDIS313A Support people with disabilities who are ageing has an AQF indicator of 3, indicating that it would be commonly found in Certificate III level qualifications.
• This indicator is in no way prescriptive, however, and if the work role addressed by a qualification at a higher or lower level requires the skills and knowledge described in this unit of competency, it is appropriate for it to be included in that qualification.

The implications for assessment and delivery are as follows:
• All units of competency should be assessed in accordance with the content of the unit
• The AQF indicator does not indicate that a unit of competency is too high or too low for inclusion in a particular qualification
• The level of qualification in which a unit of competency is included should not influence the way in which the unit is assessed. However, holistic assessment of units within a qualification or skill set provides a context for integrating the skills and knowledge described in a unit of competency into the work role context. For example, the Vocational Graduate Diploma of Community Sector Management includes several compulsory units that are most commonly found in qualifications at lower levels – including CHCOR605B Manage human resources in a community sector organisation and CHCADMIN604B Manage the finances, accounts and resources of an organisation. These two units require skills and knowledge in practical aspects of managing human resources and finances respectively. However, the Vocational Graduate qualification and the work role it prepares people for have a strategic focus, which means that in the context of the higher level qualification, the practical management skills and knowledge from CHCOR605B and CHCADMIN604B must be demonstrated and candidates must also be able to apply those skills and knowledge in a strategic context which is defined in other compulsory units such as CHCMGT803B Provide strategic leadership. Holistic assessment of these units provides this contextual integration.

Principles of Assessment
All assessments carried out by RTOs are required to demonstrate compliance with the principles of assessment:
• validity
• reliability
• flexibility
• fairness
• sufficiency

These principles must be addressed in the:
• design, establishment and management of the assessment system for this Training Package
• development of assessment tools, and
• the conduct of assessment.

Validity
Assessment is valid when the process is sound and assesses what it claims to assess. Validity requires that:
(a) assessment against the units of competency must cover the broad range of skills and knowledge that are essential to competent performance
(b) assessment of knowledge and skills must be integrated with their practical application
(c) judgement of competence must be based on sufficient evidence (that is, evidence gathered on a number of occasions and in a range of contexts using different assessment methods). The specific evidence requirements of each unit of competency provide advice on sufficiency

Reliability
Reliability refers to the degree to which evidence presented for assessment is consistently interpreted and results in consistent assessment outcomes. Reliability requires the assessor to have the required competencies in assessment and relevant vocational competencies (or to assess in conjunction with someone who has the vocational competencies). It can only be achieved when assessors share a common interpretation of the assessment requirements of the unit(s) being assessed.

Flexibility
To be flexible, assessment should reflect the candidate’s needs; provide for recognition of competencies no matter how, where or when they have been acquired; draw on a range of methods appropriate to the context, competency and the candidate; and support continuous competency development.

Fairness
Fairness in assessment requires consideration of the individual candidate’s needs and characteristics, and any reasonable adjustments that need to be applied to take account of them. It requires clear communication between the assessor and the candidate to ensure that the candidate is fully informed about, understands and is able to participate in, the assessment process, and agrees that the process is appropriate. It also includes an opportunity for the person being assessed to challenge the result of the assessment and to be reassessed if necessary.

Sufficiency
Sufficiency relates to the quality and quantity of evidence assessed. It requires collection of enough appropriate evidence to ensure that all aspects of competency have been satisfied and that competency can be demonstrated repeatedly. Supplementary sources of evidence may be necessary. The specific evidence requirements of each unit of competency provide advice on sufficiency. Sufficiency is also one of the rules of evidence.

Rules of Evidence
The rules of evidence guide the collection of evidence that address the principles of validity and reliability, guiding the collection of evidence to ensure that it is valid, sufficient, current and authentic.

Valid
Valid evidence must relate directly to the requirements of the unit of competency. In ensuring evidence is valid, assessors must ensure that the evidence collected supports demonstration of the outcomes and performance requirements of the unit of competency together with the knowledge and skills necessary for competent performance. Valid evidence must encapsulate the breadth and depth of the unit of competency, which will necessitate using a number of different assessment methods.

Sufficient
Sufficiency relates to the quality and quantity of evidence assessed. It requires collection of enough appropriate evidence to ensure that all aspects of competency have been satisfied and that competency can be demonstrated repeatedly. Supplementary sources of evidence may be necessary. The specific evidence requirements of each unit of competency provide advice on sufficiency.
Current
In assessment, currency relates to the age of the evidence presented by a candidate to demonstrate that they are still competent. Competency requires demonstration of current performance, so the evidence collected must be from either the present or the very recent past.

Authentic
To accept evidence as authentic, an assessor must be assured that the evidence presented for assessment is the candidate’s own work.

Assessment Requirements of the Australian Quality Training Framework
Assessment leading to nationally recognised AQF qualifications and Statements of Attainment in the vocational education and training sector must meet the requirements of the AQTF as expressed in the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Registration. The AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration can be downloaded from <www.training.com.au>.

The following points summarise the assessment requirements.

Registration of Training Organisations
Assessment must be conducted by, or on behalf of, an RTO formally registered by a State or Territory Registering Body in accordance with the AQTF. The RTO must have the specific units of competency and/or AQF qualifications on its scope of registration.

Quality Training and Assessment
Each RTO must provide quality training and assessment across all its operations. See the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration, Standard 1.

Assessor Competency Requirements
Each person involved in training and assessment must be competent for the functions they perform. See the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration, Standard 1 for assessor (and trainer) competency requirements. See also the AQTF 2010 Users’ Guide to the Essential Standards for Registration – Appendix 2.

Assessment Requirements
The RTOs assessments, including RPL, must meet the requirements of the relevant endorsed Training Package. See the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration.

Assessment Strategies
Each RTO must have strategies for training and assessment that meet the requirements of the relevant Training Package or accredited course and are developed in consultation with industry stakeholders. See the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration.

National Recognition
Each RTO must recognise the AQF qualifications and Statements of Attainment issued by any other RTO. See the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration.

Access and Equity and Client Outcomes
Each RTO must adhere to the principles of access and equity and maximise outcomes for its clients. See the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration.

Monitoring Assessments
Training and/or assessment provided on behalf of the RTO must be monitored to ensure that it is in accordance with all aspects of the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration.

Recording Assessment Outcomes
Each RTO must manage records to ensure their accuracy and integrity. See the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration.

Issuing AQF qualifications and Statement of Attainment
Each RTO must issue AQF qualifications and Statements of Attainment that meet the requirements of the current AQF Implementation Handbook and the endorsed Training Packages within the scope of its registration. An AQF qualification is issued once the full requirements for a qualification, as specified in the nationally endorsed Training Package are met. A Statement of Attainment is issued when an individual has completed one or more units of competency from nationally recognised qualification(s)/course(s). See the AQTF and the edition of the AQF Implementation Handbook—available on the AQF Council website <www.aqf.edu.au>.

Licensing/Registration Requirements
This section provides information on licensing/registration requirements for this Training Package, with the following important disclaimer:
Licensing and registration requirements that apply to specific industries, and vocational education and training, vary between each State and Territory, and can regularly change. The developers of this Training Package consider that the licensing/registration requirements described in this section apply to RTOs, assessors or candidates with respect to this Training Package. While reasonable care has been taken in its preparation, the developers of this Training Package and the Department cannot guarantee that the list is definitive or accurate at the time of reading; the information in this section is provided in good faith on that basis.
Contact the relevant State or Territory Department(s) to check if the licensing/registration requirements described below still apply, and to check if there are any others with which you must comply. For further information contact the Community Services and Health Industry Skills Council www.cshisc.com.au.

Requirements for Assessors
In order to conduct assessment for statutory licensing or other industry registration requirements, RTOs and assessors must meet the requirements outlined in the following chart, in addition to the AQTF/NVR requirements.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Qualification</th>
<th>License/Registration</th>
<th>Jurisdiction</th>
<th>Requirements</th>
</tr>

<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Certificate IV in Celebrancy</td>
<td>Commonwealth Attorney General’s Department requirements for registration of Marriage Celebrants</td>
<td>All states and territories</td>
<td>RTOs must check requirements for candidates seeking registration as marriage celebrants</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

Requirements for Candidates
Individuals being assessed under statutory licensing and industry registration systems must comply with training and experience requirements additional to the minimum requirements identified in this Training Package. In most cases compliance with these requirements is a pre-requisite to gaining employment. These additional requirements should be checked with the relevant licensing body.

Mutual recognition of licensing/registration arrangements between states and territories
In most cases a candidate will undertake assessment for a qualification, obtain registration and then employment in a particular jurisdiction. If a candidate wishes to seek employment in another jurisdiction they must check that their license to practice/authority for employment applies to the new jurisdiction. In some cases there may be additional requirements. Similarly RTOs offering assessment to candidates from more than one state or territory may be required to meet different requirements in order to ensure employability of candidates.

Pathways

The competencies in this Training Package may be attained in a number of ways including through:

- formal or informal education and training
- experiences in the workplace
- general life experience, and/or
- any combination of the above.

Assessment under this Training Package leading to an AQF qualification or Statement of Attainment may follow a learning and assessment pathway, or a recognition pathway, or a combination of the two as illustrated in the following diagram.

Units of Competency

Learning and Assessment Pathways

and/or

Credit Pathways
(RPL and Credit Transfer)

Statement of Attainment and/or qualification under the Australian Qualifications Framework
Each of these assessment pathways leads to full recognition of competencies held – the critical issue is that the candidate is competent, not how the competency was acquired. Assessment, by any pathway, must comply with the assessment requirements set out in the Assessment Guidelines of the Training Package, the AQTF and, where relevant, the Australian Qualifications Framework.

Learning and Assessment Pathways

Usually, learning and assessment are integrated, with evidence being collected and feedback provided to the candidate at anytime throughout the learning and assessment process. Learning and assessment pathways may include structured programs in a variety of contexts using a range of strategies to meet different learner needs. Structured learning and assessment programs could be: group-based, work-based, project-based, self-paced, action learning-based; conducted by distance or e-learning; and/or involve practice and experience in the workplace.

Learning and assessment pathways to suit Australian Apprenticeships have a mix of formal structured training and structured workplace experience with formative assessment activities through which candidates can acquire and demonstrate skills and knowledge from the relevant units of competency.

Credit Pathways

Credit is the value assigned for the recognition of equivalence in content between different types of learning and/or qualifications which reduces the volume of learning required to achieve a qualification.

