- applying procedures relating to occupational health and safety and environment in the context of statistical analysis

Knowledge requirements

Look for evidence that confirms knowledge and understanding of:

- legislation, regulations, policies, procedures and guidelines relating to statistical analysis
- the limitations of the data and statistics used
- the concept of variation
- changes occurring over time
- relevance of the calculated statistics and the meta-data associated with these statistics
- the importance of selecting the appropriate statistical analysis
- the method of selecting the appropriate statistical analysis
- sources of expertise within the organisation
- equal employment opportunity, equity and diversity principles
- public sector legislation such as occupational health and safety and environment in the context of statistical analysis

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The Evidence Guide specifies the evidence required to demonstrate achievement in the unit of competency as a whole. It must be read in conjunction with the Unit descriptor, Performance Criteria, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Public Sector Training Package.

Units to be assessed together

- Pre-requisite units that must be achieved prior to this unit: Nil
- Co-requisite units that must be assessed with this unit: Nil
- Co-assessed units that may be assessed with this unit to increase the efficiency and realism of the assessment process include, but are not limited to:

PSPETHC501B Promote the values and ethos of public service

PSPGOV503B Coordinate resource allocation and usage

PSPGOV504B Undertake research and analysis

PSPGOV520A Scope statistical data collection

PSPGOV521A Collect statistical data

PSPGOV522A Process statistical data

PSPGOV524A Interpret data and related statistics

PSPLEGN501B Promote compliance with legislation in the public sector

PSPPM502B Manage complex projects

Overview of evidence requirements

In addition to integrated demonstration of the elements and their related performance criteria, look for evidence that confirms:

- the knowledge requirements of this unit
- the skill requirements of this unit
- application of Employability Skills as they relate to this unit
- statistical data interrogated and analysed in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time).

EVIDENCE GUIDE

Resources required to carry out assessment

These resources include:

- legislation, policy, procedures and protocols relating to statistical analysis
- technology and statistical tools
- case studies and workplace scenarios to capture the range of situations likely to be encountered when undertaking statistical analysis

Where and how to assess evidence

Valid assessment of this unit requires:

- a workplace environment or one that closely resembles normal work practice and replicates the range of conditions likely to be encountered when interrogating and analysing statistical data, including coping with difficulties, irregularities and breakdowns in routine
- statistical data interrogated and analysed in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time).

Assessment methods should reflect workplace demands, such as literacy, and the needs of particular groups, such as:

- people with disabilities
- people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds
- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- women
- young people
- older people
- people in rural and remote locations.

Assessment methods suitable for valid and reliable assessment of this competency may include, but are not limited to, a combination of 2 or more of:

- case studies
- demonstration
- portfolios
- projects
- questioning
- scenarios
- simulation or role plays
- authenticated evidence from the workplace and/or training courses

EVIDENCE GUIDE

For consistency of assessment

Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT

The Range Statement provides information about the context in which the unit of competency is carried out. The variables cater for differences between States and Territories and the Commonwealth, and between organisations and workplaces. They allow for different work requirements, work practices and knowledge. The Range Statement also provides a focus for assessment. It relates to the unit as a whole. Text in italics in the Performance Criteria is explained here.

Analysis techniques may include

- re-coding data into a form appropriate for analysis
- construction of graphs
- calculation of summary statistics
- implementation of statistical tests

Software may include.

- Geographic Information System (GIS)
- spreadsheet tools

RANGE STATEMENT

Legislation, policy and guidelines may include

- State/Territory and Commonwealth legislation and regulations such as:
- public sector management acts
- financial management acts
- privacy legislation
- equal employment opportunity and anti-discrimination legislation
- occupational health and safety legislation
- ethics and accountability standards
- public sector standards
- risk management standards
- fraud control standards
- government security standards
- knowledge management standards
- organisational policy, procedures and protocols

Sources of error may include

- error due to sampling variation
- error due to non-response or poor survey design
- measurement error

Summary statistics may include

- mean
- median
- mode
- standard deviation
- standard error
- relative standard error

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit covers the interpretation of data and related statistics. It includes interpreting graphs or tables, interpreting data and its summarised highlights, interpreting a range of official statistics in a policy environment, presenting statistical results and guiding others in the interpretation of data.

In practice, interpreting data and related statistics may overlap with other generalist or specialist public sector work activities such as acting ethically, complying with legislation, working safely, conducting research and analysis, etc.

This is one of 5 units of competency in the Working in Government Competency Field that deal with statistics. Related units are:

PSPGOV522A Process statistical data

PSPGOV523A Interrogate and analyse statistical data

This is a new unit of competency, added to the Working in Government Competency Field of the Training Package in 2004

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT

PERFORMANCE CRITERIA

1. Interpret a graph or table

- 1.1 Reports based on the data are written which identify relevant relationships within the data
- 1.2 Row and column percentages are calculated from a table
- 1.3 A table/graph is interpreted in accordance with data reflected

2. Interpret data and its summarised highlights

- 2.1 Data summaries and trends are defined and explained in a manner suited to the audience
- 2.2 Survey data is interpreted according to accepted standards
- 2.3 Data is interpreted and its highlights are summarised
- 2.4 Interpretation is verified with a suitably qualified person

3. Interpret a range of official statistics in a policy environment

- 3.1 Data summaries and trends are identified and explained
- 3.2 Statistical tests are interpreted and this interpretation explained
- 3.3 The sampling method/survey design is critiqued
- 3.4 Interpretation of the data is undertaken in such a way as to inform decision making
- 3.5 Interpretation is verified with a suitably qualified person
- 3.6 The shortcomings of statistical applications in the policy environment are identified

PERFORMANCE CRITERIA

4. Present statistical results

- 4.1 Data is presented in tables, charts and maps so that the reader does not misconstrue it
- 4.2 Glossaries, technical notes and referencing are included where required
- 4.3 Reports that include statistical concepts, tables, charts and maps are prepared and presented in accordance with organisational policy and procedures
- 4.4 Findings are presented in a way that is most appropriate for the audience
- 4.5 Charts are used appropriately in presentations for the variables being charted and conform to accepted standards

5. Guide others in the interpretation of data

- 5.1 Data summaries and trends are clearly defined and communicated to staff involved in the project
- 5.2 Report findings are presented in a way that is most appropriate for the audience
- 5.3 The assumptions on which the interpretation is based are communicated in accordance with audience needs

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Skill requirements

Look for evidence that confirms skills in:

- applying legislation, regulations and policies relating to statistical work
- explaining the results of an analysis in writing
- constructing graphs, tables and maps using software
- using presentation software
- communicating with diverse audiences including explaining, interpreting, presenting results
- responding to diversity, including gender and disability
- applying procedures relating to occupational health and safety and environment in the context of statistical interpretation

Knowledge requirements

Look for evidence that confirms knowledge and understanding of:

- legislation, regulations, policies, procedures and guidelines relating to statistical work
- summary statistics
- statistical tests and related assumptions
- different methodologies and related assumptions
- the quality of a statistic
- sources of error including standard error
- data collection methodologies
- sources of expertise within the organisation
- 'how numbers relate' or the associations between statistics
- the ethical issues associated with presenting statistical results
- intellectual property issues and how they might relate to the data
- confidentiality issues relating to the data
- relevant style manuals
- equal employment opportunity, equity and diversity principles
- public sector legislation such as occupational health and safety and environment in the context of statistical work

PERFORMANCE CRITERIA

1. Apply knowledge of organisational linkages

- 1.1 Organisational linkages between government organisations and with quasi-government organisations and non-government organisations are identified and regularly reassessed to maintain currency of information
- 1.2 Decisions, advice and actions are taken making effective use of a comprehensive and up-to-date knowledge of these organisational linkages

2. Apply knowledge of inter-governmental linkages

- 2.1 Linkages between governments are identified and regularly reassessed to maintain currency of information
- 2.2 A comprehensive and up-to-date knowledge of the linkages between governments is used in taking decisions, advice and actions

3. Apply knowledge of political context

- 3.1 Information is sourced from inside and outside the organisation, and its authenticity and reliability confirmed.
- 3.2 An analysis of the political, social and economic environment is undertaken that takes into account emerging trends, and current and possible future goals of the organisation.
- 3.3 A comprehensive and up-to-date knowledge of the current political environment is reflected in decisions, advice and actions taken

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1. Identify opportunities to provide goods or services	1.1 The business unit's or organisation's place in the market is identified 1.2 Organisational resources/expertise available for purchase by others are identified and matched to opportunities 1.3 Business case is developed to demonstrate viability of opportunities and is submitted for approval in accordance with organisational policy and procedures
2. Analyse tender requirements	2.1 Scope of the tender requirement is identified 2.2 Requirements are confirmed with the funder/purchaser in accordance with organisational policy and procedures 2.3 Cultural issues are identified and clarified where necessary particularly when responding to international opportunities to sell services
3. Determine proposal methodology	3.1 Methodology is selected based on available resources, available expertise and client requirements 3.2 Methodology is selected in accordance with organisational and public sector requirements for probity and accountability

PERFORMANCE CRITERIA

4. Prepare estimate

- 4.1 Estimate is prepared to take account of all requirements and allows for contingencies
- 4.2 Estimate is structured to provide for cost recovery or return a profit according to legislation, policy and procedures
- 4.3 Costs are estimated to enable provision of goods or services to the standards required by the client
- 4.4 Estimate is checked for accuracy and detailed in accordance with organisational procedures and client requirements

5. Submit a tender

- 5.1 Tender is prepared in accordance with organisational policy and procedures
- 5.2 Required details are addressed and client requirements met in preparing tender response
- 5.3 Tender is submitted within required timeframe
- 5.4 Organisational recordkeeping requirements for tender responses are met

6. Review tender process

- 6.1 Changes and variations to the tender are negotiated to meet the needs of the client and the organisation in accordance with contractual arrangements, organisational policy, procedure and delegated authority
- 6.2 Tender response, outcome and preparation process are evaluated using feedback from a range of stakeholders and the results are used to improve subsequent quotations

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Skill requirements

Look for evidence that confirms skills in:

- applying legislation, policy and guidelines
- using numeracy in selecting and applying mathematical concepts, estimating, checking reasonableness of results
- using a range of mathematical language to communicate mathematical information
- managing financial and other resources
- using literacy for oral and written clarification of issues and for negotiating variations and changes with clients
- using required language and style for written submissions
- using technical and other vocabulary
- networking strategically with clients, suppliers and stakeholders
- evaluating and reviewing information
- responding to diversity, including gender and disability

Knowledge requirements

Look for evidence that confirms knowledge and understanding of:

- State/Territory or Commonwealth legislation and guidelines that apply to selling government services locally, nationally and internationally
- organisational guidelines, policies and practices
- financial accountability requirements
- legal requirements of selling government services
- implications of different contracting agreements
- whole-of-life considerations
- delegations
- approval processes
- range of evaluation methods
- tender management processes
- equal employment opportunity, equity and diversity principles
- public sector legislation such as occupational health and safety and environment in the context of developing tender responses

In addition to integrated demonstration of the elements and their related performance criteria, look for evidence that confirms:

- the knowledge requirements of this unit
- the skill requirements of this unit
- application of Employability Skills as they relate to this unit
- development of tender submission responses in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

EVIDENCE GUIDE

Resources required to carry out assessment

These resources include:

- legislation, policy, procedures and protocols relating to development of tender responses
- case studies and workplace scenarios to capture the range of situations likely to be encountered when developing tender submission responses

Where and how to assess evidence

Valid assessment of this unit requires:

- a workplace environment or one that closely resembles normal work practice and replicates the range of conditions likely to be encountered when developing tender submission responses, including coping with difficulties, irregularities and breakdowns in routine
- development of tender submission responses in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

Assessment methods should reflect workplace demands, such as literacy, and the needs of particular groups, such as:

- people with disabilities
- people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds
- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- women
- young people
- older people
- people in rural and remote locations.

Assessment methods suitable for valid and reliable assessment of this competency may include, but are not limited to, a combination of 2 or more of:

- case studies
- portfolios
- projects
- questioning
- scenarios
- authenticated evidence from the workplace and/or training courses

For consistency of assessment

Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments

Range Statement

The Range Statement provides information about the context in which the unit of competency is carried out. The variables cater for differences between States and Territories and the Commonwealth, and between organisations and workplaces. They allow for different work requirements, work practices and knowledge. The Range Statement also provides a focus for assessment. It relates to the unit as a whole. Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit covers the competency to foster leadership and innovative work practices in others. It includes providing a model of innovative practice, organising workgroups to develop innovation and leadership, organising work assignments to facilitate innovation, supporting workgroup to develop leadership and innovation, monitoring innovation and leadership development and providing feedback on innovation and leadership development.

In practice, fostering leadership and innovation may overlap with other generalist or specialist public sector work activities such as acting ethically, complying with legislation, providing client service, leading a group, developing policy, managing projects, etc.

The unit has been developed from ICS01 Generic Guideline Units - Innovative Work Skills, guideline competency standard ICS5, with leadership added.

This is one of 6 units of competency in the Working in Government Competency Field that deal with working with others.

Related units are:

Valid assessment of this unit requires:

- a workplace environment or one that closely resembles normal work practice and replicates the range of conditions likely to be encountered when administering human resource processes, including coping with difficulties, irregularities and breakdowns in routine
- administration of human resource processes in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

people with disabilities
Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
women
young people
older people
people in rural and remote locations

case studies
portfolios
questioning
scenarios
authenticated evidence from the workplace and/or training courses

For consistency of assessment

Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments

Unit Descriptor

This unit covers the provision of human resource information and advice to assist managers and others to deal with human resource matters. It includes identifying consultancy requirements, providing support to line managers and individual staff, and advising on linkages between human resource policy and organisational objectives.

In practice, providing consultancy services in human resources overlaps with other generalist and specialist workplace activities such as applying government processes, acting ethically, complying with legislation, delivering client services, etc.

This unit replaces PSPHR401A Provide a human resources consultancy service. The units are not equivalent. The revised unit has additional requirements, is no longer restricted to devolved human resource services and no longer addresses evaluation of consultancy services. Evaluation is addressed in PSPGOV509A Conduct evaluations, added to the Working in Government Competency field of the Training Package in 2004.

Unit Descriptor

This unit covers management of retention and separation of people in the organisation. It includes developing strategies for retention and separation and managing implementation of the strategies.

In practice, managing retention and separation overlaps with other generalist and specialist workplace activities such as managing diversity, managing policy implementation, managing resources, managing risk etc.

This unit replaces PSPHR602A Manage separation. The units are not equivalent. The revised unit no longer covers evaluation of separation strategies, and additional requirements relating to retention have been added. Evaluation is now addressed in PSPMNGT611A Manage evaluations, added to the Management Competency field of the Training Package in 2004.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in bold italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

1. Develop strategies for retention and separation	1.1 Rates of staff retention/turnover/separation and exit data are assessed, and government and organisational policies affecting retention/separation are analysed to identify factors to be taken into account 1.2 Strategies are developed with key stakeholders to address organisational requirements for staff retention and the full range of separation situations 1.3 Strategies are structured to provide sufficient time and information for employees to make well-considered decisions 1.4 Strategies are integrated with other key human resource policies and meet legislation and policy requirements 1.5 Strategies are developed based on the principles of natural justice, equity and fairness, and provide for access to counselling and support services
2. Manage implementation of separation/ retention strategies	2.1 Information and advice are provided to facilitate implementation and monitoring of strategies for retention and separation 2.2 Systems are managed to monitor the effectiveness of strategies for retention and separation in accordance with contractual obligations, legislation, organisational policy and needs, and in consultation with managers 2.5 Retention and separation strategies are monitored to gauge their effectiveness in meeting organisational requirements and providing support to staff involved 2.3 External and/or internal trends or events which have an effect on the organisation's retention and separation strategies and plans are monitored and responses are formulated 2.4 Adjustments to strategies are implemented as a result of monitoring and/or changed internal/external factors

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Skill requirements

Look for evidence that confirms skills in:

- undertaking effective consultation, counselling and negotiation
- assessing separation situations to see whether retention options are relevant/preferred
- interpreting and explaining complex requirements and assisting others to apply them in the workplace
- using a variety of words and language structures to explain complex ideas to different audiences
- preparing written advice requiring reasoning and precision of expression
- engaging in discussion using exchange of complex oral information
- responding to diversity, including gender and disability
- applying occupational health and safety and environmental procedures in the context of managing separation and retention

Look for evidence that confirms knowledge and understanding of:

- alternatives to dismissal
- award interpretation and employee entitlements
- concept of misconduct in the context of public sector employment
- concept of redundancy
- concept of retirement
- concept of voluntary termination
- concepts of dismissal and suspension
- concepts of natural justice and procedural fairness
- disputes and grievance procedures
- employment contracts

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The Evidence Guide specifies the evidence required to demonstrate achievement in the unit of competency as a whole. It must be read in conjunction with the Unit descriptor, Performance Criteria, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Public Sector Training Package.

Units to be assessed together

- Pre-requisite units that must be achieved prior to this unit: Nil
- Co-requisite units that must be assessed with this unit: Nil
- Co-assessed units that may be assessed with this unit to increase the efficiency and realism of the assessment process include, but are not limited to:

PSPETHC601B Maintain and enhance confidence in public service

PSPGOV601B Apply government systems

PSPLEGN601B Manage compliance with legislation in the public sector

PSPHR603B Provide advisory and mediation services

Overview of evidence requirements

In addition to integrated demonstration of the elements and their related performance criteria, look for evidence that confirms:

the knowledge requirements of this unit

application of the Employability Skills as they relate to this unit (see Employability Summaries in Qualifications Framework)

- management of retention and separation strategies in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

Resources required to carry out assessment

These resources include:

legislation, policies and procedures relating to separation and retention organisational plans and documents workplace scenarios and case studies to capture the range of

situations likely to be encountered when managing retention and separation environmental factors and relevant workplace materials that might affect retention and separation

Valid assessment of this unit requires:

Where and how to assess evidence

- a workplace environment or one that closely resembles normal work practice and replicates the range of conditions likely to be encountered when managing retention and separation, including coping with difficulties, irregularities and breakdowns in routine
- management of retention and separation strategies in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

people with disabilities

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people

people in rural and remote locations

case studies

authenticated evidence from the workplace and/or training courses

For consistency of assessment

Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments

Range Statement

The Range Statement provides information about the context in which the unit of competency is carried out. The variables cater for differences between States and Territories and the Commonwealth, and between organisations and workplaces. They allow for different work requirements, work practices and knowledge. The Range Statement also provides a focus for assessment. It relates to the unit as a whole. people in rural and remote locations

authenticated evidence from the workplace and/or training courses

For consistency of assessment

Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments

Unit Descriptor

This unit covers the establishment of strategies and processes to facilitate the internal movement of staff as a result of changing organisational needs, performance issues, and/or employee rehabilitation. It includes developing redeployment strategies and processes and managing the implementation of these.

In practice, managing redeployment overlaps with other generalist and specialist workplace activities such as managing diversity, managing policy implementation, managing separation, managing employment relations, managing performance management processes etc.

This unit replaces PSPHR607A Establish redeployment processes. These units are not equivalent. The revised unit has additional requirements and no longer covers evaluation of redeployment processes. Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Skill requirements

Look for evidence that confirms skills in:

- engaging in effective consultation with stakeholders using a variety of words and language structures to explain complex ideas to different audiences
- undertaking project management and evaluation
- undertaking counselling and negotiation
- using effective leadership involving systems and people
- analysing and explaining complex, formal documents and assisting others to apply them in the workplace
- preparing written advice and reports requiring reasoning and precision of expression
- undertaking training, coaching, mentoring and facilitation
- applying public relations strategies
- responding to diversity, including gender and disability
- applying occupational health and safety, environmental and sustainability procedures relevant to organisational development and change management

Look for evidence that confirms knowledge and understanding of:

- a range of evaluation methodologies related to organisational development
- change management strategies
- employee involvement strategies
- employment relations in the context of organisational development
- organisational learning
- equal employment opportunity, equity and diversity principles
- human resource policies and practices
- human resource strategy and planning
- industry trends
- jurisdictional legislation applying to organisational development including occupational health and safety and environmental and sustainability requirements
- needs analysis techniques in the context of organisational development
- organisational policies and procedures
- organisational development theory and practices including national and/or international good practice models and conceptions of organisation development
- organisational culture and dynamics
- organisational planning - vision, mission, values, goals the concept of diversity and its integration within and across all human resource functions and areas

the relationships between human resource functions

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The Evidence Guide specifies the evidence required to demonstrate achievement in the unit of competency as a whole. It must be read in conjunction with the Unit descriptor, Performance Criteria, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Public Sector Training Package.

Units to be assessed together

- Pre-requisite units that must be achieved prior to this unit: Nil
- Co-requisite units that must be assessed with this unit: Nil

Co-assessed units that may be assessed with this unit to increase the efficiency and realism of the assessment process include, but are not limited to:

PSPETHC601B Maintain and enhance confidence in public service

PSPGOV601B Apply government systems

PSPGOV604A Foster leadership and innovation

PSPGOV605A Persuade and influence opinion

PSPHR603B Provide advisory and mediation services

Overview of evidence requirements

In addition to integrated demonstration of the elements and their related performance criteria, look for evidence that confirms:

the knowledge requirements of this unit

application of the Employability Skills as they relate to this unit (see Employability Summaries in Qualifications Framework)

- organisational development managed in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

Resources required to carry out assessment

These resources include:

legislation, organisational policies and procedures workplace scenarios and case studies to capture the range of situations likely to be encountered when managing organisational development

Where and how to assess evidence

reference materials for organisational development

Valid assessment of this unit requires:

- a workplace environment or one that closely resembles normal work practice and replicates the range of conditions likely to be encountered when managing organisational development, including coping with difficulties, irregularities and breakdowns in routine
- organisational development managed in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

people with disabilities

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people

women

older people

people in rural and remote locations

case studies

projects

scenarios

authenticated evidence from the workplace and/or training courses

For consistency of assessment

Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit covers the development and implementation of organisational design strategies in order to maximise effective use of resources to attain strategic goals. It includes identifying needs and opportunities to improve organisational design, as well as developing and implementing of design strategies.

In practice, managing organisational design strategies overlaps with other generalist and specialist workplace activities such as managing diversity, managing policy implementation, managing resources, managing risk etc.

