Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.
Required skills
• communication skills to adjust communication to suit different audiences; to respond effectively to diversity; to work as a member of a team to consult on and validate policy • literacy skills to read and evaluate complex and formal documents such as policy and legislation • problem skills to effectively manage different points of view and dissenting stakeholders • research, analytical and writing skills to research, analyse and present information; to prepare written reports requiring precision of expression and language and structures suited to the intended audience
Required knowledge
• best practice approaches relevant to own work area • environmental or sustainability legislation, regulations and codes of practice applicable to industry and organisation • equal employment opportunity, equity and diversity principles and occupational health and safety implications of policy being developed • policy development processes and practices • principles, practices and available tools and techniques of sustainability management relevant to the particular industry context • quality assurance systems relevant to own organisation • relevant industry competency • relevant organisational polices, procedures and protocols • relevant systems and procedures to aid in the achievement of workplace sustainability

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment

EVIDENCE GUIDE
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • candidate's involvement as a key person in planning, developing and implementing organisational policy and that the developed policy complies with legislative requirements • implementation strategy, as part of the policy, that has been devised, implemented and reviewed showing a measurable improvement utilising the chosen benchmark indicators • communicating with stakeholders to discuss possible approaches to policy development and implementation, and contributing to the resolution of disputes among stakeholders • developing and monitoring policies for analysing data on enterprise resource consumption • using software systems for recording and filing documentation for measurement of current usage and using word processing and other basic software for interpreting charts, flowcharts, graphs and other visual data and information • reviewing and improving policies by identifying improvements and benchmarking against industry best practice and attempting new approaches continuously over time.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • access to an actual workplace or simulated environment • access to relevant legislation/standards/guidelines • access to a range of workplace documentation and personnel, information and resources (such as compliance obligations, organisational plans, work responsibilities) • access to reports from other parties involved in the development and implementation of policy • evidence is collected over time, involving both formative and summative assessment • evidence is relevant to the particular workplace role, including work area, equipment, systems, and documentation.
Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

EVIDENCE GUIDE
	• direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on the job performance by the candidate • response to case studies • review of policy developed and procedural documentation outlining the approach taken • review of implementation strategy, plans and work plans • analysis of methods used to involve stakeholders in policy development, implementation and review • analysis of inefficiencies or opportunities for improvements identified in the workplace • evaluation of participation in sustainability work practices and programs such as an environmental management framework • observation over time in relation to review of work area relating to policy and procedures being developed to assess measurement of resources used, hazards and compliance.
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: • BSBATSIM419A Contribute to the development and implementation of organisational policies • BSBHRM506A Manage recruitment, selection and induction processes • BSBHRM602B Manage human resources strategic planning • BSBINN502A Build and sustain an innovative work environment • BSBMGT515A Manage operational plan • BSBMGT516C Facilitate continuous improvement • BSBMGT608C Manage innovation and continuous improvement • BSBMGT616A Develop and implement strategic plans • BSBMGT617A Develop and implement a business plan • BSBRSK501A Manage risk.

- site layout and access points.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

A person who demonstrates competency in this unit must be able to provide evidence of:

- assessing site layout and verifying communication and security requirements prior to assignment
- completing and processing documentation
- complying with applicable legislation and procedural requirements to maximise the safety and protection of persons, property and premises
- observing and monitoring persons and identifying and responding appropriately to potential threats and hazards
- operating and maintaining security, communications and personal protection equipment

- using effective communication techniques to give clear and accurate information in a form which is preferred and understood by the receiver and which engages minority groups.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Context of assessment includes:

- a setting in the workplace or environment that simulates the conditions of performance described in the elements, performance criteria and range statement.

Resource implications for assessment include:

- access to plain English version of relevant statutes and procedures
- access to a registered provider of assessment services
- access to a suitable venue and equipment
- assessment instruments including personal planner and assessment record book
- work schedules, organisational policies and duty statements.

Reasonable adjustments must be made to assessment processes where required for people with disabilities. This could include access to modified equipment and other physical resources, and the provision of appropriate assessment support.

Method of assessment

This unit of competency could be assessed using the following methods of assessment:

- observation of processes and procedures
- questioning of underpinning knowledge and skills.

Guidance information for assessment

Assessment processes and techniques must be culturally appropriate and suitable to the language, literacy and numeracy capacity of the candidate and the competency being assessed. In all cases where practical assessment is used, it should be combined with targeted questioning to assess the underpinning knowledge.

Oral questioning or written assessment may be used to assess underpinning knowledge. In assessment situations where the candidate is offered a choice between oral questioning and written assessment, questions are to be identical.

Supplementary evidence may be obtained from relevant authenticated correspondence from existing supervisors, team leaders or specialist training staff.

Assessment processes and techniques must be culturally appropriate and suitable to the language, literacy and numeracy capacity of the candidate and the competency being assessed. In all cases where practical assessment is used, it should be combined with targeted questioning to assess the underpinning knowledge.

Oral questioning or written assessment may be used to assess underpinning knowledge. In assessment situations where the candidate is offered a choice between oral questioning and written assessment, questions are to be identical.

Supplementary evidence may be obtained from relevant authenticated correspondence from existing supervisors, team leaders or specialist training staff.

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

Legislative requirements may relate to:

- apprehension and powers of arrest
- Australian standards and quality assurance requirements
- counter-terrorism
- crowd control and control of persons under the influence of intoxicating substances
- force continuum, use of force guidelines
- general 'duty of care' responsibilities
- inspection of people and property, and search and seizure of goods
- licensing or certification requirements
- privacy and confidentiality
- relevant commonwealth, state and territory legislation, codes and national standards for:
  - anti-discrimination
  - cultural and ethnic diversity
  - environmental issues
  - equal employment opportunity
  - industrial relations
  - OHS
- relevant industry codes of practice
- trespass and the removal of persons
- use of restraints and weapons:
  - batons
  - firearms
  - handcuffs
  - spray.

Organisational requirements* may relate to:

- access and equity policy, principles and practice
- business and performance plans
- client service standards
- code of conduct
- code of ethics
- communication channels and reporting procedures
- documentation systems, procedures and processes
- emergency and evacuation procedures
- employer and employee rights and responsibilities

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit of competency specifies the outcomes required to ensure the safety of persons at risk under various security assignment conditions. It requires the ability to plan and prepare security arrangements, implement security and safety policies during escort activities, and monitor and review the effectiveness of the security assignment.

This unit may form part of the licensing requirements for persons engaged in security operations in those states and territories where these are regulated activities.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit

This unit of competency has wide application in the security industry in those roles involving operational activities. Competency requires legal and operational knowledge applicable to relevant sectors of the security industry. The knowledge and skills described in this unit are to be applied within relevant legislative and organisational guidelines.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.

Performance criteria describe the required performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and/or the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1 Prepare for security assignment.	1.1 Applicable provisions of legislative and organisational requirements relevant to assignment instructions are identified and complied with. 1.2 Assignment instructions and other relevant information is clarified as required with relevant persons. 1.3 Resource and equipment requirements are confirmed and organised in accordance with organisational procedures. 1.4 Route and site assessment is undertaken in accordance with organisational procedures. 1.5 Equipment is checked for operational effectiveness and faulty or damaged equipment is reported in accordance with organisational procedures. 1.6 Personal dress and presentation is maintained to professional standards at all times. 1.7 Communication channels and processes are confirmed with relevant persons in accordance with organisational procedures.
2 Monitor and maintain safety of VIPs.	2.1 Security procedures are conducted and confirmed in accordance with assignment instructions. 2.2 Security operations are continually monitored and adjusted as required to maintain maximum security. 2.3 Communication is maintained continually throughout security operations in accordance with assignment

	instructions and organisational procedures.
	2.4 Interpersonal techniques are used which reflect an awareness of individual social and cultural differences.
	2.5 Potential security risk situations are identified, risk assessed and responded to within own scope of responsibility and competence.
	2.6 VIPs are advised of all factors which may affect their personal safety in accordance with organisational procedures.
	2.7 Need for extra assistance or advice is promptly identified and sought from relevant persons in accordance with organisational procedures.
3 Review and evaluate security operations.	3.1 A process of continual assessment is applied to review and evaluate the efficiency and effectiveness of security operations.
	3.2 Reports and relevant documentation are prepared in a timely manner presenting all relevant facts and information in accordance with organisational procedures.
	3.3 Incident observations are provided accurately and constructively and opportunities for improvement are identified.
	3.4 Security operations are reviewed and written findings and recommendations are provided to inform future practice.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the skills and knowledge and their level required for this unit.

Required skills

- assess client security requirements
- communicate effectively with people from different social, cultural and ethnic backgrounds and of varying physical and mental abilities
- communicate using appropriate channels and clear and concise language
- determine response appropriate to security risk situation
- escort persons
- estimate and calculate resource and equipment requirements
- identify and comply with applicable legal and procedural requirements including licensing requirements

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

- identify and comply with security incident response procedures
- identify potential security threats and the likely source of risks
- identify support and assistance requirements
- operate security and communications equipment
- present a professional image to members of the public and colleagues
- record, report and document information
- select and use appropriate personal protection equipment
- use negotiation techniques to defuse and resolve conflict.

Required knowledge

- client confidentiality requirements
- communication channels, codes and signals
- emergency and evacuation procedures
- escort procedures
- first aid procedures and their application
- instructions and procedures for responding to security risk situations
- legal provisions relating to 'use of force' guidelines
- limits of own responsibility and authority
- observation and monitoring techniques
- operational functions and procedures for the use of communications, security and personal protection equipment
- principles of effective communication including interpersonal techniques
- procedures and requirements for documenting security incidents
- reporting structure and processes
- security incidents and appropriate responses
- security risk assessment methods.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	A person who demonstrates competency in this unit must be able to provide evidence of: • accurately assessing assignment needs and instructions and determining approaches and resources to be applied

- accurately identifying and assessing factors which might impact on the safety and security of VIPs and formulating and implementing appropriate responses
- reviewing and evaluating security operations through a process of continual assessment, feedback and exchange of information with relevant personnel
- systematically monitoring security activities and varying operational plans as required to meet changing circumstances.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Context of assessment includes:

- a setting in the workplace or environment that simulates the conditions of performance described in the elements, performance criteria and range statement.

Resource implications for assessment include:

- access to plain English version of relevant statutes and procedures
- access to a registered provider of assessment services
- access to a suitable venue and equipment
- assessment instruments including personal planner and assessment record book
- work schedules, organisational policies and duty statements.

Reasonable adjustments must be made to assessment processes where required for people with disabilities. This could include access to modified equipment and other physical resources, and the provision of appropriate assessment support.

Method of assessment

This unit of competency could be assessed using the following methods of assessment:

- observation of processes and procedures
- questioning of underpinning knowledge and skills.

Guidance information for assessment

Assessment processes and techniques must be culturally appropriate and suitable to the language, literacy and numeracy capacity of the candidate and the competency being assessed. In all cases where practical assessment is used, it should be combined with targeted questioning to assess the underpinning knowledge.

INTRODUCTION

UNIT DESCRIPTOR This unit describes the skills and knowledge required to interpret vision system production requirements, participate in run-throughs and ultimately operate a range of vision systems during a live production or event. It also covers the requirement to disassemble equipment. Vision system technicians who operate equipment in a range of live production environments require these skills. The technician may or may not be responsible for installation and set-up.

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1 Participate in technical or creative run through	1.1 Liaise with relevant personnel and read production documents to determine the technical and production requirements for vision systems 1.2 Participate in any required technical or creative run- through, note any equipment deficiencies or technical adjustments to be made 1.3 Plot and run through cues on direction from the appropriate personnel and according to equipment, sequencing, timing and speed requirements 1.4 Make any necessary changes to cues and modify cue sheets as required 1.5 Execute any necessary changes to equipment according to modifications required
2 Prepare for vision system operation	2.1 Check that final requirements for vision systems operation have been identified, implemented and documented 2.2 Check communications equipment to ensure that it is in working order 2.3 Power up and conduct a check on all primary and back-up equipment and accessories to ensure that they are in working order 2.4 Rectify any faults or problems and inform relevant personnel of any ongoing problems

3	Operate vision systems	3.1 Execute on cue all vision system operations in accordance with the running sheet and/or direction from appropriate personnel 3.2 Use all equipment features correctly and liaise with other technical personnel, as required, to ensure delivery of the required vision system effect 3.3 Modify cues, as required, to cater for unexpected contingencies 3.4 React to any equipment malfunctions by rectifying the fault safely and efficiently and inform relevant personnel 3.5 Use back-up systems appropriately if required
4	Shut down and disassemble the equipment	4.1 Safely power down the equipment following manufacturer instructions and enterprise procedures 4.2 Secure vision systems to avoid damage when unattended 4.3 Break down and carry vision system and, accessories employing safe lifting techniques 4.4 Safely pack all equipment to avoid damage and prepare for transport if required 4.5 Leave the work site in the original or improved condition, ensuring that there has been no adverse impact on the site 4.6 Complete any organisational documentation accurately and provide copies to relevant personnel

The following explanations identify how this unit may be applied in different workplaces, sectors and circumstances.

EVIDENCE GUIDE

Underpinning knowledge and skills

Assessment must include evidence of the following knowledge and skills: (note that some of this knowledge is shared with the unit CUEAUD02B Prepare, rig, test and modify vision systems equipment and care should be taken to avoid duplication where both units are to be assessed)

- the role and responsibilities of the vision systems technician during the actual operation of a production/performance, including appropriate protocols to be followed
- problem solving techniques during live production in relation to issues which arise with vision systems
- the technical operational aspects of the main types vision systems
- the performance capacities and limitations of various projectors and other elements used in vision systems
- understanding other technical elements of the production/event such as staging, lighting and sound elements to be used in conjunction with vision systems
- general knowledge of rigging procedures, including licencing requirements and restrictions
- relevant organisational and legislative occupational health and safety requirements, including safe manual handling techniques
- effective communication techniques for working with others during a live performance/production

- literacy skills sufficient to interpret documentation and plans, running sheets

Linkages to other units

It is strongly recommended that this unit be assessed with or after the following unit:

- CUEAUD06A
  - Apply a general knowledge of vision systems to work activities

This unit also has strong linkages to the following units, and combined training and/or assessment with those units may be appropriate, eg:

- CUEAUD02B
  - Prepare, rig, test and modify vision systems

Critical aspects of evidence

The following evidence is critical to the judgement of competence in this unit:

- technical knowledge of and ability to operate functions of a range of vision systems
- collect interpretation of vision system running sheets
- effective communication with clients and other technical personnel
- knowledge of occupational health and safety principles, procedures and regulations, especially safe lifting techniques

Method and context of assessment

The assessment context must provide for:

- practical demonstration of skills using a variety of vision systems during a live production or event
- operating vision systems within typical workplace time constraints
- operation of equipment according to more than one running/cue sheet to ensure that skills can be adapted to different contexts and vision system requirements
- use of industry-current equipment

Assessment may incorporate a range of methods to assess practical skills and the application of essential underpinning knowledge, and might include:

- direct observation of the operation of vision systems by the candidate
- evaluation of vision system presentations operated by the candidate
- project or role play activities which allow the candidate to demonstrate skills in interpreting and amending running/cue sheets
- role play and test activities which highlight fault detection and rectification
- written or oral questioning to test technical knowledge of typical vision systems and occupational health and safety issues and regulations

- review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the job performance by the candidate

Assessment methods should closely reflect workplace demands and the needs of particular groups (eg people with disabilities, and people who may have literacy or numeracy difficulties such as speakers of languages other than English, remote communities and those with interrupted schooling).

Resource requirements

Assessment of this unit requires access to:
- use of vision system running/cue sheets
- a range of standard industry current vision systems
- a venue where a full range of vision systems can be operated

KEY COMPETENCY LEVELS

Key competencies are built into all workplace competencies. The table below describes those applicable to this unit. Trainers and assessors should ensure that they are addressed in training and assessment.