Credit arrangements must be offered by all RTOs that offer Training Package qualifications. Each RTO must have a systematic institutional approach with clear, accessible and transparent policies and procedures.

Competencies already held by individuals can be formally assessed against the units of competency in this Training Package, and should be recognised regardless of how, when or where they were acquired, provided that the learning is relevant to the unit of competency outcomes.

Recognition of Prior Learning

Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL) is an assessment process which determines the credit outcomes of an individual application for credit.

The availability of Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL) provides all potential learners with access to credit opportunities.

The recognition of prior learning pathway is appropriate for candidates who have previously attained skills and knowledge and who, when enrolling in qualifications, seek to shorten the duration of their training and either continue or commence working. This may include the following groups of people:

- existing workers;
- individuals with overseas qualifications;
- recent migrants with established work histories;
Assessment Guidelines

- people returning to the workplace; and
- people with disabilities or injuries requiring a change in career.

As with all assessment, RPL assessment should be undertaken by academic or teaching staff with expertise in the subject, content of skills area, as well as knowledge of and expertise in RPL assessment policies and procedures.

Assessment methods used for RPL should provide a range of ways for individuals to demonstrate that they have met the required outcomes and can be granted credit. These might include:

- questioning (oral or written)
- consideration of a portfolio and review of contents
- consideration of third party reports and/or other documentation such as documentation such as articles, reports, project material, papers, testimonials or other products prepared by the RPL applicant that relate to the learning outcomes of the relevant qualification component
- mapping of learning outcomes from prior formal or non-formal learning to the relevant qualification components
- observation of performance, and
- participation in structured assessment activities the individual would normally be required to undertake if they were enrolled in the qualification component/s.

In a Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL) pathway, the candidate provides current, quality evidence of their competency against the relevant unit of competency. This process may be directed by the candidate and verified by the assessor. Where the outcomes of this process indicate that the candidate is competent, structured training is not required. The RPL requirements of the AQTF must be met.

As with all assessment, the assessor must be confident that the evidence indicates that the candidate is currently competent against the endorsed unit of competency. This evidence may take a variety of forms and might include certification, references from past employers, testimonials from clients, work samples and/or observation of the candidate. The onus is on candidates to provide sufficient evidence to satisfy assessors that they currently hold the relevant competencies. In judging evidence, the assessor must ensure that the evidence of prior learning is:

- authentic (the candidate’s own work);
- valid (directly related to the current version of the relevant endorsed unit of competency);
- reliable (shows that the candidate consistently meets the endorsed unit of competency);
- current (reflects the candidate’s current capacity to perform the aspect of the work covered by the endorsed unit of competency); and
- sufficient (covers the full range of elements in the relevant unit of competency and addresses the four dimensions of competency, namely task skills, task management skills, contingency management skills, and job/role environment skills).

Credit Transfer

Credit transfer is a process which provides learners with agreed and consistent credit outcomes based on equivalences in content between matched qualifications.
This process involves education institutions:

- mapping, comparing and evaluating the extent to which the defined learning outcomes and assessment requirements of the individual components of one qualification are equivalent to the learning outcomes and assessment requirements of the individual components of another qualification
- making an educational judgment of the credit outcomes to be assigned between the matched components of the two qualifications
- setting out the agreed credit outcomes in a documented arrangement or agreement, and
- publicising the arrangement/agreement and credit available.

Combination of Pathways

Credit may be awarded on the basis of a combination of credit transfer plus an individual RPL assessment for additional learning. Once credit has been awarded on the basis of RPL, subsequent credit transfer based on these learning outcomes should not include revisiting the RPL assessment but should be based on credit transfer or articulation or other arrangements between providers.

Where candidates for assessment have gained competencies through work and life experience and gaps in their competence are identified, or where they require training in new areas, a combination of pathways may be appropriate. In such situations, the candidate may undertake an initial assessment to determine their current competency. Once current competency is identified, a structured learning and assessment program ensures that the candidate acquires the required additional competencies identified as gaps.

Assessor Requirements

This section identifies the specific requirements on the vocational competence and experience for assessors, to ensure that they meet the needs of industry and their obligations under AQTF, and clarifies how others may contribute to the assessment process where one person alone does not hold all the required competencies.

Assessor Competencies

The AQTF specifies mandatory competency requirements for assessors. For information, Element 1.4 from the AQTF 2007 Essential Standards for Registration follows:

1.4  Training and assessment are conducted by trainers and assessors who:

a) have the necessary training and assessment competencies as determined by the National Quality Council or its successors, and
b) have the relevant vocational competencies at least to the level being delivered or assessed, and
c) can demonstrate current industry skills directly relevant to the training/assessment being undertaken, and
d) continue to develop their Vocational Education and Training (VET) knowledge and skills as well as their industry currency and trainer/assessor competence.

* See AQTF 2010 Users’ Guide to the Essential Standards for Registration – Appendix 2

Designing Assessment Tools

This section provides an overview on the use and development of assessment tools.

Use of Assessment Tools

Assessment tools provide a means of collecting the evidence that assessors use in making judgements about whether candidates have achieved competency.

There is no set format or process for the design, production or development of assessment tools. Assessors may use prepared assessment tools, such as those specifically developed to support this Training Package, or they may develop their own.

Using Prepared Assessment Tools

If using prepared assessment tools, assessors should ensure these relate to the current version of the relevant unit of competency. The current unit of competency can be checked on the National Register <www.ntis.gov.au>.

Developing Assessment Tools

When developing their own assessment tools, assessors must ensure that the tools:

- are benchmarked against the relevant unit or units of competency;
- are reviewed as part of the validation of assessment strategies required under the AQTF; and
- meet the assessment requirements expressed in the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration.

A key reference for assessors developing assessment tools is TAE10 Training and Education Training Package.

Language, Literacy and Numeracy

The design of assessment tools must reflect the language, literacy and numeracy competencies required for the performance of a task in the workplace and not exceed these expectations.

Conducting Assessment

This section details the mandatory assessment requirements and provides information on equity in assessment including reasonable adjustment.
Mandatory Assessment Requirements

Assessments must meet the criteria set out in the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration. For information, the mandatory assessment requirements from Standard 1 from the AQTF 2010 Essential Standards for Initial and Continuing Registration are as follows:

1.5 Assessment, including Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL):
   a) meets the requirements of the relevant Training Package or accredited course
   b) is conducted in accordance with the principles of assessment and the rules of evidence
   c) meets workplace and, where relevant, regulatory requirements
   d) is systematically validated.

Assessment of Employability Skills

Employability Skills are integral to workplace competency. As such, they must be considered in the design, customisation, delivery and assessment of vocational education and training programs in an integrated and holistic way, as represented diagrammatically below.
Employability Skills are embedded within each unit of competency, and an Employability Skills Summary is available for each qualification. Training providers must use Employability Skills information in order to design valid and reliable training and assessment strategies. This analysis could include:

- reviewing units of competency to locate relevant Employability Skills and determine how they are applied within the unit
- analysing the Employability Skills Summary for the qualification in which the unit or units are packaged to help clarify relevant industry and workplace contexts and the application of Employability Skills at that qualification outcome
- designing training and assessment to address Employability Skills requirements.

The endorsed approach includes learners downloading qualification specific Employability Skills Summaries for Training Package qualifications from an online repository at <http://employabilityskills.training.com.au>

For more information on Employability Skills in Community Services Training Packages go to the Community Services and Health website at www.cshisc.com.au

Employability Skills are reported on each qualification using the following statement on the qualification testamur: "A summary of the Employability Skills developed through this qualification can be downloaded from http://employabilityskills.training.com.au"

Access and Equity
An individual’s access to the assessment process should not be adversely affected by restrictions placed on the location or context of assessment beyond the requirements specified in this Training Package: training and assessment must be bias-free.

Under the rules for their development, Training Packages must reflect and cater for the increasing diversity of Australia’s VET clients and Australia’s current and future workforce. The flexibilities offered by Training Packages should enhance opportunities and potential outcomes for all people so that we can all benefit from a wider national skills base and a shared contribution to Australia’s economic development and social and cultural life.

Reasonable Adjustments
It is important that education providers take meaningful, transparent and reasonable steps to consult, consider and implement reasonable adjustments for students with disability. Under the Disability Standards for Education 2005, education providers must make reasonable adjustments for people with disability to the maximum extent that those adjustments do not cause that provider unjustifiable hardship. While ‘reasonable adjustment’ and ‘unjustifiable hardship’ are different concepts and involve different considerations, they both seek to strike a balance between the interests of education providers and the interests of students with and without disability.
An adjustment is any measure or action that a student requires because of their disability, and which has the effect of assisting the student to access and participate in education and training on the same basis as students without a disability. An adjustment is reasonable if it achieves this purpose while taking into account factors such as the nature of the student’s disability, the views of the student, the potential effect of the adjustment on the student and others who might be affected, and the costs and benefits of making the adjustment. An education provider is also entitled to maintain the academic integrity of a course or program and to consider the requirements or components that are inherent or essential to its nature when assessing whether an adjustment is reasonable. There may be more than one adjustment that is reasonable in a given set of circumstances; education providers are required to make adjustments that are reasonable and that do not cause them unjustifiable hardship. The Training Package Guidelines provides more information on reasonable adjustment, including examples of adjustments. Go to http://www.deewr.gov.au/tpdh/Pages/home.aspx.

General Resources

For general information and resources go to http://www.training.com.au/

The National Register is an electronic database providing comprehensive information about RTOs, Training Packages and accredited courses - <www.ntis.gov.au>

Assessment Resources
Registered training organisations (RTOs) are at the forefront of vocational education and training (VET) in Australia. They translate the needs of industry into relevant, quality, client-focused training and assessment.
RTOs should strive for innovation in VET teaching and learning practices and develop highly flexible approaches to assessment which take cognisance of specific needs of learners, in order to improve delivery and outcomes of training.

Resources can be purchased or accessed from:
- TVET Australia – provides an integrated service to enable users of the national training system to identify and acquire training materials, identify copyright requirements and enter licenses for use of that material consistent with the scope and direction of the NQC.

Competency Standards

What is competency?
The broad concept of industry competency concerns the ability to perform particular tasks and duties to the standard of performance expected in the workplace. Competency requires the application of specified skills, knowledge and attitudes relevant to effective participation in an industry, industry sector or enterprise.