This unit replaces PSPHR611A Manage organisational design. The units are not equivalent. The revised unit has additional requirements and no longer covers evaluation of the organisational design strategy. Evaluation is addressed in PSPMNGT611A Manage evaluations, added to the Management Competency field of the Training Package in 2004.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in bold italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Identify needs and opportunities for improving the organisation's design	1.1 Research and consultation with key stakeholders are undertaken to identify needs and opportunities for an improved or enhanced organisational design
	1.2 Internal and external factors are analysed to identify trends and gauge the current and future impact of those trends on the organisation and the implications for the organisation's design
	1.3 Results of workforce analyses and planning are analysed to determine the impact on organisational design
	1.4 Changes to the organisation's design are considered in consultation with key stakeholders and recommended design options are forwarded to management
2. Develop organisational design strategies	2.1 A design option which is consistent with organisational policy , legislation , and resource parameters is agreed with management and stakeholders
	2.2 Design strategies are selected based on model/s of good practice in organisational design and are aligned to attaining organisational strategic goals
	2.3 Information and advice are presented to facilitate effective implementation, monitoring and evaluation of the intervention strategies
3. Implement organisational design strategies	3.1 Resources are obtained and deployed to implement design strategies
	3.2 Facilitation and advice are provided to support implementation and reports on progress are provided on a regular basis to key stakeholders
	3.3 The effectiveness of the design is monitored and feedback is used to determine necessary adjustments
	3.4 Modifications are made in line with agreed corrective action 3.5 Legislative and policy requirements are complied with in implementing organisational design strategies

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in bold italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

ELEMENT

PERFORMANCE CRITERIA

1. Conduct workplace and job analyses

- 1.1 Workplace supervisor is consulted to obtain access to the workplace and information on work demands and duties
- 1.2 Injured worker's capacity to perform tasks is assessed/clarified in accordance with current physical ability and medical certification
- 1.3 Workplace environment is assessed in relation to the injured worker's capacity and expert advice is obtained if required
- 1.4 Information is gathered regarding the operation of the workplace
- 1.5 Risk assessment of the work site is conducted in relation to the injured worker including the potential for exacerbating the injury or further injury

2. Negotiate work duties

- 2.1 Liaison is undertaken with the employer and other parties to identify suitable duties, alternative duties or job redesign and a staged return to normal duties whenever necessary
- 2.2 Alternative duties are analysed if necessary and recommendations made
- 2.3 Knowledge of safe work practices is applied
- 2.4 The need for modifications to the workplace or the use of adaptive equipment is assessed and recommendations made
- 2.5 Results of workplace assessment are applied to the return to work process in accordance with legislation, policy and procedures, taking into account long-term and short-term needs of the injured worker
- 2.6 Offers of suitable duties are obtained in writing in accordance with organisational policy and procedures

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Knowledge requirements

Look for evidence that confirms knowledge and understanding of:

- legislation, policies, guidelines and processes relating to injury management
- the organisation's strategic objectives related to injury management
- national strategic objectives relating to rehabilitation and return to work
- the link between ongoing information/awareness sessions and effective injury management
- audience requirements
- adult learning principles
- public sector values and codes of conduct
- anti-discrimination and diversity legislation
- legislation, policies and procedures relating to presentations including occupational health and safety and environment

Skill requirements

Look for evidence that confirms skills in:

- making presentations to provide awareness sessions aimed at improving injury management skills of less experienced members of staff
- tailoring sessions to the needs of adult learners
- explaining complex concepts and formal documents such as legislation, standards and codes of conduct
- using a range of communication styles to suit different audiences and purposes
- responding to diversity, including gender and disability
- mentoring culturally and linguistically diverse staff to maximise rehabilitation/return to work outcomes
- incorporating feedback from attendees into future session design and delivery
- applying occupational health and safety and environmental procedures in the context of promotion and education about rehabilitation

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The Evidence Guide specifies the evidence required to demonstrate achievement in the unit of competency as a whole. It must be read in conjunction with the Unit descriptor, Performance Criteria, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Public Sector Training Package.

Units to be assessed together

- Pre-requisite units that must be achieved prior to this unit: Nil
- Co-requisite units that must be assessed with this unit: Nil
- Co-assessed units that may be assessed with this unit to increase the efficiency and realism of the assessment process include, but are not limited to:

PSPETHC401A Uphold and support the values and ethics of public service

PSPGOV402B Deliver and monitor service to clients

PSPGOV406B Gather and analyse information

PSPGOV408A Value diversity

EVIDENCE GUIDE

Where and how to assess evidence and educating about injury management

Valid assessment of this unit requires:

- a workplace environment or one that closely resembles normal work practice and replicates the range of conditions likely to be encountered when promoting and educating about injury management, including coping with difficulties, irregularities and breakdowns in routine
- promotion and education about injury management in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

people with disabilities

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people

women

older people

people in rural and remote locations

demonstration

observation

simulation or role plays

authenticated evidence from the workplace and/or training courses

For consistency of assessment

Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments

ELEMENT

PERFORMANCE CRITERIA

1. Monitor standards and improve service delivery

- 1.1 Documentation, processes and practices are monitored in accordance with best practice principles to ensure compliance with legislation, policy and procedures
- 1.2 The organisation's systems and technology are used to monitor service and standards and to identify ways in which planning and operations could be improved
- 1.3 Service is strengthened through the use of continuous improvement techniques such as acting on feedback from stakeholders regarding rehabilitation services
- 1.4 Work performance is documented and the information is used to identify opportunities for improvement to systems and processes
- 1.5 Records, reports and recommendations for improvement are managed within the organisation's systems and processes
- 1.6 Service benchmarks are set, monitored and reviewed to ensure a cycle of continuous improvement

2. Maintain and further develop professional competence in injury management

- 2.1 Knowledge of industry trends/changes and legislative updates is maintained to ensure service standards to clients
- 2.2 Feedback from clients and colleagues is used to identify and develop ways to improve personal competence
- 2.3 Professional development opportunities suited to personal learning style/s are selected and used to develop competence, in accordance with organisational requirements and available resources
- 2.4 Participation in professional development activities and networks is used to enhance personal knowledge and skills related to changes in service provision, and to build and maintain professional relationships

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

EVIDENCE GUIDE

Assessment methods should reflect workplace demands, such as literacy, and the needs of particular groups, such as:

people with disabilities

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people

women

older people

people in rural and remote locations

case studies

scenarios

simulation or role plays

authenticated evidence from the workplace and/or training courses

For consistency of assessment

Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT

The Range Statement provides information about the context in which the unit of competency is carried out. The variables cater for differences between States and Territories and the Commonwealth, and between organisations and workplaces. They allow for different work requirements, work practices and knowledge. The Range Statement also provides a focus for assessment. It relates to the unit as a whole. Text in italics in the Performance Criteria is explained here.

Roads may be public roads such as:

- Local Government/council roads

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit covers the competency to assess Crown (or State) land in order to deal with the public land. It includes inspecting the land, liaising with stakeholders, preparing a land assessment report and reviewing public submissions.

In practice, assessing Crown land may overlap with other generalist or specialist public sector work activities, such as working ethically, complying with legislation, applying government processes, using resources, gathering and analysing information, working with diversity, etc.

This is a new unit of competency, added to the Public Land Administration Competency field of the Training Package in 2004.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in bold italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

1. Inspect land	1.1 The purpose of the land assessment is identified to determine land evaluation criteria 1.2 The information required to identify and locate the area to be inspected is gathered 1.3 Notifications are issued in accordance with organisational policy and procedures 1.4 Location of the site in the field is determined 1.5 The site is inspected and the assessment is conducted in accordance with organisational guidelines and procedures 1.6 Occupational health and safety legislative requirements are adhered to
2. Liaise with stakeholders	2.1 All stakeholders involved in the process are identified 2.2 Stakeholders are referenced where appropriate in accordance with organisational and best practice requirements 2.3 Issues associated with the land are identified in consultation with expert advisers
3. Prepare land assessment report	3.1 Existing published information and field information gathered are documented in accordance with organisational guidelines and procedures 3.2 An inventory is used to assess the land's capability according to prescribed land evaluation criteria 3.3 The most suitable uses for the land are identified and the preferred use/s are listed 3.4 Recommendations based on the assessment, the policies relating to the land and the reason for the assessment are clearly stated in the report
4. Review public submissions	4.1 All submissions received in relation to the assessment are registered and their content is evaluated 4.2 The assessment is reviewed based on the information provided in the submissions 4.3 Changes to the assessment are made as required and supported by explanation and evidence

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Skill requirements

Look for evidence that confirms skills in:

- interpreting legislation and policies
- investigating land ownership and tenure
- researching and interpreting information
- undertaking historical search
- interpreting a survey plan
- interpreting a map or plan
- interpreting an aerial photo
- using a compass/geographic positioning system (GPS)
- locating and identifying survey marks
- measuring/estimating distances/areas
- evaluating land capability and suitability
- communicating orally with a diverse range of stakeholders
- responding to diversity, including gender and disability
- accessing computer systems and operating a word processor
- accessing and interpreting information from natural resource databases
- preparing a natural resource inventory
- preparing an assessment and documentation to organisational standards
- compiling reports
- applying public sector legislation such as occupational health and safety, environment and sustainability, anti-discrimination and diversity in the context of land assessments

Knowledge requirements

Look for evidence that confirms knowledge and understanding of:

- legislative and organisational occupational health and safety requirements for working in the field
- legislation, policies and procedures for land assessments
- geomorphology and geological processes
- land management practices and principles
- vegetation identification and classification
- animal identification
- stocking rates

survey techniques soil classification

land evaluation criteria

heritage requirements of land assessments

Aboriginal culture and Aboriginal cultural heritage requirements of land assessments sustainability and environmental requirements interpretation of planning documents

- the skill requirements of this unit
- application of the Employability skills as they relate to this unit (see Employability Summaries in Qualifications Framework)
- assessment of Crown or State land in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

Resources required to carry out assessment

These resources include:

- legislation, policy, procedures and protocols relating to assessment of Crown land
- access to motor vehicle (4wd if rugged terrain) or boat (waterfront properties), camera, basic survey equipment, reference books and material, and maps
- access to relevant natural resource computer packages including Internet access
- case studies and workplace scenarios to capture the range of situations likely to be encountered when assessing Crown land

Valid assessment of this unit requires:

Where and how to

- a workplace environment or one that closely resembles normal

1. Analyse and review information sourced for an Aboriginal land claim	1.1 A complete review of the information supplied is carried out to ensure all technical aspects of the claim have been adhered to 1.2 The evidence supplied is analysed to ensure that the correct legal interpretation has been applied and that organisational policies have been considered
2. Consult with stakeholders	2.1 A check is made to ensure all stakeholders involved in the process have been consulted 2.2 Interests/concerns of all stakeholders are established in accordance with organisational procedures 2.3 Issues raised by stakeholders in their submissions are acknowledged and dealt with in accordance with organisational procedures 2.4 Stakeholders are consulted if clarification of information in a submission or an issue raised is required
3. Prepare a submission	3.1 Relevant information and evidence gathered for an Aboriginal land claim is documented and presented in accordance with organisational procedures 3.2 All information in the submission is clearly expressed and technically correct 3.3 The submission is directed to the appropriate personnel for determination and issue of approval or refusal by the Minister
4. Carry out post determination instructions	4.1 Details of post determination instructions are noted 4.2 All instructions are completed in accordance with organisational procedures 4.3 Documentation is prepared and directed following organisational and best practice requirements

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Skill requirements

Look for evidence that confirms skills in:

interpreting legislation relating to Crown/State land administration and Aboriginal land claims/applications analysing evidence gathering evidence

preparing detailed reports determining land tenure and ownership presenting evidence in a submission interpreting maps/plans/aerial photos communicating with diverse stakeholders including negotiation and mediation

responding to diversity, including gender and disability

applying public sector legislation such as occupational health and safety, environment, anti-discrimination and diversity in the context of Aboriginal land claims/applications

Look for evidence that confirms knowledge and understanding of:

legislation, policies and procedures relating to Crown/State land administration and Aboriginal land claims/applications preparation of ministerial submissions requiring formality of style, language and format information that can be used as evidence

Aboriginal culture and customs land tenures land title system

departmental delegations

the different types of organisational records that need to be noted or updated and in what circumstances public sector legislation including occupational health and safety and environment in the context of Aboriginal land claims/applications

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The Evidence Guide specifies the evidence required to demonstrate achievement in the unit of competency as a whole. It must be read in conjunction with the Unit descriptor, Performance Criteria, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Public Sector Training Package.

Units to be assessed together

- Pre-requisite units that must be achieved prior to this unit: Nil
- Co-requisite units that must be assessed with this unit: Nil
- Co-assessed units that may be assessed with this unit to increase the efficiency and realism of the assessment process include, but are not limited to:

PSPETHC401A Uphold and support the values and principles of public service

PSPGOV403B Use resources to achieve work unit goals

PSPGOV422A Apply government processes

PSPLEGN401A Encourage compliance with legislation in the public sector

Overview of evidence requirements

In addition to integrated demonstration of the elements and their related performance criteria, look for evidence that confirms:

- the knowledge requirements of this unit
- the skill requirements of this unit
- application of the Employability Skills as they relate to this unit (see Employability Summaries in Qualifications Framework)
- investigation of Aboriginal land claims/applications in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

Resources required to carry out assessment

These resources include:

- legislation, policy, procedures and protocols relating to investigation of Aboriginal land claims/applications
- case studies and workplace scenarios to capture the range of situations likely to be encountered when investigating Aboriginal land claims/applications

Where and how to assess evidence

Valid assessment of this unit requires:

- a workplace environment or one that closely resembles normal work practice and replicates the range of conditions likely to be encountered when investigating Aboriginal land claims/applications, including coping with difficulties, irregularities and breakdowns in routine

EVIDENCE GUIDE

- investigation of Aboriginal land claims/applications in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

Assessment methods should reflect workplace demands, such as literacy, and the needs of particular groups, such as:

- people with disabilities
- people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds
- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- women
- young people
- older people
- people in rural and remote locations

Assessment methods suitable for valid and reliable assessment of this competency may include, but are not limited to, a combination of 2 or more of:

- case studies
- portfolios
- questioning
- scenarios
- simulation or role plays
- authenticated evidence from the workplace and/or training courses

For consistency of assessment

Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments

Range Statement

The Range Statement provides information about the context in which the unit of competency is carried out. The variables cater for differences between States and Territories and the Commonwealth, and between organisations and workplaces. They allow for different work requirements, work practices and knowledge. The Range Statement also provides a focus for assessment. It relates to the unit as a whole. Overview of evidence requirements

In addition to integrated demonstration of the elements and their related performance criteria, look for evidence that confirms:

- the knowledge requirements of this unit
- the skill requirements of this unit
- application of Employability Skills as they relate to this unit
- compliance with legislation in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

Resources required to carry out assessment

These resources include:

- public sector legislation, regulations and guidelines
- procedures and protocols
- scenarios and case studies to capture the range of situations likely to be encountered when complying with public sector legislation

EVIDENCE GUIDE

Where and how to assess evidence

Valid assessment of this unit requires:

- a workplace environment or one that closely resembles normal work practice and replicates the range of conditions likely to be encountered when complying with legislation in the public sector, including coping with difficulties, irregularities and apparently conflicting legislative requirements
- compliance with legislation in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time).

- people with disabilities
- people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds
- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- women
- young people
- older people
- people in rural and remote locations.

Assessment methods suitable for valid and reliable assessment of this competency may include, but are not limited to, a combination of 2 or more of:

- case studies
- portfolios
- questioning
- scenarios
- simulation or role plays
- authenticated evidence from the workplace and/or training courses

For consistency of assessment

Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments

Overview of evidence requirements

In addition to integrated demonstration of the elements and their related performance criteria, look for evidence that confirms:

- the knowledge requirements of this unit
- the skill requirements of this unit
- application of the Employability Skills as they relate to this unit (see Employability Summaries in Qualifications Framework)
- diversity management in a range of (2 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

Resources required to carry out assessment

These resources include:

- information on diversity management in the context of public sector management and human resource management
- legislation, policy, procedures and guidelines relating to/impacting on diversity
- case studies and workplace scenarios to capture the range of situations likely to be encountered when managing diversity

Where and how to assess evidence

Valid assessment of this unit requires:

- a workplace environment or one that closely resembles normal work practice and replicates the range of conditions likely to be encountered in the workplace, including coping with difficulties, irregularities and breakdowns in routine

- management of diversity in a range of (2 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)
- a variety of management contexts (2 or more) such as managing compliance, managing people and performance, managing recruitment and selection, managing employee relations, managing client service etc

Assessment methods should reflect workplace demands, such as literacy, and the needs of particular groups, such as:

- people with disabilities
- people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds
- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- women
- young people
- older people
- people in rural and remote locations

Assessment methods suitable for valid and reliable assessment of this competency may include, but are not limited to, a combination of 2 or more of:

- case studies
- portfolios
- projects
- questioning
- scenarios
- simulation or role plays
- authenticated evidence from the workplace and/or training courses

For consistency of assessment

Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT

The Range Statement provides information about the context in which the unit of competency is carried out. The variables cater for differences between States and Territories and the Commonwealth, and between organisations and workplaces. They allow for different work requirements, work practices and knowledge. The Range Statement also provides a focus for assessment. It relates to the unit as a whole. Text in italics in the Performance Criteria is explained here.

- A diversity strategy is*
- an expression of what a business unit or organisation intends to do to utilise diversity as a productive resource in order to maximise effectiveness and efficiency

Risk management

- is a logical and systematic process of identifying, analysing, evaluating, treating, and monitoring risks related to any strategy plan, process, program or procedure that will enable the organisation to minimise losses and maximise opportunities
- may be considered in relation to an organisation's:
 - people
 - assets and physical environment
 - reputation and image
 - legal issues
 - business continuity
 - finances

may include written procedures to ensure staff know:

what how

- when, and
- by whom, action is to be taken to treat risks in the organisation

Risk evaluation criteria are used to rank risks and decide whether they are acceptable or not affected by:

legal requirements

perceptions of internal/external stakeholders cost-benefit analysis, for example, cost of risk management being less than financial cost if the risk occurred

Legislation, policy and procedures may include

- Commonwealth and State/Territory legislation relating to risk management
- national and international codes of practice and standards, such as SIRCA 8001:2003
- the organisation's risk management policies and practices
- codes of conduct/codes of ethics

Australian and New Zealand standards - Risk management AS/NZS natural events

Risks may be internal external random real perceived

Risks may include physical injury or death failure of machinery or equipment breaches of security fraud litigation client dissatisfaction unfavourable publicity

Analysis of risks includes likelihood of risks: almost certain likely possible

	unlikely rare consequences of risks: insignificant minor moderate major catastrophic current control measures
Documentation of analysis may include	table showing all risks, any existing controls, likelihood of occurring, consequences and subsequent level of risk
Level of risk may be	low, treated with routine procedures moderate, with specific responsibility allocated for the risk, and monitoring and response procedures implemented high, requiring action, as it has potential to be damaging to the organisation extreme, requiring immediate action, as the potential could be devastating to the organisation
Methods/techniques/ tools may include	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • computer modelling • sensitivity analysis • structured interviews • statistical data • questionnaires • fault trees • analysis of consequences - loss of money, time, labour, intangibles
Acceptable risks are	those which an organisation has determined have the least potential for harm not necessarily insignificant
Risks may be acceptable because	the risk level is so low that it does not warrant spending time and money to treat it the risk is low and the benefits outweigh the cost of treating it the opportunities presented are much greater than the threat
Unacceptable risks are	those which an organisation has determined have the most potential

	for harm
Options for treating risks may include	avoiding the risk, for example, by terminating the activity or conducting it in another way (these actions may have different risks attached) controlling the risk, by reducing the likelihood of the risk occurring, the consequences of the risk, or both transferring the risk, for example, by arranging insurance, contracting some or all of the activity to another organisation or person, etc retaining the risk, and making contingency plans/funds allocation for covering any loss or other negative effect from the risk

people with disabilities

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people

women

young people

older people

people in rural and remote locations

case studies

projects

scenarios

authenticated evidence from the workplace and/or training courses

For consistency of assessment

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in bold italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

1. Undertake management audit	1.1 Scope and objectives of the management audit are determined in consultation with key stakeholders 1.2 Methodology, instruments, and baseline data (to be used for comparison) are determined 1.3 Expert advice and assistance are arranged as required 1.4 Management data is gathered, collated and circulated to stakeholders for comment in accordance with determined scope and methodology 1.5 Results are analysed, strengths identified and recommendations formulated to improve management performance 1.6 A management audit report is prepared and presented in accordance with organisational requirements
2. Review governance arrangements	2.1 Legislation, policies, standards and guidelines impacting on public sector governance are identified and key requirements are extracted 2.2 The organisation's governance framework is analysed to identify parameters and compare them to legislative and organisational requirements 2.3 Data is analysed to evaluate the organisation's deployment of its governance framework 2.4 Analysis is conducted of previous reviews, audits or self-assessments to see how the organisation has measured and analysed the effectiveness of the governance framework and how/whether the organisation has learnt from the experience 2.5 The effectiveness and compliance of the governance framework is determined, shortcomings are identified and recommendations formulated to incorporate learning from previous reviews and improve processes and practices where required 2.6 Recommendations are discussed with management and staff, feedback is incorporated and a report is prepared and presented in accordance with organisational requirements
3. Benchmark organisational performance	3.1 A benchmarking model is designed in accordance with the organisation's core business, functions and desired objectives/outcomes 3.2 Research is conducted to establish benchmarks for the measurement of organisational performance in key result areas determined by the organisation 3.3 A process is established and managed to conduct the benchmarking exercise 3.4 Networking and consultation are undertaken with staff in the

areas to be benchmarked, to gather information and provide support to ensure outcomes are valid, reliable and useful for improving performance

3.5 Data is gathered and analysed against benchmarks, and results are discussed with staff and management and presented in accordance with organisational requirements

3.6 Benchmarking report is written to meet audience needs and contains recommendations for improvement and an implementation model that meets organisational requirements

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Skill requirements

Look for evidence that confirms skills in:

- applying legislation, regulations and policies relating to governance, benchmarking and management audit
- planning and project management of reviews
- collecting, recording and collating information
- scheduling meetings/sessions
- undertaking research and analysis
- using records management systems
- interpreting organisational information
- using communication/consultation with a range of diverse stakeholders
- responding to diversity, including gender and disability
- writing recommendations/reports using formality of expression
- using numeracy for data analysis
- applying public sector procedures relating to occupational health and safety and environment and sustainability

Knowledge requirements

Look for evidence that confirms knowledge and understanding of:

- legislation, regulations, policies, procedures and guidelines relating to public sector governance benchmarking and management audit
- principles of management audit, benchmarking, compliance assessment, self-assessment and governance arrangements
- organisational structure and lines of management authority
- statutory and reporting requirements
- public sector standards including ethics and security relating to organisational information
- project management
- equal employment opportunity, equity and diversity principles
- public sector legislation such as occupational health and safety and environment and sustainability

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The Evidence Guide specifies the evidence required to demonstrate achievement in the unit of competency as a whole. It must be read in conjunction with the Unit descriptor, Performance Criteria, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Public Sector Training Package.