Level 1 = Perform
Level 2 = Administer and Manage
Level 3 = Design and Evaluate

Key competencies	Level	Examples
Collecting, organising and analysing information	1	Interpreting running sheets
Communicating ideas and information	2	Providing briefings to the customer
Planning and organising activities	1	Testing equipment prior to operation
Working with others and in teams	1	Liaising with other technical personnel
Using mathematical ideas and	1	Calculating times

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.
Required skills
• patching and operating commonly used signal processors • the meaning and use of electrical measurements, including voltage, current resistance, power insulation and circuit continuity, having regard to magnitude, AC or DC, circuit state (energised or de-energised) • literacy skills sufficient to extract key information from installation • numeracy skills sufficient to count, sort and position equipment
Required knowledge
• the general scope and potential of vision system operations within different contexts • the relationship between vision system operations and other technical and performance areas, including sound, lighting and performance • the key features, purpose and basic operating procedures of major types of AV equipment, including projectors (slide, video and data) • different types of cable and their usage in different situations and for different types of equipment • common formats of vision system plans and how these relate to practical work tasks • legal and safety issues with regard to vision system operations as they affect individual workers • common terminology used in relation to audiovisual operations • general knowledge of power, including recognition of different power outlets and safe use of power extension leads

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Context of and specific resources for assessment	The assessment context must provide for: • practical demonstration of skills through the completion of a range of preparatory and set up tasks with industry-current vision systems equipment • project or work activities that allow knowledge to be applied to specific live production contexts and situations • completion of tasks within workplace-realistic time constraints.
Method of assessment	Assessment may incorporate a range of methods to assess performance and the application of essential underpinning knowledge, and might include: • direct observation of the candidate working with equipment and completing tasks • inspection of equipment set up by the candidate • oral questioning/interviewing to assess knowledge of equipment and procedures • review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate. Assessment methods should closely reflect workplace demands and the needs of particular groups (e.g. people with disabilities, and people who may have literacy or numeracy difficulties such as speakers of languages other than English, remote communities and those with interrupted schooling).

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	The following evidence is critical to the judgement of competence in this unit: • ability to access appropriate information on venue facilities, and all operational aspects of the performance/session/event - times, prices, ticketing categories • provision of accurate seating and ticketing advice and issuance of tickets within industry-realistic timeframes • ability to provide information and advice which matches customer needs and requests.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	The assessment context must provide for: • practical demonstration of skills in providing information for multiple ticketing products to meet varying customer needs • processing requests within typical workplace time constraints, eg serving a physical or telephone queue of customers waiting to access seating and ticketing information • interaction with and involvement of a customer group to whom information and advice can be provided.

	underpinning knowledge, and might include: • direct observation of the candidate providing information and advice and issuing tickets • case studies to assess ability to match product to customer needs/requests • review of documentation, information manuals or notes kept by the candidate • written or oral questions and tests to assess knowledge of information sources and actual knowledge of venues, ticketing products and prices • review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate. Assessment methods should closely reflect workplace demands and the needs of particular groups (e.g. people with disabilities, and people who may have literacy or numeracy difficulties such as speakers of languages other than English, remote communities and those with interrupted schooling).
Guidance information for assessment	Assessment of this unit requires access to: • typical industry information storage systems for venue, ticketing and performance/session/event information • tickets/passes.

RANGE STATEMENT
The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.

1 Record, modify and replay lighting cues	1.1 Correctly identify the functions of controls on the console, including function of the unit displaying data and controls to produce text
	1.2 Correctly undertake channel selection and intensity setting, identify on display unit and make appropriate modifications using all relevant controls
	1.3 Accurately record cue number and fade/wait times, identify on display unit and make appropriate modifications using all relevant controls
	1.4 Play recorded cues in correct sequence and time using all relevant controls correctly, and identify on display unit
	1.5 Create, modify and replay group and sub-groups in correct sequence and time using all relevant controls correctly and identify on display unit
2 Carry out procedures prior to plotting or operating lighting cues	2.1 Ensure that working area is clear, tidy, properly illuminated, and relevant written instructions are to hand
	2.2 Check communications equipment and ensure that it is in working order
	2.3 Power up dimmers, control desk and peripherals using safe working practices and check that operating environment is within manufacturer parameters
	2.4 Test lighting instruments, accessories and other lighting elements to ensure all items are in correct working order
	2.5 Test venue audience, decorative, safety, and working lighting to ensure all items are in correct working order
	2.6 Identify problems with equipment promptly and take appropriate action, or refer to appropriate personnel as required.
3 Plot and operate lighting cues	3.1 Check instructions to verify practicality before plotting and repeat once plotted

Evidence Guide

Underpinning skills and knowledge

Assessment must include evidence of the following knowledge and skills:

knowledge of general lighting terms, including how terms may vary between different systems or how different terms can refer to the same functions on different systems knowledge of lighting control concepts used in various lighting systems industry terminology and protocols particularly in relation to the operation of lighting knowledge of the main types of lanterns, including profile, Fresnel, PC, flood, and PAR lamps, their uses and operations (optical and mechanical) and accessories understanding of the basic elements of lighting design problem-solving techniques particularly in relation to lighting console operation documentation and back-up systems used in conjunction with lighting control colour recognition in display equipment

communication skills to allow for effective collaboration with other technicians and designers

numeracy skills sufficient to complete simple mathematical calculations and recall numbers for channel selection

literacy skills sufficient to interpret production documentation.

Linkages to other units

It is strongly recommended that this unit be assessed with or after the following unit:

CUELGT09A - Apply a general knowledge of lighting to work activities

This unit also has linkages to a range of other lighting units, and combined assessment and or training with those units may be appropriate.

Critical aspects of evidence

ability to accurately record and reproduce lighting cues to instruction in a given timeframe knowledge of lighting terminology.

Method and context of assessment

The assessment context must provide for:

practical demonstration of skills through the use of a lighting console on multiple occasions for multiple productions

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Assessment may incorporate a range of methods to assess performance and the application of essential underpinning knowledge, and might include:

direct observation of the candidate operating a lighting console during production

direct observation of the lighting effects produced by the candidate during a production

oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of console features and functions

review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports on on-the-job performance by the candidate.

Assessment methods should closely reflect workplace demands and the needs of particular groups (e.g. people with disabilities, and people who may have literacy or numeracy difficulties such as speakers of languages other than English, remote communities and those with interrupted schooling).

Resource requirements

Assessment of this unit requires access to:

a range of lighting equipment as identified in the Range Statement

a production and production venue.

Key competencies in this unit

Key competencies are built into all workplace competencies. The table below describes those applicable to this unit. Trainers and assessors should ensure that they are addressed in training and assessment.

Level 1 = Perform

Level 2 = Administer and Manage

Level 3 = Design and Evaluate

Collecting, organising and analysing information (1)

Collecting information needed to record a series of lighting cues.

Communicating ideas and information (1)

Reporting problems with lighting console.

Planning and organising activities (1)

Organising work space.

Working with others and in teams (1)

Liaising with other technicians.

Using mathematical ideas and techniques (1)

Using numbered channels.

Solving problems (1)

Identifying problems during performance.

colour recognition in display equipment

numeracy skills sufficient to complete simple mathematical calculations and recall numbers for channel selection

literacy skills sufficient to interpret production documentation.

Linkages to other units

It is strongly recommended that this unit be assessed with or after the following unit:

CUELGT09A - Apply a general knowledge of lighting to work activities

This unit also has linkages to a range of other lighting units, and combined assessment and or training with those units may be appropriate.

Critical aspects of evidence

The following evidence is critical to the judgement of competence in this unit:

ability to accurately record and reproduce lighting cues to instruction in a given timeframe

knowledge of lighting terminology.

Method and context of assessment

The assessment context must provide for:

practical demonstration of skills through the use of a lighting console on multiple occasions for multiple productions

use of industry-current equipment.

direct observation of the candidate operating a lighting console during production

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

direct observation of the lighting effects produced by the candidate during a production

oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of console features and functions

review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports on on-the-job performance by the candidate.

Assessment methods should closely reflect workplace demands and the needs of particular groups (e.g. people with disabilities, and people who may have literacy or numeracy difficulties such as speakers of languages other than English, remote communities and those with interrupted schooling).

Resource requirements

Assessment of this unit requires access to:

a range of lighting equipment as identified in the Range Statement

a production and production venue.

Key competencies in this unit

Key competencies are built into all workplace competencies. The table below describes those applicable to this unit. Trainers and assessors should ensure that they are addressed in training and assessment.

Level 1 = Perform

Level 2 = Administer and Manage

Level 3 = Design and Evaluate

Collecting, organising and analysing information (1)

Collecting information needed to record a series of lighting cues.

Communicating ideas and information (1)

INTRODUCTION

UNIT DESCRIPTOR

This unit provides the foundation knowledge required to complete a range of general lighting-related tasks in a live venue environment. It includes the need for an understanding of the role of the lighting technician, overall lighting system layout and basic equipment recognition. Tasks would generally be completed under supervision.

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1 Make preparations for lighting set up	1.1 Extract key information from lighting plans and confirm requirements with supervisor 1.2 Correctly identify appropriate rigging and positioning points for lighting equipment 1.3 Correctly identify cables used to connect different lighting components 1.4 Correctly identify and sort equipment and accessories in preparation for set up, ensuring appropriate handling and taking account of equipment differences
2 Complete tasks using lighting equipment	2.1 Correctly use the lighting desk to bring up channels for focussing 2.2 Correctly and safely power up dimmers and set up patch location 2.3 Match light beam control accessories to lights and use in accordance with instructions 2.4 Correctly handle cables, including rolling/unrolling, storage and safe manual handling 2.5 Identify any problems with equipment promptly, take action within the scope of individual responsibility or report to supervisor 2.6 Communicate appropriately with other technicians, performers or customers during the completion of tasks

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

RANGE STATEMENT

The following explanations identify how this unit may be applied in different workplaces, sectors and circumstances.

Use of lighting desk must include:	• manual preset operation • theatrical cue set up and playback • single scene submaster operation (a single set of channel levels being stored in a fader for later use) • submaster cue stacking and playback (a series of cues, namely sets of channel levels and fade times, stored in sequence and recalled later)
Use of dimmer and patch system layouts may include:	• distributed dimming – dimmers located where required • distributed patch – patch lines from a single dimmer location to destination lights • dual systems – combination of the above two systems • automated lighting requirements – direct power and data lines required (no dimmer)
Conventional lights to be used must include:	• floods and PARS and cyc lights • fresnel and pebbled convex (PC) lanterns • profile, ellipsoidal profile
Light beam control accessories may include:	• gel types and gel frames • barn doors • gobos and gobo holders • iris • doughnuts and top hats • black wrap • shutters • spun
Use of conventional lights must include:	• finding out the correct replacement lamp and wattage of the lantern • awareness of the different types of lamp bases • correct bubble handling techniques • awareness of how heat is dissipated by a lantern • when incorrect orientation of a lamp may reduce filament

and lantern life

EVIDENCE GUIDE

Underpinning skills and knowledge	Assessment must include evidence of the following knowledge and skills: • the general scope and potential of lighting operations within different live production contexts, eg theatre, music, corporate • the relationship between lighting operations and other technical and performance areas, including audio, vision systems and performance • typical roles and responsibilities of the lighting technicians in different context, including career paths • lighting system options in a range of venue types • specialised terminology that applies to lighting operations • general features of lanterns and accessories, dimmers and control systems • overview of different types of automated lights and the special requirements of this type of technology, including rigging orientation, powering, requirement for data supply and fixture addressing • overview of appropriate use of standard pump propelled glycol-based atmospheric (smoke) effects • organisational and legislative occupational health and safety legislation in particular relation to lighting operations, eg electrical restrictions • knowledge of colour recognition • requirements for storage of lighting equipment • literacy skills sufficient to interpret lighting plans, understand use of scale, lighting symbols and notation conventions • numeracy skills sufficient to count and sort equipment and use numerical features of lighting desks

Linkages to other units	This unit underpins and has linkages to general technical units and all other lighting units and combined assessment and/or training with those units may be appropriate, eg:
	  • Follow health, safety and security procedures
	• CUETGE11A
	  • Handle physical elements safely during bump in/bump out

Critical aspects of evidence	The following evidence is critical to the judgement of competence in this unit: • recognition of lighting equipment,, including key features and purpose • completion of lighting-related tasks in accordance with health and safety procedures
Method and context of assessment	The assessment context must provide for: • practical demonstration of skills through the completion of a range of preparatory and set up tasks with industry-current lighting equipment • project or work activities that allow knowledge to be applied to specific production contexts and situations Assessment may incorporate a range of methods to assess performance and the application of essential underpinning knowledge, and might include: • direct observation of the candidate completing lighting-related tasks • evaluation of equipment which has been set up by the candidate • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of equipment types • review of portfolios of evidence or third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate Assessment methods should closely reflect workplace demands and the needs of particular groups (eg people with disabilities, and people who may have literacy or numeracy difficulties such as speakers of languages other than English, remote communities and those with interrupted schooling).
Resource requirements	Assessment of this unit requires access to: • a range of lighting equipment as identified in the Range Statement • an environment in which lighting can be set up and operated • lighting plan for interpretation

Key competencies are built into all workplace competencies. The table below describes those applicable to this unit. Trainers and assessors should ensure that they are addressed in training and assessment.

Level 1 = Perform
Level 2 = Administer and Manage

Level 3 = Design and Evaluate

Key competencies	Level	Examples
Collecting, organising and analysing information	1	Reading lighting plan to determine equipment requirements
Communicating ideas and information	1	Discussing work requirements with supervisor
Planning and organising activities	1	Positioning and placing equipment ready for installation
Working with others and in teams	1	Liaising with other technicians during set up
Using mathematical ideas and techniques	1	Calculating the number of lamps required
Solving problems	1	Adjusting position of equipment
Using technology	1	Using hand tools

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the skills and knowledge required for the overall management of pre-production, including determination and coordination of all production resources. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	Production managers with considerable production experience would generally undertake the duties outlined in this unit. In this role, they are responsible for developing an in-depth understanding of both the creative and technical aspects of live productions/ events. Managing the production process requires technical expertise plus considerable communication, negotiation and problem solving skills. As such, this unit brings together many of the skills found in other production management units. This unit has strong linkages to the following units, and combined training and/or assessment is recommended: • CUETEM03C Establish and manage production requirements and resources • CUFPPM408a Compile production schedules.