Competency covers all aspects of workplace performance and involves performing individual tasks; managing a range of different tasks; responding to contingencies or breakdowns; and, dealing with the responsibilities of the workplace, including working with others. Workplace competency requires the ability to apply relevant skills, knowledge and attitudes consistently over time and in the required workplace situations and environments. In line with this concept of competency, Training Packages focus on what is expected of a competent individual in the workplace as an outcome of learning, rather than focussing on the learning process itself.

Competency standards in Training Packages are determined by industry to meet identified industry skill needs. Competency standards are made up of a number of units of competency, each of which describes a key function or role in a particular job function or occupation. Each unit of competency within a Training Package is linked to one or more AQF qualifications.

Contextualisation of Units of Competency by RTOs

Registered Training Organisations (RTOs) may contextualise units of competency in this endorsed Training Package to reflect required local outcomes. Contextualisation could involve additions or amendments to the unit of competency to suit particular delivery methods, learner profiles, specific enterprise equipment requirements, or to otherwise meet local needs. However, the integrity of the overall intended outcome of the unit of competency must be maintained.

Any contextualisation of units of competency in this Training Package must be within the bounds of the following advice:

- RTOs must not remove or add to the number and content of elements and performance criteria.
- RTOs can include specific industry terminology in the range statement.
- Any amendments and additions to the range statement made by RTOs must not diminish the breadth of application of the competency, or reduce its portability.
- RTOs may add detail to the evidence guide in areas such as the critical aspects of evidence or required resources and infrastructure—but only where these expand the breadth of the competency and do not limit its use.

Components of Units of Competency

The components of units of competency are summarised below, in the order in which they appear in each unit of competency.

Unit Title

The unit title is a succinct statement of the outcome of the unit of competency. Each unit of competency title is unique, both within and across Training Packages.
Unit Descriptor
The unit descriptor broadly communicates the content of the unit of competency and the skill area it addresses. Where units of competency have been contextualised from units of competency from other endorsed Training Packages, summary information is provided. There may also be a brief second paragraph that describes its relationship with other units of competency, and any licensing requirements.

Employability Skills
This sub-section contains a statement that the unit contains Employability skills.

Pre-requisite Units (optional)
If there are any units of competency that must be completed before the unit, these will be listed.

Application of the Unit
This sub-section fleshes out the unit of competency’s scope, purpose and operation in different contexts, for example, by showing how it applies in the workplace.

Competency Field (Optional)
The competency field either reflects the way the units of competency are categorised in the Training Package or denotes the industry sector, specialisation or function. It is an optional component of the unit of competency.

Sector (optional)
The industry sector is a further categorisation of the competency field and identifies the next classification, for example an elective or supervision field.

Elements of Competency
The elements of competency are the basic building blocks of the unit of competency. They describe in terms of outcomes the significant functions and tasks that make up the competency.

Performance Criteria
The performance criteria specify the required performance in relevant tasks, roles, skills and in the applied knowledge that enables competent performance. They are usually written in passive voice. Critical terms or phrases may be written in bold italics and then defined in range statement, in the order of their appearance in the performance criteria.

Required Skills and Knowledge
The essential skills and knowledge are either identified separately or combined. Knowledge identifies what a person needs to know to perform the work in an informed and effective manner. Skills describe the application of knowledge to situations where understanding is converted into a workplace outcome.

Range Statement
The range statement provides a context for the unit of competency, describing essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment, depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts. As applicable, the meanings of key terms used in the performance criteria will also be explained in the range statement.

Evidence Guide
The evidence guide is critical in assessment as it provides information to the Registered Training Organisation (RTO) and assessor about how the described competency may be demonstrated. The evidence guide does this by providing a range of evidence for the assessor to make determinations, and by providing the assessment context. The evidence guide describes:

- conditions under which competency must be assessed including variables such as the assessment environment or necessary equipment;
- relationships with the assessment of any other units of competency;
- suitable methodologies for conducting assessment including the potential for workplace simulation;
- resource implications, for example access to particular equipment, infrastructure or situations;
- how consistency in performance can be assessed over time, various contexts and with a range of evidence; and
- the required underpinning knowledge and skills

Employability Skills in Units of Competency
The detail and application of Employability Skills facets will vary according to the job-role requirements of each industry. In developing Training Packages, industry stakeholders are consulted to identify appropriate facets of Employability Skills which are incorporated into the relevant units of competency and qualifications.

Employability Skills are not a discrete requirement contained in units of competency (as was the case with Key Competencies). Employability Skills are specifically expressed in the context of the work outcomes described in units of competency and will appear in elements, performance criteria, range statements and evidence guides. As a result, users of Training Packages are required to review the entire unit of competency in order to accurately determine Employability Skills requirements.

How Employability Skills relate to the Key Competencies
The eight nationally agreed Employability Skills now replace the seven Key Competencies in Training Packages. Trainers and assessors who have used Training Packages prior to the introduction of Employability Skills may find the following comparison useful.

Employability Skills  Mayer Key Competencies

When analysing the above table it is important to consider the relationship and natural overlap of Employability Skills. For example, using technology may involve communication skills and combine the understanding of mathematical concepts.

Explicitly embedding Employability Skills in units of competency

This Training Package seeks to ensure that industry-endorsed Employability Skills are explicitly embedded in units of competency. The application of each skill and the level of detail included in each part of the unit will vary according to industry requirements and the nature of the unit of competency.

Employability Skills must be both explicit and embedded within units of competency. This means that Employability Skills will be:

- embedded in units of competency as part of the other performance requirements that make up the competency as a whole
- explicitly described within units of competency to enable Training Packages users to identify accurately the performance requirements of each unit with regards to Employability Skills.

This Training Package also seeks to ensure that Employability Skills are well-defined and written into units of competency so that they are apparent, clear and can be delivered and assessed as an essential component of unit work outcomes.

Sample unit of competency components showing Employability Skills

The following table shows the sequence of a unit of competency, and each cell contains text taken from a range of units. It provides examples of where and how various Employability Skills could be embedded in each component.

Please note that in the example, the bracketed Employability Skills are provided for clarification only and would not be present in units of competency within this Training Package.

| Unit Title | Give formal presentations and take part in meetings (Communication) |
This unit covers the skills and knowledge required to promote the use and implementation of innovative work practices to effect change. (Initiative and enterprise)

Element
Proactively resolve issues. (problem solving)

Performance Criteria
Information is organised in a format suitable for analysis and dissemination in accordance with organisational requirements. (Planning and organising)

Range Statement
Software applications may include email, internet, word processing, spreadsheet, database or accounting packages. (technology)

Modify activities depending on differing workplace contexts, risk situations and environments. (Learning)

Required Skills and Knowledge
Work collaboratively with others during a fire emergency. (teamwork)

Instructions, procedures and other information relevant the maintenance of vessel and port security. (Communication)

Evidence of having worked constructively with a wide range of community groups and stakeholders to solve problems and adapt or design new solutions to meet identified needs in crime prevention. In particular, evidence must be obtained on the ability to:

- assess response options to identified crime-prevention needs and determine the optimal action to be implemented
- in consultation with relevant others, design an initiative to address identified issues. (Initiative and enterprise).

Employability Skills Summaries and units of competency
An Employability Skills Summary exists for each qualification. Summaries include broad advice on industry expectations with regard to Employability Skills at the qualification level. Summaries should be used by trainers and assessors to assist in identifying the Employability Skills requirements contained within units of competency.

Training Package pathways

Pathways in the Community Services Training Package are articulated in terms of:

- qualification entry requirements
- pre-requisite requirements of individual units of competency
- training and assessment pathways
- after training.
Qualification entry requirements

There are no entry requirements for qualifications at Certificate I, II and III levels. Whilst vocational opportunities are available for ‘Pathway qualifications’ identified at these levels, entry to the workforce is in general available through qualifications targeted to specific work areas at Certificate III level and above.

Where entry requirements are articulated for qualifications, these requirements have been structured to provide a flexible pathway that meets industry requirements.

For example, candidates may enter work roles in aged care and in home and community care with a Certificate III qualification and at some stage build on that qualification to move into service coordination or more advanced care roles. Alternatively, they are able to enter at Certificate IV level by meeting the articulated entry requirements, which build on relevant competencies from Certificate III level or equivalent.

In some areas, such as community development, advocacy and youth work, entry level to specific work roles is at Certificate IV level and, whilst no specific entry requirements are articulated for qualifications in these areas, candidates are expected to have sufficient life and/or work experience to indicate likely success in a qualification at this level.

In other areas of the community sector, such as counselling, entry level to the workforce is a qualification at diploma level and stated entry requirements for such qualifications are stated broadly to provide guidance to candidates, employers and Registered Training Organisations (RTOs).

Cross sector pathways

There is considerable skill and knowledge overlap between sectors of the community services industry. For example, many workers from a range of sectors (such as social housing, disability and employment services) may require some competencies in working with people who have mental health and/or alcohol and other drugs issues.

The identification of skill sets in this qualifications framework supports the acquisition of industry recommended skills and knowledge, which allow workers to expand laterally into other areas of work and which may be also provide lateral pathways between qualifications.

Unit of competency pre-requisite requirements

Some individual units of competency have specified pre-requisite units, which also impacts qualification pathways. These requirements are included in the individual units of competency and, in specific cases, are stated as part of the qualification structure as a reminder where pre-requisites are attached to units of competency considered likely to be selected as electives.

Pre-requisites have been minimised to avoid unnecessary complication in selecting electives, whilst ensuring the requisite skills and knowledge are acquired.
Whilst holistic assessment of units is highly recommended at the qualification level, it is notable that several units of competency also include specific identification of ‘Related units’ which are recommended to be assessed in conjunction with each other.

Training and assessment pathways

Qualifications in this Training Package may be achieved through a range of pathways, including the following components individually or in combination:

- work-based training and assessment
- institution-based training and assessment
- recognition assessment, including Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL) and Recognition of Current Competence (RCC).

Work application requirements

Whilst all units of competency require assessment of the application of skills and knowledge in either actual or simulated work contexts, some qualifications, such as the Diploma of Community Services Work and Vocational Graduate level qualifications include specific ‘Work application requirements’ to ensure candidates are ‘work ready’.

Post-training pathways

Some areas addressed by qualifications in the Community Services Training Package provide specific pathways to higher AQF level qualifications. For example, in education support, youth work and youth justice.