Units to be assessed together

- Pre-requisite units that must be achieved prior to this unit: Nil
- Co-requisite units that must be assessed with this unit: Nil
- Co-assessed units that may be assessed with this unit to increase the efficiency and realism of the assessment process include, but are not limited to:

Overview of evidence requirements

In addition to integrated demonstration of the elements and their related performance criteria, look for evidence that confirms:

- the knowledge requirements of this unit
- the skill requirements of this unit
- application of the Employability Skills as they relate to this unit (see Employability Summaries in Qualifications Framework)
- evaluation and improvement of business performance in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

Resources required to carry out assessment

These resources include:

- legislation, policy, procedures and protocols relating to public sector governance, benchmarking, and management audit
- benchmarking and audit tools and techniques
- case studies and workplace scenarios to capture the range of situations likely to be encountered when evaluating and

improving business performance

Valid assessment of this unit requires:

- a workplace environment or one that closely resembles normal work practice and replicates the range of conditions likely to be encountered when evaluating and improving business performance, including coping with difficulties, irregularities and breakdowns in routine
- evaluation and improvement of business performance in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

Assessment methods should reflect workplace demands, such as literacy, and the needs of particular groups, such as:

- people with disabilities
- people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds
- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- women
- young people
- older people
- people in rural and remote locations

Assessment methods suitable for valid and reliable assessment of this competency may include, but are not limited to, a combination of 2 or more of:

- case studies
- portfolios
- presentations
- projects
- questioning
- scenarios
- authenticated evidence from the workplace and/or training courses

For consistency of assessment

Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments

Range Statement

The Range Statement provides information about the context in which the unit of competency is carried out. The variables cater for differences between States and Territories and the Commonwealth, and between organisations and workplaces. They allow for different work requirements, work practices and knowledge. The Range Statement also provides a focus for assessment. It relates to the unit as a whole. Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit covers the exploration of opportunities for government organisations to develop partnering arrangements with the private sector and to proceed to formal agreement based on evaluation to ensure the public interest is fully protected. It includes exploring partnering opportunities, assessing feasibility, establishing partnering arrangements and fostering productive partnering relationships

In practice, development of partnering arrangements may overlap with other generalist or specialist public sector workplace activities such as applying government systems, establishing and maintaining strategic networks, planning procurement, managing risk etc.

This is one of two units dealing with partnering arrangements. The second unit is an imported unit, CHCCD19A Establish and maintain community, government and business partnerships from the Community Services Training Package which may be used in Diploma or Advanced Diploma qualifications.

This is a new unit of competency, added to the Management Competency field of the Training Package in 2004

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in bold italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

Elements and Performance Criteria

----------------	-----------------------------

ELEMENTPERFORMANCE CRITERIA*1. Explore partnering opportunities

- 1.1 Rigorous assessment is undertaken to establish the potential for private sector involvement in the delivery of public sector services or infrastructure
- 1.2 Need, affordability and priority for private sector partnering are determined to ensure the public interest is fully protected
- 1.3 The service/infrastructure requirement to be provided through a partnering arrangement is identified, benefits to the community are confirmed and potential partners are identified

2. Assess feasibility

- 2.1 A full feasibility study is conducted that includes environmental analysis, social impact and cost-benefit analysis to confirm the merits of partnering options for financing, delivery and value for money
- 2.2 A full assessment of risk is conducted, including the risks and costs the government would be prepared to retain
- 2.3 A detailed assessment of costs and potential revenue streams is undertaken and a comparison is undertaken with the costs associated with public sector provision
- 2.4 Community stakeholders are consulted to provide input in the feasibility and planning stages of any partnering arrangement

3. Establish partnering arrangements

- 3.1 Detailed requirements are determined for the partnering arrangement in accordance with government policy and priorities
- 3.2 Procurement options are investigated, including a full public tender process, in accordance with legislative and organisational requirements
- 3.3 Contracts are arranged that specify partnering duration, outputs, benefits and performance incentives, if any, in accordance with government policy and procedures
- 3.4 Risk is allocated to whichever party is best able to manage it and an accountability structure and approval process is developed
- 3.5 Government approvals are obtained and contractual arrangements are entered into in accordance with organisational policy and procedures

4. Foster productive partnering relationships

- 4.1 Reasons/benefits for the partnering arrangement, roles, limitations and expectations are affirmed throughout the life of the relationship
- 4.2 Ongoing communication is used to confirm vision, agreed goals, outcomes, measures of performance, agreed accountabilities and the limits of the arrangement for both parties
- 4.3 Ethical standards and public sector accountabilities are maintained and, when necessary, explained to partners in a

- manner suited to their requirements
- 4.4 Strategies for solving problems and dealing with conflict are agreed and used in accordance with organisational policy and procedures to build trust/mutual respect for the benefit of both parties

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Skill requirements

Look for evidence that confirms skills in:

- establishing and fostering trusting, ongoing relationships with individuals and businesses
- using a range of communication styles to suit different audiences and purposes
- explaining complex and formal policies and concepts to a variety of audiences
- responding to diversity, including gender and disability
- applying workplace safety procedures to partnering activities
- accessing/preparing information electronically or in hard copy

Knowledge requirements

Look for evidence that confirms knowledge and understanding of:

- probity
- public sector ethics and accountability
- public sector values and codes of conduct
- government/agency policies and procedures relating to public private partnering
- relationship contracting with the private sector
- relationship management in the context of partnering
- management of expectations in the context of partnering
- principles of cultural awareness and cross-cultural communication
- equal employment opportunity, equity and diversity principles
- workplace safety issues relating to public private partnering

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit covers the competency to ensure the effectiveness of the workforce, whether staff or contractors, in promoting the attainment of strategic objectives. It includes providing leadership to individuals and work teams, creating a cooperative work environment, capitalising on workplace emotions, motivating the workforce to achieve quality results, and delegating work to achieve strategic objectives, and managing up.

In practice influencing workforce effectiveness occurs in the context of other generalist or specialist work functions such as managing performance, managing diversity, managing change, managing client service etc.

This unit is one of a series of 4 units of competency relating to working with others, located in the Competency fields of Working in Government and Management. Related units are:

PSPGOV302B Contribute to workgroup activities

PSPGOV404B Develop and implement work unit plans

PSPGOV511A Provide leadership

This unit replaces PSPMNGT601A Facilitate workforce effectiveness. The units are not equivalent as elements dealing with emotional intelligence and managing up have been added.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit covers organisational leadership in change management through influencing and shaping an organisational culture that is receptive to and embraces the opportunities from change. This requires flexible organisational structures and processes in place to support clients and staff to maximise the strategic advantages of a change for the organisation. The unit includes influencing organisational culture, anticipating change and providing strategic leadership in change management.

In practice, leading change occurs in the context of other strategic activities such as providing strategic direction, influencing diversity, providing leadership in human resources management, etc.

The unit is one of 6 units of competency in the Working in Government and Management Competency fields that deal with change. Related units of competency are:

PSPGOV205B Participate in workplace change

PSPGOV306B Implement change

PSPGOV405B Provide input to change processes

PSPGOV514A Facilitate change

PSPMNGT604B Manage change

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in bold italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

Elements and Performance Criteria

----------------	-----------------------------

ELEMENTPERFORMANCE CRITERIA*1. Influence organisational culture

- 1.1 A strategic review of organisational culture is undertaken to establish existing attitudes to change and identify key issues for action
- 1.2 The strategic advantages of ongoing change for individuals, groups and the organisation are identified, supported and actively promoted to foster commitment to workplace change
- 1.3 The acceptance of new ideas and management methods, and challenges to existing practices and structures are embedded in managerial practice and decision making to develop an organisational culture that seeks and thrives on change for continuous improvement and business flexibility
- 1.4 Change management activities and related performance indicators for managers are embedded in organisational strategies, policies and plans as an ongoing requirement rather than added/transitory elements
- 1.5 Staff with a range of attributes that are reflective of a diverse workforce are recruited, developed and deployed to maximise the organisation's strategic advantage in dealing with change
- 1.6 Learning and development opportunities for managing change are embedded in induction and professional development for staff to support the development of a culture that embraces change

2. Anticipate change

- 2.1 The likelihood of significant change for the organisation is identified through strategic networking and ongoing consideration of factors impacting upon the community, the public sector, the organisation or within the political environment
- 2.2 Key stakeholders are consulted in identifying external drivers for change, and likely change is analysed in relation to its potential effect on organisational purpose, functions, structure, strategic objectives and the people in the organisation
- 2.3 Early planning is undertaken with managers, human resource personnel and staff to ensure maximum lead time, support for those likely to be affected by change and to allow thoughtful, proactive responses to be generated to optimise outcomes for the organisation
- 2.4 Resourcing challenges of both implementing and sustaining change are anticipated and planned for in accordance with organisational policies, procedures guidelines and legislative requirements

3. Provide strategic leadership in change management

- 3.1 Strategic priorities are formulated in consultation with key stakeholders in the organisation and the community, and set out a vision for the future that provides challenging but realistic

PERFORMANCE CRITERIA

- objectives to address change and maximise outcomes
- 3.2 Current best practice information on change management is accessed and used to ensure change is managed effectively for sustained positive outcomes for the organisation and its people
- 3.3 Leadership strategies are used to assist others to deal with ambiguity and to be creative and innovative in their approaches to dealing with change
- 3.4 Strategies are designed to address the transition from present to future arrangements and provide guidance for dealing with ambiguity in roles, functions, organisational priorities or structures
- 3.5 Organisational culture, business outcomes and client feedback are monitored and positive achievements identified and celebrated in accordance with organisational policy

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Skill requirements

----------------	-----------------------------

ELEMENTPERFORMANCE CRITERIA*1. Influence organisational culture

- 1.1 The strategic advantages of embedding risk management within organisational culture are promoted and reflected through the leadership position adopted on all matters related to the management of enterprise risk
- 1.2 Risk management requirements and performance indicators are embedded in senior position profiles, organisational strategies, policies and plans to mainstream risk management as part of normal business operations rather than an added requirement
- 1.3 Strategies are developed and implemented to promote knowledge sharing on risk and risk control across organisational functions
- 1.4 Initiatives to embed risk management within organisational culture are supported and resourced in accordance with the legislation, policy, procedures and the overall enterprise risk management strategy
- 1.5 Risk management training and awareness programs are resourced and embedded in induction and professional development opportunities provided to staff to support the development of a risk management culture
- 1.6 Organisational culture, business outcomes and stakeholder feedback are monitored, and positive achievements related to risk management initiatives are identified and celebrated in accordance with organisational policy

2. Provide strategic direction in risk management

- 2.1 Future trends and issues that may impact on the organisation's risk management strategies are identified, analysed and communicated to senior management, business unit and line managers
- 2.2 The impact of current and changing needs of the organisation is identified, and the development of strategies is initiated to address risk management at the enterprise level in accordance with organisational policy and procedures
- 2.3 Strategic priorities for risk management in the organisation are developed to support overall government policies on risk management and to encourage staff to share information and think laterally in their approach to identifying and managing risks
- 2.4 Strategic priorities are communicated to key stakeholders using a variety of strategies tailored to their needs and purposes and in such a way as to attract their support
- 2.5 Key risk management stakeholders are kept informed, in a manner suited to their needs, of what constitutes best practice in the area of risk management and its potential impact on the organisation

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit covers the competency to contribute to a safe workplace for self and others. It includes contributing to workplace safety arrangements, identifying hazards and controlling risks.

The unit is based on Generic Competency A in the National Guidelines for Integrating OHS Competencies into National Industry Competency Standards (NOHSC:7025, 1998 2nd Edition).

In practice, workplace safety may be demonstrated in the context of other work activities such as contributing to workplace activities, organising workplace information, implementing change, giving and receiving feedback etc.

This is a new unit of competency, added to the Occupational Health&Safety Competency Field of the Training Package in 2004

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

ELEMENT

PERFORMANCE CRITERIA

1. Contribute to participative workplace safety arrangements

- 1.1 Occupational health and safety issues are addressed/reported to designated personnel in accordance with workplace procedures and occupational health and safety legislation
- 1.2 Contributions are made to participative workplace safety arrangements within organisational procedures and scope of responsibilities and competencies

2. Identify hazards and control risks

- 2.1 Existing and potential hazards in the work area are identified, dealt with and/or reported to designated personnel according to workplace procedures.
- 2.2 Workplace procedures and work instructions for controlling risks are identified and implemented
- 2.3 Workplace procedures for dealing with accidents and other hazardous events are followed whenever necessary within scope of responsibilities and competencies
- 2.4 Feedback on the effectiveness of safety procedures and risk control measures is provided to enable improvements to be made where necessary

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Skill requirements

Look for evidence that confirms skills in:

- applying objective identification of workplace safety issues
- documenting hazards in clear language according to organisational guidelines
- accessing workplace safety legislation, policies and procedures electronically or in hard copy
- reading documentation such as workplace safety legislation, policies and procedures and applying them to work practices
- tailoring communication to suit different audiences, such as colleagues, management, safety representatives, inspectors
- responding to diversity, including gender and disability

Knowledge requirements

Look for evidence that confirms knowledge and understanding of:

- legal rights and responsibilities of the workplace parties
- the ways in which occupational health and safety is managed in the workplace, and legal requirements
- participative arrangements for workplace safety
- workplace hazards and associated risks
- preferred order of ways to control risks
- occupational health and safety procedures
- the meaning of workplace occupational health and safety symbols and signs
- designated workplace personnel responsible for occupational health and safety

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The Evidence Guide specifies the evidence required to demonstrate achievement in the unit of competency as a whole. It must be read in conjunction with the Unit descriptor, Performance Criteria, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Public Sector Training Package.

EVIDENCE GUIDE

Units to be assessed together

- Pre-requisite units that must be achieved prior to this unit: Nil
- Co-requisite units that must be assessed with this unit: Nil
- Co-assessed units that may be assessed with this unit to increase the efficiency and realism of the assessment process include, but are not limited to:

PSPGOV301B Work effectively in the organisation

PSPGOV302B Contribute to workgroup activities

PSPGOV303B Build and maintain internal networks

PSPGOV306B Implement change

PSPGOV307B Organise workplace information

PSPGOV308B Work effectively with diversity

PSPGOV312A Use workplace communication strategies

PSPGOV313A Compose workplace documents

Overview of evidence requirements

In addition to integrated demonstration of the elements and their related performance criteria, look for evidence that confirms:

- the knowledge requirements of this unit
- the skill requirements of this unit
- application of Employability Skills as they relate to this unit
- contribution to workplace safety in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

Resources required to carry out assessment

These resources include:

- organisational occupational health and safety legislation, policies and procedures
- details of the organisation's occupational health and safety system
- information on hazards and risks relevant to the workplace
- personal protective equipment
- relevant work areas for identification of hazards and control measures

Where and how to assess evidence

Valid assessment of this unit requires:

- a workplace environment or one that closely resembles normal work practice and replicates the range of conditions likely to be encountered when contributing to workplace safety, including coping with difficulties, irregularities and breakdowns in routine
- the applicant to contribute to workplace safety in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)
- the assessor to have recognised expertise in managing occupational health and safety in the industry, or work in an assessment team with such a person.

Assessment methods should reflect workplace demands, such as literacy, and the needs of particular groups, such as:

- people with disabilities
- people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds
- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- women
- young people
- older people
- people in rural and remote locations.

Assessment methods suitable for valid and reliable assessment of this competency may include, but are not limited to, a combination of 2 or more of:

- case studies
- demonstration
- observation
- questioning
- scenarios
- simulation or role plays
- authenticated evidence from the workplace and/or training courses

For consistency of assessment

Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments

Range Statement

The Range Statement provides information about the context in which the unit of competency is carried out. The variables cater for differences between States and Territories and the Commonwealth, and between organisations and workplaces. They allow for different work requirements, work practices and knowledge. The Range Statement also provides a focus for assessment. It relates to the unit as a whole. Text in italics in the Performance Criteria is explained here.

Occupational health and safety issues may include

- hazards relating to the physical environment
- workplace stress
- conflict
- bullying
- harassment

Designated personnel may include

- supervisors
- managers
- team leaders
- designated occupational health and safety officers
- health and safety representatives
- other persons authorised or nominated by the enterprise or industry to:
 - perform specified work
 - approve specified work
 - inspect specified work
 - direct specified work

Occupational health and safety legislation may include

- State/Territory/Commonwealth occupational health and safety acts, regulations and codes of practice including, but not limited to:
 - regulations and codes of practice relating to hazards present in the workplace or industry
 - general duty of care under occupational health and safety legislation and common law
 - provisions relating to roles and responsibilities of health and safety representatives and/or occupational health and safety committees
 - provisions relating to occupational health and safety issue resolution

Contributions may include

- identifying and reporting hazards and their associated risks
- identifying safety issues and hazards that can be addressed immediately and taking action in accordance with safety procedures
- reporting on effectiveness of safety procedures and risk controls
- suggesting improvements to procedures and controls
- listening to the ideas and opinions of others in the workplace
- sharing opinions, views, knowledge and skills

Participative workplace safety arrangements may include

- formal and informal health and safety meetings
- health and safety committees
- other committees, for example, consultative, planning and purchasing
- meetings called by health and safety representatives
- suggestions, requests, reports and concerns put forward to management

Hazard identification may include

- checking equipment or the work station and work area before work commences and during work
- workplace inspections
- responding to physical cues that ergonomics are ineffective and need adjustment
- on-the-job housekeeping checks (spills, furniture out of place, loose hand rails, curling mats, frayed cords, etc)
- anticipation of potential hazards

Workplace procedures may include

- complying with workplace occupational health and safety symbols and signs
- hazard reporting procedures
- job procedures, safe work instructions and allocation of responsibilities
- emergency procedures
- incident and near miss reporting and recording procedures
- consultation on occupational health and safety issues
- correct selection, use, storage and maintenance procedures for use of personal protective equipment
- risk control procedures

Controlling risks may include actions such as

- consultation with others
- measures to remove the cause of the risk at its source
- application of the hierarchy of control, namely:
 - elimination
 - substitution
 - engineering controls
 - administrative controls
 - personal protective equipment

Other hazardous events may include

- fires
- bomb threats
- chemical spills
- occupational violence
- natural disasters/events
- terrorist attacks

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT

PERFORMANCE CRITERIA

1. Provide workplace safety information to the workgroup

- 1.1 Relevant provisions of occupational health and safety legislation and codes of practice are confirmed as current and are explained to the workgroup using language and materials to suit their level of experience, existing knowledge and individual needs
- 1.2 Information on the organisation's occupational health and safety policies, procedures and programs is provided in a readily accessible manner to the workgroup
- 1.3 Information about identified hazards and the outcomes of risk assessment and risk control procedures is regularly provided and explained to the workgroup

2. Implement and monitor participative arrangements for workplace safety

- 2.1 Participative arrangements for consultation over occupational health and safety issues are implemented and monitored to ensure that all members of the workgroup have the opportunity to contribute
- 2.2 Issues raised through consultation are dealt with in accordance with organisational consultation procedures
- 2.3 The outcomes of consultation over occupational health and safety issues are recorded and communicated to the workgroup in accordance with organisational policy and procedures

3. Identify hazards and assess risks	3.1 Existing and potential hazards in the work area are identified and reported so that risk assessment and risk control procedures can be applied 3.2 Risks are prioritised in accordance with risk management procedures
4. Implement and report on procedures for controlling risks	4.1 Work procedures to control risks are implemented and adherence to them by the workgroup is overseen in accordance with workplace procedures 4.2 Existing risk control measures are monitored and results reviewed and reported regularly in accordance with workplace procedures
5. Implement procedures for dealing with hazardous events	5.1 Workplace procedures for dealing with hazardous events are implemented whenever necessary to ensure that prompt control action is taken 5.2 Hazardous events are analysed, and information to identify their cause/s is gathered in accordance with organisational procedures 5.3 Measures to prevent recurrence and minimise risks of hazardous events are implemented based on the hierarchy of control if within scope of responsibilities and competencies or, alternatively, referred to designated personnel for implementation
6. Implement procedures for providing workplace safety training	6.1 Occupational health and safety training needs are identified, specifying gaps between occupational health and safety competencies required and those held by workgroup members 6.2 Arrangements are made for fulfilling identified occupational health and safety training needs in both on-the-job and off-the-job training programs in consultation with relevant parties

7. Implement procedures for maintaining workplace safety records

- 7.1 Occupational health and safety records for work area are completed in accordance with workplace requirements for occupational health and safety records and legal requirements for the maintenance of records of occupational injury and disease
- 7.2 Records are compiled to allow evaluation of hazard identification and risk control procedures within work area according to organisational procedures and within scope of responsibilities and competencies

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Skill requirements

Look for evidence that confirms skills in:

- analysing the work environment, recognising hazards and judging occupational health and safety interventions
- reading complex and formal documents such as legislation and codes of practice and assisting others to apply them to work practices
- research into occupational health and safety areas not covered in legislation and codes of practice
- tailoring oral and written communication to suit different audiences, such as staff, senior management, safety representatives, inspectors, clients, visitors
- preparing reports on hazards requiring accuracy of expression
- accessing legislation and codes of practice electronically or in hard copy
- responding to diversity, including gender and disability
- compiling occupational health and safety records

Knowledge requirements

Look for evidence that confirms knowledge and understanding of:

- provisions of relevant occupational health and safety legislation
- principles and practice of effective occupational health and safety management
- workplace hazards
- consultative arrangements including in-house communication
- range and selection of control measures
- organisational occupational health and safety management systems and policies and procedures needed for legislative compliance

Participative arrangements may include

- formal and informal meetings which include occupational health and safety
- occupational health and safety committees
- other committees, for example, consultative, planning and purchasing
- health and safety representatives
- suggestions, requests, reports and concerns put forward by employees to management

Identifying hazards and assessing risks may occur through activities such as

- audits
- workplace inspections
- housekeeping
- checking work area and/or equipment before and during work
- job and work system assessment
- reviews of occupational health and safety records, including registers of hazardous substances, dangerous goods, etc
- maintenance of plant and equipment
- purchasing of supplies and equipment, for example, review of Material Safety Data Sheets and manufacturer/supplier information
- identifying employee concerns

Controlling risks may include actions such as

- measures to remove the cause of a risk at its source
- consultation with workers and their representatives
- application of the hierarchy of control, namely:
 - elimination of the risk
 - substitution
 - engineering controls
 - administrative controls
 - personal protective equipment

Results of risk control monitoring may include

- inadequacies in risk control measures
- inadequacies in resource allocation for implementation of risk control measures

Hazardous events may include

- incidents and near misses
- fires and explosions
- emergencies such as chemical spills
- bomb scares
- violent incidents, for example, armed robberies
- natural disasters/events
- occupational violence, including bullying