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1. Interpret the creative parameters of the production	1.1. Participate in preliminary discussions with relevant personnel to interpret and confirm their creative intentions for the production/event 1.2. Read, analyse and interpret any design or production documents and notes to establish a full picture of production requirements and challenges
2. Identify and confirm production and technical parameters	2.1. Liaise with relevant technical personnel and determine the range and numbers of staging and technical elements for the production 2.2. Develop an overall operational plan and develop and

	document schedules for the completion of various stages of production planning to ensure deadlines can be met 2.3. Provide advice to relevant personnel regarding technical, artistic and safety issues that may affect the production/event
3. Coordinate production meetings	3.1. Liaise with relevant personnel and allocate times for production meetings to ensure most efficient and cost effective use of time 3.2. Chair production meetings and ensure that all artistic and technical issues are discussed and resolved 3.3. Provide current, clear and accurate reports on the progress of various aspects of the pre-production activities 3.4. Notify all relevant colleagues of meeting outcomes which affect their work activities 3.5. Keep accurate records of decisions made and actions required
4. Monitor the production planning phase	4.1. Take an active role in maintaining a creative and technical overview of the project 4.2. Continually liaise with the technical and artistic production team to ascertain and act upon requirements which can be organised on their behalf 4.3. Assess the progress of pre-production activities against timelines and budget and make adjustments accordingly 4.4. Determine any need for additional resources to be applied and take necessary action to ensure production requirements are met 4.5. Communicate with appropriate personnel regularly throughout the pre-production phase in an open manner to maintain positive working relations and to ensure efficient, safe and disciplined production practices
5. Prepare, distribute and maintain required production documentation and information	5.1. Prepare and/or check production documentation and information and ensure it is complete, accurate and legible and meets with production requirements 5.2. Copy and circulate production documentation and information of the relevant personnel in accordance with organisational procedures 5.3. Develop and maintain accurate records of distribution of documentation

	5.4. Continually review and update documentation to reflect changed production requirements

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.
Required skills
• effective leadership, negotiation and problem solving techniques in relation to production management • principles for communicating effectively with people with diverse interests and needs • commonly occurring issues and challenges in the production management process and ways of addressing these • meeting procedures and protocols as they apply to the operation of production meetings
Required knowledge
• content of the script or other source document • in depth understanding of all artistic and technical elements of the production/event, e.g. staging, lighting and sound elements, sufficient to be able to co-ordinate all aspects • relevant occupational health and safety legislation and regulation as it applies to all production areas • industrial awards and workers' compensation regulations as they apply to the production staff • required content, format and timing of different types of documentation developed and distributed by a production manager

EVIDENCE GUIDE
Overview of assessment
Context of and specific resources for assessment	The assessment context must provide for: • practical demonstration of skills through the management of more than one production to allow the candidate to effectively plan, administer and monitor the entire pre-production planning phase for more than one live production/event • preparation and use of a broad range of production documents within typical workplace constraints • involvement of and interaction with a production team to reflect the importance of collaboration and negotiation skills within this unit.
Method of assessment	Assessment may incorporate a range of methods to assess practical skills and the application of essential underpinning knowledge, and might include: • evaluation of the planning and management of a production for which the candidate has been responsible • interviews with other production personnel to establish the effectiveness of various aspects of production management for which the candidate has been responsible • evaluation of production documentation prepared by the candidate • written or oral questioning to test knowledge of all technical, staging and artistic aspects of the production • written or oral questioning to test knowledge of industrial awards, occupational health and safety issues and regulations and any other regulatory

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the skills and knowledge required to source, obtain and prepare props for any production within the cultural industries. As such it requires research skills, organisational skills and a sound knowledge of different sources of props and the ways in which props may be used in a production. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	Props personnel in the entertainment and screen and media industries apply the skills and knowledge outlined in this unit. Personnel may include props makers, props storepersons and props dressers. The props department may be supervised by a props manager and the props team works closely with set designers, directors and continuity personnel before and during productions. This unit has linkages to a range of other props units and combined assessment and/or training with those units may be appropriate.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the skills and knowledge to apply basic carpentry skills to the construction of sets within any production in the cultural industries. As such it focuses on the particular materials and techniques used to create simple set elements such as flats and treads. A person working under supervision would generally undertake this role. Skills working with hand and power tools would be required to complete this unit.

format and meaning of technical drawings used to inform set construction organisational and legislative Occupational Health and Safety requirements, in particular with regard to safe manual handling techniques and working with hazardous substances literacy skills sufficient to interpret safety instructions numeracy skills sufficient to calculate quantities and take measurements.

Linkages to other units

This unit has linkages with a range of other general building and construction units and set construction units. It is strongly recommended that this unit be assessed with or after the following units:

BCGBM1005B - Carry out measurements and calculations or equivalent unit

MEM18.1AB - Use hand tools

Critical aspects of evidence

The following evidence is critical to the judgement of competence in this unit:

understanding of the properties, applications and durability of different types of materials that can be used to make set elements correct and safe use of techniques to construct simple set elements.

Method and context of assessment

The assessment context must provide for:

practical demonstration of skills through construction of set elements on more than one occasion completion of set construction tasks within realistic workplace timeframes.

Assessment may incorporate a range of methods to assess performance and the application of essential underpinning knowledge, and might include:

direct observation of the candidate using techniques to construct set elements evaluation of items constructed by the candidate in terms of quality finishing and appropriate structural soundness oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of set construction and stage geography terminology portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate.

Assessment methods should closely reflect workplace demands and the needs of particular groups (e.g. people with disabilities, and people who may have literacy or numeracy difficulties such as speakers of languages other than English, remote communities and those with interrupted schooling).

Resource requirements

Assessment of this unit requires access to:

materials, tools and equipment required to construct simple set elements a workspace in which construction can take place.

Key competencies in this unit

Key competencies are built into all workplace competencies. The table below describes those applicable to this unit. Trainers and assessors should ensure that they are addressed in training and assessment.

Level 1 = Perform

Level 2 = Administer and Manage

Level 3 = Design and Evaluate

Collecting, organising and analysing information (1)

Working out quantities of materials required.

Asking for directions from supervisor.

Planning and organising activities (1)

Organising tools and equipment for a specific job.

Working with others and in teams (1)

Discussing task allocation with colleagues.

Using mathematical ideas and techniques (1)

Taking measurements.

Identifying the need for adjustments.

Using technology (1)

Using power tools.

Range Statement

The following explanations identify how this unit may be applied in different workplaces, sectors and circumstances.

Set construction techniques at this level would generally involve construction of the following:

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the skills and knowledge required to co-ordinate all back-of-house services during the delivery of a live production/event. The unit focuses on back-of-house set-up just prior to the production/event and the delivery of the actual performance. It does not focus on longer term planning issues. Stage management of a performance requires considerable communication, negotiation and problem solving skills. There are very strong links between this unit and generic units covering those skills. This role would normally be undertaken by senior stage managers.

Elements and Performance Criteria

Elements and Performance Criteria

Element	Performance Criteria
1 Oversee preparation of the production/event	1.1 Identify and rectify potential problems that could impact on the smooth running of the production and inform the appropriate personnel as required
	1.2 Check that appropriate personnel are present at the specified time and have completed any administrative procedures
	1.3 Conduct briefings with production and performance team, as required
	1.4 Supply performers with the relevant items and areas required for the production/event
	1.5 Ensure cast and crew valuables are secured according to organisational policy
	1.6 Communicate with appropriate personnel to ensure that all technical pre-show checks are completed within the required timeframe and that required technical elements are operating
	1.7 Liaise with relevant colleagues to complete other pre-performance requirements
2 Coordinate the stage set-up	2.1 Liaise with all stage production personnel and monitor work activities against relevant schedules
	2.2 Ensure all technical and performance personnel are present at the specified time
	2.3 Assess workflow and progress of set-up activities against timelines and initiate short term action to resolve any problems in meeting the deadline
	2.4 Identify and rectify potential problems that could impact on the smooth running of the production and inform the appropriate personnel as required.
	2.5 Communicate with appropriate personnel to ensure that all technical pre-show checks are completed within the required time frame and that required technical elements are operating.

		2.6 Communicate with the appropriate personnel to ensure that staging elements and equipment are correctly arranged in correct working order and in accordance with design specifications.
		2.7 Monitor the set-up to ensure that all Occupational Health and Safety issues have been addressed in accordance with relevant legislation and organisational procedures.
3	Run the production/event	3.1 Monitor production and performance elements and take appropriate action to resolve with minimum disruption to the production
		3.2 Use reference materials appropriately to ensure the accurate and timely delivery of the production/event
		3.3 Communicate any changes to the production promptly to all appropriate personnel, ensuring all changes meet production standards
		3.4 Ensure the movement of physical elements occurs in accordance with production schedule/running sheet and timing
4	Maintain working relations and communication with production and performance team	4.1 Provide appropriate briefings and materials to cast and crew prior to the performance
		4.2 Liaise with cast and crew in a timely manner regarding any pre-performance requirements
		4.3 Communicate with cast and crew regularly throughout the production in an open manner to maintain positive working relations
		4.4 Provide clear instructions in a manner that is appropriate to the production requirements, ensuring that timing is maintained and precise
		4.5 Communicate with personnel in a clear and concise manner to ensure efficient, safe and disciplined production practices
5	Finalise the performance/event	5.1 Accurately prepare post-performance documentation according to organisational procedures
		5.2 Organise the clearance and cleaning of the production/event sites as required, including appropriate security, storage and disposal

5.3 Maintain required production facilities and stocks of consumables for use in future productions

5.4 Identify any repairs or maintenance required and take appropriate action

5.5 Identify the need for and make any necessary adjustments to production documentation to ensure consistency and quality of future performances

Not applicable.

Evidence Guide

Underpinning skills and knowledge

Assessment must include evidence of the following knowledge and skills:

broad understanding of artistic and technical elements of the production/event such as staging, lighting and sound elements

the key factors involved in the successful stage management of a production, including typical problems and responses effective communication, team leading and delegation in relation to the stage management of a production problem solving and decision making processes and their application in an immediate production/event environment relevant Occupational Health and Safety legislation and regulations as they apply to maintaining a safe backstage environment literacy skills sufficient to interpret complex documentation and write simple reports.

Linkages to other units

This unit has strong linkages to other stage management units and combined training and/or assessment with those units may be appropriate, for example:

CUESMT09A - Plot and rehearse cues

CUESMT08A - Call the production/event

Critical aspects of evidence

The following evidence is critical to the judgement of competence in this unit:

ability to manage a range of tasks concurrently and in accordance with immediate time constraints knowledge of all delivery aspects of the production ability to effectively communicate and delegate.

Method and context of assessment

The assessment context must provide for:

practical demonstration of skills through the stage management of at least two different productions interaction with and involvement of a production and performance team to reflect the collaborative nature of the unit

Assessment may incorporate a range of methods to assess practical skills and the application of essential underpinning knowledge, and might include:

direct observation of the stage management of a production/event for which the candidate is responsible review of production schedules and other stage management reference material and reports prepared by the candidate review of reports prepared by the candidate on the planning and implementation of the stage management of a production written or oral questioning to test knowledge of the industrial and Occupational Health and Safety issues and regulations

review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the job performance by the candidate

Assessment methods should closely reflect workplace demands and the needs of particular groups (e.g. people with disabilities, and people who may have literacy or numeracy difficulties such as speakers of languages other than English, remote communities and those with interrupted schooling).

Resource requirements

Assessment of this unit requires access to:

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the skills and knowledge required to coordinate the overall rehearsal process for live productions/events. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	Coordinating rehearsals is typically the role of a production manager or stage manager in conjunction with a producer or director. The core of the job involves setting up the logistics and communication channels to ensure rehearsals run smoothly. It entails preparing essential documentation, liaising with cast and crew, and locating and preparing rehearsal venues. This unit has linkages to a range of other stage management units, and combined training and/or assessment with those units may be appropriate, e.g.: • CUESMT11B Create, update and use production reference documents • CUESMT12B Analyse performance outline/script.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1. Select and secure rehearsal venue	1.1. Determine requirements for rehearsal facilities through liaison with relevant personnel and analysis of production documentation 1.2. Develop accurate and complete specifications for rehearsal venues to facilitate the research process 1.3. Research potential rehearsal venues using appropriate information sources and research methods 1.4. Assess suitability of venues based on comparison of services against specifications

	1.5. Complete a risk assessment on potential venues and integrate findings into selection and planning processes 1.6. Negotiate and liaise with personnel from potentially suitable venues to ensure requirements can be met and to address any potential problem areas 1.7. Provide clear and accurate briefings on venue options to relevant colleagues, including recommendations and rationale 1.8. Confirm venue arrangements accurately in writing when the selection process is finalised
2. Coordinate physical elements for rehearsal	2.1. Measure and mark up the rehearsal facilities according to the production design/specifications 2.2. Organise all required physical elements in accordance with rehearsal schedule and daily requirements 2.3. Arrange appropriate and timely transportation of physical elements at the rehearsal facility in accordance with production specifications 2.4. Ensure that physical elements are correctly set-up, checked by relevant colleagues and are operating in according with design specifications 2.5. Monitor the set-up to ensure that occupational and public health and safety requirements are adhered to 2.6. Advise relevant personnel and performers of the nature and limitations of physical elements
3. Create and distribute rehearsal documentation	3.1. Correctly identify the information and documentation required by all those involved in rehearsals 3.2. Circulate relevant, current and accurate information to relevant personnel in a timely manner 3.3. Develop schedules in accordance with provisions in the relevant award and enterprise agreements and budget 3.4. Amend schedules and production documentation as necessary to reflect any required changes and distribute to relevant personnel
4. Facilitate communication during rehearsal	4.1. Deal with creative and technical participants in a tactful and sensitive manner and take into account any cultural or language differences 4.2. Communicate with creative and technical participants regularly throughout the rehearsal

	process in an open manner to maintain positive working relations 4.3. Broker the resolution of any technical problems by facilitating discussions between performers and technical crew 4.4. Take appropriate action to meet requirements of creative and technical participants
5. Participate in rehearsals	5.1. Participate in rehearsals, providing technical assistance as required 5.2. Monitor rehearsals and stage manage, if required, in accordance with the production requirements 5.3. Calculate and record performance timings for use in production documents 5.4. Participate in production meetings or post-rehearsal note sessions to identify any production problems and resolve with the minimum of disruption to the rehearsal process and budget

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.
Required skills
• communication and conflict resolution skills in relation to the types of issues that arise during rehearsals with various stakeholders • literacy skills sufficient to conduct research and develop complex documentation
Required knowledge
• different types of rehearsal venue requirements for varying types of production • information sources for venue information • features and requirements of typical venue contracts • overall knowledge of technical and artistic elements of the production • roles and responsibilities of those involved in the rehearsal process • the possibilities and limitations of staging and technical rehearsal elements • differences between the elements used during the rehearsal and the actual production elements • relevant industrial awards for performers and technicians, particularly in relation to scheduling rehearsal times

• relevant occupational health and safety legislation and regulations, particularly in relation to the set-up and safe operation of a rehearsal area • content and format of production documentation

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	The following evidence is critical to the judgement of competence in this unit: • ability to source and oversee the set-up of an appropriate rehearsal venue which meets the production needs • ability to effectively communicate and resolve conflicts in the context of production rehearsals • knowledge of the technical aspects of the rehearsal process.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	The assessment context must provide for: • practical demonstration of skills through the sourcing and set-up of a rehearsal facility for an actual production, plus the facilitation of the rehearsal process • interaction with and involvement of a production and performance team involved in the rehearsal process.
Method of assessment	Assessment may incorporate a range of methods to assess practical skills and the application of essential underpinning knowledge, and might include: • direct observation of the candidate working within the rehearsal context • review of schedules and other production documentation prepared by the candidate • evaluation of report completed by the candidate on the management of rehearsals, challenges faced and how these were overcome

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

EVIDENCE GUIDE
	• written or oral questioning to assess knowledge of industrial awards and occupational health and safety legislation and regulation • review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the job performance by the candidate. Assessment methods should closely reflect workplace demands and the needs of particular groups (e.g. people with disabilities, and people who may have literacy or numeracy difficulties such as speakers of languages other than English, remote communities and those with interrupted schooling).
Guidance information for assessment	Assessment of this unit requires access to: • potential and actual venues where rehearsals could realistically take place • physical production elements • relevant industrial awards • relevant occupational health and safety regulations.

RANGE STATEMENT
The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.
Rehearsal facilities may be:	• hired from another organisation • located at the actual production/event venue • located off-site from the venue • part of the organisation's facility
Relevant personnel/technical and artistic production team may include:	• all technicians, e.g. sound, lighting • artistic director • assistant stage manager • choreographer • designer

	• designers • extras • non-regular performers • performers • production manager • staging personnel • technical director • venue management
Rehearsals may be conducted:	• in a totally independent space • in the actual performance/production/event space
Physical elements required for rehearsal may include:	• mirrors • musical instruments • notice board • production desk • props and costumes • resin box • secure storage • sets • storage for personal property • suitable flooring • technical equipment • waiting area • warm-up area • other support facilities

Performers may be:	• actors
	• conference speakers
	• masters of ceremony
	• musicians
	• non-regular performers
	• panel members, e.g. a debating team
	• public speakers
	• regular cast members

Guidance information for assessment	Assessment of this unit requires access to: • a production • source documentation on which production reference documentation can be based • a rehearsal venue.