Pathways are also available into qualifications in the Health Training Package in areas such as allied health assistance and enrolled nursing.

Further study may also be undertaken in the higher education sector, for example, in areas such as social work and education.

Eligibility for membership of professional associations

Successful completion of some qualifications in the Community Services Training Package may provide a pathway into relevant professional associations. For example:

- workers who have completed the Diploma of Community Services Work may be eligible for membership of the Australian Institute of Welfare and Community Workers (AIWCW) after completing the AIWCW work placement requirements
- workers holding a qualification in Employment Services at Certificate III, IV or Diploma level may be eligible for membership in the National Employment Services Association (NESA), the peak body for providers of employment services
- workers holding the Certificate IV in Career Development may be eligible for associate membership of professional associations that are member organisations of the Career Industry Council of Australia (CICA)
- workers holding the Vocational Graduate Certificate in Career Development Practice may be eligible for professional membership of professional associations that are member organisations of the Career Industry Council of Australia (CICA).
Australian Apprenticeships

Qualifications in the Community Services Training Package may be achieved by a variety of pathways and delivery methods, either on-the-job or through a combination of on- and off-the-job training and recognition processes.

With the exception of Certificate I in Work Preparation (Community services) (the main objective of which is to facilitate VET in Schools and initial entry to the industry) all other qualifications may be achieved through contracted training, including Australian Apprenticeships.

Certificates I, II and III in Active Volunteering provide foundation skills and knowledge for volunteer work in a range of industries and, whilst they may also provide pathways into a range of work areas, they may not be appropriate Australian Apprenticeship pathways.

The Certificate IV in Celebrancy may not be appropriate for an Australian Apprenticeship pathway because it largely provides entry to work as a sole trader in an area of work where there is limited demand.

Qualifications at AQF levels II, III and IV in particular facilitate Australian Apprenticeship pathways. They provide a range of entry points to work in the community sector and promote efficient use of learning strategies and articulating arrangements. Qualifications at Diploma level also provide entry points to some areas of work in the community sector and therefore facilitate Australian Apprenticeship pathways.

Some higher level qualifications also provide entry to work for graduates with higher education qualifications and therefore facilitate Australian Apprenticeship pathways. These qualifications include Vocational Graduate Certificate in Community Services Practice (Statutory child protection) and Vocational Graduate Certificate in Community Services Practice (Client assessment and case management).

Registered Training Organisations should contact relevant jurisdictional agencies to clarify available support for implementation of these qualifications.

NOTE:

In the diagrams below, solid arrows (→) show direct relationships between qualifications and broken arrows (-----→) indicate less direct pathways. The arrows simply indicate that learners may progress from one qualification to another, by building on acquired skills and knowledge and do not infer that one qualification is required for entry to another.

Introduction to the Employability Skills Qualification Summaries

The Employability Skills Qualification Summaries included in this volume are based on the Employability Skills Framework identified as appropriate for the CHC08 Community Services Training Package. The facets included in the framework are deemed to apply generally to work in the community services industry, with specific customisation required to address work at different levels and sectors of the industry.

Customisation for CHC08 Training Package

The Employability Skills Qualification Summaries include all facets listed in the Employability Skills Framework, but have been customised to reflect specific qualification requirements:

- Any facets not required for work to which that qualification may apply have been crossed out (text appears with a line through it).
- Where facets contain inappropriate words they have been crossed out.
- Additional or replacement words are added (in bold italics) to existing facets:
  - where they are more appropriate
  - in order to clarify how that facet applies for that qualification.

EMPLOYABILITY SKILLS

FACETS ADDRESSED:

Industry/enterprise requirements for this qualification include the following facets:

6. Working within [or establishing] clear work goals and deliverables
7. Determining or applying required resources (\textit{ie. within scope of own role})
8. Allocating people and other resources to tasks and workplace requirements \[\star\]
9. Managing time and priorities (\textit{ie. in relation to tasks required for own role})\[\star\]
10. Adapting resource allocations to cope with contingencies (\textit{ie. if relevant to own role})\[\star\]

Self management

1. Being self-motivated (\textit{ie. in relation to requirements of own work role})
2. Articulating own ideas and vision (\textit{ie. within a team or supervised work context})\[\star\]
3. Balancing own ideas and values and vision with workplace values and requirements \[\star\]
4. Monitoring and evaluating own performance (\textit{ie. within a team or supervised work context})\[\star\]
5. Taking responsibility at the appropriate level

Learning

1. Being open to learning new ideas and techniques
2. Learning in a range of settings including informal learning
3. Participating in ongoing learning
4. Learning in order to accommodate change \[\star\]
5. Learning new skills and techniques
6. Taking responsibility for own learning (\textit{ie. within scope of own work role})
7. Contributing to the learning of others (\textit{eg. by sharing information})\[\star\]
8. Applying a range of learning approaches (\textit{ie. as provided})\[\star\]
9. Developing own learning pathways\[\star\]
10. \textit{Participate in} developing own learning plans (\textit{eg. as part of performance management})\[\star\]

Description

This qualification may be used as a pathway qualification into community services work and may apply specifically to:

- Workers who support individuals by providing a first point of contact in a crisis situation and referral to a broad range of services, or
- Workers in residential facilities and/or in community services under direct or regular supervision within clearly defined organisation guidelines and service plans.

Workers at this level:

- May provide assistance and support to clients accessing a service or experiencing issues such as alcohol and/or other drug issues
- Assist people in meeting their immediate needs e.g. by providing shelter and food
- Provide short-term contact with clients in a crisis situation during which time they establish a helping relationship to define the crisis and provide referral information where appropriate
- May provide ancillary services such as catering, cleaning, laundry, gardening and home maintenance
- Report directly to a supervisor and are not responsible for other workers.

These positions may have direct contact with clients, identify presenting needs and refer to appropriate services and support.

This qualification may provide an appropriate pathway into higher level qualifications, such as those in aged care, disability and home and community care.

Occupational titles may include:

- Assistant community services workers
- Care service employee
- Contact officers
- Customer service staff
- Domestic assistant
- Gardener/grounds person
- Home helper
- Housekeeping assistant
- Laundry assistant
- Night/community patrol workers
- Personal care assistant
- Provision of emergency relief
- Reception/front desk staff
- Support worker

Modification History
Not applicable.

Description
This qualification covers people who provide person-centred care that takes into account the pastoral care needs arising from people's experiences.

Work may take place in a range of contexts such as the client's workplace, hospitals, aged care facilities, schools and community environments. Pastoral care workers work with other practitioners in developing holistic approaches to care.

This qualification prepares pastoral care workers to:
- Provide pastoral care, advice and support
- Identify and assess client well being and needs
- Participate as a member of an inter-disciplinary team
- Provide basic ethical, moral and spiritual direction and pastoral counselling with referral to appropriate professionals where appropriate
- Provide pastoral care information.

The qualification aims to develop foundation skills involved in pastoral care work. The development of self-awareness and pastoral identity required to underpin effective work in pastoral care must be developed over time, through professionally supervised practice.

Pastoral care workers are required to be immersed in the practices of their organisation and to operate within a highly ethical and moral framework. Their role may include the ethical, moral and spiritual support of clients on a day-to-day basis.

Occupational titles may include:
- Human resources manager
- Workplace chaplain
- Pastoral care worker

The importance of culturally aware and respectful practice

All workers undertaking children’s services work need foundation knowledge to inform their work with Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander clients and co-workers and with clients and co-workers from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds. This foundation must be provided and assessed as part of a holistic approach to delivery and assessment of this qualification. Specific guidelines for assessment of this aspect of competency are provided in the Assessment Guidelines for the Community Services Training Package.

Group A electives - recommended for culturally aware and respectful practice
The children's services workplace is regarded as having particular potential for engendering stronger and more respectful relationships between non-Aboriginal Australians and Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander Australians.

It is therefore highly recommended that the following unit of competency should be included in this qualification to address the needs of every children's services workplace:

CHCIC302A Support Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander families to participate in children's services

The unit:

- Provides a basis for staff to support and promote respect for and awareness of Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander communities where there are no Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander children attending or residing in the local area
- Addresses the needs of staff who work specifically with Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander children and families.

Where work involves a specific focus on Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander clients or communities, the following elective is recommended:

HLTHIR404D Work effectively with Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander people

Other relevant electives

CHCPROT405E Provide supervision in the community

The importance of culturally aware and respectful practice
All workers undertaking youth justice work need foundation knowledge to inform their work with Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander clients and co-workers and with clients and co-workers from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds. This foundation must be provided and assessed as part of a holistic approach to delivery and assessment of this qualification. Specific guidelines for assessment of this aspect of competency are provided in the Assessment Guidelines for the Community Services Training Package.

Group B elective - recommended for culturally aware and respectful practice

Where work involves a specific focus on Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander clients or communities, the following elective is recommended:

HLTHIR404D Work effectively with Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander people

Group C first aid electives - required for youth work in some jurisdictions

In some jurisdictions, it is a condition of employment that youth justice workers are competent in basic first aid. Candidates and employers should clarify any specific jurisdiction requirements for competence in first aid. One or more of the following first aid units may be required.

- HLTFA311A Apply first aid
- HLTFA302C Provide first aid in remote situation (Note pre-requisite: HLTFA311A)
- HLTFA412A Apply advanced first aid (Note pre-requisite: HLTFA311A)

CHC42412 Certificate IV in Relationship Education

Modification History
Not applicable.
Description

This qualification covers workers who are employed in a range of family and relationship education services across a broad range of agencies. Most work is undertaken with clients face to face, often with more than one client or couple at a time. This work usually involves the delivery of existing programs with clearly identified information, education and skill development outcomes. Some work can be undertaken on a more individual or couple basis and can contain aspects of case management and outreach work.

Work at this level is in prevention and early intervention. Workers at this level do not undertake clinical or complex therapeutic interventions. The role is that of education and skill development, not counselling.
Key skills and knowledge for this work include the ability to work effectively in the area of family and relationship work, effective communication skills, conflict management and group facilitation and program planning and delivery.

Practitioners working with specific client groups also need to be able to demonstrate the ability to work effectively with those specific groups. Client groups may include but are not limited to men, women, couples, parents, young people, children and families. Client groups are highly diverse, especially in relation to cultural backgrounds and family structures. A broad understanding of family and family arrangements is fundamental to this work.

Examples of relationship education programs include programs on communication and relationships for school age children, sessions with couples intending to marry, education and skills training in relationships and parenting for groups and relationship enrichment programs for couples.