Procedures for dealing with hazardous events may include

- evacuation
- chemical containment
- first aid
- accident/incident reporting and investigation
- counselling
- de-briefing
- use of Employee Assistance Program

Occupational health and safety training may include

- induction training of staff/visitors
- specific hazard training
- specific task or equipment training
- emergency and evacuation training
- management system
- training as part of broader programs, for example, equipment operation

Occupational health and safety records may include

- complying with privacy requirements
- occupational health and safety audits and inspection reports
- health surveillance and workplace environmental monitoring records
- records of instruction and training
- manufacturers' and suppliers' information, including Material Safety Data Sheets and dangerous goods storage lists
- hazardous substances registers
- maintenance and testing reports
- workers compensation and rehabilitation records
- first aid/medical post records
- purchasing criteria

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

Elements and Performance Criteria

----------------	-----------------------------

ELEMENTPERFORMANCE CRITERIA*1. Monitor the provision of workplace safety information

- 1.1 Explanations to the workgroup of relevant provisions of occupational health and safety legislation and codes of practice are monitored to ensure they meet individual needs and are in accordance with organisational requirements
- 1.2 The quality of information on the organisation's occupational health and safety policies, procedures and programs is monitored and improvements implemented to ensure they remain up-to-date and readily accessible to the workgroup
- 1.3 Information about identified hazards and the outcomes of risk assessment and risk control procedures is monitored and the workgroup's understanding of the information is regularly assessed through feedback and questioning suited to individual needs

2. Monitor and maintain participative arrangements for workplace safety

- 2.1 The importance of effective participative arrangements in managing health and safety risks is promoted and all members of the workgroup are encouraged to contribute in accordance with organisational policy and procedures
- 2.2 Consultative procedures are monitored to ensure participation of the workgroup in the management of workplace hazards in accordance with legislative requirements
- 2.3 Issues raised through consultation are resolved or referred for resolution in accordance with workplace procedures for issue resolution
- 2.4 The outcomes of consultation over occupational health and safety issues are monitored and progressed in accordance with organisational policy and procedures

3. Review procedures for identifying hazards and assessing risks

- 3.1 Procedures for identifying existing and potential hazards in the work area are monitored and evaluated for effectiveness
- 3.2 Improvements are identified and recommended for hazard identification where necessary
- 3.3 Recommendations are made for risk assessment and risk control procedures to be enhanced where necessary

ELEMENTPERFORMANCE CRITERIA*4. Monitor and continuously improve procedures for controlling risks

- 4.1 Work procedures to control risks and adherence to them by the workgroup are monitored in accordance with workplace procedures
- 4.2 Results of monitoring existing risk control measures are analysed and recommendations for any action are reported regularly in accordance with workplace procedures
- 4.3 Inadequacies in existing risk control measures are identified in accordance with the hierarchy of control and are reported to designated personnel
- 4.4 Inadequacies in resource allocation for implementation of risk control measures are identified and reported to designated personnel

5. Monitor and maintain procedures for dealing with hazardous events

- 5.1 Workplace procedures for dealing with hazardous events are monitored whenever necessary to ensure that control action is effective and timely
- 5.2 Hazardous events are investigated to identify their cause in accordance with investigation procedures
- 5.3 Control measures to prevent recurrence and minimise risks of hazardous events are implemented based on the hierarchy of control if within scope of responsibilities and competencies or, alternatively, referred to designated personnel for implementation

6. Monitor and maintain procedures for providing workplace safety training

- 6.1 Training records and skills audits are regularly monitored to ensure ongoing workplace safety training needs are identified and addressed in accordance with organisational policy and procedures
- 6.2 The effectiveness of both on-the-job and off-the-job training programs to address the organisation's occupational health and safety training needs is evaluated in consultation with relevant parties, and continuous improvements are negotiated and implemented as necessary

7. Monitor procedures for maintaining workplace safety records

- 7.1 Occupational health and safety records for the work area are monitored to ensure they meet workplace requirements and legal requirements for the maintenance of records of occupational injury and disease
- 7.2 Aggregate information from the area's occupational health and safety records is used to identify hazards and monitor risk control procedures within the work area according to organisational procedures and within scope of responsibilities and competencies

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Skill requirements

Look for evidence that confirms skills in:

- analysing the work environment, recognising hazards and judging occupational health and safety interventions
- evaluating the quality and effectiveness of written and oral workplace safety information and training provided to staff
- identifying inadequacies in procedures and control measures
- reading and explaining complex and formal documents such as legislation and codes of practice
- tailoring communication to suit different audiences, such as staff, senior management, safety representatives, inspectors
- preparing reports on workplace safety requiring precision of expression
- investigating hazardous events
- analysing workplace safety data
- assessing resources needed for risk control
- accessing legislation and codes of practice electronically or in hard copy
- responding to diversity, including gender and disability

Knowledge requirements

Look for evidence that confirms knowledge and understanding of:

- provisions of relevant occupational health and safety legislation
- principles and practice of effective occupational health and safety management
- workplace hazards
- Australian and New Zealand standards - AS/NZS 4360:1999
- range and selection of effective control measures
- organisational occupational health and safety management systems, policies and procedures needed for legislative compliance
- impact of characteristics and composition of the workforce on occupational health and safety management
- relevance of occupational health and safety management to other organisational management policies, procedures and systems

Participative arrangements may include

- formal and informal meetings which include occupational health and safety
- occupational health and safety committees
- other committees, for example, consultative, planning and purchasing
- health and safety representatives
- suggestions, requests, reports and concerns put forward by employees to management
- external providers
- clients/visitors

Identifying hazards and assessing risks may occur through activities such as

- audits
- workplace inspections
- housekeeping
- checking work area and/or equipment before and during work
- job and work system assessment
- reviews of occupational health and safety records, including registers of hazardous substances, dangerous goods, etc
- maintenance of plant and equipment
- purchasing of supplies and equipment, for example, review of Material Safety Data Sheets and manufacturer/supplier information
- identifying employee concerns

Controlling risks may include actions such as

- measures to remove the cause of a risk at its source
- consultation with workers and their representatives
- application of the hierarchy of control, namely:
 - elimination of the risk
 - substitution
 - engineering controls
 - administrative controls
 - personal protective equipment.

Hazardous events may include

- incidents and near misses
- fires and explosions
- emergencies such as chemical spills
- bomb scares
- violent incidents, for example, armed robberies
- workplace violence, including bullying
- natural disasters/events

Procedures for dealing with hazardous events may include

- evacuation
- chemical containment
- first aid
- accident/incident reporting and investigation

Workplace safety training may include

- induction training
- management systems/policy
- specific hazard training
- specific task or equipment training
- emergency and evacuation training
- training as part of broader programs, for example, equipment operation

Occupational health and safety records may include

- complying with privacy and confidentiality requirements
- occupational health and safety audits and inspection reports
- health surveillance and workplace environmental monitoring records
- records of instruction and training
- manufacturers' and suppliers' information, including Material Safety Data Sheets and dangerous goods storage lists
- hazardous substances registers
- maintenance and testing reports
- workers compensation and rehabilitation records
- first aid/medical post records

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit covers establishment, maintenance and evaluation of the organisation's occupational health and safety system in order to ensure that the workplace is, so far as is practicable, safe and without risks to the health of employees.

The unit is based on Generic Competency C in the National Guidelines for Integrating OHS Competencies into National Industry Competency Standards (NOHSC:7025, 1998, 2nd edition).

In practice, establishing and maintaining a workplace safety system may be demonstrated in the context of generalist and specialist work activities such as coordinating a workgroup developing client services, coordinating and allocating resources, managing change, managing regulatory compliance, etc.

This unit replaces and is equivalent to PSPOHS601A Establish, maintain and evaluate the organisation's occupational health and safety system.

This unit and unit PSPOHS602A Manage workplace safety, are mutually exclusive. One or the other, but not both, may contribute to a qualification

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT

PERFORMANCE CRITERIA

1. Establish and maintain the framework for the occupational health and safety system

- 1.1 Occupational health and safety policies are developed to underpin the framework and detail the organisation's commitment to occupational health and safety within the area of responsibility
- 1.2 Occupational health and safety policies are used to detail how relevant occupational health and safety legislation will be implemented, consistent with overall organisational policies
- 1.3 Occupational health and safety responsibilities and duties which will allow implementation and integration of the occupational health and safety system are defined, allocated and included in job descriptions and duty statements for all relevant positions
- 1.4 Financial and human resources for the operation of the occupational health and safety system are identified, sought and/or provided in a timely and consistent manner
- 1.5 Information on the occupational health and safety system and procedures for the area of responsibility is provided and explained in a form which is readily accessible to employees

ELEMENTPERFORMANCE CRITERIA*2. Establish and maintain participative arrangements

- 2.1 Participative arrangements are established and maintained in consultation with employees and their representatives in accordance with relevant occupational health and safety legislation and consistent with the organisation's overall process for consultation
- 2.2 Issues raised through participation and consultation are dealt with and resolved promptly and effectively in accordance with procedures for issue resolution
- 2.3 Information about the outcomes of participation and consultation is provided in a manner accessible to employees

3. Establish and maintain procedures for identifying hazards

- 3.1 Existing and potential hazards within the area of responsibility are identified and identification is confirmed in accordance with occupational health and safety legislation, codes of practice and trends identified from the occupational health and safety records system
- 3.2 Procedures for ongoing identification of hazards are developed and integrated within systems of work and procedures
- 3.3 Activities are monitored to ensure that procedures are adopted and effective throughout the area of responsibility
- 3.4 Hazard identification is addressed at the planning, design and evaluation stages of any change in the workplace to ensure that new hazards are not created without effective control

4. Establish and maintain procedures for assessing risks

- 4.1 Risks presented by identified hazards are assessed in accordance with occupational health and safety legislation and codes of practice
- 4.2 Procedures for ongoing assessment of risks are developed and integrated within systems of work and procedures
- 4.3 Activities are monitored to ensure that procedures are adopted and effective throughout the area of responsibility
- 4.4 Risk assessment is addressed at the planning, design, purchasing and evaluation stages of any change within the area of responsibility to ensure that the risk from hazards is not increased

ELEMENTPERFORMANCE CRITERIA*5. Establish and maintain procedures for controlling risks

- 5.1 Measures to control assessed risks are developed and implemented in accordance with the hierarchy of control, relevant occupational health and safety legislation, codes of practice and trends identified from the occupational health and safety records system
- 5.2 When measures which control a risk at its source are not immediately practicable, interim solutions are implemented through consultation with the workforce until a control measure is developed
- 5.3 Procedures for ongoing control of risks, based on the hierarchy of control, are developed and integrated within general systems of work and procedures
- 5.4 Activities are monitored to ensure that the risk control procedures are adopted and effective throughout the area of responsibility
- 5.5 Risk control is addressed at the planning, design, purchasing and evaluation stages of any change within the area of responsibility to ensure that adequate risk control measures are included
- 5.6 Inadequacies in existing risk control measures are identified in accordance with the hierarchy of control, and resources enabling implementation of new measures are sought and/or provided according to appropriate procedures

6. Establish and maintain procedures for dealing with emergencies and hazardous events

- 6.1 Potential hazardous events and the risks associated with them are identified in accordance with occupational health and safety legislation and codes of practice
- 6.2 Procedures are developed in consultation with appropriate emergency services to control the risks associated with emergencies and hazardous events and meet any legislative requirements as a minimum
- 6.3 Appropriate information and training is provided to all employees to enable implementation of the procedures in all relevant circumstances

7. Establish workplace safety training arrangements

- 7.1 Occupational health and safety training is developed and implemented to identify and fulfil employees' occupational health and safety training needs as part of the organisation's general training program

8. Establish and maintain a system for occupational health and safety records

8.1 A system for keeping occupational health and safety records is established and monitored to allow identification of patterns of occupational injury and disease within the area of responsibility

9. Evaluate workplace safety

9.1 The effectiveness of the occupational health and safety system and related policies, procedures and programs is evaluated according to the organisation's aims with respect to occupational health and safety.

9.2 Continual improvements to the occupational health and safety system are developed and implemented to ensure more effective achievement of the organisation's aims with respect to occupational health and safety.

9.3 Compliance with occupational health and safety legislation and codes of practice is assessed to ensure that legal occupational health and safety standards are maintained as a minimum

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Skill requirements

Look for evidence that confirms skills in:

- analysing the working environment and designing occupational health and safety management systems to suit
- analysing relevant data and evaluating occupational health and safety system effectiveness
- assessing resources required to establish and maintain occupational health and safety management systems
- reading and interpreting complex and formal documents such as legislation and codes of practice
- tailoring communication to suit different audiences, such as staff, managers, safety representatives, inspectors
- responding to diversity, including gender and disability
- preparing reports on workplace safety requiring precision of expression
- accessing legislation and codes of practice electronically or in hard copy

Knowledge requirements

Look for evidence that confirms knowledge and understanding of:

- provisions of relevant occupational health and safety legislation
- principles and practice of effective occupational health and safety management
- management arrangements relating to regulatory compliance
- organisational hazards and risks, control measures and relevant expertise required
- characteristics and composition of workforce and their impact on occupational health and safety management
- relevance of enterprise management systems to occupational health and safety management

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The Evidence Guide specifies the evidence required to demonstrate achievement in the unit of competency as a whole. It must be read in conjunction with the Unit descriptor, Performance Criteria, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Public Sector Training Package.

Units to be assessed together

- Pre-requisite units that must be achieved prior to this unit: Nil
- Co-requisite units that must be assessed with this unit: Nil
- Co-assessed units that may be assessed with this unit to increase the efficiency and realism of the assessment process include, but are not limited to:

PSPGOV601B Apply government systems

PSPHR621A Manage organisational design strategies

PSPMNGT606B Manage quality client service

PSPMNGT608B Manage risk

PSPPOL603A Manage policy implementation

PSPREG601B Manage regulatory compliance

- Excluded units that may not contribute to the same qualification as this unit:

PSPOHS602A Manage workplace safety

Overview of evidence requirements

In addition to integrated demonstration of the elements and their related performance criteria, look for evidence that confirms:

- the knowledge requirements of this unit
- the skill requirements of this unit
- application of Employability Skills as they relate to this unit
- establishment and maintenance of a workplace safety system in a range of (2 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

EVIDENCE GUIDE

Resources required to carry out assessment

These resources include:

- occupational health and safety acts, regulations and codes of practice
- occupational health and safety management information including policies and procedures
- information relevant to the management of the enterprise, for example, planning, operations, maintenance, purchasing and budgeting
- work areas in the area of responsibility

Where and how to assess evidence

Valid assessment of this unit requires:

- a workplace environment or one that closely resembles normal work practice and replicates the range of conditions likely to be encountered when establishing and maintaining a workplace safety system, including coping with difficulties, irregularities and breakdowns in routine
- the applicant to establish and maintain a workplace safety system in a range of (2 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)
- the assessor to have recognised expertise in managing occupational health and safety in the industry, or work in an assessment team with such a person.

Assessment methods should reflect workplace demands, such as literacy, and the needs of particular groups, such as:

- people with disabilities
- people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds
- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- women
- young people
- older people
- people in rural and remote locations.

Assessment methods suitable for valid and reliable assessment of this competency may include, but are not limited to, a combination of 2 or more of:

- case studies
- portfolios
- projects
- questioning
- scenarios
- authenticated evidence from the workplace and/or training courses

For consistency of assessment

Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT

The Range Statement provides information about the context in which the unit of competency is carried out. The variables cater for differences between States and Territories and the Commonwealth, and between organisations and workplaces. They allow for different work requirements, work practices and knowledge. The Range Statement also provides a focus for assessment. It relates to the unit as a whole. Text in italics in the Performance Criteria is explained here.

A framework for occupational health and safety may include

- policy development and updating
- determining the ways in which occupational health and safety functions will be managed which may include distinct occupational health and safety management activities, or inclusion of occupational health and safety functions within a range of management functions and operations such as:
 - maintenance of plant and equipment
 - purchasing of materials and equipment
 - designing operations, work flow and materials handling
 - planning or implementing alterations to site, plant, operations or work systems.
- mechanisms for review and allocation of human, technical and financial resources needed to manage occupational health and safety, including defining and allocating occupational health and safety responsibilities for all relevant positions
- mechanisms for keeping up-to-date with relevant information and updating the management arrangements for occupational health and safety, for example:
 - information on health effects of hazards
 - technical developments in risk control and environmental monitoring
 - changes to legislation.
- mechanisms to assess and update occupational health and safety arrangements relevant to legislative requirements
- a system for communicating occupational health and safety information to employees, supervisors and managers within the enterprise

Occupational health and safety legislation may include

- State/Territory/Commonwealth occupational health and safety acts, regulations and codes of practice, including regulations and codes of practice relating to hazards present in the workplace or industry
- general duty of care under occupational health and safety legislation and common law
- requirements for the maintenance and confidentiality of occupational injury and disease
- requirements for provision of occupational health and safety information and training
- provisions relating to health and safety representatives and/or occupational health and safety committees
- provisions relating to occupational health and safety issue resolution

Participative arrangements should cover

- occupational health and safety committees and other committees, for example, consultative, planning and purchasing
- health and safety representatives
- employee and supervisor involvement in occupational health and safety management activities, for example, occupational health and safety inspections, audits, environmental monitoring, risk assessment and risk control
- procedures for reporting hazards, risks and occupational health and safety issues by managers and employees
- inclusion of occupational health and safety in consultative or other meetings and processes

Procedures for identifying hazards may include

- workplace inspections, including plant and equipment
- audits
- maintaining and analysing occupational health and safety records, including environmental monitoring and health surveillance reports
- maintenance of plant and equipment
- reviews of materials and equipment purchases, including manufacturers' and suppliers' information
- employee reporting of occupational health and safety issues

Procedures for assessing risks may include

- nationally recognised procedures such as National Safety Council procedures for risk assessment
- determining the likelihood and severity of adverse consequences from hazards
- occupational health and safety audits
- workplace inspections
- maintenance of plant and equipment
- purchasing of materials and equipment
- planning or implementing alterations to site, operations or work systems
- analysis of relevant records and reports, for example:
 - injuries and incidents (including near misses)
 - hazardous substances inventories/registers
 - audit and environmental monitoring reports
 - occupational health and safety committee records

Measures to control risks may include

- assessing the occupational health and safety consequences of materials, plant or equipment prior to purchase
- obtaining expert advice
- reducing/minimising risk through appropriate application of measures according to the hierarchy of control, namely:
 - elimination of the risk
 - substitution
 - engineering controls
 - administrative controls
 - personal protective equipment.
 - designing safe operations and systems of work
 - inclusion of new occupational health and safety information into procedures
 - checking enterprise compliance with regulatory requirements

Organisational procedures for dealing with hazardous events may include

- making inventories of, and inspecting, high risk operations
- inspecting systems and operations associated with potentially hazardous events such as:
 - emergency communications
 - links to emergency services
 - fire fighting
 - chemical spill containment
 - bomb alerts
 - first aid services
 - counselling
 - Employee Assistance Program

Occupational health and safety training may include

- arrangements for ongoing assessment of training needs such as those relating to supervisors and managers
- specific hazards
- specific tasks or equipment
- emergencies and evacuations
- training required under occupational health and safety legislation
- allocation of resources for occupational health and safety training, including:
 - acquisition of training resources
 - development of staff training skills
 - purchase of training services.
 - induction training
 - training for new operations, materials or equipment

Records system for occupational health and safety may cover

- identifying records required under occupational health and safety legislation, for example, workers compensation and rehabilitation records
- hazardous substances registers
- Material Safety Data Sheets
- incident/injury notifications (including near misses)
- certificates or licences
- manufacturers' and suppliers' occupational health and safety information
- occupational health and safety audits and inspection reports
- maintenance and testing reports
- workplace environmental monitoring and health surveillance records
- records of instruction and training
- first aid/medical post records
- change of management

Evaluation may include

- reviewing the effectiveness of the occupational health and safety management system
- regular review of operating procedures
- regular analysis of occupational health and safety records
- audits against occupational health and safety legislative requirements and organisational health and safety policies and procedures (some organisations have more stringent requirements than legislation requires because of risks associated with the work)

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit covers management and evaluation of occupational health and safety by operational managers who do not have responsibility for establishing the system, but must ensure that the workplace is, so far as is practicable, safe and without risks to the health of employees.

The unit is based on Generic Competency C in the National Guidelines for Integrating OHS Competencies into National Industry Competency Standards (NOHSC:7025, 1998, 2nd edition).

In practice, managing workplace safety may be demonstrated in the context of generalist and specialist work activities such as coordinating a workgroup, developing client services, coordinating and allocating resources, initiating and managing projects, etc.

This is a new unit of competency, added to the Occupational Health&Safety Competency Field of the Training Package in 2004.