RANGE STATEMENT
The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.
Relevant colleagues may include:	• artistic specialist • artists/performers • choreographers • conductor • designers • director • musical director • production manager • technical director • technical staff
Production reference documents must include:	• cue sheet • production script • running sheet
Production reference documents may include:	• 'doubling' list • cast list • cast/character/costume/props matrix • directors notes • extract lists • notated score • quick change lists

CUESOU07B Apply a general knowledge of audio to work activities

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the foundation skills and knowledge required to complete a range of general audio-related tasks in a live venue environment. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	People assisting with audio operations in the screen, media and entertainment industries apply the skills and knowledge outlined in this unit. They are working under the direct supervision of an experienced sound technician. The role includes the need for an understanding of the role of sound technicians, the process for setting up audio equipment and the functions of a range of sound equipment. Equipment operation is at a routine level. This unit underpins and has linkages to general technical units and all other audio units, and combined training and assessment with those units may be appropriate, e.g.: • CUSOHS301A Follow occupational health and safety procedures • CUETGE15B Handle physical elements safely during bump in/bump out.

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1. Make preparations for audio set-up	1.1. Extract key information from audio installation plans and confirm requirements with supervisor 1.2. Correctly identify preferred rigging and positioning points for audio equipment 1.3. Correctly identify cables used to connect different audio components 1.4. Correctly identify and sort equipment and accessories in preparation for set-up, ensuring appropriate handling and taking account of equipment differences

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
2. Complete tasks using audio equipment	2.1. Correctly connect, disconnect and position audio system cables, including microphone, speaker, multicore and power feeds, in accordance with supervisor's instructions and safety requirements 2.2. Wire the audio system in correct sequence and confirm with supervisor 2.3. Set start up and operating settings in correct sequence and correctly use features of audio desk in accordance with instructions 2.4. Identify any problems with equipment promptly, take action within scope of individual responsibility or report to supervisor 2.5. Use positioning and equalising techniques to create optimum sound quality 2.6. Communicate appropriately with other technicians, performers or customers during the completion of tasks

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.
Required skills
• literacy skills sufficient to extract key information from audio installation plans • numeracy skills sufficient to sort and count equipment
Required knowledge
• the general scope and potential of audio operations within different live production contexts, e.g. theatre, music, corporate • the relationship between audio operations and other technical and performance areas, including lighting, vision systems and performance • typical roles and responsibilities of audio technicians in different contexts, including different career paths • fundamentals of sound in a circuit, including understanding that microphone level is 40 to -60dB line level • features and meaning of a typical sound system signal flow chart, including signal chains, gain structure and levels • decibel levels and basic sound pressure level measurement, including that frequency is measured in Hertz, understanding the differences between 100Hz and

• understanding of phase, including phase cancellation, and that at 180 degree phase difference signals do cancel each other out
• common terminology used in relation to audio
• occupational health and safety requirements and legislation that relate to audio personnel, in particular with regard to working safely with electricity
• requirements for the storage of audio equipment
• key features, purpose and basic operating procedures of major types of audio equipment, including different types of loudspeakers, audio mixing consoles, signal processing equipment, input source equipment and common accessories
• different types of cable, their usage in different situations and how to care for them, including:
  • microphone cables; how to run safely and neatly and where to store excess
  • speaker cables; how to run safely and neatly and avoid lighting components
  • multicore cables, how to run safely and neatly and where to store excess
  • power cables, how to run safely and neatly and where to store excess

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Context of and specific resources for assessment	The assessment context must provide for: • practical demonstration of skills through the completion of a range of preparatory and set-up tasks with industry-current audio equipment • project or work activities that allow knowledge to be applied to specific production contexts and situations.

Accessories used in live audio may include:	• active splits • analysis software • continuity and phase testers • DI boxes • insolation transformers • spectrum analysers • SPL meters • white or pink noise generators
Equipment differences for loudspeakers may include:	• features of high frequency compression driver types • size of paper cone loudspeakers
Equipment differences for audio mixing consoles may include:	• how front of house consoles differ from stage monitor consoles, particularly the difference between pre and post fade auxiliary sends
Equipment differences for input source equipment may include:	• devices in the main signal chain, e.g. equalisers, CD, cassette, mini disk • devices inserted over individual channels, such as noise gates, limiters, compressors, preamps
Correct start up sequence and operating settings for an audio system would include:	• ensuring all amplifier volume controls are down (at minimum settings) • ensuring all output faders on console are down (at minimum settings or muted) • powering up all front-of-house equipment first • powering up amplifiers last • winding up amplifier volumes after all equipment is powered up
Correct sequencing of wiring would include:	• connection of adequate mains to all components and understanding of power isolation • patching to create a complete signal chain from input to output • safe and neat positioning of cables and multicore
Sound equipment may include:	• amplifiers to suit the system • analogue FOH mixing desk of at least 24:8:2 format • CD player • computer DAT • effects rack • hard disc recorder • microphones of different pickup patterns and

CUESTA01C Install staging elements

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to install a range of staging elements for any production within the cultural industries. It builds on the skills found in the unit CUESTA05C Apply a general knowledge of staging to work activities. The National Standard for Licensing Persons Performing High Risk Work applies to persons performing dogging and rigging work. Completion of the following units is required for certification at either basic, intermediate or advanced levels. CPCCLDG3001A Licence to perform dogging CPCCLRG3001A Licence to perform rigging basic level CPCCLRG3002A Licence to perform rigging intermediate level CPCCLRG4001A Licence to perform rigging advanced level. Sets and staging for some performances or events may fall within the definition of construction work. If so, people entering a construction site are required to complete the general induction training program specified by the National Code of Practice for Induction Training for Construction Work (Australian Safety Compensation Council, May 2007). Achievement of the unit 'CPCCOHS1001A Work safely in the construction industry' fulfils this requirement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	Mechanists apply the skills and knowledge outlined in this unit. In this role they are responsible for installing a range of scenery and set items for performances or events. These include soft scenery, as well as weight and non-weight bearing set items. This unit has linkages with a range of other staging and technical production units, and combined assessment and/or training with those units may be appropriate.

CUETEM06B Organise and monitor bump in/bump out

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the skills and knowledge required to oversee the bump in/bump out process for one or more technical aspects of a production. It is very closely linked to the unit 'CUETEM01C Coordinate production operations' which has a particular focus on the organisation and transportation of physical production elements. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	Head technicians or stage management personnel would generally undertake this role. This unit has linkages with a range of other technical and general supervisory units. It is strongly recommended that this unit be assessed with or after the following unit: • CUETEM01C Coordinate production operations.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

1. Identify and organise physical element requirements	1.1. Correctly interpret production documentation to determine the scope and type of physical elements required 1.2. Complete accurate inventory checks to ensure required physical elements are available and ready for use 1.3. Identify the need for additional equipment or materials and order or organise these in accordance with organisational procedures and relevant budgetary guidelines
2. Make plans for movement of physical elements	2.1. Liaise with other production personnel to determine the most effective sequential order for the movement and installation of physical elements 2.2. Identify relevant transport requirements 2.3. Organise transport or communicate needs to appropriate personnel as required in accordance with organisational procedures

	2.4. Make realistic estimates of the numbers of people required for the movement of equipment and provide information to relevant colleagues 2.5. Clearly and accurately document plans for movement and installation of equipment in accordance with organisational procedures
3. Oversee the movement of physical elements	3.1. Provide clear instructions to appropriate personnel regarding the movement of physical elements to ensure safety and avoid damage to equipment 3.2. Monitor the bump in/bump out process to ensure that work is carried out in accordance with instructions 3.3. Organise appropriate storage and security of physical elements where required, including valuable items and any hazardous materials

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.
Required skills
• effective communication techniques in relation to team leading, including seeking feedback from team as part of ongoing evaluation of processes
Required knowledge
• in depth knowledge of the bump in/bump out process, including an overview of the requirements and issues faced by different technical areas • planning and organisational requirements for the bump in/bump out process, the roles of key personnel and the typical issues and problems encountered • inventory systems and procedures used for equipment and materials in an entertainment context • sources of additional equipment and supplies for one or more technical production areas • occupational health and safety requirements that affect the allocation of work and the movement of physical elements

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is critical to the judgement of competence in this unit: • ability to organise and coordinate the work of a team for bump in/bump out • detailed knowledge of the bump in/bump out process in a given industry context.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	The assessment context must provide for: • practical demonstration of skills through the coordination of a bump in/bump out process for multiple productions • involvement of and interaction with a team for whom the candidate can plan and organise work.
Method of assessment	Assessment may incorporate a range of methods to assess performance and the application of essential underpinning knowledge, and might include: • evaluation of a bump in/bump out process coordinated by the candidate • evaluation of reports prepared by the candidate detailing the methods used to organise a bump in/bump out, challenges faced and how these were resolved • case studies and problem solving exercises to assess ability to plan for different operational situations and contexts • oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of equipment procedures or safety issues • review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate.
Guidance information for assessment	Assessment of this unit requires access to: • a production venue • equipment and materials to be used during the bump in/bump out process.

RANGE STATEMENT
The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.
Physical elements include any equipment or materials used for a production, including:	• costumes • props • scenic art • sets • staging • support equipment, e.g. furniture, performer amenities • technical equipment
Production documentation may include:	• equipment lists • technical plans.
Other production personnel may include:	• production managers • stage managers • technical managers • other technical specialists
Transport requirements may relate to:	• road vehicles (organisation or hired) • other modes of transport
Transportation requirements may be needed to or from:	• outside facilities • rehearsal facilities • storage facilities • suppliers' facilities • workrooms • workshops

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.
Original works may include:	• artistic works, e.g. paintings, drawings, cartoons, sculpture, craft work, architectural plans, buildings, photographs, photographic imagery, maps, plans, special effects make-up • broadcasts, e.g. television, radio • cinematograph films, e.g. film, video, DVD • compilations, e.g. anthologies, directories, databases • computer programs • dramatic works, e.g. choreography, screenplays, plays, mime pieces, performances • musical works/performances • published editions • sound recordings/performances • textual material, e.g. journal articles, novels, screenplays, poems, song lyrics, reports.
Copyright issues may include:	• exploited reversion triggers • length of control period after expiration of term • non-exploited reversion triggers • ownership of materials • term of licence or assignment.
Exclusive rights may include:	• communicating the work to the public • importing the work into Australia • licensing and assigning the work • making an adaptation of the work • making the work public for the first time • performing/showing/transmitting the work in public • reproducing the work • synchronising the work • translating the work.

RANGE STATEMENT
Relevant parties may include:	• agents/artists' managers/industry managers • artists • employee associations/union representatives • industry/industry association representatives • legal representatives • licensers/publishers.
Licence may include:	• exclusive licence • implied licence • non-exclusive licence.
Creative control may include:	• right of approval of sub-licensing or assignments • selection of material • selection of producers • to what extent and how the work may be recast • ways in which the work is exploited.
Fees may include:	• advance recouped against royalty • outright fee or royalty, or a combination of both.
Documentation may include dated copies of:	• artwork • contracts • digital media products • footage • letters or other communications with people who have access to the original work • manuscripts • music, presented in any media or format • negatives/photographs/photographic imagery • recordings • scores (music/film).

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to prepare photo images for integration into an interactive media sequence or product. No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	This role may be assigned to a graphic artist or, in a larger project, to a photographer who works closely with a programmer or interactive media author to publish required images. The photography ranges from digital still composition to panoramas for the production of virtual worlds. Photo images can include landscapes, objects and portraits. Specialist skills associated with photography are covered in: • CUVPHI06A Plan and carry out image capture in response to a brief.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
Use scanner to capture photo images	1. Source and select appropriate photographic images according to requirements of photographic project brief 2. Discuss selection of images with relevant personnel 3. Assess scanner features to ensure that outcomes will meet the requirements of brief 4. Operate scanner according to manufacturer specifications 5. Select scanner settings to ensure image capture meets production requirements 6. Transfer and store photographic image files to a computer using standard naming conventions
Use digital camera to create photo images	7. Discuss photographic project brief with relevant personnel

	8. Assess digital camera features to ensure that outcomes will meet the requirements of brief 9. Plan camera shots taking into account lighting, framing, composition and other photographic techniques 10. Load and operate digital camera according to manufacturer specifications 11. Consider digital camera focus, exposure and shutter speed to ensure image capture meets production requirements 12. Check photographic images for fitness of purpose to comply with brief 13. Transfer and store photographic image files to a computer using standard naming conventions
Edit photo images	14. Load digital imaging software and import photo image source files 15. Manipulate and save digital images using designated digital imaging software 16. Create photo images that incorporate visual design and communication principles using designated digital imaging software 17. Evaluate the outcome for visual impact, effectiveness and fitness for purpose 18. Confirm outcome with relevant personnel
Prepare photo image assets	19. Save files in appropriate output format to meet platform requirements 20. Assign metadata tags if required 21. Group files logically in a folder system using standard naming conventions 22. Store files in share drive or repository for production team access

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.
Required skills
• communication skills sufficient to:

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
• interpret and clarify written or verbal instructions • consult equipment operation manuals • ability to work as a member of a production team - both independently on assignment and under direction • technical skills sufficient to: • proficiently use a scanner to reproduce photo images to specification • proficiently use a digital camera to create well-composed photo images • proficiently use digital imaging software to manipulate and prepare photo images • manage files using standard naming conventions • self-management skills sufficient to: • work under pressure • meet deadlines • seek expert assistance when problems arise • problem-solving skills sufficient to anticipate and resolve minor equipment set-up problems
Required knowledge
• basic photographic techniques • basic principles of visual design and communication • appropriate file formats for various platforms • industry knowledge, including: • roles and responsibilities of project team members, e.g. designers, content creators, information architects, programmers and coders • basic understanding of the relationship between technical and creative aspects and requirements of interactive media projects • basic knowledge of the features of a range of delivery platforms • OHS regarding the use of scanners, cameras and computers, and handling and disposing of lithium batteries

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The Evidence Guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

EVIDENCE GUIDE

Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure:
	• access to a range of resources and equipment currently used by industry, including:
	  • flatbed scanner
	  • digital camera
	  • industry-standard graphics software
	• access to appropriate learning and assessment support when required
	• use of culturally appropriate processes and techniques appropriate to the language and literacy capacity of learners and the work being performed.

Method of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct questioning combined with review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance • evaluation of photo images prepared by the candidate on a number of occasions • practical demonstration by the candidate of scanner and digital camera operation • written or oral questioning to test knowledge of file formats and OHS issues.
Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: • CUFDIG304A Create visual design components.

RANGE STATEMENT
The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.
Projects may include:	• e-commerce • educational product • game • information product • promotional product • training product • website.
Relevant personnel may include:	• client • designer • graphic artist • interactive media author • programmer, coder and technical support people • supervisor • web manager • other specialist creative and administrative staff.
Scanner features may include:	• bit depth • dynamic range • optical resolution • output format (e.g. RGB, greyscale or CMYK) • platen size • reflective or transmissive (film) • range of film holders.
Scanner settings may include:	• bit depth • colour or greyscale • colour/target/working space • crop • destination • dust and scratch handling (e.g. ICE, FARE) • grain management (e.g. GEM) • multi-sampling • orientation • output dimension and resolution or file size

	• preferences/options • restoration of colour (e.g. ROC) • scaling • sharpening • source image type • tones, contrast, colour cast, saturation.
Digital camera features may include:	• aperture • automatic, program or manual settings • batteries • colour, target, working space • compatibility with hardware and digital imaging software • exposure compensation • file format • flash, fill flash • lens focal lengths, such as wide angle, close-up and telephoto • menu functions • resolution - megapixels • shutter speed • size and type of memory card(s) • subject modes • white balance.
Photographic techniques may include:	• composition • depth of field • dynamic range • field of view • framing • lighting.