Workers in this area are required to deliver services to clients with a wide range of personal and relationship issues and need to be able to distinguish between clients who are appropriate for education programs and those needing critical intervention and/or referral. These workers need to respond appropriately to clients involved in, for example, domestic/family violence, abuse, gambling, alcohol and other drugs and mental health issues.

Occupational titles for these workers may include:

- Community education worker
- Education officer
- Family relationship support worker
- Family relationship worker
- Family skills worker
- Family support worker
- Fathers worker
- Group worker
- Marriage and family educator
- Men's service officer
- Neighbourhood centre worker
- Parent educator
- Program development worker
- Relationship, marriage and/or family educator

Description

This qualification covers workers who provide services in a range of development and/or humanitarian assistance contexts. This work may take place in domestic or international contexts. The qualification is structured to:

- Define knowledge and skills required for work in development and/or humanitarian assistance.
- Address requirements for working autonomously under the broad guidance of others.
- Enable workers to incorporate a wide range of electives which may include areas of technical expertise and/or management skills.

This qualification may be appropriate for those entering the D&HA workforce, especially an in-country workforce. The qualification may also provide a means to recognise and/or develop the D&HA-specific skills and knowledge of those already in the workforce, as workers in-country or seeking deployment.

Occupational titles may include:

- Project officer (development and/or humanitarian assistance)
- Finance officer (development and/or humanitarian assistance)
- Community development facilitator
- Project coordinator (development and/or humanitarian assistance)
- HR officer (development and/or humanitarian assistance)
- Logistics officer (development and/or humanitarian assistance)

Description

This qualification covers workers in children's services who are responsible for planning, implementing and managing programs in early childhood services, in accordance with licensing, accreditation and duty of care requirements. At this level:

- Workers have responsibility for supervision of other staff and volunteers
- In most states it is the highest qualification required at director or service manager level for children's service centre-based care.

It is noted that whilst this qualification equips workers to work with children from 0-5 years of age, some workplaces and jurisdictions require workers to have skills and knowledge to work with children in both early and middle childhood (i.e. aged 0-12 years).

Where workers are required to work across the span of development from 0-12 years, candidates should receive training and/or assessment across this broader span of development and in addition to the qualification, be awarded a Statement of Attainment for achievement of the Middle childhood development skill set.

Occupational titles may include:

- Authorised supervisor (children’s services)
- Centre manager (children’s services)
- Childhood educator
- Children’s adviser
- Children’s service director / manager
- Early childhood educator
- Children’s services coordinator
- Director (children’s services)

Description

This qualification covers workers employed in services that provide relationship support and interventions for families and/or couples. Examples of the types of services provided include family relationship support programs, telephone advice, and family mediation and counselling services.

Workers in these roles may provide some non-therapeutic supports, such as provision of information, initial intake, referral, advocacy, administrative tasks and participation in case planning.

These workers generally undertake tasks with minimal direct supervision and may use elements of counselling and/or dispute resolution skills when working with clients. However, primary job functions do not involve higher level clinical or therapeutic interventions.

Occupational titles for these workers may include:

- Aboriginal family consultant
- Advocacy worker
- Case worker
- Client intake worker
- Client services officer
- Family assessment worker
- Family support worker
- Information and referral worker

Description
This qualification applies to workers employed in roles that provide non-therapeutic supports, interventions, information and referral and education and skills training to individuals, couples, and to families. The role is primarily that of education and skills development including affective, cognitive and psychomotor learning outcomes.

The life skills programs delivered by these workers are designed to help people learn how to enhance their relationships with intimate partners, spouses, parents, children, siblings, colleagues or friends. Specific client groups can be men, women, parents, couples, children, young people and families. Clients may face specific issues such as separation and mental health, alcohol and other drugs issues. Programs deal with issues across the life cycle.

Client groups are highly diverse, especially in relation to cultural backgrounds and family structures. A broad understanding of family and family arrangements is fundamental to this work.

Workers at this level may be delivering existing programs but are also able to develop new programs including developing and delivering community education and community development programs. The role is not a counselling one. Workers at this level require effective communication skills, conflict management, and program development, delivery and review. They may also require skills for more complex group facilitation and psycho-education. Additionally they may require a greater depth of skills and knowledge to work with specific client groups.

This qualification may also be appropriate for workers who have a responsibility for managing the delivery of relationship education services. These workers would need to undertake appropriate management units from the identified management electives.

These services are being provided in a number of different ways by a wide range of service providers within the health, human services and education sectors. Workers in these roles may work with limited supervision and utilise elements of counselling/dispute resolution skills and knowledge incidentally when working with families. However, primary functions do not involve clinical or therapeutic higher level knowledge or skills application.

Occupational titles for these workers may include:
- Coordinator relationship education services
- Family support worker
- Family/parent educator
- Marriage and family educator
- Family/parent facilitator
- Men's service officer
- Family relationships support worker
- Relationship educator
- Fathers worker

Entry Requirements

This qualification is suited to candidates who have significant experience working as a practitioner in a specialist area of work in the community sector, involving the exercise of independent judgement and decision making skills.

Candidates must specialise in one of the areas of specialisation (Statutory child protection or Client assessment and case management) - no generic qualification is available at this level.

To gain entry into CHC70108 Vocational Graduate Certificate in Community Services:

- An undergraduate degree or postgraduate qualification in a discipline related to work in the community sector

OR

- Significant previous experience working in a community sector organisation, in a job role involving the self directed application of knowledge with substantial depth in the specialist area of practice and exercise of independent judgement and decision making.

Work application requirements

For award of this qualification, candidates must demonstrate application of high level skills and knowledge in the community sector work context, including investigative research and analysis and application of findings in a community sector work context relevant to their area of specialisation.

Focus on holistic assessment

This qualification has been packaged with three high level core units of competency (CHCPOL701B, CHCORG624E and CHCCS805B) which have a broad focus and are designed to be assessed in conjunction with core knowledge and skills as required for high level practice in the specialist area.

Holistic assessment of core and elective components of each qualification is required in order to achieve an integrated outcome applicable to practice at this advanced and complex level.

The importance of culturally aware and respectful practice

All workers undertaking work in the community sector need foundation knowledge to inform their work with Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander clients and co-workers and with clients and co-workers from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds. This foundation must be provided and assessed as part of a holistic approach to delivery and assessment of this qualification. Specific guidelines for assessment of this aspect of competency are provided in the Assessment Guidelines for the Community Services Training Package.

Relevant electives

Electives are to be selected in line with specified Packaging Rules. The following grouping of relevant electives is provided to facilitate selection and does not necessarily reflect workplace requirements. Electives may be selected from one or more groups. Employers may specify that certain electives are required to address specific workplace needs.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level required for this unit.

Essential knowledge:
The candidate must be able to demonstrate essential knowledge required to effectively do the task outlined in elements and performance criteria of this unit, manage the task and manage contingencies in the context of the identified work role
These include knowledge of:

- Appropriate bandages and dressings to be used when undertaking food handling
- Clothing and footwear requirements for working in and/or moving between food handling areas
- Legal responsibilities relating to personal hygiene practices and the reporting of illness as required by the food safety program
  At a minimum this must meet the requirements of Food Safety Standard 3.2.2 and/or state legislation/regulations
  It may also include restrictions on wearing of jewellery and other adornments such as nail polish
- Personal clothing maintenance, laundering and storage requirements
- Possible consequences of not following these procedures
- Responsibilities for maintaining the work area in a clean and tidy state
- Suitable standard for materials, equipment and utensils used in the food handling area
- The food safety requirements and procedures related to own work. These depend on the nature of food handled and food handling responsibilities
- Use and storage of cleaning equipment as required to carry out own work responsibility
- Waste collection, recycling and handling procedures relevant to own work responsibilities

Essential skills:
It is critical that the candidate demonstrate the ability to:

- Carry out work responsibilities to meet the requirements of the food safety program relating to own work
- Handle and dispose of recalled or contaminated food, waste and recyclable material according to food safety program where this is part of work responsibility
- Handle, clean and store equipment, utensils, packaging materials and similar items according to the requirements of the food safety program
- Identify and correct or report situations or procedures that do not meet the requirements
REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE of the food safety program

- Identify and report signs of pest infestation according to the food safety program
- Locate and follow workplace information relating to food safety responsibilities
- Maintain personal hygiene consistent with the food safety program
- Maintain the work area in a clean and tidy state
- Monitor own work and implement any controls as required by the food safety program
- Report health conditions and illness as appropriate according to the food safety program
- Take into account opportunities to address waste minimisation, environmental responsibility and sustainable practice issues
- Take necessary precautions when moving around the workplace and/or from one task to another to maintain food safety
- Wear and maintain appropriate clothing / footwear as required by work tasks and consistent with the requirements of the food safety program
Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the Performance Criteria, Required Skills and Knowledge, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate this unit of competency:

- The individual being assessed must provide evidence of specified essential knowledge as well as skills
- Assessment of this unit must occur in a real or simulated workplace
- Such an environment must provide a typical range of food handling and related food safety requirements that would normally be found in a food handling business
- The assessment process must provide the opportunity for the person being assessed to demonstrate basic food safety practices consistent with those required by the food safety program and/or procedures and consistent with food safety legislation/regulations
- The specific assessment context will be defined by the workplace
- Where, for reasons of safety, space, or access to equipment and resources, assessment takes place away from the workplace, the assessment environment should represent workplace conditions as closely as possible
- The competencies described need to be assessed over time and events, under normal workplace conditions
- Assessment should not require a higher level of communication competency than that required by work responsibilities
EVIDENCE GUIDE

Access and equity considerations:

- All workers in community services should be aware of access, equity and human rights issues in relation to their own area of work
- All workers should develop their ability to work in a culturally diverse environment
- In recognition of particular issues facing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, workers should be aware of cultural, historical and current issues impacting on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- Assessors and trainers must take into account relevant access and equity issues, in particular relating to factors impacting on Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander clients and communities

Context of and specific resources for assessment:

- This unit can be assessed independently, however holistic assessment practice with other community services units of competency is encouraged
- Resources required for assessment include access to:
  - appropriate workplace where assessment can take place
  - relevant organisation policy, protocols and procedures
  - equipment and resources normally used in the workplace

Method of assessment may include:

- Observation in the workplace
- Written assignments/projects
- Case study and scenario analysis
- Questioning
- Role play simulation
Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT

The Range Statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Add any essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts.
RANGE STATEMENT

This Range Statement provides further advice to interpret the scope and context of this unit of competency

It assumes:

- A food safety program systematically identifies the food safety hazards that may be reasonably expected to occur in all food handling operations of the food business
  It identifies where and how each hazard can be controlled, describes how these controls are to be monitored, the corrective action required if control conditions are not met and information to be recorded
  The food safety program must comply with relevant national, state and industry legislation/regulations
  For the purpose of applying this guideline unit of competency in circumstances where formal food safety programs are not a legal requirement; the term can be understood to cover the same detail as would be covered by a food safety program
  Where a business has not identified food safety hazards, determined where and how these hazards are to be controlled and how controls are to be monitored, this guideline unit of competency would not apply
- Procedures outlining food safety responsibilities may be provided in formats to suit the workplace such as written, verbal, diagrams and electronic advice
- Food handling refers to basic handling and inspection, preparation, cooking, cooling, processing, display, packaging, storage and transportation
- Responsibility for maintaining food safety relates to own tasks and responsibilities and is based on implementing the food safety program as established for the workplace
- Products/materials handled and stored can include raw materials, ingredients, consumables, part-processed product, finished product and cleaning materials continued ...

