Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

In addition to integrated demonstration of the elements and their related performance criteria, look for evidence that confirms the candidate's ability to evaluate ethical and professional issues and apply them to work practices in a diverse range of general environments. This includes:

- applying codes of ethics and professional standards to practice, including situations involving:
  - potential conflict of interest
  - conflict between client requirements and industry standards
  - differences in expectations caused by cultural requirements
  - dilemmas caused by tensions between personal and professional standards of practice and values
- reflecting on practice and participating in professional development activities and networks to address identified needs.
- maintaining knowledge of ethical and professional issues and requirements

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment of this unit of competency will make use of scenarios, case studies, experiences and, where possible, examples of interactions with colleagues and clients that illustrate issues of professional judgments and ethical decision making.

Resources for assessment include:

- relevant codes of ethics, professional standards and professional and business procedures
- professional associations, networks and peer support activities
- performance reviews and practice reflection
- professional development and networking activities
- feedback from clients, agencies and employers

Evidence for assessment should be gathered to demonstrate a range of experiences with applying codes and standards to maintain ethical practice in different requirements and conditions and with examples of both accepting and declining assignments based on ethical action. Evidence may include examples of negotiations with client expectations, using the resources of professional associations or employers, and should also include evidence of decision making where there are ethical, business and professional issues influencing decisions.