Digital imaging software may include:	• a wide range of programs, e.g.:
	  • Adobe Photoshop
	  • Adobe Photoshop Elements
	  • Adobe Photoshop Lightroom
	  • Apple Aperture
	  • Corel Paint Shop Pro
	  • Corel PhotoPaint
	  • GNU Image Manipulation Program (GIMP and GIMPshop).

include:	• brushing • creating artistic effects • cropping • editing • eliminating red eye • emulating photographic effects • image enhancement including tones, contrast, colour cast/tint, saturation • masking layers • retouching (i.e. cloning, rubber stamping, healing, patching) • sharpening • stitching (panoramic scenes) • using layers for composites • using pre-sets.
Visual design principles may include:	• balance • emphasis • movement • perspective • proportion • scale • unity.
Communication principles may include:	• communicates message • conveys meaning • meets audience requirements • uses functional components.
Output formats may include:	• GIF • JPEG • PDF • PICT • PNG • PSD • TIFF.
Platforms may include:	• CD • DVD • games console • internet • kiosk • mobile phone • other video playback devices

Evidence Guide

Underpinning skills and knowledge

Assessment must include evidence of essential knowledge of, and skills in:

basic principles of photography and visual design knowledge of selected digital image software ability to interpret a brief knowledge of the limiting factors of computer hardware knowledge of computers and computer operating systems interpreting simple scripts (texts), specifications and instructions interpreting and communicating production specifications

Linkages to other units

This unit has linkages to the following units and combined training delivery and/or assessment is recommended:

CUFMEM07A - Apply principles of visual design/communication to the development of a multimedia project

CUFMEM10A - Design and create a multimedia interface

Critical aspects of evidence

This unit of competence applies to a range of industry sectors. The focus of assessment will depend on the industry sector. Assessment must be customised to meet the needs of the particular sector in which performance is being assessed. Assessment should only address those variable circumstances, listed in the range of variables statements, which apply to the chosen context.

The following evidence is critical to the judgement of competence in this unit:

ability to assess the capacity to upload and process digital image s using industry hardware and software, to deliver a designated quality of image outcome

Method and context of assessment

Assessment may take place on the job, off the job or a combination of both of theses.

Off the job assessment must be undertaken in a closely simulated workplace environment.

Assessment may incorporate a range of methods to assess performance and the application of essential underpinning knowledge, and might include:

practical demonstration (direct observation may need to occur on more than one occasion to establish consistency of performance)

role play

work samples or simulated workplace activities

oral questioning/interview aimed at the evaluating the process used in developing and realising the creative concept projects/reports/logbooks

third party reports and authenticated prior achievements

CUFPOP03B Compile a production schedule

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the skills and knowledge required to plan and compile a production schedule that identifies all required resources and timelines for the completion of all stages and components of a production/event within the cultural industries. This is a significant aspect of planning for pre-production events, actual production/event/performance activities and any post production work. Senior production personnel such as the production or event manager would generally undertake this activity.

Elements and Performance Criteria

Elements and Performance Criteria

Element	Performance Criteria
1 Analyse and confirm resource schedule	1.1 Analyse and correctly interpret the resource schedule to confirm the resources required for each stage in the production process.
	1.2 Consult with all departments involved in the production to clarify and confirm their requirements.
	1.3 Confirm accuracy and feasibility of resource schedule against overall production requirements.
	1.4 Conduct discussions with colleagues in a manner which promotes positive working relationships.
	1.5 Identify non-resource issues that may impact on the production schedule and collate and compile relevant information.
2 Compile the production schedule	2.1 Create an appropriate production timeline, ensuring the schedule identifies clearly and accurately the major responsibilities, stages, tasks and target dates required to deliver the production within budget and to deadline.
	2.2 Ensure the schedule clearly and realistically allocates the resources required.
	2.3 Identify and accommodate factors affecting the timing and sequence of tasks within the schedule.
	2.4 Allocate time to each stage of the production that is realistic and sufficient to enable the objectives to be met.
	2.5 Ensure the time allocated enables the efficient use of resources.
	2.6 Identify potential factors which may cause delays to production and develop contingency plans to accommodate potential delays.
3 Agree to and distribute the production schedule	3.1 Ensure the schedule is accurate, comprehensive and presented clearly.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

3.2 Distribute schedule promptly to all relevant personnel.

3.3 Allow adequate opportunities for relevant personnel to ask questions and seek clarification.

3.4 Resolve difficulties and/or ambiguities in the understanding or implementation of the schedule as required.

3.5 Communicate any changes to the schedule promptly to all relevant personnel.

3.6 Develop and maintain an appropriate and clear recording system for all information relating to the production schedule which will facilitate access by others.

Not applicable.

Evidence Guide

Underpinning skills and knowledge

Assessment must include evidence of the following knowledge and skills:

formats and features of resource schedules and other production documentation in depth understanding of all artistic and technical elements of the production/event such as staging, lighting, and sound elements, sufficient to be able to schedule all aspects commonly used techniques for creating a production schedule, including underpinning scheduling principles and software options ability to prepare relevant documentation and production information, including different ways of presenting schedules effective communication, negotiation and problem solving techniques particularly in relation to production scheduling and the issues which arise relevant Occupational Health and Safety legislation and regulation as it applies to all scheduling of production elements and personnel provisions of relevant industrial awards as they apply to the scheduling of production personnel.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

This unit has linkages to the range of production planning and operations units found in the Entertainment and Film, TV Radio and Multimedia Training Packages. Combined training delivery and/or assessment is recommended. Particular linkages may include:

CUFPOP02B - Determine resource requirements for total production

CUFPOP05B - Book and coordinate production resources

CUEPMT11A - Manage the production process

Critical aspects of evidence

The following evidence is critical to the judgement of competence in this unit:

effective use of scheduling tools and techniques to create an accurate and practical production schedule that takes account of all relevant issues effective communication, negotiation and problem solving skills.

Method and context of assessment

The assessment context must provide for:

development of more than one production schedule (for an actual production) to ensure that skills can be adapted to different circumstances development of a production schedule within commercially-realistic time constraints involvement of and interaction with others to reflect the collaborative nature of the scheduling process.

Assessment may incorporate a range of methods to assess practical skills and the application of essential underpinning knowledge, and might include:

review of production schedules prepared by the candidate project activity to allow the candidate to create production schedules for a range of different productions evaluation of the operation/preparation of a production where the candidate is responsible for production scheduling written or oral questioning to test knowledge of the production elements, industrial awards and Occupational Health and Safety requirements

review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the job performance by the candidate.

Assessment methods should closely reflect workplace demands and the needs of particular groups (e.g. people with disabilities, and people who may have literacy or numeracy difficulties such as speakers of languages other than English, remote communities and those with interrupted schooling).

Resource requirements

Elements and Performance Criteria

Elements and Performance Criteria

Element	Performance Criteria
1 Plan approach to stakeholder consultation	1.1 Review and assess current and potential stakeholders to determine needs, interests, priorities and relevant trends
	1.2 Identify key stakeholders, their representatives and means to establish and maintain links
	1.3 Make provision for current relevant information on stakeholders to be gathered and maintained
	1.4 Ensure plans to establish and maintain stakeholder links reflect awareness of relevant internal and external factors
	1.5 Take account of cultural considerations in planning stakeholder consultations
2 Establish and maintain stakeholder relationships	2.1 Use a range of formal and informal strategies to facilitate links between stakeholder(s) and the organisation
	2.2 Identify and assess strategies for formal links between the organisation and key stakeholder(s), and implement selected mechanisms
	2.3 Monitor and evaluate mechanisms and take appropriate action to continuously improve them
	2.4 Determine the purpose and parameters of specific consultations and inform participants clearly
	2.5 Ensure information from stakeholder consultations is integrated into organisational planning and made available to relevant colleagues in a timely way
	2.6 Ensure communication with stakeholder(s) takes into account the nature of the group(s) and prior and potential relationships
3 Develop stakeholder networks	3.1 Identify, establish and use formal and informal networks as a communication channel
	3.2 Share expertise, information and resources with networks when appropriate to strengthen links

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

4 Represent the organisation to the community	4.1 Communicate the organisation's role accurately and confidently in a way which the audience understands and which maintains stakeholder awareness
	4.2 Promote the organisation consistently to external bodies which affect its role, funding and operations
	4.3 Identify and use opportunities for promotion constructively

Evidence Guide

The Evidence Guide describes the underpinning knowledge and skills that must be demonstrated to prove competence. It is essential for assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines of the relevant Training Package.

Critical aspects of evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

The following evidence is critical to the judgement of competence in this unit:

ability to develop appropriate relationships and networks to meet the needs of a specific workplace context well-developed communication skills to facilitate effective consultation with a broad range of stakeholders

Context of assessment and consistency of performance

The assessment context must provide for:

practical demonstration of skills through the development of relationships and networks to address specific workplace needs involvement of and interaction with others to reflect the consultation and communication aspects of this unit project or work activities conducted over a period of time to reflect the ongoing monitoring and implementation aspects of this unit

Relationships to other units

This unit has linkages to a range of other general management and technical units, and combined assessment and/or training with those units may be appropriate, for example:

CULLB508B - Monitor and enhance information access

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

BSBFLM507B - Manage quality customer service

BSBFLM509B - Promote continuous improvement

Method of assessment

Assessment may incorporate a range of methods to assess performance and the application of essential underpinning knowledge, and might include:

evaluation of consultation programs developed and implemented by the candidate review of consultation documentation prepared by the candidate case studies to assess ability to develop links and networks for different workplace contexts

review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate

Assessment methods should closely reflect workplace demands and the needs of particular groups [e.g. people with disabilities, and people who may have literacy or numeracy difficulties such as speakers of languages other than English, remote communities and those with interrupted schooling].

Essential skills and knowledge

Assessment must include evidence of essential knowledge of, and skills in, the following areas:

role and nature of promotion, advocacy and networks in the relevant work context nature and range of stakeholder groups, including special needs and potential cultural considerations features, costs and benefits of different consultation mechanisms networking techniques and strategies planning and organisational techniques for community consultations legal issues which might impact on community consultation, including relevant health and safety requirements literacy skills sufficient to interpret and develop complex documents communication skills sufficient to conduct formal and informal consultations

Specific resource requirements

Assessment of this unit requires access to:

strategic plans and relevant policies and procedures manuals resources to implement consultation processes

Generic employability skills

The seven key competencies represent generic skills considered for effective work participation. The bracketed numbering against each of the key competencies indicates the performance level required in this unit.

Level (1) represents the competence to undertake tasks effectively

Level (2) represents the competence to manage tasks

Range Statement

The Range Statement relates to the Unit of Competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that will affect performance.

The following variables may be present with training and assessment depending on the work situation, needs of the trainee, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts. If bold italicised text is shown in Performance Criteria, details of the text are provided in the Range Statement.

Current and potential stakeholders may include:

other organisations

particular cultural or ethnic groups

academics, teachers and students or their representative bodies stakeholders with special needs stakeholders in remote areas

small or large businesses

staff in the broader organisation affiliated and special interest groups, e.g. clubs, societies, friends' organisations, or other community and/or cultural organisations

the general community

Internal and external factors that affect planning may relate to:

current organisational objectives

resource constraints

political and social issues in the community market trends

technological developments

Relationships may be ongoing or used for a specific purpose and may include:

obtaining regular stakeholder feedback surveying stakeholder views on particular issues and services to assist development of new services or facilities requests for financial support market research

inclusion in public activities

exhibitions and outreach programs

involvement in the development of appropriate exhibitions, public programs and special events

Consultations may include:

formal consultative bodies

informal communication and feedback

regular liaison activities newsletters or other regular or specific information provision surveys

external committees, working parties or taskforces

Unit Descriptor

This unit describes the skills and knowledge required to undertake the complete exhibition design process, from initial conception of ideas to the final realisation of the design. As such the unit brings together the wide range of creative, technical and business skills required by an exhibition designer. The unit therefore has strong links to a wide range of other units, and assessment with or after those units is strongly recommended. This unit is focused on physical exhibition design.

Elements and Performance Criteria

Element	Performance Criteria
1 Interpret the brief	1.1 Analyse the brief to determine overall exhibition concepts
	1.2 Participate in preliminary concept meetings with relevant personnel to discuss exhibition requirements
	1.3 Identify all relevant factors which may determine and affect the design
	1.4 Discuss and agree upon the role of the designer in the overall exhibition development
2 Conduct and evaluate research	2.1 Assess the material to be exhibited in relation to the development of the design
	2.2 Identify and source references which may inform the design process
	2.3 Critically analyse sources and references in the context of the current design project
	2.4 Consider the impacts and potential of new and emerging technologies to inform the design
	2.5 Collect, collate and adapt materials to develop initial design concepts
3 Generate and assess ideas	3.1 Generate a range of ideas for the design which respond sympathetically to the brief and provide creative solutions to technical issues
	3.2 Discuss ideas and collaborate with relevant personnel to ensure contribution of ideas to the initial concept
	3.3 Continuously reflect on and appraise ideas for implications on cost and time, technical feasibility, and suitability to meet the brief
4 Develop and document the design	4.1 Hold ongoing discussions with relevant personnel so that additional or changed requirements and new ideas are considered and incorporated during the development of the design

		4.2 Ensure that agreement is reached with relevant personnel in relation to consistent artistic interpretation
		4.3 Evaluate initial concepts and select the most appropriate approach, giving consideration to budget, research findings and ongoing reflection/discussion
		4.4 Develop the exhibition designs from the initial concepts ensuring: , consistency with the exhibition concept , that collection needs are taken into account , that research findings are incorporated , that ideas are technically feasible and demonstrate awareness of parameters and resource constraints , that ideas demonstrate effective use of materials , integration of universal access principles
		4.5 Organise or undertake testing and experimentation with selected exhibition design
		4.6 Develop an accurate record of the design, including all relevant information
5	Communicate design ideas and make amendments	5.1 Present draft exhibition plans and specifications to relevant colleagues in an appropriate format
		5.2 Participate in the initial and ongoing evaluation of the presented designs
		5.3 Negotiate and agree to modifications to the design and undertake any necessary amendments
		5.4 Agree to the final designs and produce accurate and comprehensive documentation to support implementation
		5.5 Present final designs, plans and specifications to all relevant personnel and confirm that all production requirements have been met
6	Liaise with others to implement exhibition construction	6.1 Liaise with relevant personnel to ensure that all exhibition production requirements are met, quality standards are adhered to and work is undertaken within item, budget and technical constraints
		6.2 Participate in ongoing production meetings and evaluation of the exhibition design

Evidence Guide

The Evidence Guide describes the underpinning knowledge and skills that must be demonstrated to prove competence. It is essential for assessment and must be read in conjunction with the Performance Criteria, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines of the relevant Training Package.

Critical aspects of evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

The following evidence is critical to the judgement of competence in this unit:

the development and realisation of creative exhibition design concepts which assist in the realisation of the overall exhibition concept and which address operational requirements and constraints effective communication, negotiation and project management skills to facilitate the design process research skills, including creative interpretation and adaptation of design concepts

Context of assessment and consistency of performance

The assessment context must ensure:

practical demonstration of skills through the development and implementation of a minimum of two exhibition designs assessment over an extended period of time to reflect the nature of the design process and to assess the experimental and implementation aspects of this unit involvement of and interaction with an exhibition team to reflect the collaborative nature of the design process

Relationships to other units

This unit brings together a range of technical, creative and organisational skills. It is therefore strongly recommended that this unit be assessed with or after the following units:

CUSGEN05B - Make presentations

CUEDES04A - Establish and refine a brief

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

CUEDES05A - Manage design realisation

CUEFIN01B - Develop a budget

CUEFIN02B - Manage a budget

CUVCOR09A - Select and apply drawing techniques and media to represent and communicate the concept

CUVDSP15A - Research and apply techniques for application to spatial design

This unit has very strong linkages to other general design and exhibition units and combined assessment and/or training with those units may also be appropriate.

Method of assessment

Assessment may incorporate a range of methods to assess performance and the application of essential underpinning knowledge, and might include:

evaluation of an exhibition design for which the candidate has been responsible in terms of meeting concept and resource practicality evaluation of reports produced by the candidate which demonstrate the processes used in developing and realising the creative concept oral or written questioning aimed at evaluating the processes used in developing and realising the creative concept

review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate

Assessment methods should closely reflect workplace demands and the needs of particular groups [e.g. people with disabilities, and people who may have literacy or numeracy difficulties such as speakers of languages other than English, remote communities and those with interrupted schooling].