Further advice to interpret the scope and context of this unit of competency (contd):

- Minimum personal hygiene requirements are specified by the food safety program. At a minimum this must meet legal requirements as set out in the Food Safety Standard 3.2.2, Division 4:14 and/or state legislation/regulations.

- Appropriate clothing and footwear depends on work requirements. It should be designed to ensure that the body and clothing itself, does not contaminate food or surfaces likely to come into contact with food. Examples of clothing designed to prevent contamination by the body include hair nets, beard snoods and gloves.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the Performance Criteria, Required Skills and Knowledge, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate this unit of competency:

- The individual being assessed must provide evidence of specified essential knowledge as well as skills
- This unit will be most appropriately assessed in the workplace or in a simulated workplace and under the normal range of workplace conditions
- It is recommended that assessment or information for assessment will be conducted or gathered over a period of time and cover the normal range of workplace situations and settings
- Where, for reasons of safety, space, or access to equipment and resources, assessment takes place away from the workplace, the assessment environment should represent workplace conditions as closely as possible

Access and equity considerations:

- All workers in community services should be aware of access, equity and human rights issues in relation to their own area of work
- All workers should develop their ability to work in a culturally diverse environment
- In recognition of particular issues facing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, workers should be aware of cultural, historical and current issues impacting on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- Assessors and trainers must take into account relevant access and equity issues, in particular relating to factors impacting on Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander clients and communities
EVIDENCE GUIDE

Context of and specific resources for assessment:

- This unit can be assessed independently, however holistic assessment practice with other community services units of competency is encouraged
- Resources required for assessment include access to:
  - appropriate workplace where assessment can take place
  - relevant organisation policy, protocols and procedures
  - equipment and resources normally used in the workplace

Method of assessment may include:

- Observation in the workplace
- Written assignments/projects
- Case study and scenario analysis
- Questioning
- Role play simulation

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level required for this unit.

Essential knowledge:
The candidate must be able to demonstrate essential knowledge required to effectively do the task outlined in elements and performance criteria of this unit, manage the task and manage contingencies in the context of the identified work role.

These include:

- Codes of practice for delegated work
- Legal and organisation requirements on equity, diversity, discrimination, rights, confidentiality and sharing information when providing technical support to clients
- Specific health issues associated with delegated work, including:
  - chronic health problems
  - acute health problems with older people
  - acute health problems relevant to specific disabilities
- Confidentiality and privacy requirements
- Pain management principles
- Infection control principles
- Knowledge of anatomy and physiology to underpin delegated work
- A range of data collection processes (as listed in the Range Statement)
- Legal frameworks/requirements associated with delegated work
- Work health and safety (WHS) policies and procedures that relate to delegated data collection processes
- Infection control policies and procedures that relate to delegated data collection processes
- Delegation, supervisory and reporting protocols of the organisation

Essential skills:
It is critical that the candidate demonstrate the ability to:

- Read and accurately interpret delegated responsibilities from the health care plan or other written instructions
- Ensure all work is in accordance with supervising health professional's instructions
- Follow instructions for delegated data collection processes
- Observe and record changes in the client's condition during and after delegated data collection processes and report to delegating/supervising health professional
REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

- Identify requirements outside scope of role, responsibility, knowledge and skill
- Communicate effectively with clients, supervisors and co-workers
- Work within a multi-disciplinary team
- Establish priorities, manage time effectively and demonstrate well-developed personal organisation skills

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the Performance Criteria, Required Skills and Knowledge, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate this unit of competency:

- The individual being assessed must provide evidence of specified essential knowledge as well as skills
- Observation of workplace performance is essential for assessment of this unit
- Consistency of performance should be demonstrated over the required range of situations relevant to the workplace
- Where, for reasons of safety, space, or access to equipment and resources, assessment takes place away from the workplace, the assessment environment should represent workplace conditions as closely as possible
EVIDENCE GUIDE

Access and equity considerations:
- All workers in community services should be aware of access, equity and human rights issues in relation to their own area of work
- All workers should develop their ability to work in a culturally diverse environment
- In recognition of particular issues facing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, workers should be aware of cultural, historical and current issues impacting on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- Assessors and trainers must take into account relevant access and equity issues, in particular relating to factors impacting on Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander clients and communities

Context of and specific resources for assessment:
- Assessment must be completed in the workplace and reflect specific delegation by supervising health professional
- Resources essential for assessment include:
  - equipment and materials for undertaking data collection
  - infection control procedures
  - workplace health and safety guidelines
  - relevant organisation and legislative guidelines, standards and procedures

Method of assessment:
- In cases where the learner does not have the opportunity to cover all relevant aspects in the work environment, the remainder should be assessed through realistic simulations, projects, previous relevant experience or oral questioning on 'What if?' scenarios
- Assessment of this unit of competence will usually include observation of processes and procedures, oral and/or written questioning on Essential knowledge and skills and consideration of required attitudes
- Where performance is not directly observed and/or is required to be demonstrated over a 'period of time' and/or in a 'number of locations', any evidence should be authenticated by colleagues, supervisors, clients or other appropriate persons

RANGE STATEMENT

The Range Statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Add any essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts.

Delegation by supervising health professional refers to:

- Conferring of authority to provide specific health technical support to a worker who has been determined as competent and appropriate for the task by the delegating health professional
- Delegation is within the context of a health care plan or other written instruction
- Where delegation is provided verbally it must be confirmed as soon as practicable according to organisation procedures in writing and incorporated in the care plan
- The authority is specific to an individual client within a specific care context and is not transferable
- Delegation instructions must include:
  - specific instruction relating to the data collection requirements for particular client
  - any other relevant instructions or information, especially information specific to the client

Supervision refers to:

- Instructing, advising, and monitoring another person in order to ensure safe and effective performance in carrying out the duties of their position
- Supervision may be conducted by various means including:
  - in person
  - through use of electronic communications media such as telephone or video conferencing, where necessary
- Frequency of supervision will be determined by factors such as:
  - the task maturity of the person being supervised
  - the need to review and assess client conditions and progress in order to establish or alter treatment plans
- The need to correct and develop non-clinical aspects such as time management, organisation requirements, communication skills, and other factors supporting the provision of health care and working within a team

Health professional may include:

- Registered nurse
- General practitioner
- Community nurse
- Allied health professional (relevant to allied health aspects of client health care plan)
RANGE STATEMENT

Data collection processes may include:

- Data collection processes delegated by a health professional, and in which the worker has had training specific to the needs of each client, including:
  - Taking and recording a temperature
  - Taking and recording a pulse rate
  - Taking and recording a respiratory rate
  - Taking and recording blood pressure
  - Taking and recording a blood sugar level
  - Measuring and recording weight
  - Collecting a urine, sputum or faecal specimen
  - Monitoring and recognising changes in cognitive ability
  - Urinalysis
  - Monitoring pain and sleep

Document all inconsistencies may include:

- Incident reports
- Medical charts
- Progress notes
- Health care plans

Environment may include:

- Home
- Hospital
- Mental health services
- Other community setting
- Palliative care units
- Rehabilitation setting
- Residential settings

Checks include:

- Checking client details
- Checking the chart
- Checking for authorisation
- Checking the health plan

Relevant guidelines may include:

- Organisation policies and procedures
- WHS policies and procedures
- Manufacturer specifications

Method of assessment:

- In cases where the learner does not have the opportunity to cover all relevant aspects in the work environment, the remainder should be assessed through realistic simulations, projects, previous relevant experience or oral questioning on 'What if?' scenarios.
- Assessment of this unit of competence will usually include observation of processes and procedures, oral and/or written questioning on Essential knowledge and skills and consideration of required attitudes.
- Where performance is not directly observed and/or is required to be demonstrated over a 'period of time' and/or in a 'number of locations', any evidence should be authenticated by colleagues, supervisors, clients or other appropriate persons.