This unit, and unit PSPOHS601B Establish and maintain a workplace safety system, are mutually exclusive. One or the other, but not both, may contribute to a qualification

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT

PERFORMANCE CRITERIA

1. Manage the framework for a workplace safety systems

- 1.1 The organisation's commitment to occupational health and safety is modelled within area of responsibility in accordance with workplace procedures developed to underpin the framework for a workplace safety system
- 1.2 Workplace health and safety procedures developed within area of responsibility are reviewed to ensure they detail how relevant occupational health and safety legislation will be implemented, consistent with overall organisational policies
- 1.3 Occupational health and safety responsibilities and duties which will allow implementation and integration of the occupational health and safety system are defined, allocated and included in job descriptions and duty statements for all relevant positions
- 1.4 Financial and human resources required for the operation of the occupational health and safety system within area of responsibility are identified, sought and/or provided in a timely and consistent manner
- 1.5 Information on the occupational health and safety system and procedures for area of responsibility are promoted and provided in a form which is readily accessible to employees

PERFORMANCE CRITERIA

2. Manage participative arrangements

- 2.1 Participative arrangements are managed in consultation with employees and their representatives in accordance with occupational health and safety legislation, internal agreements, and consistent with the organisation's overall process for consultation
- 2.2 Issues raised through participation and consultation are dealt with and resolved promptly and effectively in accordance with organisational procedures for dispute resolution
- 2.3 Information about the outcomes of participation and consultation is provided in a manner accessible to employees

3. Manage procedures for identifying hazards

- 3.1 Existing and potential hazards within area of responsibility are identified and confirmed in accordance with occupational health and safety legislation, codes of practice and related occupational health and safety trends
- 3.2 Activities are monitored to ensure that procedures for ongoing identification of hazards are adopted and effective throughout area of responsibility
- 3.3 Hazard identification is addressed at the planning, design, purchasing and evaluation stages of any change in the workplace to ensure that new hazards are not created

4. Manage procedures for assessing risks

- 4.1 Risks presented by identified hazards are assessed in accordance with occupational health and safety legislation and codes of practice
- 4.2 Activities are monitored to ensure that procedures for ongoing assessment of risks are adopted and effective throughout area of responsibility
- 4.3 Risk assessment is addressed at the planning, design, purchasing and evaluation stages of any change to ensure that the risk from hazards is not increased

5. Manage procedures for controlling risks

- 5.1 Measures to control assessed risks are developed and implemented in accordance with the hierarchy of control, relevant occupational health and safety legislation, codes of practice and related occupational health and safety trends
- 5.2 When measures which control a risk at its source are not immediately practicable, interim solutions are implemented through consultation with the workforce until a control measure is developed
- 5.3 Activities are monitored to ensure that risk control procedures, based on the hierarchy of control, are adopted and effective throughout area of responsibility
- 5.4 Risk control is addressed at the planning, design and evaluation stages of any change within area of responsibility to ensure that adequate risk control measures are included
- 5.5 Inadequacies in existing risk control measures are identified in accordance with the hierarchy of control, and resources enabling implementation of new measures are sought and/or provided according to appropriate procedures

6. Manage procedures for dealing with hazardous events

- 6.1 Potential hazardous events and the risks associated with them are identified in accordance with occupational health and safety legislation and codes of practice
- 6.2 Procedures which would control the risks associated with hazardous events and meet any legislative requirements as a minimum are implemented in consultation with appropriate emergency services
- 6.3 Appropriate information and training is provided to all employees to enable implementation of the procedures in all relevant circumstances

7. Manage workplace safety training

- 7.1 Occupational health and safety training is overseen to identify and fulfil employee and management occupational health and safety training needs as part of the organisation's general training program

8. Monitor occupational health and safety records

- 8.1 The system for keeping occupational health and safety records is monitored to allow identification of patterns of occupational injury and disease within area of responsibility in consultation with occupational health and safety representatives
- 8.2 Information from occupational health and safety records is used to inform risk identification procedures

9. Evaluate workplace safety

- 9.1 The effectiveness of the occupational health and safety system and related policies, procedures and programs is evaluated according to the organisation's aims with respect to occupational health and safety
- 9.2 Improvements to the occupational health and safety system are identified and actioned to ensure more effective achievement of the organisation's aims with respect to occupational health and safety
- 9.3 Compliance with occupational health and safety legislation and codes of practice is assessed to ensure that legal occupational health and safety standards are maintained

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Skill requirements

Look for evidence that confirms skills in:

- analysing relevant data and evaluating occupational health and safety system effectiveness
- assessing financial and human resources required to maintain occupational health and safety management systems

Internal agreements may include

- enterprise bargaining agreements
- certified agreements
- occupational health and safety agreements

Procedures for identifying hazards may include

- workplace inspections, including plant and equipment audits
- maintaining and analysing occupational health and safety records, including environmental monitoring, health surveillance reports and compensation data
- scheduled maintenance of plant and equipment
- reviews of materials and equipment purchases, including manufacturers' and suppliers' information
- employee reporting of occupational health and safety issues

Change in the workplace may include

- accommodation arrangements
- furniture
- equipment
- staffing numbers and deployment
- work allocation
- organisational structure and functions

Procedures for assessing risks may include

- determining the likelihood and severity of adverse consequences from hazards
- occupational health and safety audits
- workplace inspections
- maintenance of plant and equipment
- purchasing of materials and equipment
- planning or implementing alterations to site, operations or work systems
- analysis of relevant records and reports, for example:

- provision of a public affairs advisory service in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

EVIDENCE GUIDE

Assessment methods should reflect workplace demands, such as literacy, and the needs of particular groups, such as:

- people with disabilities
- people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds
- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- women
- young people
- older people
- people in rural and remote locations

Assessment methods suitable for valid and reliable assessment of this competency may include, but are not limited to, a combination of 2 or more of:

- case studies
- demonstration
- observation
- portfolios
- projects
- questioning
- scenarios
- simulation or role plays
- authenticated evidence from the workplace and/or training courses

For consistency of assessment

Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit covers the management of media relationships by those in public affairs to enable the organisation's services and achievements to be recognised and to deal with sensitive issues as they arise. It includes liaising with media personnel, negotiating media coverage, monitoring media coverage and preparing spokespersons for media interaction.

In practice, managing media relationships may overlap with other generalist or specialist public sector work activities such as acting ethically, complying with legislation, applying government systems, managing change, managing diversity, etc.

This unit has drawn upon NZQA unit standard 11595 Establish, develop, and manage public relations media relationships.

This is a new unit of competency, added to the Public Affairs Competency field of the Training Package in 2004.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit covers the planning and development of simple, generally low risk projects that may be small scale and managed by one person or by a person with a small team. It includes identifying project requirements, preparing a business case, preparing the project plan and establishing project infrastructure. Contract management requirements are not included as this aspect is addressed by units of competency within the Competency field of Procurement and Contract Management.

In practice, project planning and development overlaps with other generalist and specialist work activities such as applying government processes, using resources, developing work plans, gathering information, etc.

When this unit is completed in conjunction with PSPPM402B Manage simple projects and PSPPM403B Close simple projects, the three units together are equivalent to the eight private sector Business Services project management competencies: BSBPM401A - BSBPM408A inclusive.

This unit, and unit PSPPM405A Administer simple projects, are mutually exclusive. One or the other, but not both, may contribute to a qualification.

This unit replaces and is equivalent to PSPPM401A Develop a project.

----------------	-----------------------------

ELEMENTPERFORMANCE CRITERIA*1. Implement start-up activities

- 1.1 The project plan is updated with confirmed information for key dates and activities, resources and project governance details in accordance with the project implementation strategy
- 1.2 Project stakeholders' understanding of and agreement to fulfil the project requirements and their roles and responsibilities are confirmed
- 1.3 Required systems are established and maintained throughout the project in accordance with the project plan
- 1.4 A working knowledge of project management tools is used to facilitate integration of project activities and achievement of project outcomes

2. Coordinate project implementation

- 2.1 Integration and management of project activities are handled in accordance with the project plan
- 2.2 Stakeholder input and expectations are managed and their commitment is maintained throughout the life of the project in accordance with organisational policy and procedures and the project plan
- 2.3 Disagreements and disputes are resolved or referred to a higher authority in accordance with organisational policy and procedures
- 2.4 Project change proposals are received and changes are recommended/made in accordance with the project plan, and documented in accordance with policy and procedures

3. Monitor project

- 3.1 All aspects of the project are continually monitored and corrective action is taken as necessary to maintain progress in accordance with the project plan
- 3.2 Consultation and reporting mechanisms are applied in accordance with the communication plan when dealing with management, staff and/or contractors, steering committee members or other stakeholders
- 3.3 Project governance plans and any related contracts are monitored, reviewed and amended as appropriate, and results are reported in accordance with the communication plan
- 3.4 Project progress is monitored against agreed milestones in accordance with the project plan to provide a measure of performance throughout the life of the contract
- 3.5 Programmed review of objectives and achievement is implemented in accordance with the project plan

4. Arrange project follow-up activities

- 4.1 Project deliverables are analysed against specifications, performance standards and project objectives, under broad guidance, and the results are reported to stakeholders
- 4.2 An initial support package or product manual is produced, if

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit covers project evaluation and reporting for generally low risk projects that may be small scale and managed by one person or a person with a small team. It includes implementing project review activities and finalising projects. Contract management requirements are not included as this aspect is addressed by units of competency within the Competency field of Procurement and Contract Management.

In practice, closing simple projects may overlap with other generalist and specialist work activities such as applying government processes, using resources, gathering information, providing input to change, managing contracts etc.

When this unit is completed in conjunction with PSPPM401B Design simple projects and PSPPM402B Manage simple projects, the three units together are equivalent to the eight private sector Business Services project management competencies: BSBPM401A - BSBPM408A inclusive.

This unit, and unit PSPPM405A Administer simple projects, are mutually exclusive. One or the other, but not both, may contribute to a qualification.

This unit replaces and is equivalent to PSPPM403A Close projects.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in bold italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

1. Implement project review activities	1.1 Evaluation of project process and achievement against objectives is undertaken in consultation with stakeholders and results are reported in accordance with the project plan and organisational policy and procedures 1.2 Action to rectify problems in meeting client needs is recommended and documented 1.3 Implications of project results for policies and operating procedures are identified and recommendations are made for their amendment 1.4 Information obtained from the evaluation of the project is structured so it may be used to improve relevant policy and practice in accordance with organisational requirements
2. Finalise project	2.1 Contracts are finalised and financial records are checked for accuracy and completed in accordance with organisational procedures 2.2 Project wind-down is managed, documentation is completed, records are archived and approvals are obtained in accordance with the project plan and organisational policy and procedures 2.3 Project stakeholders are debriefed, and recommendations are made for redeployment of infrastructure/resources in accordance with organisational policy and procedures 2.4 Project hand-over to user/s is completed in accordance with organisational procedures and lessons learnt are documented and reported to stakeholders to assist in continuous improvement 2.5 Stakeholders are advised of procedures and authorities for initial support to implement project deliverables where relevant, and strategies are devised to manage long-term project momentum in accordance with organisational requirements

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Skill requirements

Look for evidence that confirms skills in:

analysing results and evaluating results against objectives writing recommendations and preparing reports requiring precision of expression communicating with stakeholders and team members using a range of communication styles to suit different audiences and purposes
responding to diversity, including gender and disability debriefing project team members reporting on resource expenditure including time and costs using project management tools suited to small scale or low risk projects applying workplace safety procedures in line with project requirements
accessing/preparing information electronically or in hard copy

Knowledge requirements

Look for evidence that confirms knowledge and understanding of:

legislation, organisational policies and procedures that may impact on project finalisation, for example:
public sector codes of ethics/conduct occupational health and safety and environment requirements project governance requirements
quality standards
risk management
procurement guidelines human resource management and development
equal employment opportunity, equity and diversity principles project management tools to suit a range of small scale or low risk projects project management principles organisational and political environment

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The Evidence Guide specifies the evidence required to demonstrate achievement in the unit of competency as a whole. It must be read in conjunction with the Unit descriptor, Performance Criteria, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Public Sector Training Package.

Units to be assessed together

- Pre-requisite units that must be achieved prior to this unit: Nil
- Co-requisite units that must be assessed with this unit: Nil
- Co-assessed units that may be assessed with this unit to increase the efficiency and realism of the assessment process include, but are not limited to:

Overview of evidence requirements

In addition to integrated demonstration of the elements and their related performance criteria, look for evidence that confirms:

- the knowledge requirements of this unit
- the skill requirements of this unit
- application of the Employability Skills as they relate to this unit (see Employability Summaries in Qualifications Framework)
- closure of simple projects in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

Resources required to carry out assessment

These resources include:

- legislation, guidelines, procedures and protocols relating to project close-out

EVIDENCE GUIDE

- workplace project documentation
- scenarios and case studies
- examples of project management tools

Valid assessment of this unit requires:

Where and how to assess evidence

- a workplace environment or one that closely resembles normal work practice and replicates the range of conditions likely to be encountered when closing projects, including coping with difficulties, irregularities and breakdowns in routine
- closure of simple projects in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

Assessment methods should reflect workplace demands, such as literacy, and the needs of particular groups, such as:

- people with disabilities
- people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds
- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- women
- young people
- older people
- people in rural and remote locations

Assessment methods suitable for valid and reliable assessment of this competency may include, but are not limited to, a combination of 2 or more of:

- case studies
- demonstration
- portfolios
- questioning
- scenarios
- authenticated evidence from the workplace and/or training courses

For consistency of assessment

Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit covers the activities required to carry out simple projects, working on one project at a time. This work is typically undertaken by a project officer working individually or as part of a project team. It includes reviewing and confirming the project brief, carrying out project activities, monitoring and maintaining progress and completing the project. Contract management requirements are not included as this aspect is addressed by units of competency within the Competency field of Procurement and Contract Management.

In practice, carrying out project work overlaps with other generalist and specialist work activities such as acting ethically, applying government processes, using resources, developing work plans, gathering information, etc.

This is a new unit of competency, added to the Project Management Competency field of the Training Package in 2004.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit covers the administration of a straightforward project or a discrete component of a larger project by staff who are not specialists in project management. The unit focuses on the application of project management skills and the requirement to meet timelines, quality standards, budgetary limits and other requirements set for the project. It includes defining the project, developing a project plan, administering and monitoring the project, finalising the project and reviewing the project to identify lessons learnt for application to future projects. Contract management requirements are not included as this aspect is addressed by units of competency within the Competency field of Procurement and Contract Management.

Units of competency for specialist project managers at this level include PSPPM401B Design simple projects, PSPPM402B Manage simple projects and PSPPM403B Close simple projects. The unit of competency for specialist project officers is PSPPM404A Carry out simple project activities.

This unit and the 3 project management competencies for specialist project managers (PSPPM401B - PSPPM403B) are mutually exclusive and may not contribute to the same qualification.

This unit has been drawn from, and is equivalent to BSBCMN419A Manage projects, from the Business Services Training Package.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit covers planning and development of projects which may be reasonably complex in terms of scope, degree of risk, political, cultural and social factors that apply, consequences of failure and degree of control of the projects. It includes identifying project opportunities, undertaking scoping, analysing the feasibility of projects, developing project plans and managing the establishment of projects. Contract management requirements are not included as this aspect is addressed by units of competency within the Competency field of Procurement and Contract Management.

In practice, designing complex projects overlaps with other generalist and specialist work activities such as acting ethically, coordinating resource allocation and usage, developing client services, undertaking research and analysis, etc.

When this unit is completed in conjunction with PSPPM502B Manage complex projects, and PSPPM503B Close complex projects, the three units together are equivalent to the nine private sector Business Services project management competencies: BSBPM501A - BSBPM509A inclusive.

This unit replaces and is equivalent to PSPPM501A Initiate projects.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in bold italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Identify project opportunities and undertake scoping	1.1 A critical analysis of the need for a project is conducted in accordance with organisational policy and procedures 1.2 A project definition study is undertaken, where necessary, to determine the scope of the project 1.3 Project scoping is completed in accordance with organisational policy and procedures and identifies a rationale for the project that includes the purpose, outcomes/expected benefits 1.4 Stakeholders are identified and canvassed to ensure that their requirements are addressed in project planning
2. Analyse project feasibility	2.1 Research and analysis is undertaken to identify impacts and risks, constraining factors and alternate options 2.2 Technical feasibility, supportability and cost effectiveness of the project are analysed and the outcome is reported to key stakeholders 2.3 Alternatives for project design are assessed and a preferred option that fits the strategic direction of the organisation/work unit is identified and reported 2.4 Relevant specialists are consulted to determine the extent of financial, technical, security, scheduling, whole-of-life support and probity, and other risks 2.5 A business case is prepared and approvals to proceed with project development are obtained in accordance with organisational policy, procedures and guidelines
3. Develop project plans	3.1 Project aims, objectives and impacts are defined in the project plan , and timeframes and resources to complete quality deliverables on time and within budget are identified 3.2 Projected outcomes are recorded in measurable and achievable forms and indicators to monitor the performance of the project are developed and agreed by relevant parties 3.3 Potential risks are investigated and identified in the project plan and a risk management process is established to analyse information and options to manage risks 3.4 Skills, roles and responsibilities of team members and stakeholders are clarified and agreed, and reporting requirements are identified 3.5 Management of project parameters is addressed in the project plan and evaluation criteria are designed in accordance with organisational policy and practice 3.6 Project management tools are utilised for planning in accordance with project requirements and the project is designed and documented in consultation with specialists to

4. Manage establishment of project

- meet user requirements
- 4.1 If required, stakeholders are lobbied in accordance with organisational policy and procedures, to negotiate endorsement for the project
 - 4.2 Terms of reference are written and agreed to by stakeholders and resources are obtained in accordance with organisational procedures to establish the project
 - 4.3 Project scope and objectives are reviewed and analysed, and a strategy is developed to establish work breakdown structures to implement the project
 - 4.4 Project infrastructure is identified and established in accordance with organisational policy and procedures
 - 4.5 Specialist and technical support relevant to the project is obtained in accordance with the project plan
 - 4.6 Project governance structure and processes are established as detailed in the project plan

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Skill requirements

Look for evidence that confirms skills in:

using project planning techniques related to projects that may be reasonably complex in terms of scope, degree of risk, political, cultural and social factors that apply, consequences of failure and degree of control of the projects detailing requirements, writing recommendations and preparing plans requiring precision of expression negotiating timelines, roles and responsibilities with stakeholders and team members scheduling project activities communicating with stakeholders using a range of communication styles to suit different audiences and purposes

responding to diversity, including gender and disability

using project management tools suited to planning reasonably complex projects applying risk management techniques in project establishment including risk sharing and transfer using public relations strategies to promote and gain endorsement for projects including workplace safety issues in project planning requirements

accessing/preparing information electronically or in hard copy

Knowledge requirements

Look for evidence that confirms knowledge and understanding of:

legislation, organisational policies and procedures that may impact on the project and management of the project, for example:

public sector codes of ethics/conduct

occupational health and safety and environmental and sustainability requirements

project governance requirements

financial management requirements

quality standards

risk management

procurement

human resources

equal employment opportunity, equity and diversity principles

project planning methods which may be reasonably complex in terms of scope, degree of risk, political, cultural and social factors that apply, consequences of failure and degree of control of the projects

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The Evidence Guide specifies the evidence required to demonstrate achievement in the unit of competency as a whole. It must be read in conjunction with the Unit descriptor, Performance Criteria, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Public Sector Training Package.

Units to be assessed together

- Pre-requisite units that must be achieved prior to this unit: Nil
- Co-requisite units that must be assessed with this unit: Nil
- Co-assessed units that may be assessed with this unit to increase the efficiency and realism of the assessment process include, but are not limited to:

PSPETHC501B Promote the values and ethos of public service

PSPGOV502B Develop client services

PSPGOV503B Coordinate resource allocation and usage

PSPGOV504B Undertake research and analysis

PSPGOV505A Promote diversity

PSPGOV507A Undertake negotiations

PSPGOV512A Use complex workplace communication strategies

PSPPM502B Manage complex projects

PSPPM503B Close complex projects

PSPPROC502A Establish contract management arrangements

Overview of evidence requirements

In addition to integrated demonstration of the elements and their related performance criteria, look for evidence that confirms:

- the knowledge requirements of this unit
- the skill requirements of this unit
- application of the Employability Skills as they relate to this unit (see table Following for examples)
- complex projects designed in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

Resources required to carry out assessment

These resources include:

- legislation, guidelines, procedures and protocols relating to project planning and management
- workplace project documentation
- scenarios and case studies
- examples of project management tools

Where and how to assess evidence

Valid assessment of this unit requires:

- a workplace environment or one that closely resembles normal

work practice and replicates the range of conditions likely to be encountered when initiating projects, including coping with difficulties, irregularities and breakdowns in routine

- complex projects designed in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

Assessment methods should reflect workplace demands, such as literacy, and the needs of particular groups, such as:

- people with disabilities
- people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds
- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- women
- young people
- older people
- people in rural and remote locations

Assessment methods suitable for valid and reliable assessment of this competency may include, but are not limited to, a combination of 2 or more of:

- case studies
- demonstration
- observation
- portfolios
- projects
- questioning
- scenarios
- simulation or role plays
- authenticated evidence from the workplace and/or training courses

For consistency of assessment

Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments

Range Statement

The Range Statement provides information about the context in which the unit of competency is carried out. The variables cater for differences between States and Territories and the Commonwealth, and between organisations and workplaces. They allow for different work requirements, work practices and knowledge. The Range Statement also provides a focus for assessment. It relates to the unit as a whole. Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in bold italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

1. Manage start-up activities	1.1 Project plans are refined in consultation with steering committee and team members, and precise details are included for schedules of activities, milestones and resources 1.2 Required systems are established and maintained throughout the project in accordance with the complexity of the project and in line with the project plan 1.3 Project team members' understanding of and commitment to fulfilling the project requirements and their roles and responsibilities for the duration of the project are confirmed 1.4 Project management tools are selected and applied effectively to achieve project outcomes
2. Manage project implementation	2.1 Integration and management of complex project activities are handled in accordance with the project plan 2.2 Leadership and required development are provided to the project team, and morale, stress levels and triggers are managed throughout the life of the project in accordance with organisational policy and procedures 2.3 Stakeholder input and expectations are managed throughout the project in accordance with the communication plan 2.4 Disagreements and disputes are resolved to the satisfaction of stakeholders or referred to a higher authority in accordance with organisational policy and procedures 2.5 Project change proposals are negotiated, agreed and documented in accordance with policy and procedures
3. Manage project integration	3.1 All aspects of the project and related projects are integrated and links are established to ensure objectives are met in accordance with the project plan 3.2 Consultation and reporting mechanisms are applied in accordance with the communication plan and staff and contractors are regularly consulted to discuss progress and ensure effective results 3.3 Project integration is monitored, and management plans and any related contracts are reviewed and amended as appropriate, with results reported in accordance with mechanisms identified in the communication plan 3.4 Ongoing progress is monitored against agreed milestones in accordance with the project plan to provide a measure of performance throughout the life of the project 3.5 Programmed review of objectives and achievement is planned and implemented in accordance with the project plan
4. Coordinate project	4.1 Significant judgment is applied in the analysis of project

follow-up activities

PERFORMANCE CRITERIA

- deliverables against specifications, performance standards and project objectives, and the results are reported to stakeholders
- 4.2 Support package arrangements are identified and offered to stakeholders who will be required to apply the project results
- 4.3 Options for stakeholders to take account of environmental and cultural factors in applying the project results are included in the support package
- 4.4 Operational and support authorities are consulted to investigate any testing/trialling/building and evaluation requirements resulting from the project, and funding implications estimated in project report

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Skill requirements

Look for evidence that confirms skills in:

- leading and mentoring people to achieve project outcomes
- maintaining agreement of stakeholders and team members to timelines, roles and responsibilities
- negotiating with stakeholders and team members using communication styles to suit different audiences and purposes
- responding to diversity, including gender and disability
- using project management tools applicable to reasonably complex projects
- applying ethical decision making and problem solving related to project management of reasonably complex projects
- writing recommendations and preparing project reports requiring precision of expression
- applying workplace safety procedures in line with project requirements
- accessing/preparing information electronically or in hard copy

Knowledge requirements

Look for evidence that confirms knowledge and understanding of:

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The Evidence Guide specifies the evidence required to demonstrate achievement in the unit of competency as a whole. It must be read in conjunction with the Unit descriptor, Performance Criteria, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Public Sector Training Package.