Essential skills and knowledge

Assessment must include evidence of the following knowledge and skills:

role of exhibition design within the overall exhibition development process

the exhibition scheduling process and its interrelationship with the design process role of the exhibition designer, how this may differ depending upon the exhibition, and relationships with other designers and personnel relationship between different design elements

copyright, moral rights and intellectual property legislation in relation to exhibition design cultural protocols to be observed in the design process, including those relevant to the exhibition of ATSI material ethical standards and protocols for designers working in the museum industry including, principles of universal access the formal principles and elements of design and their relevance to exhibition design research skills in relation to exhibition design, including creative interpretation and adaptation

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

sources and availability of materials and equipment used for exhibition design and construction appropriate materials to use with different collection items and impact of those materials costing and budgeting techniques for exhibition design communication, negotiation, presentation and project management techniques as they apply to the design process documentation formats used for exhibition design

current and emerging technologies available to the exhibition designer construction methods/implementation issues associated with the realisation of exhibition designs

the behaviour of various materials, finishes, painting techniques and colours under lighting overall use of artificial lighting in exhibitions knowledge of the properties, applications and durability of different types of materials that can be used for exhibition construction

Specific resource requirements

Assessment of this unit requires access to:

exhibition venue

resources for both the development and realisation of designs (collection items, equipment, materials, financial and human resources)

Evidence Guide

The Evidence Guide describes the underpinning knowledge and skills that must be demonstrated to prove competence. It is essential for assessment and must be read in conjunction with the Performance Criteria, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines of the relevant Training Package.

Critical aspects of evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

The following evidence is critical to the judgement of competence in this unit:

• effective use of planning and organisational skills in an event touring context

. knowledge of the particular issues, requirements and documentation that impact on a touring event in a particular work context

Context of assessment and consistency of performance

The assessment context must provide for:

• practical demonstration of skills through the planning of touring arrangements for an event

Relationships to other units

This unit has strong linkages to other specialist units across a range of areas, and combined assessment and/or training with those units is highly recommended, eg:

• Collection Management units

• Event Management units

• Exhibition Development and Management Units

Method of assessment

Assessment may incorporate a range of methods to assess performance and the application of essential underpinning knowledge, and might include:

• evaluation of a report prepared by the candidate on the planning process

• evaluation of touring arrangements, documentation and agreements prepared or made by the candidate

• case studies to assess ability to plan arrangements for a variety of touring situations

• oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of particular regulations or procedures that apply to event touring in a specific work context

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

• review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate

Assessment methods should closely reflect workplace demands and the needs of particular groups [eg people with disabilities, and people who may have literacy or numeracy difficulties such as speakers of languages other than English, remote communities and those with interrupted schooling].

Essential skills and knowledge

Assessment must include evidence of the following knowledge and skills:

• the touring process, key roles and responsibilities, and special issues that apply to touring an event in the relevant work context

• technical/specialist knowledge that underpins the event in the relevant work context, eg collection management or exhibition development for travelling exhibitions

• the type of event variations/adjustments that may need to be made for touring

• legislative requirements that impact on touring arrangements in the relevant work context, including occupational health and safety requirements

• features, formats and purposes of the range of documentation required for a touring event in the relevant work context

• planning and organisational skills in the context of touring an event

• literacy skills sufficient to interpret and create a wide range of organisational documentation

Specific resource requirements

Assessment of this unit requires access to:

• an event for which planning can be undertaken

Range Statement

The Range Statement relates to the Unit of Competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that will affect performance.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

The following variables may be present with training and assessment depending on the work situation, needs of the trainee, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts. If bold italicised text is shown in Performance Criteria, details of the text are provided in the Range Statement.

A touring event is defined as one where the same event is staged at multiple locations. Within this unit events are defined very broadly and may include:

• exhibitions

• promotional events

• seminars or conferences

• cultural productions

• sporting events

Events may be toured:

• in regional areas

• intrastate

• interstate

• overseas

Relevant information to inform tour planning may include:

• existing tour schedule

• touring objectives

• available budget

• venue/site layout and dimensions

• technical specifications, eg power capacity

• access information (hours, truck access, parking, traffic)

• amenities and facilities

• transport options/limitations

• special needs of materials, eg special transport or packing requirements

Specific touring needs will vary according to the area of work and may include:

• transport (air, sea, land)

• travel and accommodation (for travelling personnel, cast etc)

• additional equipment

• personnel requirements

• adaptation of physical items (displays,

• adaptation of information materials (interpretive materials, audience handouts, electronic presentations)

• promotional activities
• publicity arrangements (interviews, publicity with local media)
• special financial arrangements (petty cash, banking arrangements)
• liaison with host organisations/venues
• need for specialist advice or assistance

Relevant colleagues and stakeholders may include:

• host organisations
• host venues
• colleagues
• funding agencies
• artists
• lenders
• performers
• speakers /contributors/other talent
• exhibitors
• promotional partners
• caterers
• technical experts
• local communities
• local authorities (councils, emergency services etc)

Evidence Guide

The Evidence Guide describes the underpinning knowledge and skills that must be demonstrated to prove competence. It is essential for assessment and must be read in conjunction with the Performance Criteria, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines of the relevant Training Package.

Critical aspects of evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

The following evidence is critical to the judgement of competence in this unit:

accurate completion of records using established procedures knowledge of sources to access information on cultural material ability to interpret and distill information for record keeping purposes knowledge of common collection record keeping formats and protocols

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Context of assessment and consistency of performance

The assessment context must provide for:

practical demonstration of skills using industry-current recording systems for a range of cultural material presence of time constraints to reflect realistic workplace practice

Relationships to other units

It is highly recommended that this unit be assessed with or after an information technology unit such as:

BSBCMN205A - Use business technology

This unit also has linkages to a range of other general and museum-specific units, and combined assessment and/or training with those units may be appropriate.

Method of assessment

Assessment may incorporate a range of methods to assess performance and the application of essential underpinning knowledge, and might include:

review of records completed by the candidate

oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of procedures, handling requirements or information sources

review of portfolios of evidence and third party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate

Assessment methods should closely reflect workplace demands and the needs of particular groups [e.g. people with disabilities, and people who may have literacy or numeracy difficulties such as speakers of languages other than English, remote communities and those with interrupted schooling].

Essential skills and knowledge

Assessment must include evidence of the following knowledge and skills:

information sources relevant to the collection handling procedures and identification techniques for cultural material in the relevant work context sources of curatorial and conservation advice in the relevant work context typical policies and procedures for collection record keeping the principles of access and accountability in collection record keeping ethical and cultural issues that impact on collection record keeping, including those for Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander material copyright, moral rights and intellectual property issues and legislation that impact on collection record keeping literacy skills sufficient to interpret reference sources and documentation relating to specific objects and the collection numeracy skills sufficient to work with numerical record keeping systems

Specific resource requirements

Assessment of this unit requires access to:

relevant policies and procedures manuals collection items to be recorded

Generic employability skills

The seven Key Competencies represent generic skills considered for effective work participation. The bracketed numbering against each of the Key Competencies indicates the performance level required in this unit.

Level (1) represents the competence to undertake tasks effectively

Level (2) represents the competence to manage tasks

Level (3) represents the competence to use concepts for evaluating and reshaping tasks.

HLTFA301B Apply first aid

Modification History

Unit Descriptor

This unit of competency describes the skills and knowledge required to provide first aid response, life support, management of casualty(s), the incident and other first aiders, until the arrival of medical or other assistance

Application of the Unit

These skills and knowledge may be applied in a range of situations, including community and workplace settings

Training Package users should ensure implementation is consistent with any specific workplace and/or relevant legislative requirements in relation to first aid, including State/Territory requirements for currency

Application of these skills and knowledge should be contextualised as required to address specific industry, enterprise or workplace requirements and to address specific risks and hazards and associated injuries

A current Senior First Aid, Workplace Level 2 or Level 2 qualification may provide evidence of skills and knowledge required by this competency unit. However, as with all evidence of competence, evidence must be assessed against the requirements specified in the competency unit

Licensing/Regulatory Information

Employability Skills Information

The required outcomes described in this unit of competency contain applicable facets of Employability Skills

The Employability Skills Summary of the qualification in which this unit of competency is packaged will assist in identifying Employability Skill requirements

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements define the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.

The Performance Criteria specify the level of performance required to demonstrate achievement of the Element. Terms in italics are elaborated in the Range Statement.

Elements and Performance Criteria

Element	Performance Criteria
1 Assess the situation	1.1 Identify assess and minimise hazards in the situation that may pose a risk of injury or illness to self and others
	1.2 Minimise immediate risk to self and casualty's health and safety by controlling any hazard in accordance with occupational health and safety requirements
	1.3 Assess casualty and identify injuries, illnesses and conditions
2 Apply first aid procedures	2.1 Calmly provide information to reassure casualty, adopting a communication style to match the casualty's level of consciousness
	2.2 Use available resources and equipment to make the casualty as comfortable as possible
	2.3 Respond to the casualty in a culturally aware, sensitive and respectful manner
	2.4 Determine and explain the nature of casualty's injury/condition and relevant first aid procedures to provide comfort
	2.5 Seek consent from casualty prior to applying first aid management
	2.6 Provide first aid management in accordance with established first aid principles and Australian Resuscitation Council (ARC) Guidelines and/or State/Territory regulations, legislation and policies and industry requirements
	2.7 Seek first aid assistance from others in a timely manner and as appropriate
	2.8 Correctly operate first aid equipment as required for first aid management according to manufacturer/supplier's instructions and local policies and/or procedures

		2.9	Use safe manual handling techniques as required
		2.10	Monitor casualty's condition and respond in accordance with effective first aid principles and procedures
		2.11	Finalise casualty management according to casualty's needs and first aid principles
3	Communicate details of the incident	3.1	Request ambulance support and/or appropriate medical assistance according to relevant circumstances using relevant communication media and equipment
		3.2	Accurately convey assessment of casualty's condition and management activities to ambulance services /other emergency services/relieving personnel
		3.3	Prepare reports as appropriate in a timely manner, presenting all relevant facts according to established procedures
		3.4	Accurately record details of casualty's physical condition, changes in conditions, management and response to management in line with established procedures
		3.5	Maintain confidentiality of records and information in line with privacy principles and statutory and/or organisation policies
4	Evaluate own performance	4.1	Seek feedback from appropriate clinical expert
		4.2	Recognise the possible psychological impacts on rescuers of involvement in critical incidents
		4.3	Participate in debriefing/evaluation as appropriate to improve future response and address individual needs

Required Skills and Knowledge

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

This describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level required for this unit.

Essential knowledge:

ARC Guidelines relating to provision of first aid as outlined

Working knowledge of:

basic principles and concepts underlying the practice of first aid procedures for dealing with major and minor injury and illness priorities of management in first aid when dealing with life threatening conditions basic occupational health and safety requirements in the provision of first aid infection control principles and procedures, including use of standard precautions

chain of survival

first Aiders' skills and limitations

Understanding of the use of an Automated External Defibrillator (AED), including when to use and when not to

First aid management of:

abdominal injuries

allergic reactions

altered and loss of consciousness bleeding

burns - thermal, chemical, friction, electrical cardiac arrest

casualty with no signs of life

chest pain

choking/airway obstruction

injuries: cold and crush injuries; eye and ear injuries; head, neck and spinal injuries; minor skin injuries; needle stick injuries; soft tissue injuries including sprains, strains, dislocations

envenomation - snake, spider, insect and marine bites environmental impact such as hypothermia, hyperthermia, dehydration, heat stroke fractures

medical conditions, including cardiac conditions, epilepsy, diabetes, asthma and other respiratory conditions near drowning

poisoning and toxic substances (including chemical contamination)

respiratory distress

seizures

shock

stroke

substance misuse - common drugs and alcohol, including illicit drugs

Awareness of stress management techniques and available support

Social/legal issues:

duty of care

need to be culturally aware, sensitive and respectful importance of debriefing

confidentiality

own skills and limitations

Essential skills:

Ability to:

Conduct an initial casualty assessment

Plan an appropriate first aid response in line with established first aid principles, policies and procedures, ARC Guidelines and/or State/Territory regulations, legislation and policies and industry requirements and respond appropriately to contingencies in line with own skills

Demonstrate correct procedures for performing CPR using a manikin, including standard precautions (i.e. as per unit HLTCPR201A Perform CPR)

Apply first aid principles

Infection control, including use of standard precautions

Follow OH&S guidelines

Demonstrate:

safe manual handling

consideration of the welfare of the casualty ability to call an ambulance

site management to prevent further injury

Provide assistance with self-medication as per subject's own medication regime and in line with State/Territory legislation, regulations and policies and any available

medical/pharmaceutical instructions

Administer medication in line with state/territory regulations, legislation and policies

Prepare a written incident report or provide information to enable preparation of an incident report

Communicate effectively and assertively in an incident

Make prompt and appropriate decisions relating to managing an incident in the workplace

Call an ambulance and/or medical assistance according to relevant circumstances and report casualty's condition

Use literacy and numeracy skills as required to read, interpret and apply guidelines and protocols

Evaluate own response and identify appropriate improvements where required

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the Performance Criteria, Required Skills and Knowledge, the Range Statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package. The evidence guide supplements assessment requirements that apply to all units in this Training Package. Users of this evidence guide should first read the package's assessment guidelines.

Critical aspects of assessment:	Assessment must include demonstrated evidence of specified Essential Knowledge and Essential Skills identified in this competency unit Competence should be demonstrated working individually and, where appropriate, as part of a first aid team Consistency of performance should be demonstrated over the required range of situations relevant to the workplace or community setting Currency of first aid knowledge and skills is to be demonstrated in line with State/Territory regulations, legislation and policies, ARC and industry guidelines
Context and resources required for	Skills in performing first aid procedures are to be assessed through demonstration, with

assessment:	questioning to confirm essential knowledge For assessment purposes, demonstration of skills in CPR procedures requires using a model of the human body (resuscitation manikin) in line with Australian Resuscitation Council Guidelines
Access and equity considerations:	All workers in the health industry should be aware of access and equity issues in relation to their own area of work All workers should develop their ability to work in a culturally diverse environment In recognition of particular health issues facing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, workers should be aware of cultural, historical and current issues impacting on health of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people Assessors and trainers must take into account relevant access and equity issues, in particular relating to factors impacting on health of Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander clients and communities

RANGE STATEMENT

The Range Statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Add any essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts.

Contextualisation to address specific requirements may include:	Focus on first aid management of specific types of injury First aid provision under specific constraints or circumstances (e.g. in confined spaces, in maritime work environment or in work environment involving identified risks/hazards)

Established first aid principles include:	Preserve life Prevent illness, injury and condition(s) becoming worse Promote recovery Protect the unconscious casualty
Vital signs include:	Consciousness Breathing Circulation
A hazard is:	A source or situation with the potential for harm in terms of human injury or ill-health, damage to property, the environment, or a combination of these
Hazards may include:	Physical hazards Biological hazards Chemical hazards Hazards associated with manual handling
Risks may include:	Risks from equipment, machinery and substances Risks from first aid equipment Environmental risks Exposure to blood and other body substances Risk of further injury to the casualty Risks associated with the proximity of other workers and bystanders

		1.2 Assess casualty's condition and determine appropriate response in order to minimise hazards and determine need for medical assistance
		1.3 Evaluate options for transporting casualty or waiting for medical assistance in relation to environmental issues, transport availability and casualty's condition
2	Provide first aid in a remote situation	2.1 Determine and explain the nature of casualty's injury/condition and relevant first aid procedures to provide comfort
		2.2 Seek consent from casualty prior to applying first aid management
		2.3 Provide first aid response to address casualty's condition and in accordance with effective first aid principles
		2.4 Respond to the casualty in a culturally aware, sensitive and respectful manner
		2.5 Monitor casualty's condition and undertake ongoing first aid procedures as required
		2.6 Calmly provide information to reassure casualty during the wait for medical assistance, adopting a communication style to match the casualty's level of consciousness
		2.7 Provide shelter from elements in accordance with environmental conditions
		2.8 Document condition of casualty over time to assist in on-going management
3	Work in conjunction with medical and emergency services support	3.1 Establish communication links to medical services, using relevant communication equipment to ensure prompt control action is undertaken
		3.2 Request ambulance support or appropriate medical assistance according to relevant circumstances

		4.2 Participate in debriefing/evaluation in order to improve future operations and address individual's needs
		4.3 Formulate and review contingency planning to identify and select improved or alternative management principles and procedures as required

Required Skills and Knowledge

This describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level required for this unit.