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT

The Range Statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Add any essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts.
RANGE STATEMENT

Understanding of dementia may include:

- Knowledge of different manifestations of dementia, including:
  - Alzheimer's disease

- The physical and psychological effects of falls on older people and their carers
- Factors contributing to the risk of falls and their impact on older people and their carers
- Normal posture, gait and balance and how to recognise deviations
- Medical causes of falls and how to recognise them
- The importance of explaining the significance of medical causes of falls to older people and their carers and the actions they should take in response to indicators of medical causes
- How to interpret physical indicators of risk of falls
- How to interpret the results of tests and measurements in relation to the risk of falls
- How to evaluate the older person's level of risk of falls
- Range of strategies that reduce the risk of falls
- Indicators that a strategy should be halted
- When to make referral and seek advice

Essential skills:

It is critical that the candidate demonstrate the ability to:

- Follow organisation policies and protocols
- Access supervision, advice and support
- Interpret physical indicators of risk of falls
REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

- Identify indicators of a medical cause for falls
- Interpret the results of tests and measurements in relation to the risk of falls
- Evaluate the older person’s level of risk of falls
- Referral to appropriate other in an appropriate and timely manner
- Encourage the older person and their carers to participate in strategies and monitor their effectiveness
- Implement a range of strategies in a manner that is respectful of the older person’s dignity and privacy

In addition, the candidate must be able to effectively do the task outlined in elements and performance criteria of this unit, manage the task and manage contingencies in the context of the identified work role

These include the ability to:
- Use communication strategies to:
  - develop a trusting relationships
  - provide appropriate information

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the Performance Criteria, Required Skills and Knowledge, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate this unit of competency:

- The individual being assessed must provide evidence of specified essential knowledge as well as skills
- This unit will be most appropriately assessed in the workplace or in a simulated workplace and under the normal range of workplace conditions
- It is recommended that assessment or information for assessment will be conducted or gathered over a period of time and cover the normal range of workplace situations and settings
- Where, for reasons of safety, space, or access to equipment and resources, assessment takes place away from the workplace, the assessment environment should represent workplace conditions as closely as possible

Access and equity considerations:
• All workers in community services should be aware of access, equity and human rights issues in relation to their own area of work
• All workers should develop their ability to work in a culturally diverse environment
• In recognition of particular issues facing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, workers should be aware of cultural, historical and current issues impacting on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
• Assessors and trainers must take into account relevant access and equity issues, in particular relating to factors impacting on Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander clients and communities

Context of and specific resources for assessment:
• This unit can be assessed independently, however holistic assessment practice with other community services units of competency is encouraged
• Resources required for assessment include access to:
  • appropriate workplace where assessment can take place
  • relevant organisation policy, protocols and procedures

Method of assessment may include:
• Observation in the workplace
• Written assignments/projects
• Case study and scenario analysis
• Questioning
• Role play simulation

RANGE STATEMENT

The Range Statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Add any essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts.

The assessment is:

- A structured needs assessment using recognised assessment tools, which enables health professionals to systematically identify, record and promote the health and well being of individuals

Relevant others may include:

- Health professionals
- Supervisor

Assessment process includes:

- Worker role
- The purpose of the assessment
- The approximate duration of the assessment
- The type of information required for the assessment
- Any specific assessment tools that will be used
- The role of others in the assessment
- What will happen after the assessment
- The records associated with the assessment
- Referrals
- Role of client's GP

Wishes of the older person may include:

- Who conducts the assessment
- Who else might need to be present
- Preparation for assessment activities
RANGE STATEMENT

Lifestyle may include:
- Physical activity
- Diet
- Alcohol
- Psychological concerns, e.g. fear of falling and loss of confidence in being able to move about safely
- Environmental hazards

Risk factors may include:
- Falls history
- The ageing process
- Balance, gait or mobility problems, including those due to degenerative joint disease and motor disorders such as stroke or Parkinson's disease
- Medications, particularly sedating or blood pressure lowering medications
- Postural hypotension
- Visual impairment
- Impaired cognition
- Confusion
- Depression
- Incontinence
- Environmental hazards

Fall minimisation strategies may include:
- Diagnostic
- Therapeutic
- Preventative
- Rehabilitative
- Social support

Indicators of increased risk may include:
- Adverse reactions, including:
  - physical
  - psychological
  - emotional
- Contra-indicators
- Withdrawal of consent
- Non-compliance

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the Performance Criteria, Required Skills and Knowledge, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate this unit of competency:

- The individual being assessed must provide evidence of specified essential knowledge as well as skills
- This unit is most appropriately assessed in the workplace or in a simulated workplace and under the normal range of workplace conditions
  This may include the use of languages other than English and alternative communication systems
- Assessment may be conducted on one or more occasions but must include the normal range of workplace situations
EVIDENCE GUIDE

Access and equity considerations:
- All workers in community services should be aware of access, equity and human rights issues in relation to their own area of work
- All workers should develop their ability to work in a culturally diverse environment
- In recognition of particular issues facing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, workers should be aware of cultural, historical and current issues impacting on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- Assessors and trainers must take into account relevant access and equity issues, in particular relating to factors impacting on Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander clients and communities

Context of and specific resources for assessment:
- This unit can be assessed independently, however holistic assessment practice with other community services units of competency is encouraged
- Resources required for assessment include access to:
  - appropriate workplace where assessment can take place
  - simulation of realistic workplace setting for assessment

Method of assessment:
- Assessment may include observation, questioning and evidence gathered from a workplace environment
- Workplace evidence can include testimonials from colleagues or clients

Related units:
This unit of competency may be (but is not required to be) assessed in conjunction with units on communication and/or with the following related unit if they are included in qualification packaging:
- CHCCS400A Work within a relevant legal and ethical framework

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the Performance Criteria, Required Skills and Knowledge, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate this unit of competency:

- The individual being assessed must provide evidence of specified essential knowledge as well as skills
- This unit can be assessed in the workplace, in the community or in a relevant simulation
- Consistency in performance should consider the range of situations under which workers will provide advocacy and representation

Access and equity considerations:

- All workers in community services should be aware of access, equity and human rights issues in relation to their own area of work
- All workers should develop their ability to work in culturally and linguistically diverse (CALD) environments
- In recognition of particular issues facing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, workers should be aware of cultural, historical and current issues impacting on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- Assessors and trainers must take into account relevant access and equity issues, in particular relating to factors impacting on Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander clients and communities
EVIDENCE GUIDE

Context of and specific resources for assessment:

- This unit can be assessed independently, however holistic assessment practice with other community services units of competency is encouraged.
- Resources required for assessment include access to:
  - an appropriate workplace or community where assessment can take place
  - an environment where an accurate simulation can be undertaken for assessment purposes (e.g. case studies and role plays)

Method of assessment:

- In cases where the learner does not have the opportunity to cover all relevant aspects in the work environment, the remainder should be assessed through realistic simulations, projects, previous relevant experience or oral questioning on 'What if?' scenarios.
- Assessment of this unit of competency will usually include observation of processes and procedures, oral and/or written questioning on essential knowledge and skills and consideration of required attitudes.
- Where performance is not directly observed and/or is required to be demonstrated over a 'period of time' and/or in a 'number of locations', any evidence should be authenticated by colleagues, supervisors, clients or other appropriate persons.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the Performance Criteria, Required Skills and Knowledge, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate this unit of competency:

- The individual being assessed must provide evidence of specified essential knowledge as well as skills
- This unit is best assessed on the job or in a simulated workplace under the normal range of conditions
- Consistency in performance should consider specific workplace and advocacy practices and requirements
EVIDENCE GUIDE

Access and equity considerations:
- All workers in community services should be aware of access, equity and human rights issues in relation to their own area of work
- All workers should develop their ability to work in a culturally and linguistically diverse (CALD) environments
- In recognition of particular issues facing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, workers should be aware of cultural, historical and current issues impacting on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- Assessors and trainers must take into account relevant access and equity issues, in particular relating to factors impacting on Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander clients and communities

Context of and specific resources for assessment:
- This unit can be assessed independently, however holistic assessment practice with other community services units of competency is encouraged
- Resources required for assessment include:
  - access to appropriate workplace where assessment can take place
  - simulation of realistic workplace setting for assessment

Method of assessment:
- In cases where the learner does not have the opportunity to cover all relevant aspects in the work environment, the remainder should be assessed through realistic simulations, projects, previous relevant experience or oral questioning on 'What if?' scenarios
- Assessment of this unit of competency will usually include observation of processes and procedures, oral and/or written questioning on essential knowledge and skills and consideration of required attitudes
- Where performance is not directly observed and/or is required to be demonstrated over a 'period of time' and/or in a 'number of locations', any evidence should be authenticated by colleagues, supervisors, clients or other appropriate persons

RANGE STATEMENT

The Range Statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Add any essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the Performance Criteria, Required Skills and Knowledge, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate this unit of competency:

The individual being assessed must provide evidence of specified essential knowledge as well as skills.

This unit must be assessed with other relevant specialisation units chosen as part of a qualification.

This unit may be assessed on the job or through simulation.

Assessment must be over a range of situations with more than one target group. It will entail observations and other workplace assessment tools.

Consistency in performance should consider the work environment, worker's role and responsibilities in the workplace.
Access and equity considerations: All workers in community services should be aware of access, equity and human rights issues in relation to their own area of work. All workers should develop their ability to work in a culturally diverse environment. In recognition of particular issues facing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, workers should be aware of cultural, historical and current issues impacting on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people. Assessors and trainers must take into account relevant access and equity issues, in particular relating to factors impacting on Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander clients and communities.

Context of and specific resources for assessment: Resources required for assessment include access to appropriate workplace where assessment can take place.

Method of assessment: In cases where the learner does not have the opportunity to cover all relevant aspects in the work environment, the remainder should be assessed through realistic simulations, projects, previous relevant experience or oral questioning on 'What if?' scenarios. Assessment of this unit of competence will usually include observation of processes and procedures, oral and/or written questioning on Essential knowledge and skills and consideration of required attitudes. Where performance is not directly observed and/or is required to be demonstrated over a 'period of time' and/or in a 'number of locations', any evidence should be authenticated by colleagues, supervisors, clients or other appropriate persons.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the Performance Criteria, Required Skills and Knowledge, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate this unit of competency:

- The individual being assessed must provide evidence of specified essential knowledge as well as skills
- This unit will be most appropriately assessed in the workplace or in a simulated workplace under the normal range of workplace conditions
- Competence in this unit must be assessed over a period of time in order to ensure consistency of performance across contexts applicable to the work environment
- Consistency in performance should consider the work environment, worker's role and responsibilities in the workplace
EVIDENCE GUIDE

Access and equity considerations:
- All workers in community services should be aware of access, equity and human rights issues in relation to their own area of work
- All workers should develop their ability to work in a culturally diverse environment
- In recognition of particular issues facing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, workers should be aware of cultural, historical and current issues impacting on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- Assessors and trainers must take into account relevant access and equity issues, in particular relating to factors impacting on Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander clients and communities

Context of and specific resources for assessment:
- Resources required for assessment include access to:
  - Resources required for first aid certification or equivalent skills

Method of assessment:
- In cases where the learner does not have the opportunity to cover all relevant aspects in the work environment, the remainder should be assessed through realistic simulations, projects, previous relevant experience or oral questioning on 'What if?' scenarios
- Assessment of this unit of competence will usually include observation of processes and procedures, oral and/or written questioning on Essential knowledge and skills and consideration of required attitudes
- Where performance is not directly observed and/or is required to be demonstrated over a 'period of time' and/or in a 'number of locations', any evidence should be authenticated by colleagues, supervisors, clients or other appropriate persons