Units to be assessed together

- Pre-requisite units that must be achieved prior to this unit: Nil
- Co-requisite units that must be assessed with this unit: Nil
- Co-assessed units that may be assessed with this unit to increase the efficiency and realism of the assessment process include, but are not limited to:

PSPETHC501B Promote the values and ethos of public service

PSPGOV502B Develop client services

PSPGOV503B Coordinate resource allocation and usage

PSPGOV504B Undertake research and analysis

PSPGOV507A Undertake negotiations

PSPGOV512A Use complex workplace communication strategies

PSPGOV517A Coordinate risk management

PSPPM501B Design complex projects

PSPPROC504A Finalise contracts

Overview of evidence requirements

In addition to integrated demonstration of the elements and their related performance criteria, look for evidence that confirms:

- the knowledge requirements of this unit
- the skill requirements of this unit
- application of the Employability Skills as they relate to this unit (see Employability Summaries in Qualifications Framework)
- reviewing and closing complex projects in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

Resources required to carry out assessment

These resources include:

- legislation, guidelines, procedures and protocols relating to project close-out
- workplace project documentation
- scenarios and case studies
- examples of project management tools suited to reasonably complex projects

EVIDENCE GUIDE

Where and how to assess evidence

Valid assessment of this unit requires:

- a workplace environment or one that closely resembles normal work practice and replicates the range of conditions likely to be encountered when reviewing and closing complex projects, including coping with difficulties, irregularities and breakdowns in routine
- reviewing and closing complex projects in a range of (3 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

Assessment methods should reflect workplace demands, such as literacy, and the needs of particular groups, such as:

- people with disabilities
- people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds
- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- women
- young people
- older people
- people in rural and remote locations

Assessment methods suitable for valid and reliable assessment of this competency may include, but are not limited to, a combination of 2 or more of:

- case studies
- demonstration
- observation
- portfolios
- projects
- questioning
- scenarios
- simulation or role plays
- authenticated evidence from the workplace and/or training courses

For consistency of assessment

Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT

The Range Statement provides information about the context in which the unit of competency is carried out. The variables cater for differences between States and Territories and the Commonwealth, and between organisations and workplaces. They allow for different work requirements, work practices and knowledge. The Range Statement also provides a focus for assessment. It relates to the unit as a whole. Text in italics in the Performance Criteria is explained here.

Stakeholders may include

- project sponsor/funding bodies
- clients or customers (internal and external)
- industry
- other agencies
- general public
- relevant interest groups
- unions
- functional areas
- the organisation's senior management
- Ministers
- project team
- steering committee members
- end user
- supplier/service provider

Project plan will include some or all of

- acquisition strategies
- budget and financial management strategy
- contract management
- cost estimates
- evaluation criteria
- expected outcomes/measurable benefits of the project
- facilities
- inclusions and exclusions from project
- information/communication strategy
- intellectual property strategies
- milestones
- objectives
- outputs/project deliverables and their acceptance criteria
- people plan including human resource management and human resource development
- performance criteria/indicators
- project control mechanisms
- project implementation strategy
- project governance strategy

RANGE STATEMENT

- purpose
 - quality assurance
 - quality control
 - quality standards for project
 - rationale
 - required project resources
 - resource management
 - risk management
 - roles and responsibilities
 - schedule/timeline
 - task/work breakdown structure (WBS)
- Policy and procedures may include*
- government legislation (Federal, State and Local) affecting organisation's administration such as:
 - public sector management acts
 - financial management and accounting legislation and regulations
 - privacy legislation
 - government and organisational guidelines and procedures relating to:
 - project governance
 - resourcing
 - security
 - strategic plans
 - recruitment

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit covers the work activities required to carry out complex project activities or multiple projects simultaneously. Typically this work is undertaken by project officers who are required to work on projects for multiple clients, or all aspects of larger projects. They are sometimes responsible for all the project deliverables, and at other times they work in teams on aspects of a number of projects. Contract management requirements are not included, as this aspect is addressed by units of competency within the Competency field of Procurement and Contract Management.

The unit includes reviewing and confirming requirements of each project/activity, organising and undertaking project activities, managing the progress of multiple projects/activities and finalising projects/activities.

In practice, conducting complex project activities overlaps with other generalist and specialist work activities such as acting ethically, coordinating resource allocation and usage, developing client services, undertaking research and analysis, etc.

This is a new unit of competency, added to the Project Management Competency field of the Training Package in 2004.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in bold italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

Elements and Performance Criteria

----------------	-----------------------------

ELEMENTPERFORMANCE CRITERIA*1. Review and confirm project requirements

- 1.1 Limits of own responsibility and reporting requirements are confirmed for each of the projects/project activities assigned
- 1.2 Information and supporting materials for each project/project activity are obtained in accordance with project requirements, organisational policy and procedures
- 1.3 Project plans are analysed and requirements, timeframes, roles, responsibilities and stakeholder involvement are confirmed for each
- 1.4 Project management procedures and controls are confirmed in accordance with each project plan, and any required changes are negotiated according to the project plan change management strategy
- 1.5 Project plans are updated with confirmed information for milestones, resources, team members and steering committee details

2. Organise and undertake project activities

- 2.1 Personal work plans are prepared to assign activities, timeframes and milestones for all projects/project activities to a single planning management framework to meet the progress requirements for each project/project activity
- 2.2 Where project requirements cannot be accommodated and clashes occur, negotiations are conducted with project managers and/or supervisory staff to find a compromise satisfactory to all stakeholders
- 2.3 Project tasks are accomplished in accordance with project plans and any changes are managed in accordance with the approved project change strategy
- 2.4 Project data is captured and recorded in accordance with project requirements
- 2.5 Specialist advice and support are provided to project managers, steering committees and stakeholders as required to achieve project objectives

3. Manage progress of multiple projects/activities

- 3.1 Project management tools are used for integration and timing of project activities and achievement of project outcomes
- 3.2 Risks to progress and achievement of project objectives are anticipated and reported to project management for action in accordance with risk management plans
- 3.3 Completion of project activities and progress against targets and milestones are monitored and corrective action is taken if needed, in accordance with project plans and in consultation with project managers
- 3.4 Problem solving to find innovative solutions to project problems or unplanned-for contingencies is undertaken in consultation with project management

4. Finalise project activities

- 3.5 Progress reports are provided as required by project communication plans
- 4.1 Project deliverables for each project/activity are completed to the required standard in the required timeframes
- 4.2 Recordkeeping associated with each project is completed as required by project plans
- 4.3 Project processes are evaluated, issues identified and recommendations made for continuous improvement of projects/activities
- 4.4 Project reports are prepared containing required information completed to the required standard using agreed style, voice and formats
- 4.5 Project hand-overs of deliverables and return of borrowed/unused materials are completed in accordance with project plans and organisational procedures

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Skill requirements

Look for evidence that confirms skills in:

managing the logistics of dealing with multiple projects/activities, masters and milestones managing self, time and costs using project management tools negotiating changes to timelines, roles and responsibilities communicating with project managers and other stakeholders using a range of communication styles to suit different audiences and purposes

responding to diversity, including gender and disability

recording information, writing recommendations and preparing reports requiring complex language structures and precision of expression

accessing/preparing information electronically or in hard copy

Knowledge requirements

Look for evidence that confirms knowledge and understanding of:

legislation, organisational policies and procedures that may impact on projects and management of the projects, for example:

public sector codes of ethics/conduct

occupational health and safety and environmental and sustainability standards

project governance requirements

risk management

procurement

financial management

equal employment opportunity, equity and diversity principles principles of project management project management tools to suit the combination of projects/activities carried out

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in bold italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

Elements and Performance Criteria

----------------	-----------------------------

ELEMENTPERFORMANCE CRITERIA*1. Identify project scope in a strategic context

- 1.1 Organisational requirements are anticipated/identified and communicated to project developers and managers
- 1.2 Project definition studies are undertaken and the results are analysed against similar projects already conducted to determine/approve the scope of projects
- 1.3 Project infrastructure is approved in accordance with organisational policy and procedures
- 1.4 Projects are initiated in accordance with the organisation's strategic direction in consultation with clients
- 1.5 Conceptual and analytical skills are applied to develop a management strategy to ensure project objectives and client requirements are met
- 1.6 An effective risk management system is developed and applied to ensure project objectives are met within the organisation's accountability framework

2. Manage establishment of projects

- 2.1 The political context is managed and stakeholder expectations are influenced in accordance with organisational policy and procedures, to ensure endorsement and whole-of-life support for the project
- 2.2 Project scope and objectives are analysed to determine the work breakdown structures to achieve project objectives on time and within budget, and project infrastructure is acquired and allocated
- 2.3 Project plans are approved and a personal work plan for checking progress, mentoring, reading reports, providing feedback and authorising approvals is developed in accordance with project requirements
- 2.4 Processes identified for monitoring, evaluating and reporting performance against project objectives are established in accordance with project requirements

3. Manage integration of project activities

- 3.1 All aspects of the project and related projects are integrated and links are established to ensure objectives remain appropriate
- 3.2 Consultation and reporting mechanisms are applied in accordance with project requirements to regularly consult with and provide advice to staff and contractors, and to discuss progress to ensure effective results
- 3.3 Stakeholders' motivations are identified and considered in the management of the project
- 3.4 Progress is monitored to ensure time, performance, cost and quality of project are achieved, and change proposals are investigated, negotiated and approved in consultation with stakeholders
- 3.5 High-level judgment is applied to provide ongoing advice and

to resolve disagreements and disputes to the satisfaction of parties involved

4. Finalise and review project activities

4.1 Finalisation plans are developed to ensure all objectives are achieved, whole-of-life support will be maintained, and transition to next/following projects is facilitated

4.2 Documented information is evaluated, and lessons learnt are analysed and reported to stakeholders to assist in continuous improvement

4.3 Evaluation of project achievement against objectives is monitored in accordance with the evaluation framework and is reported to approval authorities and stakeholders in accordance with organisational policy and procedures

This unit covers the provision of input to the policy development process by all public sector staff and other stakeholders who are not policy specialists (ie they are not responsible for developing policy). It includes contributing to the consultative, validation and review phases of policy development, and providing feedback on the policy development process.

Assistance to the policy development process by specialist policy research officers responsible for aspects of policy development is covered in the unit PSPPOL402A Assist with specialist policy development, rather than this unit.

In practice, contributing to the development of policy may overlap with other generalist or specialist work activities such as applying government processes, providing client services, gathering and analysing information, providing input to change etc.

This unit replaces PSPPOLD401A Contribute to the development of policy, and contains additional requirements. The units are not equivalent.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in bold italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Contribute to the consultative phase of policy development	1.1 Opportunities to contribute to policy development are identified and responded to in accordance with organisational needs, government directions and priorities 1.2 Information on the policy development process, timelines and expected outcomes is communicated to interested parties in accordance with public sector requirements , to ensure likely stakeholders are aware of, and able to engage in, policy development that may affect them 1.3 Information on policy requirements and existing policies and procedures likely to be impacted, is gathered from within and outside the immediate work environment, recorded and provided in accordance with organisational procedures
2. Contribute to the validation stage of policy development	2.1 Draft policy is analysed and the likely implications for government service delivery are identified in consultation with those likely to be affected 2.2 Draft policy implications for work processes and outcomes are evaluated and recorded 2.3 Likely implementation issues, dissenting stakeholders and transition requirements are identified and recorded 2.4 Feedback on draft policy is provided as unambiguous, objective advice supported by evidence provided in accordance with organisational procedures
3. Provide feedback on policy development	3.1 Information relating to the process of policy development is gathered, stored and analysed during policy development, as required 3.2 Oral or written feedback on the policy development process and the final policy is provided to the policy developer in accordance with organisational procedures
4. Contribute to the review of policy	4.1 Information relating to the expected outcomes of the policy is gathered, recorded, analysed and provided before, during and/or following policy implementation, as required 4.2 Unanticipated consequences of policy and suggestions for dealing with them are identified and reported immediately in accordance with organisational procedures and protocols

These resources include:

- relevant policy and legislation
- public sector standards, procedures and protocols
- policy development guidelines

Where and how to assess evidence

Valid assessment of this unit requires:

- a workplace environment or one that closely resembles normal work practice and replicates the range of conditions likely to be encountered when contributing to policy development, including coping with difficulties, irregularities and breakdowns in routine
- contribution to policy development in a range of (2 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

Assessment methods should reflect workplace demands, such as literacy, and the needs of particular groups, such as:

- people with disabilities
- people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds
- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- women
- young people
- older people
- people in rural and remote locations

Assessment methods suitable for valid and reliable assessment of this competency may include, but are not limited to, a combination of 2 or more of:

- case studies
- portfolios
- projects
- questioning
- scenarios
- authenticated evidence from the workplace and/or training courses

For consistency of assessment

Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments

Range Statement

The Range Statement provides information about the context in which the unit of competency is carried out. The variables cater for differences between States and Territories and the Commonwealth, and between organisations and workplaces. They allow for different work requirements, work practices and knowledge. The Range Statement also provides a focus for assessment. It relates to the unit as a whole. Text in italics in the Performance Criteria is explained here.

Unit Descriptor

This unit covers assistance in the planning, research and writing of policy, typically provided by a policy research officer. It includes assisting with policy development planning, researching, contributing to the developments of policy options, and assisting with drafting and dissemination of policy.

Contribution to the development of policy expected of all public sector staff is covered in PSPPOL401A Contribute to policy development, rather than this specialist unit.

In practice, assisting with specialist policy development may overlap with other generalist or specialist work activities such as applying government processes, providing client services, gathering and analysing information, providing input to change etc.

This is a new unit of competency, added to the Policy Competency field of the Training Package in 2004.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in bold italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

1. Assist with policy development planning	1.1 Research is conducted into the wider internal and external environment to identify related policies for context and identify other policies likely to be impacted 1.2 Internal and external stakeholders are identified and prioritised and their contact details are checked to ensure that key individuals and groups are engaged as early as possible and throughout the policy development process 1.3 Key aspects to be included in the policy development plan are identified and research assistance is provided to determine the content of each in accordance with organisational requirements
2. Research information for policy development	2.1 Sources of information are identified and evaluated 2.2 Information required to support the policy development process is gathered and collated in accordance with organisational requirements 2.3 Gaps, ambiguity and conflicting views in the information are identified, recorded and referred to the principal policy developer, or additional research is conducted to clarify them
3. Contribute to the development of policy options	3.1 Possible policy options are formulated and analysed under guidance, to identify their strengths and weaknesses 3.2 Possible criteria for choosing preferred policy option are researched and prioritised in terms of their applicability to the task
4. Assist in drafting policy	4.1 Initial drafts or selected sections of the policy are written in accordance with organisational requirements 4.2 Written and oral feedback from stakeholders is captured and included in re-drafting as required 4.3 The progress of policy development against the timeframe and milestones is monitored and reminders are provided to keep the process on track in accordance with the policy development plan 4.4 Policy writing is undertaken in accordance with organisational requirements for style, format and contents
5. Assist with policy dissemination	5.1 Recipients for approved policy documents, particularly those who will be responsible for implementing the new or revised policy, are identified and information is provided on the outcomes in accordance with organisational requirements 5.2 Routine enquiries on the release and content of the policy are dealt with or referred in accordance with organisational procedures

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Skill requirements

Look for evidence that confirms skills in:

reading and evaluating complex and formal documents such as policy and legislation

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit covers the development or review of 'in house' policy in an organisation, formulated to facilitate the implementation of government or board directives. It includes anticipating and confirming the need for policy development or review; planning the policy development process; gathering and analysing information; determining policy direction; and drafting, releasing and promoting policy.

In practice, developing organisation policy may overlap with other generalist or specialist work activities such as developing client services, complying with public sector legislation, acting ethically, engaging the community, coordinating research and analysis.

This unit combines and replaces and, for qualification purposes, is equivalent to PSPPOLD501A Develop organisation policy + PSPPOLD502A Manage the policy development process.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in bold italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

1. Anticipate and confirm the need for policy development or review	1.1 Internal and external factors, issues, events, directions or government/board policies likely to cause changes to organisation policy are identified 1.2 The likely implications and impact of these factors that might require policy development are identified in consultation with stakeholders 1.3 A critical analysis of the need for new or revised policy is conducted that includes a scan of the wider internal and external environment, that checks related policies for context and identifies other policies likely to be impacted 1.4 Priority areas for policy development/review are recommended in accordance with organisational procedures 1.5 Confirmation of the need for policy development/review and supporting evidence is detailed in accordance with organisational procedures
2. Plan the policy development process	2.1 The approving authority is confirmed and organisational procedures and protocols for policy development are confirmed and applied 2.2 Issues likely to impact on the policy development process are identified, analysed (in terms of risk) and addressed in policy development planning 2.3 Policy requirements are outlined in a policy development plan in accordance with organisational procedures
3. Gather and analyse information for policy development	3.1 Stakeholders are identified and engaged through the establishment and maintenance of a representative and relevant policy network 3.2 Information required to support the policy development process is identified, gathered, analysed and interpreted 3.3 An analytical framework for the development of the policy is determined and applied
4. Determine policy direction	4.1 A range of policy options and criteria for choice are developed and communicated in a timely and understandable way to those responsible for selecting the policy direction 4.2 Where appropriate, specific policy options are promoted to executive within the organisation 4.3 Preferred policy option is recommended and risk treatments are determined in accordance with the policy development plan 4.4 Approvals/endorsements are obtained in accordance with the policy development plan and organisational procedures
5. Draft policy	5.1 Policy is drafted and a cyclical process of consultation,

- feedback, identification of changes and re-drafting is implemented in accordance with the policy development plan
- 5.2 Risk management processes are implemented in accordance with the policy development plan to ensure progress of the process against the timeframe and milestones
- 5.3 An implementation plan is included in the policy that details responsibilities for implementation and strategies for transition, change management, initial and ongoing training and maintenance of the policy
- 5.4 Mechanisms for monitoring compliance with the policy, quality assurance of the policy, and evaluation of the policy are included within the policy
- 5.5 The policy is developed in accordance with organisational requirements for style, format and contents
- 6. Release and promote policy
- 6.1 Policy is cleared through organisational channels, and agreement of critical stakeholders is gained in accordance with organisational procedures
- 6.2 All stakeholders, particularly those who will be responsible for implementing the new or revised policy, are fully informed of the outcomes, and fallout from dissenting stakeholders is managed in accordance with the policy development plan
- 6.3 The policy is released and promoted in accordance with organisational requirements

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Skill requirements

Look for evidence that confirms skills in:

reading and evaluating complex and formal documents such as policy and legislation researching, analysing and presenting information preparing written reports requiring precision of expression and language and structures suited to the intended audience working as a member of a team to consult on and validate policy adjusting communication to suit different audiences

responding to diversity, including gender and disability

dealing with different points of view and dissenting stakeholders accessing policies and legislation electronically or in hard copy identifying and addressing the environmental, sustainability and occupational health and safety implications of policy/s being developed

Knowledge requirements

Look for evidence that confirms knowledge and understanding of:

policy development processes and practices in the public sector policy cycles

analytical policy development frameworks current policies underpinning the work area organisation and government procedures and protocols public sector code/s of ethics and code/s of conduct

equal employment opportunity, equity and diversity principles environmental, sustainability and occupational health and safety implications of policy/s being developed

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The Evidence Guide specifies the evidence required to demonstrate achievement in the unit of competency as a whole. It must be read in conjunction with the Unit descriptor, Performance Criteria, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Public Sector Training Package.

Units to be assessed together

- Pre-requisite units that must be achieved prior to this unit: Nil
- Co-requisite units that must be assessed with this unit: Nil
- Co-assessed units that may be assessed with this unit to increase the efficiency and realism of the assessment process include, but are not limited to:

PSPCOM502A Develop and implement community engagement strategies

PSPETHC501B Promote the values and ethos of public service

PSPGOV502B Develop client services

PSPGOV503B Coordinate resource allocation and usage

PSPGOV504B Undertake research and analysis

PSPGOV505A Promote diversity

PSPLEGN501B Promote compliance with legislation in the public sector

Overview of evidence requirements

In addition to integrated demonstration of the elements and their related performance criteria, look for evidence that confirms:

- the knowledge requirements of this unit
- the skill requirements of this unit
- application of the Employability Skills as they relate to this unit (see Employability Summaries in Qualifications Framework)
- development of organisation policy in a range of (2 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

Resources required to carry out assessment

These resources include:

- public sector policy and legislation
- public sector standards, procedures and protocols
- policy development guidelines

Valid assessment of this unit requires:

Where and how to assess evidence

- a workplace environment or one that closely resembles normal work practice and replicates the range of conditions likely to be encountered when developing policy, including coping with difficulties, irregularities and breakdowns in routine
- development of organisation policy in a range of (2 or more)

contexts (or occasions, over time)

Assessment methods should reflect workplace demands, such as literacy, and the needs of particular groups, such as:

- people with disabilities
- people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds
- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- women
- young people
- older people
- people in rural and remote locations

Assessment methods suitable for valid and reliable assessment of this competency may include, but are not limited to, a combination of 2 or more of:

- case studies
- portfolios
- projects
- questioning
- scenarios
- authenticated evidence from the workplace and/or training courses

For consistency of assessment

Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments

Range Statement

The Range Statement provides information about the context in which the unit of competency is carried out. The variables cater for differences between States and Territories and the Commonwealth, and between organisations and workplaces. They allow for different work requirements, work practices and knowledge. The Range Statement also provides a focus for assessment. It relates to the unit as a whole. Overview of evidence requirements

In addition to integrated demonstration of the elements and their related performance criteria, look for evidence that confirms:

- the knowledge requirements of this unit
- the skill requirements of this unit
- application of the Employability Skills as they relate to this unit (see Employability Summaries in Qualifications Framework)
- development of public policy in a range of (2 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

Resources required to carry out assessment

These resources include:

- public sector policy and legislation
- public sector standards, procedures and protocols
- policy development guidelines

Where and how to assess evidence

Valid assessment of this unit requires:

- a workplace environment or one that closely resembles normal work practice and replicates the range of conditions likely to be encountered when developing public policy, including coping with difficulties, irregularities and breakdowns in routine
- development of public policy in a range of (2 or more) contexts (or occasions, over time)

Assessment methods should reflect workplace demands, such as literacy, and the needs of particular groups, such as:

- people with disabilities
- people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds
- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
- women
- young people
- older people
- people in rural and remote locations

Assessment methods suitable for valid and reliable assessment of this competency may include, but are not limited to, a combination of 2 or more of:

- case studies
- portfolios
- projects
- questioning
- scenarios
- authenticated evidence from the workplace and/or training courses

For consistency of assessment

Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments

Range Statement

The Range Statement provides information about the context in which the unit of competency is carried out. The variables cater for differences between States and Territories and the Commonwealth, and between organisations and workplaces. They allow for different work requirements, work practices and knowledge. The Range Statement also provides a focus for assessment. It relates to the unit as a whole. Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements are the essential outcomes of the unit of competency. Together, performance criteria specify the requirements for competent performance. Text in bold italics is explained in the Range Statement following.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Monitor and influence environments where policy applies	1.1 Problems, limitations and new opportunities in policy environments are identified in response to internal and external factors and government priorities 1.2 Environments are monitored and opportunities are taken to influence key opinion formers and decision makers to increase their ability to respond to government priorities 1.3 Methods are used to influence environments in ways that are ethical, consistent with the public sector values and policies, and sensitive to the values and practice of key opinion formers and decision makers
2. Set strategic policy direction	2.1 Local, national and international monitoring is conducted of policies and trends pertinent to the medium- to long-term priorities of government 2.2 Strategies are implemented to develop and apply data capture mechanisms that will provide longitudinal information and trend analysis to support strategic thinking and more strategic policy development 2.3 Strategic policy directions are set in line with medium- to long-term government priorities and communicated to stakeholders using a variety of strategies to attract their support 2.4 Creative and innovative policy responses to complex social and economic issues are identified in anticipation of expected policy development initiatives 2.5 Productive relationships are established and maintained with key consultation partners to enable a fast policy response to emerging issues
3. Provide policy advice to government	3.1 The context, purpose and audience for the policy advice is determined and advice to government is provided in the required form with the desired level of detail and complexity, balanced against the need for brevity 3.2 Policy advice is provided that is logical, balanced and comprehensive, analysed and presented in accordance with the purpose for which it was requested 3.3 Requests from government for policy advice are responded to immediately or information is provided on what steps are being taken to address the request

This unit covers the ability to manage risks associated with all stages of procurement. It includes assessing risk, and preparing, implementing and reviewing a risk management plan.