Essential knowledge:

Working knowledge of communication systems, equipment and methods as available in the remote situation

Understanding of OHS principles

Infection control principles and procedures, including use of standard precautions

Principles of identifying and preparing area for safe evacuation (including aero-medical evacuation)

Principles for evaluating management options relating to transporting casualty and/or waiting for assistance

Principles of preparing for providing first aid in an area remote from ready assistance, including identifying and preparing supplies to address contingencies specific to different types of situation

Awareness of stress management techniques and available support

Essential skills:

Ability to:

Conduct an initial casualty assessment in a remote situation

Plan an appropriate first aid response in line with established first aid principles, policies and procedures, ARC Guidelines and/or state/territory regulations, legislation and policies and industry requirements and respond appropriately to contingencies in line with own level of skills and knowledge

Use available communication methods and equipment to access medical assistance

Evaluate available options for transporting or maintaining condition of casualty

Transport casualty safely using available methods

Use available resources effectively to manage pain

Administer medication under direct instruction from an authorised health worker and in accordance with State/Territory regulations, legislation and policies

Demonstrate:

safe manual handling

adequate infection control procedures, including standard precautions identification and preparation of area for safe evacuation (including aero-medical evacuation)

Improvise treatment and associated resources

Undertake contingency planning in relation to providing a first aid response in a remote situation

Interpret and use listed documents

Communicate effectively and assertively and show leadership in an incident

Accurately listen to, clarify and apply medical instructions

Use literacy and numeracy skills as required to read, interpret and apply guidelines and protocols

Make prompt and appropriate decisions relating to managing an incident in a remote situation

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Context of and specific resources for assessment	The breadth, depth and complexity of knowledge and skills in this competency would prepare a person to perform a defined range of activities many of which may be routine and predictable. Assessment must ensure: • Applications may include a variety of employment related skills including preparatory access and participation skills, broad-based induction skills and/or specific workplace skills. They may also include participation in a team or work group.
Method of assessment	The purpose of this unit is to define the standard of performance to be achieved in the workplace. In undertaking training and assessment activities related to this unit, consideration should be given to the implementation of appropriate diversity and accessibility practices in order to accommodate people who may have special needs. Additional guidance on these and related matters is provided in ICA05 Section 1. • Competency in this unit should be assessed using summative assessment to ensure consistency of performance in a range of contexts. This unit can be assessed either in the workplace or in a simulated environment. However, simulated activities must closely reflect the workplace to enable full demonstration of competency. • Assessment will usually include observation of real or simulated work processes and procedures and/or performance in a project context as well as questioning on underpinning knowledge and skills. The questioning of team members, supervisors, subordinates, peers and clients where appropriate may provide valuable input to the assessment process. The interdependence of units for assessment purposes may vary with the particular project or scenario.

Guidance information for assessment	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: • ICAT1206B Check site security • ICAU1128B Operate a personal computer • ICAU1133C Send and retrieve information using web browsers and email • ICAU1204C Locate and use relevant on-line information • ICAU1213C Conduct on-line transactions An individual demonstrating this competency would be able to: • Demonstrate knowledge by recall in a narrow range of areas • Demonstrate basic practical skills, such as the use of relevant tools • Perform a sequence of routine tasks given clear direction • Receive and pass on messages and information • Maintain knowledge of industry products and services

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.

Required skills

- Communication skills in relation to presentation of information
- Basic diagnostic skills in relation to system integrity
- Questioning and active listening for clarifying instructions
- Basic analytical skills in relation to system integrity
- Problem solving skills for a defined range of predictable problems
- Problem solving in regard to known problems in routine procedures
- Research skills for identifying broad features of current viruses and best practice in virus protection

Required knowledge

- Software copyright and General Public Licence (GPL)/copyright responsibilities
- Broad knowledge of system performance
- Broad knowledge of maintenance procedures
- Broad knowledge of inventory procedures
- Restore procedures
- Broad knowledge of storage and retrieval guidelines
- Current industry-accepted hardware and software products, with broad knowledge of general features and capabilities and detailed knowledge in some areas

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
• Broad knowledge of diagnostic tools • Broad knowledge of current viruses and protection methods

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Context of and specific resources for assessment	The breadth, depth and complexity of knowledge and skills in this competency would prepare a person to perform in a range of varied activities or knowledge applications where there is a clearly defined range of contexts in which the choice of actions required is usually clear. There would generally be limited complexity in the range of operations to be applied. Assessment must ensure: • Performance of a prescribed range of functions involving known routines and procedures and some accountability for the quality of outcomes would be

	• educational licences • user-restrictive licences • shareware licences
Operating system may include but is not limited to:	• Linux 6.0 or above • Windows 98 or above • Apple OS 8 or above
Storage media may include but is not limited to:	• diskettes (floppy disks) • CDs • CD-RW (compact disks-read write) • DVD RW • zip disks • solid state hard drives
Appropriate person may include"	• supervisor • teacher • authorised business representative • client
Software may include but is not limited to:	• commercial, in-house, packaged or customised software
Organisational standards may include but are not limited to:	• security procedures • back-up procedures • restore procedures • virus scanning and removal procedures • software licence documentation • reporting of non-compliance software • GPL/copyleft licences
Virus protection may include but is not limited to:	• McAfee • Panda AntiVirus • Protector Plus Antivirus • Symantec Norton Antivirus • Command Antivirus • Vet. AMIvirus

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor	This unit covers using a range of hand tools for a variety of general engineering applications.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit	Applications may include hand tools used for adjusting, dismantling, assembling and finishing of items or components, and the finishing, cutting, scraping of metallic and non-metallic material to size and shape. This includes simple tapping and threading and routine maintenance of hand tools. This unit should not be selected if the hand tool is dedicated to a single operation or machine and if only a machine specific/customised tool is used. When using hand held power tools or power tools used for hand held operations, refer to Unit MEM18002B (Use power tools/hand held operations). Band: A Unit Weight: 2

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a unit of competency.	Performance criteria describe the performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the required skills and knowledge section and the range statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the evidence guide.

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1. Use hand tools	1.1. Hand tools are selected appropriate to the task requirements. 1.2. Hand tools are used to produce desired outcomes to job specifications which may include finish, tension, size or shape. 1.3. All safety requirements are adhered to before, during and after use. 1.4. Unsafe or faulty tools are identified and marked for repair according to designated procedures before, during and after use. 1.5. Routine maintenance of tools, including hand sharpening is undertaken according to standard operational procedures, principles and techniques. 1.6. Hand tools are stored safely in appropriate location according to standard operational procedures and manufacturers' recommendations.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE
This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.
Required skills
Look for evidence that confirms skills in: • reading and following information on standard operating procedures • following verbal instructions • selecting hand tools appropriate to the task • using hand tools safely • identifying hand tool defects and marking for repair • maintaining/sharpening hand tools using appropriate techniques • storing hand tools in accordance with manufacturers'/standard operating procedures
Required knowledge
Look for evidence that confirms knowledge of: • applications of different hand tools in a general engineering context • common faults and/or defects in hand tools • procedures for marking unsafe or faulty tools for repair • routine maintenance requirements for a range of hand tools • storage location and procedures for a range of hand tools • hazards and control measures associated with using hand tools • use and application of personal protective equipment • safe work practices and procedures

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE
The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment	A person who demonstrates competency in this unit must be able to use hand tools for a range of general engineering applications.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	This unit may be assessed on the job, off the job or a combination of both on and off the job. Where assessment occurs off the job, that is the candidate is not in productive work, then an appropriate simulation must be used where the range of conditions reflects realistic workplace situations. The competencies covered by this unit would be demonstrated by an individual working alone or as part of a team. The assessment environment should not disadvantage the candidate. This unit could be assessed in conjunction with any other units addressing the safety, quality, communication, materials handling, recording and reporting associated with using hand tools or other units requiring the exercise of the skills and knowledge covered by this unit.
Method of assessment	Assessors should gather a range of evidence that is valid, sufficient, current and authentic. Evidence can be gathered through a variety of ways including direct observation, supervisor's reports, project work, samples and questioning. Questioning techniques should not require language, literacy and numeracy skills beyond those required in this unit of competency. The candidate must have access to all tools, equipment, materials and documentation required. The candidate must be permitted to refer to any relevant workplace procedures, product and manufacturing specifications, codes, standards, manuals and reference materials.

Unit Descriptor

This unit covers the competency required to recognise emergencies in the workplace, to report emergencies and to take appropriate action.

For this unit workplace is defined as the area encompassed by an individual's responsibilities.

This unit:

- applies to all personnel within an organisation
- has been developed to cover the broad range of emergencies and workplaces as considered in Australian Standard 37452002
- is part of a suite of eleven workplace emergency response units of competency that has three streams
- is part of the workplace evacuation stream.

Application of the Unit

Application of the Unit

The application of this unit in the workplace - the environments, complexities and situations involved - will be written during Phase II of the Review of the PUA00 Public Safety Training Package.

This text will be useful for the purposes of job descriptions, recruitment advice or job analysis; where possible, it will not be too job specific to allow other industries to import it into other Training Packages, where feasible.

Elements and Performance Criteria Pre-Content

Elements describe the essential outcomes of a Unit of Competency.	Performance Criteria describe the required performance needed to demonstrate achievement of the element. Where bold italicised text is used, further information is detailed in the Required Skills and Knowledge and/or the Range Statement. Assessment of performance is to be consistent with the Evidence Guide.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1. Prepare for emergency situations	1.1 Current workplace emergency procedures to be used by employees and other workplace occupants are identified and followed 1.2 Emergency resources in the workplace are identified and located 1.3 Emergency response exercises are participated in according to workplace emergency procedures
2. Report emergencies and potential emergencies	2.1 Emergencies and potential emergencies are identified and reported according to workplace emergency procedures 2.2 People in any immediate danger from the emergency or potential emergency are alerted according to workplace emergency procedures

3. Respond to emergency warnings and advice	3.1 Emergency warnings and advice are responded to according to workplace emergency procedures 3.2 Instructions from emergency control response personnel are complied with during an emergency 3.3 Sources of additional information are identified and information is sought from relevant people if the situation is not clear
4. Evacuate from the work area	4.1 Need to evacuate from the work area is determined according to the level of immediate danger or instruction issued under the workplace emergency procedures 4.2 Work area is prepared for evacuation according to workplace emergency procedures and the nature of the emergency 4.3 Area of danger is evacuated according to workplace emergency procedures 4.4 Where it is safe to do so, assistance is provided to people who may require assistance 4.5 Evacuation procedures and instructions from emergency control organisation or emergency response personnel are followed 4.6 Alternative pathways or methods of evacuation are identified, assessed and chosen according to workplace emergency procedures if usual means of evacuation are blocked or endangered 4.7 Communication systems are used according to workplace procedures

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

Required Skills

- communicate effectively in an emergency situation as outlined in the workplace emergency procedures
- identify an emergency/potential emergency

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

Required Knowledge

- circumstances where evacuation may need to be modified
- emergency reporting systems and procedures used on site
- emergency warning system, signals and instructions used on site
- evacuation alarms and workplace emergency procedures used at the workplace
- location of assembly areas and post-evacuation actions
- location of emergency equipment in the workplace
- procedures for reporting emergencies
- roles, responsibilities and authority of emergency personnel, emergency control organisation and emergency response team
- types of emergencies, the hazards and the evacuation actions associated with each one

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

Context of and specific resources for assessment	Context of assessment Competency should be assessed in the workplace or in a simulated workplace Specific resources for assessment Access to: • scenarios that reflect a range of emergency

This unit covers the operating of a range of small plant and equipment in resources and infrastructure industries. It includes the planning and preparation for work, the conducting of pre-operational checks, the use of the plant and/or equipment, and carrying out operator maintenance and cleaning up.

Application of the Unit

This unit is appropriate for those working in operational, service and maintenance roles, at worksites within:

- Civil construction
- Coal mining
- Drilling
- Extractive industries
- Metalliferous mining

Licensing/Regulatory Information

Refer to Unit Descriptor.

Pre-Requisites

1. Plan and prepare	1.1. Access, interpret and apply compliance documentation relevant to operate small plant and equipment 1.2. Obtain, confirm and apply work instructions for the allotted task 1.3. Obtain, confirm and apply to the allotted task safety requirements from the site safety plan and organisational policies and procedures 1.4. Select plant, tools and equipment to carry out tasks are consistent with the requirements of the job 1.5. Identify, confirm and apply to the allotted task environmental protection requirements from the project environmental management plan
2. Conduct pre-operational checks	2.1. Select fuel and lubricants according to manufacturer's specifications 2.2. Check and adjust fuel, oil, hydraulic fluid and water levels according to manufacturer's manual 2.3. Secure/tighten and maintain bolts, nuts, guards and attachment couplings in accordance with manufacturer's instructions 2.4. Check and adjust function of controls and gauges where necessary to comply with manufacturer's manual 2.5. Conduct standard start-up and shutdown procedures according to requirements of operator's manual
3. Use small plant and equipment	3.1. Identify site hazards associated with small plant and equipment operations and establish appropriate controls in accordance with the requirements of the site safety plan 3.2. Identify and apply operating techniques for small plant and equipment to achieve optimum output in accordance with manufacture's design specifications while maintaining specified tolerances 3.3. Operate machine to produce results within design specifications to meet specified tolerances 3.4. Safely locate plant and equipment when not in immediate use

4. Carry out operator maintenance	4.1. Shutdown plant/equipment and prepare it for maintenance as per manufacturer's manual and organisational requirements 4.2. Conduct inspection and fault finding in accordance with the manufacture's specifications and/or organisational requirements 4.3. Remove and replace defective parts safely and effectively according to manufacturer's manual and organisational requirements 4.4. Carry out regular programmed maintenance tasks in accordance with the manufacturer's and/or organisational requirements
5. Clean up	5.1. Clear work area and dispose of or recycle materials in accordance with project environmental management plan 5.2. Clean, check, maintain and store plant, equipment and tools in accordance with manufacturer's recommendations and standard work practices

This section describes the skills and knowledge required for this unit.
Required skills
Specific skills are required to achieve the performance criteria in this unit, particularly for the application in the various circumstances in which this unit may be applied. This includes the ability to carry out the following as required to operate small plant and equipment: • apply legislative, organisation and site requirements and procedures • apply clear and direct speaking and active listening skills • apply teamwork to a range of situations, particularly in a safety context

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

• apply problem solving techniques, particularly in teams and in dealing with safety issues • interpret and apply information • show initiative in adapting to changing work conditions or contexts particularly when working across a variety of work placements • manage time, particularly in organising priorities and planning work • take responsibility for self organisation of work priorities • use a range of mediums to learn
Required knowledge
Specific knowledge is required to achieve the Performance Criteria of this unit, particularly its application in a variety of circumstances in which the unit may be used. This includes knowledge of the following, as required to operate small plant and equipment : • small plant and equipment types, characteristics, technical capabilities and limitations • basic soil types and characteristics • site and equipment safety requirements • small plant and equipment operating techniques related to essential tasks • operational, maintenance and basic diagnostic procedures • site isolation and traffic control responsibilities and authorities • materials safety data sheets (MSDS)and materials handling methods • project quality requirements • industry and site specific terminology • JSA's/Safe work method statement

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for the Training Package.
Overview of assessment
Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	The evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit must be relevant to worksite operations and satisfy all of the requirements of the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge and the range statement of this unit and include evidence of the following: • knowledge of the requirements, procedures and instructions to operate small plant and

	equipment • implementation of requirements, procedures and techniques for the safe, effective and efficient operating of small plants and equipment • working with others to operate small plants and equipment that meets all of the required outcomes • consistent timely operating of small plants and equipment that safely, effectively and efficiently meets the required outcomes
Context of and specific resources for assessment	• This unit must be assessed in the context of the work environment. Where personal safety or environmental damage are limiting factors, assessment may occur in a simulated environment provided it is realistic and sufficiently rigorous to cover all aspects of workplace performance, including task skills, task management skills, contingency management skills and job role environment skills. • The assessment environment should not disadvantage the participant. For example, language, literacy and numeracy demands of assessment should not be greater than those required on the job. • Customisation of assessment and delivery environment to sensitively accommodate cultural diversity. • Aboriginal people and other people from a non English speaking background may have second language issues. • Assessment of this competency requires typical resources normally used in the work environment. Selection and use of resources for particular worksites may differ due to site circumstances. • Where applicable, physical resources should include equipment modified for people with disabilities. • Access must be provided to appropriate learning and/or assessment support when required.
Method of assessment	This unit may be assessed in a holistic way with other units of competency. The assessment strategy for this unit must verify required knowledge and skill and practical application using more than one of the following assessment methods:

	• written and/or oral assessment of the candidate's required knowledge
	• observed, documented and/or first hand testimonial evidence of the candidate's:
	  • implementation of appropriate requirement, procedures and techniques for the safe, effective and efficient achievement of required outcomes
	  • consistently achieving the required outcomes
	• first hand testimonial evidence of the candidate's:
	  • working with others to operate small plants and equipment

Guidance information for assessment	Consult the SkillsDMC User Guide for further information on assessment including access and equity issues.