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the Performance Criteria, Required Skills and Knowledge, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate this unit of competency:

- The individual being assessed must provide evidence of specified essential knowledge as well as skills
- Competency must be demonstrated in a real work environment
- Competence in this unit must be assessed over a period of time in order to ensure consistency of performance over contexts applicable to the work environment
- Consistency in performance should consider the work environment, worker's role and responsibilities in the workplace
EVIDENCE GUIDE

Access and equity considerations:

- All workers in community services should be aware of access, equity and human rights issues in relation to their own area of work
- All workers should develop their ability to work in a culturally diverse environment
- In recognition of particular issues facing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, workers should be aware of cultural, historical and current issues impacting on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- Assessors and trainers must take into account relevant access and equity issues, in particular relating to factors impacting on Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander clients and communities

Context of and specific resources for assessment:

- This unit can be assessed independently, however holistic assessment practice with other community services units of competency is encouraged
- Resources required for assessment of this unit include access to a workplace or simulated workplace where assessment may occur

Method of assessment:

- In cases where the learner does not have the opportunity to cover all relevant aspects in the work environment, the remainder should be assessed through realistic simulations, projects, previous relevant experience or oral questioning on 'What if?' scenarios
- Assessment of this unit of competence will usually include observation of processes and procedures, oral and/or written questioning on Essential knowledge and skills and consideration of required attitudes
- Where performance is not directly observed and/or is required to be demonstrated over a 'period of time' and/or in a 'number of locations', any evidence should be authenticated by colleagues, supervisors, clients or other appropriate persons
EVIDENCE GUIDE

Related units: This unit of competency is recommended to be assessed in conjunction with a first aid unit. Depending on jurisdiction and job role, this may be:

- HLTFA311A Apply first aid
- HLTFA412A Apply advanced first aid

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT

The Range Statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Add any essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts.

Client may include:

- Person with AOD issues, their families and personal network

Information may include:

- That provided by other services via referral
- Doctor’s or other professional's reports

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the Performance Criteria, Required Skills and Knowledge, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate this unit of competency:

- The individual being assessed must provide evidence of specified essential knowledge as well as skills
- Assessment should be conducted on more than one occasion to cover a variety of circumstances to establish consistency
- A diversity of assessment tasks is essential for holistic assessment

Access and equity considerations:

- All workers in community services should be aware of access, equity and human rights issues in relation to their own area of work
- All workers should develop their ability to work in a culturally diverse environment
- In recognition of particular issues facing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, workers should be aware of cultural, historical and current issues impacting on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- Assessors and trainers must take into account relevant access and equity issues, in particular relating to factors impacting on Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander clients and communities
EVIDENCE GUIDE

Context of and specific resources for assessment:

- This unit can be assessed independently, however holistic assessment practice with other community services units of competency is encouraged.
- Resource requirements include access to all relevant resources commonly provided in the disability service setting, including:
  - relevant organisation policy and procedure manuals, legislation and standards
  - organisation mission statement, strategic and business plan
  - other documentation relevant to the work context such as:
    - individual routines
    - staff routines
    - neuropsychological reports
    - behaviour support plans
    - data collection techniques
    - specific communication tools
    - skills development plans
    - accident and incident forms
    - referral forms
    - lifestyle review package
    - functional assessment tools

Method of assessment may include:

- Observation of work performance
- Written tasks
- Interview and questioning
- Authenticated portfolio/log book
- Supporting statement of supervisor/s
- Authenticated evidence of relevant work experience and/or formal/informal learning
Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT

The Range Statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Add any essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts.

Client circumstances that have the potential to be harmful to others may include:

- Intoxication
- Amphetamine psychosis
- Disinhibition

The nature and range of each potential risk may include:

- Confusion
- Delusions
- Fear
- Self-harm
- Impaired social judgement
- Impaired decision-making
- Targeted aggressive behaviour
- Random, untargeted aggressive behaviour

Environmental factors may include:

- Unfamiliar surroundings
- 'Busy' surroundings
- Responses to other people (positive and negative)

Appropriate person may include:

- Supervisor
- Psychologist
- Health professional
- Police
RANGE STATEMENT

Appropriate response hierarchies may include:

- Proactive intervention
- Advanced proactive intervention
- Interrupt and redirect
- Deescalate
- Passive self defence
- Protect self and others
- Seek additional support

Legal and ethical aspects of possible responses may include:

- Power imbalance
- Reasonable force
- Imprisonment
- Deprivation of rights
- Work health and safety (WHS)

Duty of care considerations may include:

- Foreseeable harm/injury
- Reasonable action
- Reasonable person

Proactive support strategies may include:

- Ecological manipulations - making changes in the persons environment that will reduce the likelihood of the problem behaviour occurring
- Positive programming - long term instructional programs designed to give the person greater skills and competencies
- Focused support strategies - these include differential reinforcement strategies, stimulus control and instructional control

Organisation policies and procedures may include:

- Behaviour management guidelines
- Work safety and health policies and procedures
- Emergency procedures
RANGE STATEMENT

Inappropriate behaviours may include those that:

- Have the potential for physical harm or destruction (e.g. hurting self or others, damaging property)
- Lasts for a long time (e.g. either in a single incident or in multiple incidents over time)
- Isolates the person, it stops them from engaging in valued roles (with friends, family, community access, work) e.g. disinhibition / perseveration / depression
- Interferes with the person's learning and developing new skills
- Reduces quality / enjoyment of life

Strategies to assist in reducing and managing behaviour of concern:

- Functional assessment
- Data collection
- Generating a hypothesis
- Multi-element support plans
  - proactive
  - ecological manipulations
    e.g. making changes to the person's environment, changing the teaching method, reviewing and changing the learning goals
  - positive programming
    e.g. teaching general skills, teaching coping skills, teaching functionally equivalent skills
  - focused support
    e.g. differential reinforcement schedules
- Reactive strategies
  e.g. antecedent management, interrupt and redirect, geographical containment, emergency physical containment and individualised emergency management plans
- Seeking expert assistance

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the Performance Criteria, Required Skills and Knowledge, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate this unit of competency:

- The individual being assessed must provide evidence of specified essential knowledge as well as skills
- This unit is best assessed on the job or in a simulated workplace under the normal range of conditions
- Consistency in performance should consider the requirements of the particular workplace context
EVIDENCE GUIDE

Access and equity considerations:
- All workers in community services should be aware of access, equity and human rights issues in relation to their own area of work
- All workers should develop their ability to work in a culturally diverse environment
- In recognition of particular issues facing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, workers should be aware of cultural, historical and current issues impacting on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- Assessors and trainers must take into account relevant access and equity issues, in particular relating to factors impacting on Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander clients and communities

Context of and specific resources for assessment:
- This unit can be assessed independently, however holistic assessment practice with other community services units of competency is encouraged
- Resources required for assessment of this unit include access to a workplace or simulated workplace where assessment may occur

Method of assessment:
- In cases where the learner does not have the opportunity to cover all relevant aspects in the work environment, the remainder should be assessed through realistic simulations, projects, previous relevant experience or oral questioning on 'What if?' scenarios
- Assessment of this unit of competence will usually include observation of processes and procedures, oral and/or written questioning on Essential knowledge and skills and consideration of required attitudes
- Where performance is not directly observed and/or is required to be demonstrated over a 'period of time' and/or in a 'number of locations', any evidence should be authenticated by colleagues, supervisors, clients or other appropriate persons
Range Statement

Development of a relapse prevention plan includes:

- Working on relapse plan with the client as a preventative strategy
- Initiating relapse planning as soon as client agrees to participate in AOD intervention
- Review of relapse plan if and when relapse occurs
- Identifying factors that may trigger relapse
- Discussing risk of relapse as an experience rather than a failure
- Ensuring client is provided with relevant contacts, such as telephone counselling helpline
- Reaching agreement with client about availability of support in responding to potential or actual relapse

Stakeholders may include:

- Client with insight into their own situation
- Family, friends, relatives as identified by the client
- Carer/s where appropriate, for example for people with disabilities
- Relevant service providers
- Support groups
- Employers

Planning options may include:

- Development of formal relapse plan
- Informal ongoing planning
- Working with client only
- Involving other stakeholders in planning process
RANGE STATEMENT

Range of relapse prevention strategies may include but are not limited to:

- Specific strategies to avoid situations and cues / triggers identified by client, such as:
  - situations or companions associated with alcohol or drug use
  - sources of stress, such as aspects of job, family relationships, social pressures, financial issues
- Strategies to develop client's ability to deal with identified situations and triggers
- Strategies to deal with lack of support from partners or other people of significance, where appropriate
- Inclusion of people of significance in planning and implementation of relapse strategies
- Strategies to identify issues and reinforce positive choices, such as:
  - putting into writing thoughts and feelings
  - keeping behavioural record/diary of situations and triggers that put the client at risk
  - recording difficult choice situations, option taken and outcomes
- Suggestions from various stakeholders, including experienced support workers and counsellors, which have been found to work in other situations and may be appropriate for the client's situation

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the Performance Criteria, Required Skills and Knowledge, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate this unit of competency:

- The individual being assessed must provide evidence of specified essential knowledge as well as skills
- This unit will be assessed in the workplace or in a simulated workplace under the normal range of workplace conditions

Access and equity considerations:

- All workers in community services should be aware of access, equity and human rights issues in relation to their own area of work
- All workers should develop their ability to work in a culturally diverse environment
- In recognition of particular issues facing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, workers should be aware of cultural, historical and current issues impacting on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- Assessors and trainers must take into account relevant access and equity issues, in particular relating to factors impacting on Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander clients and communities
EVIDENCE GUIDE

Context of and specific resources for assessment:
- This unit can be assessed independently, however holistic assessment practice with other community services units of competency is encouraged
- Resources required for assessment include access to appropriate structures, people or organisations for assessment of ability to work with key people or stakeholders in the community

Method of assessment:
- In cases where the learner does not have the opportunity to cover all relevant aspects in the work environment, the remainder should be assessed through realistic simulations, projects, previous relevant experience or oral questioning on 'What if?' scenarios
- Assessment of this unit of competence will usually include observation of processes and procedures, oral and/or written questioning on Essential knowledge and skills and consideration of required attitudes
- Where performance is not directly observed and/or is required to be demonstrated over a 'period of time' and/or in a 'number of locations', any evidence should be authenticated by colleagues, supervisors, clients or other appropriate persons