In practice, managing procurement risk may overlap with other public sector and local government generalist and specialist work activities, such as promoting the values and ethos of public service or local government, undertaking negotiations, promoting compliance with legislation in the public sector, managing contract performance, finalising contracts, planning to manage a contract, planning for procurement outcomes and making procurement decisions.

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit

The unit applies to those in specialist procurement who plan for procurement risks across all stages of the procurement cycle.

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.

Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Assess risk.	1.1. Legislation, policies, business processes and resources impacting on the contract are identified. 1.2. Procurement outcomes and internal inputs necessary for effective performance are identified. 1.3. Critical success factors necessary for the achievement of procurement outcomes are identified and confirmed. 1.4. Non-trivial procurement risks relating to the procurement activity are identified. 1.5. Potential probity risks are identified. 1.6. Causes of risk are analysed and their potential impact is determined. 1.7. Likelihood and consequences of risks are determined and risk assessments are developed.
2. Prepare risk management plan.	2.1. Preliminary risk management plan is developed that addresses risks identified in planning phase of procurement activity. 2.2. Risks that will be accepted and those requiring treatment are identified. 2.3. Treatments that reduce risks to an acceptable level are designed according to organisational requirements. 2.4. Plan for implementing new treatments, additional risk controls or modifications to existing controls is developed. 2.5. Risk level is re-checked at key points during procurement process, and risk management plan is reviewed and adjusted to cover procurement activity risks not already identified.
3. Implement and review risk management plan.	3.1. Risk controls and treatments are implemented according to the treatment plan. 3.2. Risk management plan is implemented, and regularly reviewed and revised to include potential or emerging risks during the life of the procurement activity. 3.3. Review results are used to improve risk treatments and controls.

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to:
 - write risk management plans using templates or a recognised risk management methodology
 - interpret complex, formal documents
 - make verbal and written recommendations about the management of procurement and contracting risks
 - provide feedback
- teamwork skills to:
 - model effective team management approaches
 - respond to diversity
 - refer issues to the correct person
- problem-solving skills to analyse risks associated with procurement and contract using a recognised risk management methodology
- initiative and enterprise skills to identify procurement risks and opportunities using a recognised risk management methodology
- planning and organising skills to manage and update the risk management plan
- learning skills to keep up-to-date with:
 - best practice examples in procurement practice
 - relevant procurement legislation, policies and procedures
- technology skills to:
 - operate organisational IT systems
 - use electronic procurement templates

Required knowledge

- commonwealth, state or territory, and local government legislation, policies, practices and guidelines:
 - relating to contract risk management
 - such as OHS and equity and diversity
- organisational procurement policies, practices and approval processes

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment	Competency must be demonstrated in the ability to plan for procurement outcomes consistently in accordance with legislative and organisational requirements.
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Assessment must confirm the ability to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • contribute effectively to forward planning of procurement activities, including developing key documents, such as business case, long-term plans and/or approval documents • align planned procurement activities with the organisation's business direction • identify, consult with and manage procurement stakeholders • plan and conduct market research for procurement activities • use the results of stakeholder consultation and market research to inform procurement planning • define more complex procurement specifications and requirements to satisfy stakeholder needs • work within organisational processes to secure the resources needed to conduct procurement processes • act within own delegation and promptly refer matters outside own delegation to correct authority • uphold probity standards applicable to the procurement process. Consistency in performance Competency should be demonstrated by providing evidence of undertaking a range of relevant work tasks in an actual or simulated procurement environment on at least two separate occasions.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	The unit of competency is to be assessed in the workplace or a simulated workplace environment. Access may be required to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • legislation, policy, procedures and protocols relating to procuring goods and services and managing contracts • codes of conduct and codes of practice • workplace scenarios and case studies relating to a range of procurement activities associated with planning for procurement outcomes • case studies that incorporate dilemmas, and probity

Method of assessment	The following assessment methods are suggested: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • questions to assess understanding of relevant legislation and procedures • review of strategies and approaches adopted for planning for procurement outcomes • review of business cases, procurement terms of reference, procurement plans, market analyses, budgets, resource requests, transition plans, approvals and sign-offs, risk assessments, procurement specifications and other documentation prepared by the candidate in a range of contexts • review of stakeholder engagement approaches adopted by the candidate. In all cases, practical assessment should be supported by questions to assess underpinning knowledge and those aspects of competency which are difficult to assess directly. Questioning techniques should suit the language and literacy levels of the candidate.
Guidance information for assessment	Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments. Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • PSPETHC501B Promote the values and ethos of public service • PSPGOV507A Undertake negotiations • PSPLEGN501B Promote compliance with legislation in the public sector • PSPPROC503B Manage contract performance • PSPPROC504B Finalise contracts • PSPPROC505A Manage procurement risk • PSPPROC506A Plan to manage a contract • PSPPROC508A Make procurement decisions.

1. Identify applicable existing CPCs, CPAs and opportunities.	1.1. Availability of coordinated procurement contracts and cooperative procurement arrangements and opportunities is investigated. 1.2. Existing contracts at whole of government level and cross-agency arrangements are identified through research using already established strategies. 1.3. Identified contracts are evaluated to ensure outputs match agency's requirements. 1.4. Relevant legislation, policy and procedures and contract terms and conditions relating to the use of identified contracts are assessed to determine whether the contract is relevant to the agency concerned. 1.5. Criteria used to identify applicable contracts, and compliance with the requirements to use them, are fully documented.
2. Arrange for organisation to procure under CPCs and CPAs.	2.1. Information and education about the contract and the requirement for its use are provided to relevant staff within organisation. 2.2. Procedures are established to ensure that procurements are made under a CPC or CPA wherever possible, and orders are placed correctly according to contract terms and conditions. 2.3. Reporting requirements associated with the use of the contract are met, including expenditure under the contract and savings realised. 2.4. Appropriate records of contractual dealings are maintained.
3. Lead cooperative procurements.	3.1. Procurement requirements where no CPAs exist and which would benefit multiple agencies are identified, and agreement of management to proceed is obtained. 3.2. Cooperative procurement strategy for involving other agencies is produced. 3.3. Negotiations are undertaken with other agencies to develop a coordinated procurement plan. 3.4. Procurement documents are developed in accordance with procurement guidelines and public sector legislation, policies, probity requirements and procedures. 3.5. Procurement process is undertaken, responses are

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment	Competency must be demonstrated in the ability to plan for strategic procurement consistently in accordance with legislative and organisational requirements.
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Assessment must confirm the ability to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • prepare procurement profiles and supplier profiles • conduct procurement analysis of own organisation's buying requirements • consult with procurement stakeholders to inform the development of procurement requirements • use results of procurement analysis to develop procurement requirements • define strategic procurement requirements • prepare complex business cases or other documents to justify procurement decisions and expenditure. Consistency in performance Competency should be demonstrated by providing evidence of undertaking a range of relevant work tasks in an actual or simulated procurement environment on at least two separate occasions.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	The unit of competency is to be assessed in the workplace or a simulated workplace environment. Access may be required to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • legislation, policy, procedures and protocols relating to planning for strategic procurement • codes of conduct and codes of practice • long-term government policy papers, such as White Papers • strategic procurement plans and direction statements • workplace scenarios and case studies relating to a range of strategic procurement and disposal activities.
Method of assessment	The following assessment methods are suggested: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • questions to assess understanding of relevant legislation and procedures • review of strategies and approaches adopted for planning

	for strategic procurement <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • review of strategic procurement plans, business cases, procurement justifications, budgets, supplier analysis, market analysis, risk assessment, tender documentation, formal sign-offs and approvals, and other documentation prepared or reviewed by the candidate in a range of contexts • review of stakeholder engagement approaches adopted by the candidate. In all cases, practical assessment should be supported by questions to assess underpinning knowledge and those aspects of competency which are difficult to assess directly. Candidates for this qualification must demonstrate a high level of understanding and practical workplace application of underpinning knowledge. Questioning techniques should suit the language and literacy levels of the candidate.
Guidance information for assessment	Evidence must be gathered over time in a range of contexts to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments. Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • PSPETHC601B Maintain and enhance confidence in public service • PSPLEGN601B Manage compliance with legislation in the public sector • PSPMNGT607B Develop a business case • PSPMNGT608B Manage risk • PSPMNGT609B Formulate business strategies • PSPPM601B Direct complex project activities • PSPPROC605B Coordinate strategic procurement • PSPPROC606B Negotiate strategic procurement • PSPPROC607A Manage strategic contracts.

1. Plan and prepare for strategic procurement negotiations.	1.1. Input and advice are obtained from key stakeholders and the procurement and negotiating context is identified. 1.2. Information is gathered on suppliers and a best alternative to negotiating an agreement is developed. 1.3. Objectives, targets and bottom line position are determined for negotiations. 1.4. Composition of negotiating team and limits on negotiators' authority are determined according to organisational policy and procedures. 1.5. Negotiation process, timeframes and strategies are determined to suit complexity of procurement and supplier characteristics. 1.6. Negotiation plan/directive is developed that identifies negotiation roles of team members, lead negotiator, negotiating styles, tactics and boundaries/limits of authority to suit the procurement activity. 1.7. Negotiation plan is authorised and signed off according to organisational policy and procedures.
2. Undertake strategic procurement negotiations.	2.1. Negotiations are opened, supplier tactics identified, and issues and options explored to identify mutually compatible interests. 2.2. Minor and major issues are dealt with and concessions to terms and conditions are negotiated to improve overall value for money of the procurement. 2.3. Concessions are made such that agreements remain consistent with original intentions and with procurement, organisational objectives and probity requirements. 2.4. If negotiations stall, tactics are used to break deadlocks and continue negotiations according to negotiation plan and organisational policy and procedures. 2.5. Negotiations are conducted and an offer is made in accordance with legislative requirements, organisational policy and procurement guidelines.
3. Finalise strategic procurement negotiations.	3.1. Negotiations are closed and agreements are finalised according to procurement guidelines. 3.2. Where agreement is not possible immediately,

	communication channels are kept open while additional support, arguments and supporting evidence are obtained. 3.3. Where agreement is not possible and the best alternative is to be pursued instead, negotiations are terminated in a way that preserves the relationship with the supplier for possible future business and deters the possibility of legal liability. 3.4. Where agreements may have wider implications for procurement and the organisation, those implications are considered and necessary consultation is carried out. 3.5. Details and outcomes of negotiations are documented according to organisational policy and procedures.

2. Analyse procurement capability.	2.1. Organisation's strengths, weaknesses, opportunities and threats are considered in light of internal and/or external factors and organisation's strategic procurement goals. 2.2. Analyses of organisational capability take into account possible future procurement interests and activities of the organisation, its strategic industries, collaborators, requirements of government and other organisations. 2.3. Suggestions for improvements to existing organisational structures and procurement systems are made that are realistic and achievable and will aid achievement of the procurement mission statement and strategies drawn from both internal and external stakeholders. 2.4. Consultation on proposed improvements is undertaken with those affected, in time for their views to be taken into account. 2.5. Proposed improvements are justified on the basis of known internal and external factors, and take into account stakeholder needs and expectations.

Practical requirements for implementing improvements are comprehensively defined and communicated to those affected. 3.3. Difficulties associated with implementing improvements are identified as early as possible in order to minimise their effect. 3.4. Implemented improvements to organisational structures and procurement systems are monitored, reviewed and modified as required to assist achievement of procurement outcomes.
4. Influence and develop strategic industries.	4.1. Strategic industries are monitored and opportunities are taken to influence key opinion formers and decision makers to change, encourage and nurture industry capability. 4.2. Problems, limitations and new opportunities in strategic industries are identified in response to internal and external factors and are based on quantitative and qualitative data. 4.3. Ethical methods are used to influence strategic industries, consistent with the organisation's values and procurement policies, and sensitive to the values and practices of key opinion formers and decision makers.
5. Establish and manage risk exposure.	5.1. Total organisational risk is defined, analysed and monitored to minimise loss and maximise opportunity. 5.2. Risk management system is established, implemented and maintained that is consistent with the organisation's strategic context, goals, risk management policies and nature of its business. 5.3. Performance of risk management system is monitored, reviewed and modified to reflect procurement opportunities and current and emerging trends.

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- communication skills to:
 - consult and negotiate with stakeholders at the highest levels of organisations and the community
 - engage in strategic networking, within probity boundaries, with key stakeholders
 - build and manage effective working relationships
 - convey complex ideas to a wide range of audiences
 - persuade and influence, within probity boundaries, stakeholders and decision makers
 - read, write and approve business cases, plans, reports, submissions and other high level complex documents
- teamwork skills to:
 - provide leadership within the organisation
 - manage strategic relationships
 - manage teams of expert negotiators in functions such as finance, legal, technical and engineering
 - respond to diversity
 - refer issues to the correct person
- problem-solving skills to:
 - apply decision-making processes or methodologies
 - identify and resolve strategic procurement issues
 - apply understanding of supplier issues and supply chain management in the context of strategic procurement
- initiative and enterprise skills to:
 - manage procurement performance and identify, assess and implement opportunities for performance improvement
 - apply OHS, environmental, sustainability and corporate social responsibility practices in the context of strategic procurement
- planning and organising skills to:
 - undertake research and business analysis relating to strategic procurement and high level business issues
 - manage financial and other resources
 - manage strategic procurement systems, processes and policies
- learning skills to keep up-to-date with:
 - best practice examples in strategic procurement

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

- relevant procurement legislation, policies and procedures
- technology skills to:
 - operate organisational IT systems
 - use electronic procurement templates

Required knowledge

- commonwealth, state or territory, and local government legislation, policies, practices and guidelines:
 - relating to strategic procurement, including environmental purchasing guidance
 - such as OHS and equity and diversity
- organisational procurement policies, practices and approval processes
- government procurement environment
- probity principles and issues
- codes of conduct, codes of practice and standards of individual behaviour relating to strategic procurement
- risk management systems
- financial rules and regulations relating to strategic procurement
- legal requirements of government procurement and contracting
- competition theory as it relates to strategic procurement
- strategic industry development
- strategic procurement planning processes
- delegation authorities
- organisational structure
- organisational procurement performance
- procurement best practice standards
- equal employment opportunity
- OHS requirements relevant to strategic procurement
- environmental, sustainability and corporate social responsibility principles relevant to strategic procurement

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment	Competency must be demonstrated in establishing a strategic procurement context consistently and in accordance with legislative and organisational requirements.
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Assessment must confirm the ability to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • use recognised techniques to analyse the procurement environment, including state of the supply market, stakeholder issues, and organisational and government context for the procurement • use recognised techniques to analyse the buying organisation's procurement capability • make recommendations to improve and develop procurement capability • implement improvements to procurement capability • use ethical methods to influence and develop strategic industries to improve value for money opportunities • apply sophisticated risk management techniques. Candidates for this qualification must demonstrate a high level of understanding of underpinning knowledge and the ability to apply this to practical workplace situations.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	The unit of competency is to be assessed in the workplace or a simulated workplace environment. Access may be required to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • legislation, policy, procedures and protocols relating to procuring goods and services and managing contracts at the strategic level • codes of conduct and codes of practice • long-term government policy papers, such as White Papers • strategic procurement plans and direction statements • published performance audits or similar relating to strategic procurement issues • workplace scenarios and case studies relating to a range of strategic procurement activities.
Method of assessment	The following assessment methods are suggested: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • questions to assess understanding of relevant legislation and

	procedures <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • review of strategies and approaches adopted for establishing strategic procurement context • preparation of formal written papers covering strategic procurement issues • review of strategic plans, strategic procurement plans, long-term budgets, risk assessments, industry assessments, supplier capability assessments, market research, industry engagement plans, responses to performance audits covering strategic procurement issues and other documentation prepared or reviewed by the candidate in a range of contexts • review of stakeholder engagement approaches adopted by the candidate. In all cases, practical assessment should be supported by questions to assess underpinning knowledge and those aspects of competency which are difficult to assess directly. Candidates for this qualification must demonstrate a high level of understanding and practical workplace application of underpinning knowledge. Questioning techniques should suit the language and literacy levels of the candidate.
Guidance information for assessment	Sufficient evidence must be gathered to ensure the person can achieve the unit outcome and apply the competency in different situations or environments. Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • BSBFIM701A Manage financial resources • BSBINN801A Lead innovative thinking and practice • BSBREL701A Develop and cultivate collaborative partnerships and relationships • PSPETHC701A Lead and influence ethical practice in the public sector • PSPMNGT703A Lead and influence change • PSPMNGT704A Undertake enterprise risk management • PSPPROC704A Influence and define strategic procurement direction • PSPPROC706A Evaluate and improve strategic procurement performance.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Strategic context may include:

- financial
- operational
- competitive
- political
- public perception or image
- social
- cultural
- client
- legal aspects of organisation's functions
- nature of supplier market
- environmental and sustainability issues
- corporate social responsibility.

Stakeholders may include:

- end users
- customers or clients
- sponsors
- potential providers or suppliers
- current providers or suppliers
- technical or functional experts or advisers
- commonwealth, state or territory, and local government
- the organisation
- other public sector organisations
- employees, unions and staff associations
- industry bodies
- local communities
- lobby groups and special user groups.

Collaboration may include:

- public private partnerships (PPP)
- strategic financing arrangements
- build, own, operate and transfer type arrangements
- cooperative procurement opportunities with other public sector organisations
- lead agency arrangements.

Factors may include:

- value of business

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • complexity of marketplace • capacity of market • supply chain • political influence • political imperatives • budgetary constraints • collaborative arrangements • Australian industry involvement requirements • environmental issues • extent of competition • value for money considerations • degree of dependency of organisation on procurement • where and why the need arises and for which unit or location • level of risk, complexity and sensitivity of the procurement • new capability or replacement/enhancement of existing resources • intellectual property ownership • policy requirements or changes, e.g. ethical and social.
Procurement capability may include:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • procurement systems, structures and processes used in organisation • procurement guidance documents developed by organisation • procurement or other relevant capability frameworks • staff profile in terms of experience, skills and knowledge • procurement training programs.
Industry capability may include:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • structure of marketplace • impact of globalisation • location of suppliers • maturity and sophistication of suppliers • capacity of industry to absorb work in the volume that is required • willingness of industry to move into new areas of business to provide required goods or services • staffing profiles of industry and skills shortages or surpluses • industry training programs.
Organisational risks may include:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • supplier failure to meet agreements • government failure to meet agreements • political and public sensitivities

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Determine evaluation measures and criteria.	1.1.Measures for evaluation are determined to provide value for money and make optimum use of existing sources of data and means of data gathering. 1.2.Government policy and objectives for strategic procurements are reflected in evaluation measures and criteria. 1.3.Nature and character of the organisation and its values and policies are reflected in evaluation criteria. 1.4.Sufficient information is provided in measures and criteria to make judgements about progress towards government objectives, strategic goals and implementation of procurement policies.
2. Evaluate organisational achievement.	2.1.Evaluation is undertaken against strategic procurement goals, policies, plans and codes/standards of behaviour and takes into account evidence from procurement activities. 2.2.Conclusions from evaluation are detailed against agreed criteria, supported by evidence, and structured to provide a complete picture of performance in respect to strategic goals and policies of government and organisation procurement. 2.3.Where performance fails to meet the agreed criteria, possible reasons are offered and discussed with stakeholders. 2.4.Consultation is undertaken with stakeholders prior to publication of any report on performance that may affect the interests of stakeholders. 2.5.Reports are provided according to organisational policy and procedures in time to enable effective response.
3. Evaluate procurement plans and their implementation.	3.1.Causes of success and failure in procurement plans and their implementation are identified. 3.2.Explanations of causes of success or failure are presented logically and comprehensively and supported by evidence. 3.3.Where alternative explanations are available, these are reported, along with reason for preferring any explanation. 3.4.Where it is likely to be difficult to find a remedy for the cause, explanations are offered to counter

	possible objections. 3.5. Lessons to be drawn from success or failure are made available to those who could learn from them and are used in the future planning of procurement. 3.6. Feedback is provided to those whose performance is examined.
4. Evaluate strategic procurement goals, policies and performance.	4.1. Possible strengths and weaknesses in strategic procurement goals, policies and performance are identified. 4.2. Recommendations are formulated for building on strengths and addressing weaknesses. 4.3. Comments, analysis and recommendations are made available for the review and reformulation of the procurement strategic goals and policies based on performance.
5. Implement continuous improvement in procurement performance.	5.1. Recommendations for improvement in organisational achievement in procurement performance are implemented according to organisational requirements. 5.2. Lessons learnt from the evaluation of procurement plans and their implementation, are used to continuously improve procurement performance. 5.3. Review and reformulation of strategic procurement goals and policies are built into the cycle of continuous improvement of strategic procurement. 5.4. Ongoing monitoring, measurement and management of procurement performance are undertaken to continuously improve procurement outcomes.

PSPRAD701A Work safely in a radiation environment

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit covers the competencies required to apply radiation protection and work safety measures when working in an environment where sources of ionising radiation are present. This involves recognising the hazards and risks associated with working near sources of ionising radiation, interpreting and following site safety information, using specified radiation protection and safety measures, applying required operational safety measures, and responding appropriately to actual or potential emergencies. All assigned work tasks would be performed under the authorisation of a responsible person and with the advice of a radiation safety professional, such as a radiation safety officer, and in accordance with organisational procedures based on relevant radiation protection safety standards, codes and guidelines. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.
------------------------	--

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This unit of competency applies to personnel who require radiation protection and site safety training prior to undertaking operational, technical, and/or maintenance tasks in a radiation environment. It is relevant to all workers who may receive occupational exposures of greater than 1 millisievert per annum. The unit applies to those who need to be competent and take action to avoid unacceptable exposure to radiation hazards, or to ensure that others are not unacceptably exposed to radiation hazards due to their work. Such personnel may work in mines, construction sites, hospitals and laboratories and may include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • utility and site service personnel, such as electricians, plumbers, fitters and equipment service technicians • site cleaners and maintenance workers • operators of equipment that emits ionising radiation • those who handle and/or transport radioactive material • those who use radionuclides.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Complete site safety induction.	1.1. Participate in required radiation protection and site safety training. 1.2. Confirm contact details for personnel who can provide emergency and radiation protection and safety information.
2. Recognise site radiation hazards and degree of risk.	2.1. Apply information about the nature and magnitude of radiation hazards and degree of risk associated with work activities at the site. 2.2. Apply information about exposure pathways and health effects of radiation exposure. 2.3. Apply information about occupational dose limits . 2.4. Recognise possible sources of personal contamination and implement recommended decontamination procedures. 2.5. Identify hazards and risks in work area prior to starting work, at regular intervals during work, and in response to changes in working conditions. 2.6. Recognise and report non-routine hazards, unusual situations, and potential or actual emergency incidents.
3. Follow procedures for controlling radiation hazards.	3.1. Implement instructions based on radiation protection principles during assigned work. 3.2. Apply specified safe working rules , and use required personal protective equipment (PPE) and personal monitoring during assigned work tasks. 3.3. Comply with all site safety signs. 3.4. Observe required standards of personal hygiene and behaviour while on site. 3.5. Seek advice or instructions to deal with any situation beyond own technical competence. 3.6. Apply specified procedures to decontaminate work surfaces and/or personnel as necessary. 3.7. Implement instructions for managing contaminated waste produced during assigned tasks. 3.8. Advise employer of previous employment involving occupational exposure to radiation and cooperate in obtaining records of previous exposure. 3.9. Complete required records and reporting.
4. Follow workplace emergency response	4.1. Review information about workplace emergency response procedures and personal responsibilities in procedures.	the event of a radiation incident . 4.2. Recognise emergency alarms, move to the designated muster point, and follow instructions.

5. Report problems.	5.1. Recognise and report defects in plant equipment and procedures that may compromise radiation protection and safety or radiation protection safety standards, codes and guidelines .

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- following required radiation protection and safety procedures
- following radiation safety signs
- regularly assessing and reassessing risks and hazards and applying required control measures
- literacy skills to read signs and follow procedures
- numeracy skills to recognise dose limits
- seeking advice and further directions when faced with unexpected situations
- using and caring for PPE and personal monitoring equipment that has been issued for assigned work tasks
- responding correctly when encountering contaminated work surfaces and personnel

Required knowledge

- responsibilities of employers and employees under:
 - relevant commonwealth guidelines, such as RPS No.1
 - state or territory legislation and local regulations and by-laws
 - duty of care obligations
- meaning of words, such as radioactive decay, radioactive material, ionising radiation, shielding, safe distance, contamination, contamination controls, decontamination
- types and properties of ionising radiation (e.g. alpha, beta, gamma, neutron, x-ray, cosmic)
- relevant occupational dose limits
- sources of hazardous radiation around the site and degree of risk of exposure or contamination
- internal and external exposure pathways and protective measures
- radiation health effects
- location of controlled or supervised areas within the site
- safe working rules for assigned work tasks
- layers of protection:
 - avoiding exposure, where practicable
 - isolating sources of radiation where practicable through shielding, containment and remote handling techniques
 - engineering controls, such as local exhaust ventilation to remove contaminants from work area
 - adopting safe work practices, including work methods which make appropriate use of time, distance and shielding to minimise exposure

- using approved PPE where other means of controlling exposure are not practicable
- personal hygiene requirements, and effects and implications of risky behaviours
- emergency, health and safety procedures
- safe working rules and safe operating procedures for equipment
- safety signs relevant to assigned tasks
- use and care of PPE and personal monitors for assigned tasks

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.

Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Identify hazards and associated risks with the site and assigned tasks.	1.1. Interpret and apply information about hazards due to radioactive materials and work activities at the site prior to undertaking assigned tasks, where necessary requesting further information on radiation protection safety standards, codes and guidelines. 1.2. Implement instructions about site radiation control measures, monitoring, safe working rules and personal protective equipment (PPE) specified for the location and work activities prior to undertaking assigned tasks. 1.3. Recognise hazards and risks in work area prior to starting work, at regular intervals during work, and in response to changes in working conditions and seek advice if necessary. 1.4. Recognise and report non-routine hazards and seek advice to deal with any situation beyond own technical competence.
2. Apply required radiation protection and safety measures.	2.1. Use recommended hazard and risk control measures and follow safe working rules during assigned work tasks. 2.2. Comply with all site safety signs. 2.3. Follow required tag-out and lock-out procedures. 2.4. Use plant and equipment supplied for radiation protection or for the monitoring and assessment of radiation exposure. 2.5. Maintain required standards of personal hygiene.
3. Respond to potential or actual radiation incidents.	3.1. Recognise any unsafe situation, hazard or incident associated with assigned tasks. 3.2. Inform relevant personnel about the situation, hazard or incident and seek their advice. 3.3. Provide appropriate workplace first response in accordance with instructions and organisation's workplace emergency response procedures.
4. Contribute to radiation safety.	4.1. Recognise and report defects in plant, equipment or procedures that may compromise radiation protection and safety or the management of radioactive waste. 4.2. Participate in required radiation safety training and participative/consultative activities within the scope of own responsibilities.

	4.3. Advise of previous employment involving occupational exposure to radiation and cooperate in obtaining records of previous exposure. 4.4. Complete required records and reporting.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- following the organisation's information about radiation protection and safety
- following safety signs
- regularly assessing and reassessing risks and hazards and applying appropriate control measures
- applying standard operating procedures and specified safe working rules for assigned tasks
- seeking advice and further directions when faced with unexpected situations that may require decisions or response actions beyond own technical competence
- using and caring for PPE and personal monitoring equipment required in job role
- using communication equipment

Required knowledge

- responsibilities of employers, subcontractors and employees under:
 - commonwealth guidelines, such as RPS No.9 Code of Practice and Safety Guide for Radiation Protection and Radioactive Waste Management in Mining and Mineral Processing (2005)
 - state or territory legislation and local regulations and by-laws
 - duty of care obligations
- meaning of words such as radioactivity, radioactive material, naturally occurring radioactive material (NORM), ionising radiation, contamination, contamination controls, shielding, half-life, and safe distance
- types and properties of ionising radiation (e.g. alpha, beta, gamma), particularly radiation associated with uranium, thorium and decay products (e.g. radon)
- relevant dose limits
- sources of hazardous radiation around the site (e.g. underground, tunnel, stockpiles, processing plant and storage locations) and changes in risk of exposure/contamination due to weather, time of day, etc.
- location of controlled or supervised areas within site and working rules for each
- internal and external exposure pathways and protective measures
- signs and symptoms of radiation exposure, radiation health effects
- techniques for assessing radiation hazards likely to be encountered in job role, such as:
 - spot the hazard, assess the risk, make the changes (SAM)
 - stop, think, go
- application of the hierarchy of control measures, including:
 - avoiding exposure, where practicable
 - isolating sources of radiation where practicable through shielding, containment

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

- and remote handling techniques
- engineering controls, such as local exhaust ventilation to remove contaminants from work area
- adopting safe work practices, including work methods which make appropriate use of time, distance and shielding to minimise exposure
- using approved PPE where other means of controlling exposure are not practicable
- personal hygiene, and effects and implications of risky behaviours
- health, safety and workplace emergency response procedures
- safe working rules and safe operating procedures for equipment
- safety signs relevant to job role
- use and care of PPE and monitoring equipment for job role and assigned tasks
- potential adverse health and performance effects of wearing PPE while working in potentially hazardous environments
- principles and techniques for decontamination of personnel and equipment
- procedures for the disposal of contaminated waste

- applying safe working rules and those parts of the organisation's radiation management plan relevant to job role
- conducting pre-use checks and simple maintenance for radiation measuring instruments and task-related equipment used in job role
- reading scales and displays accurately for a wide range of values
- recording radiation results legibly and with the specified accuracy, precision and units
- regularly assessing and reassessing hazards and taking appropriate protective measures
- seeking advice and further directions when faced with unforeseen circumstances or situations that may require decisions or response actions beyond technical competence
- using and caring for PPE used in job role

Required knowledge

- terms and concepts, such as ionising radiation, radioactivity, radioactive material, activity, dose, contamination, contamination controls, shielding, half-life, radionuclide, and safe distance
- types and properties of ionising radiation (e.g. alpha, beta, gamma, neutron, x-ray, electron), sources and shielding methods
- types of radiation measuring instruments used in job role, such as air proportional, gas proportional, gas ionisation, Geiger-Muller (GM), compensated GM, scintillation, neutron monitors, solid state, and personal dosimeters (badge and electronic)
- definitions of radiation quantities, such as exposure, dose, and relevant dose limits
- international system (SI) of units for radiation quantities, multiples and sub-multiples, and significant figures
- function of key components and operating principles of radiation measuring instruments used in job role
- effects on results of modifying instrument settings and variables
- basic instrument troubleshooting and maintenance procedures
- guidelines and safety procedures for working with radiation sources, based on principles:
 - reducing exposure time
 - maintaining greatest distance

1. Prepare shipping documentation.	1.1. Define the item to be consigned using relevant code or organisation's radiation protection and safety procedures and refer to the radiation protection and safety codes, regulations and guidelines, if necessary. 1.2. Determine consignment type and applicable schedule using activity levels and material restrictions listed in relevant code or organisation's radiation protection and safety procedures. 1.3. Determine carriage provisions that apply to the item. 1.4. Prepare required transport documents and ensure they are complete and accurate.
2. Prepare item for shipment.	2.1. Determine required package design appropriate for consignment type. 2.2. Use organisation's radiation protection and safety procedures and equipment if personally packing the item. 2.3. Confirm that packaging used for the item meets requirements of relevant code and organisation's radiation protection and safety procedures and, if required, that package approval certificate is current and valid for intended use. 2.4. Ensure that packaging is in good condition and that any seals are intact. 2.5. Ensure that external contamination does not exceed the specified limit. 2.6. Ensure that radiation above any surface does not exceed the specified limit. 2.7. Ensure that required labelling information is accurate, complete and attached in specified positions on the package. 2.8. If required, arrange for safe and secure interim storage of item in accordance with relevant code. 2.9. Seek advice to deal with any atypical situation.
3. Confirm transport arrangements with the carriers.	3.1. Confirm that carrier meets requirements for transporting the item. 3.2. Ensure that size, weight, contents, packaging and label information for consigned items match consignor's declaration before shipment. 3.8. Ensure consigned items are stowed and secured and that vehicle is placarded if necessary.
4. Respond to potential or actual radiation incidents.	4.1. Recognise unusual situations, unexpected hazards, and potential or actual emergency radiation incidents. 4.2. Inform relevant personnel about the situation, hazard or incident and seek their advice. 4.3. Initiate workplace emergency first response in accordance with instructions, radiation management plans and organisation's response procedures.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- using relevant information sources to locate and interpret information about the safe transport of radioactive materials
- interpreting radiation labels, placards and safety signs
- completing documentation accurately with close attention to detail
- seeking advice or further directions when faced with unexpected situations that may require decisions or actions beyond own technical competence
- using monitoring equipment to measure radiation
- using and caring for personal monitoring equipment if required in job role

Required knowledge

- guidelines for consignors, carriers and consignees defined in local regulations and relevant codes (e.g. RPS No.2, RPS No.2.1, RPS No.14.1 and RPS No.14.2)
- meaning of words such as radioactivity, radioactive material, ionising radiation, contamination, contamination controls, shielding, half-life, transport index, and safe distance
- types and properties of ionising radiation
- relevant dose limits
- information on radiation labels, placards, emergency information sheets and safety signs and in transport documents relevant to job role
- internal and external exposure pathways and protective measures
- radiation health effects
- layers of protection, including:
 - avoiding exposure, where practicable
 - isolating sources of radiation where practicable through shielding, containment and remote handling techniques
 - engineering controls
 - adopting safe work practices, including work methods which make appropriate use of time, distance and shielding
 - where other means of controlling exposure are not practicable, using approved personal protective equipment
- health, safety and workplace emergency response procedures, safe working rules, personal hygiene requirements and safe operating procedures for equipment relevant to job role

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment	Competency must be demonstrated in preparing an item containing radioactive material for shipment, and arranging for its transport and/or interim storage.
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Assessment must confirm the ability to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • prepare accurate shipping documentation • prepare items containing radioactive material for shipment • arrange for the transport and/or interim storage of items containing radioactive material in accordance with organisational procedures, based on relevant safe transport regulations, codes and guidelines. Consistency in performance Competency should be demonstrated by consigning a variety of items containing radioactive material.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Competency should be assessed in the workplace or a simulated workplace environment. Assessment must comply with: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • organisation's radiation management/transport plan and health and safety procedures • commonwealth regulations and codes, such as: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • RPS No.2 Code of Practice for the Safe Transport of Radioactive Material (2008) • RPS No.2.1 Safety Guide for the Safe Transport of Radioactive Material (2008) • local, state and territory regulations. Access may be required to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • relevant organisational procedures, local regulations and codes, forms, packages and labels • supervision by an experienced consignor • radiation protection and safety procedures and required monitoring equipment • dummy sources at a simulated workplace • actual sources at a registered operator's premises.
Method of assessment	The following assessment methods are suggested:

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • review of transport documents prepared by candidate for a variety of radioactive materials • feedback from peers and supervisor that the candidate is able to consistently consign radioactive material in accordance with relevant organisational procedures, regulations and codes • oral questioning about: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • radiation terms • principles of radiation protection and safety • requirements for the safe transport of radioactive materials encountered in job role • workplace emergency procedures • observation of the candidate preparing an item for shipment. In all cases, practical assessment should be supported by questions to assess underpinning knowledge and those aspects of competency that are difficult to assess directly.
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • PSPRAD003A Perform basic radiation measurements.

Elements and Performance Criteria

1. Prepare for pick-up of items.	1.1.Ensure compliance with licence, permit and vehicle requirements that apply to carrier of consigned items . 1.2.Confirm pick-up arrangements and specific requirements for loading, segregation, stowage, carriage, handling and unloading of the items. 1.3.Check that vehicle and communication devices are in good working order. 1.4.Ensure that required emergency response information is in vehicle cabin.
2. Check items prior to transport.	2.1.Check that each item is intact. 2.2.Quarantine any item not safe for transport or with inconsistent paperwork, and promptly advise relevant personnel. 2.3.Check that size, weight, contents, packaging and label information for each item matches accompanying consignor's declaration. 2.4.Check that carrier copies of required transport documents are present, accurate and complete. 2.5.Obtain confirmation that non-fixed external contamination of items does not exceed specified limit. 2.6.Obtain confirmation that maximum radiation level from any surface of items does not exceed specified limit.
3. Safely stow and transport items.	3.1.Apply organisation's radiation protection and safety procedures and manual safe-handling procedures when handling items. 3.2.Ensure that each item is securely stowed and segregated in accordance with consignor's instructions, and relevant codes and regulations . 3.3.Record receipt of items in accordance with organisation's procedures. 3.4.Ensure that required dangerous goods signs/placards are attached to vehicle in correct positions. 3.5.Deliver items using agreed routes and schedules and in accordance with organisation's procedures. 3.6.Ensure security of items when vehicle is unattended. 3.7.Arrange for safe, secure storage of items in accordance with the relevant code during extended stops or breaks in transit, during trans-shipment and if delivery cannot be completed.

4. Complete delivery of items.	4.1. Check that each item is intact and matches consignor's declaration before handover to user or consignee. 4.2. Quarantine any item that has visible damage or inconsistent paperwork and promptly advise relevant personnel. 4.3. Advise user or consignee of any specified requirements for the safe and secure interim storage of items. 4.4. Complete and file relevant transport documents.
5. Respond to potential or actual emergency incidents.	5.1. Recognise unusual situations, unexpected hazards, and potential or actual emergency incidents. 5.2. Inform relevant personnel about the situation, hazard or incident and seek their advice. 5.3. Initiate appropriate workplace emergency first response in accordance with instructions, radiation management plans and organisation's response procedures.

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- applying transport documents relevant to job role
- recognising radiation labels, placards and safety signs relevant to job role
- completing carrier's documentation accurately with close attention to detail
- seeking advice or further directions when faced with unexpected situations that may require decisions or actions beyond own technical competence
- using communication equipment, such as radio and telephone
- using and caring for radiation monitoring equipment, if required in job role

Required knowledge

- guidelines for consignors, carriers and consignees defined in local regulations and relevant codes (e.g. RPS No.2 and RPS No.2.1)
- meaning of words such as radioactivity, radioactive material, ionising radiation, contamination, contamination controls, shielding, transport index, and safe distance
- types and properties of ionising radiation (e.g. alpha, beta, gamma)

Label information requires:

- all packages having legible and durable markings with:
 - name of consignor, consignee, or both
 - appropriate United Nations (UN) classification number
- for non-exempt or non-excepted materials, packages also require:
 - proper shipping name for the material
 - Category I-White, Category II-Yellow or Category III-Yellow labels
 - transport index for Category II-Yellow or Category III-Yellow labels.

Required transport documents may include:

- consignor's declaration with:
 - details of the consignment
 - information for carriers, such as instructions for storage and segregation, air waybill or consignment note
 - stated compliance with the relevant transport code
- specific documentation, such as:
 - shipment approval from the relevant competent authority (land, waterways, air, sea) in Australia or overseas country
 - package design approval certificate
 - special form source certificate
 - carrier's consignment note that describes the radionuclide and total activity

1. Prepare for assigned tasks.	1.1. Use organisation's radiation management plans to obtain information about hazards associated with the assigned tasks and monitoring equipment and safe working rules to be followed, and refer to radiation protection safety standards, codes and guidelines if necessary. 1.2. Liaise with site management to arrange access and confirm the nature and likely duration of assigned tasks. 1.3. Check that equipment required for assigned tasks is present and fit for purpose. 1.4. Record movement if required of source equipment in accordance with regulator's requirements and organisational procedures. 1.5. Stow source equipment and monitoring equipment to prevent damage and to ensure safe, secure transport to the site and within the boundaries of the site if required. 1.6. Check that transport vehicle is fit for purpose and has the required signage, if required.
2. Perform assigned tasks safely.	2.1. Assess hazards at the site or prior to commencing assigned tasks, and seek advice if necessary. 2.2. Establish, or activate existing, boundaries and signage to control access to work area. 2.3. Perform pre-use and safety checks of source equipment and monitoring equipment and confirm they are fit for purpose. 2.4. Apply safe working rules and any other site control measures to minimise exposure to personnel and/or members of the public during assigned tasks. 2.5. Perform assigned tasks in the minimum safe time and in accordance with regulator's requirements, equipment manufacturer's recommendations and organisation's procedures. 2.6. Verify that radiation measurements are below specified levels throughout assigned tasks. 2.7. Seek advice to deal with any situation beyond own technical competence. 2.8. Record required data and note any atypical site conditions or problems encountered and the actions taken.

3. Complete assigned tasks.	3.1. Confirm that source has been returned to the fully shielded position within its container. 3.2. Check for contamination and if necessary perform personal decontamination in accordance with radiation management plan. 3.3. Re-stow source equipment and monitoring equipment to prevent damage and to ensure safe, secure transport from the site and within the boundaries of the site, if required. 3.4. Record use of radiation source equipment and monitoring equipment in accordance with radiation management plans. 3.5. Check the condition of all equipment before storing it in accordance with manufacturer's recommendations and radiation management plans. 3.6. Manage all waste in accordance with regulator's requirements and organisational procedures. 3.7. Survey the work area following completion of assigned tasks prior to leaving the site.
4. Report findings and outcomes.	4.1. Record monitoring data in accordance with requirements. 4.2. Compare monitoring results with relevant radiation limits and note any significant differences or atypical results. 4.3. Identify potential or actual radiation protection or safety issues revealed during monitoring of assigned tasks. 4.4. Identify potential improvements that could be made to monitoring or work practices at the site. 4.5. Report findings and outcomes of assigned tasks in accordance with organisation's procedures. 4.6. Maintain required records that are complete, accurate, legible and secure.
5. Respond to potential or actual radiation incidents.	5.1. Recognise unusual situations, unexpected hazards, and potential or actual emergency radiation incidents. 5.2. Inform relevant personnel about the situation, hazard or incident and seek their advice. 5.3. Initiate appropriate workplace emergency first response in accordance with instructions, radiation management plans and organisation's response procedures.

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- using relevant information sources to locate and interpret information about radiation source equipment
- conducting pre-use checks, for source equipment and monitoring equipment used in task
- interpreting manuals for source equipment and monitoring equipment used in job role
- processing data and verifying results
- regularly assessing and reassessing risks and hazards and taking appropriate protective measures
- safely operating source equipment and monitoring equipment used in task to obtain reliable data
- seeking advice and further directions when faced with unexpected situations that may require decisions or response actions beyond technical competence
- using and caring for personal protective equipment (PPE) and personal monitoring equipment required in job role

Required knowledge

- terms and concepts, such as ionising radiation, radioactivity, radioactive material, contamination, contamination controls, concentration, shielding, half-life, radionuclide, and safe distance
- types and properties of ionising radiation (e.g. alpha, beta, gamma, neutron, x-ray, and electron), sources and shielding methods
- definitions of radiation quantities, such as exposure, dose, effective dose, dose rate, dose equivalent, and dose limits
- exposure pathways and protective measures
- signs and symptoms of radiation exposure, radiation health effects, and deterministic and stochastic effects
- international system (SI) of units for radiation quantities
- function of key components, set-up checks and operating principles of source equipment and monitoring equipment used in task
- guidelines and safety procedures for working with radiation sources, based on principles of time, distance and shielding
- principles of optimising work practices to minimise exposure
- health, safety and workplace emergency response procedures, safe working rules, personal hygiene requirements and safe operating procedures for equipment relevant to job role
- PPE and monitoring equipment relevant to job role and task
- principles and techniques for decontamination of personnel in the field