Range Statement

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording, if used in the performance criteria, is detailed below. Essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment (depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts) may also be included.
Relevant compliance documentation may include:	• legislative, organisation and site requirements and procedures • manufacturer's guidelines and specifications • Australian standards • code of practice • Employment and workplace relations legislation • Equal Employment Opportunity and Disability Discrimination legislation
Work instructions may include:	• verbal or written and graphical instructions, signage, work schedules/plans/specifications, work bulletins, charts and hand drawings, memos, materials safety data sheets (MSDS) and diagrams or sketches • plans and specifications • quality requirements, including dimensions, tolerances, standards of work and material standards • safe work procedures related to the operation of small plant and equipment on construction sites

Safety requirements may include:	• protective clothing and equipment
	• use of tools and equipment
	• workplace environment and safety
	• handling of materials
	• use of fire fighting equipment
	• use of First Aid equipment
	• hazards and risks control, including:
	  • uneven/unstable terrain
	  • trees
	  • fires
	  • overhead and underground services
	  • bridges
	  • buildings

	  • traffic control
	  • working at heights
	  • working in proximity to others
	  • worksite visitors and
	  • the public
	• emergency procedures, including:
	  • emergency shutdown and stopping
	  • extinguishing equipment fires
	  • organisational First Aid requirements and
	  • evacuation

Environmentalprotection requirements may include:	• organisational/project environmental management plan • waste management • water quality protection • noise, vibration and dust management and • clean-up management
Small plant and equipment may include the use of:	• compressors, concrete mixers, pedestrian rollers, water pumps, brick/masonry saws, jack hammers, kanga hammers, generator sets, lighting sets, vibrating plates, plate compactors, quick cut saws, concrete vibrators, pedestrian rollers, concrete saws and generators, industrial wet and dry vacuum cleaners, pallet trolleys, terrazzo grinders, hoists, brush-cutters and mowers
Operator maintenance is to include:	• cleaning • authorised servicing • the monitoring, recording and reporting of faults
Operator maintenance may also include:	• the conduct of authorised minor replacements
Materials may include:	• water • clays, silts, stone, gravel, mud, rock sand, topsoil • bituminous mixes • timber • fuels and oils • power leads • replacement parts and consumables

Unit Descriptor

This competency standard covers the process of installing pressurised irrigation systems. It requires the ability to organise resources for installation work, set out and prepare site, install irrigation components, complete installation work, commission irrigation systems and communicate with work team members, supervisors, contractors and consultants. Installing irrigation systems requires knowledge of methods and techniques of irrigation, components of an irrigation system, behaviour of water on varying terrain and soil types, soil water retention testing techniques and soil characteristics, and enterprise OHS procedures.

	1.2 The construction site for the irrigation system and construction method is identified according to the site and irrigation system plans and enterprise work procedures.
	1.3 Parts and equipment delivered to site are checked according to system drawings and specifications.
	1.4 Pre-operational and safety checks are carried out on tools, equipment and machinery according to manufacturers specifications and enterprise work procedures.
	1.5 OHS hazards are identified, risks assessed, controls implemented and reported to the supervisor.
	1.6 Suitable safety and personal protective equipment (PPE) are selected, used and maintained.
	1.7 Water supply is checked to ensure that it is compatible with system specifications.
2 Set out and prepare site	2.1 Measurement and marking out of irrigation lines are consistent with the plan.
	2.2 Trenches where constructed are at the specified depth without damage to services, facilities, features and established plants.
	2.3 Equipment operation and work practices conform to enterprise and legislative OHS requirements.
	2.4 Regulations and legislation relevant to the situation are observed.
	2.5 Work practices reflect sustainable horticulture principles and respond to local community requirements.
3 Install irrigation components	3.1 Plan is interpreted and where applicable, contractors are supervised and work is monitored to conform to the plan.

		3.2 Components are assembled and connected according to the plan, joints are completed and tested according to manufacturers specifications.
		3.3 Fittings and valves are fitted and adjusted to the requirements of the installation plan, and all joints are secured according to enterprise guidelines.
		3.4 A clean and safe work area is maintained while installation work is carried out.
		3.5 Tools appropriate to the task being undertaken are chosen and used according to guidelines and safe working practices are employed.
4	Complete installation work	4.1 Earthworks are finished off to plan specifications and enterprise work procedures.
		4.2 The system configuration and capacity matches the installation plan.
		4.3 The site is restored and waste material is removed from the site and disposed of in an environmentally aware and safe manner according to enterprise work procedures.
		4.4 Tools, equipment and machinery are cleaned, maintained and stored according to enterprise work procedures
5	Commission irrigation system	5.1 Start-up sequence is in accordance with operations manual.
		5.2 System is flushed as required.
		5.3 Operating faults are identified and corrective actions taken according to the operations manual.
		5.4 Testing and monitoring equipment are calibrated to manufacturers specifications.
		5.5 Work outcomes are recorded or reported to the supervisor according to enterprise work procedures.

Evidence Guide

What evidence is required to demonstrate competence for this standard as a whole?

Competence in installing an irrigation system requires evidence that a person is able to prepare for installation, set out the installation works, install and test the irrigation system, and clean up the site.

The skills and knowledge required to install an irrigation system must be transferable to a different work environment. For example, this could include different types of irrigation systems and components, water supplies, soil types and enterprises.

What specific knowledge is needed to achieve the performance criteria?

Knowledge and understanding are essential to apply this standard in the workplace, to transfer the skills to other contexts, and to deal with unplanned events. The knowledge requirements for this competency standard are listed below:

methods and techniques of irrigation components of an irrigation system characteristics and operation of joints, valves and sprinkler components operation of pumps and water flow rates behaviour of water on varying terrain and soil types soil water retention testing techniques

water quality and water filtration techniques calculations for installing irrigation systems soil characteristics enterprise OHS procedures.

What specific skills are needed to achieve the performance criteria?

To achieve the performance criteria, appropriate literacy and numeracy levels as well as some complementary skills are required. These include the ability to:

organise resources for installation work

	set-out and prepare site install irrigation components complete installation work commission irrigation system communicate with work team members, supervisors, contractors and consultants implement and follow relevant enterprise OHS and environmental policies and procedures.

What processes should be applied to this competency standard?

There are a number of processes that are learnt throughout work and life, which are required in all jobs. They are fundamental processes and generally transferable to other work functions. Some of these are covered by the key competencies, although others may be added. The questions below highlight how these processes are applied in this competency standard. Following each question a number in brackets indicates the level to which the key competency needs to be demonstrated where 0 = not required, 1 = perform the process, 2 = perform and administer the process and 3 = perform, administer and design the process.

1. How can communication of ideas and information (1) be applied?	Written, oral and telecommunication of ideas and information with the work group, supervisor, contractors or consultants relating to installation activities and problems.
2. How can information be collected, analysed and organised (1)?	Enterprise work procedures and site and irrigation system plans should be consulted, interpreted and applied to co-ordinate installation activities with further clarification sought from the supervisor when necessary.
3. How are activities planned and organised (1)?	Co-ordinating work activities for the work group, contractors and self, prior to and during the installation program.
4. How can team work (1) be applied?	Facilitating and leading work group members to complete the installation to specification.
5. How can the use of mathematical ideas and techniques (1) be applied?	Measuring materials and interpreting specifications for the irrigation installation.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

6. How can problem-solving skills (1) be applied?	Dealing with problems imposed by site characteristics or when system operation doesn't meet specifications.
7. How can the use of technology (1) be applied?	Applying design specifications, communicating and keeping records.

Are there other competency standards that could be assessed with this one?

This competency standard could be assessed on its own or in combination with other competencies relevant to the job function.

There is essential information about assessing this competency standard for consistent performance and where and how it may be assessed, in the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package. All users of these competency standards must have access to the Assessment Guidelines. Further advice may also be sought from the relevant sector booklet.

Range Statement

Range of Variables

The Range of Variables explains the contexts within which the performance and knowledge requirements of this standard may be assessed. The scope of variables chosen in training and assessment requirements may depend on the work situations available

What materials may be required to install a drainage system?	Materials may include irrigation system components, glues, welds, and construction and backfill materials.
What tools, equipment and machinery may be required?	Tools, equipment and machinery may include surveying and levelling equipment such as automatic level, laser level, dumpy level, Cowley level, staff, boning rods, pegs, notebook, pencil and calculator; hand tools such as rakes, shovels, spades, rollers, wheelbarrows, hoses and hose fittings; machinery such as bobcats, ditch witches, backhoes, front-end loaders, graders, mechanical rollers, trucks, hydraulic trailers, and tractors and 3-point linkage equipment, pumps and pump fittings, and fitting and welding tools appropriate to the irrigation system.

What irrigation systems may apply to this standard?	Irrigation systems may include mains pressure, low pressure, below ground, above ground, spray systems, dripper, and capillary systems.
What enterprise work procedures may apply to this standard?	Work procedures may include supervisors oral or written instructions, installation program, enterprise standard operating procedures (SOPs), specifications, routine maintenance schedules, work notes, product labels and Material Safety Data Sheets (MSDS), manufacturers service specifications and operators manuals, waste disposal, recycling and re-use guidelines, and OHS procedures.
What irrigation equipment may apply to this standard?	Irrigation equipment may include pumps, motors, delivery equipment, sprays, system controllers, injectors, tensiometers, probe tubes, flow meter, pressure gauge, computer and/or other scheduling devices, recycling equipment, and spray equipment.
What OHS hazards may be associated with the installation of drainage systems?	Hazards may include disturbance or interruption of services, solar radiation, dust, noise, soil and waterborne micro-organisms, chemicals and hazardous substances, manual handling, moving vehicles, machinery and machinery parts, uneven surfaces and flying and falling objects.
What safety equipment may be required?	Safety equipment may include signage and barriers.
What PPE may be required to install drainage systems?	PPE may include hat, boots, overalls, gloves, goggles, respirator or face mask, face guard, hearing protection, sunscreen lotion and hard hat.
What types of water supplies are covered by this standard?	Water supplies may be underground, mains or surface storage including fixtures such as dams, bores, windmills, tanks, and channels.
What OHS requirements may be relevant to this standard?	OHS requirements may include identifying hazards, assessing risks and implementing controls, cleaning, maintaining and storing tools, equipment and machinery; appropriate use of PPE including sun protection, safe operation of tools, equipment and machinery, safe handling, use and storage of chemicals and hazardous substances, correct manual handling, basic first aid, personal hygiene and reporting problems to supervisors.

How may a clean and safe work area be maintained?	Tasks may include disabling unused tools, equipment and machinery and storing neatly out of the way of installation activities, safely storing materials on site, using signage and safety barriers during and removing after construction activities are completed, and swiftly and efficiently removing and processing debris and waste from the work area.
What waste material may be relevant to this standard?	Waste material may include unused construction and excavated materials, and plant debris, litter and broken components. Plant-based material may be mulched or composted, plastic, metal, paper-based materials may be recycled, re-used, returned to the manufacturer or disposed of according to enterprise work procedures. Waste may be removed to designated areas for recycling, reuse, return to the manufacturer or disposal.
What testing equipment may be relevant to this standard?	Testing equipment may include pressure gauges and flow meters.

Range of Variables

The Range of Variables explains the contexts within which the performance and knowledge requirements of this standard may be assessed. The scope of variables chosen in training and assessment requirements may depend on the work situations available

What irrigation systems might be relevant to this standard?	These may be pressurised irrigation systems such as micro-irrigation, spray irrigation or gravity fed irrigation systems. Micro-irrigation systems include mains pressure, low pressure, below or above ground, sprays systems, drip emitter trickle, t-tape, mini-sprinklers, capillary, ebb and flow, and flood systems.

	Spray irrigation systems include travelling irrigators (soft hose, hard hose boom type) centre pivot, linear move, powered side roll hand shift permanent (installed), and bike shift/easy shift. Gravity fed irrigation systems include border check, contour irrigation, furrow irrigation, hillside flooding and basin irrigation. Border check systems may be either permanent or temporary earth, plastic or concrete devices for insertion in a drain for reticulating water, contour banks used to collect and distribute water along the perimeter of an irrigation plot, contour banks within a plot to collect/distribute water or larger scale systems to stop water exiting one area to another. Irrigation systems may range from manual operation and monitoring to fully automated with computer control and monitoring.
What faulty components or system parts might need to be replaced?	These may vary according to brand and supplier and may include, but not be limited to, injectors, pumps, tensiometers, probe tubes, flow meter, pressure gauge, controllers, solenoid valves, wiring, quick coupling valves (QCV), computer and/or other scheduling devices, pipes, jets, micro jets, laterals, sprinklers, emitters, integrated dripline "thin wall", seals, outlets and gears.
What operational tests of the system may be conducted?	These may include pressures, flow rates, sprinkler performance, calculation of co-efficient of uniformity and distribution uniformity.
What might be the OHS requirements for maintenance activities?	Requirements may include systems and procedures for safe manual handling, outdoor work (including protection from solar radiation, dust and noise), selection, use and maintenance of relevant personal protective clothing and equipment, selection, care and safe use of hand tools and safe systems for the prevention of electrical injury.
What may be involved in gaining access to faulty components or blockages?	Gaining access may require specific approvals from property owners/managers

RTF2017A Prune shrubs and small trees

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

This competency standard covers the process of pruning shrubs and small trees. The work is likely to be undertaken from the ground. Aerial pruning from a ladder, an elevated work platform or from climbing ropes and rigging in a tree, are covered in separate units.

Pruning work is likely to be carried out under routine supervision with intermittent checking. Competency is demonstrated by the application of knowledge and skills to a range of pruning tasks and roles usually within established enterprise routines.

Required Skills and Knowledge

Not applicable.

Evidence Guide

What evidence is required to demonstrate competence for this standard as a whole?

Competence in pruning shrubs and small trees requires evidence that a person using appropriate pruning tools and equipment can effectively achieve the desired tree and shrub forms in relation to appearance, capacity and vigour, yield quantities and clearance as required by individual enterprises.

The skills and knowledge required to apply pruning techniques must be transferable to different work environments. For example, pruning techniques from the ground are required for a range of stages of plant growth in a number of horticultural industries, including production, amenity horticulture, arboriculture and nurseries. The practical knowledge of techniques used to remove canes in a viticultural enterprise may be applied in a different context to removing wood from roses after flowering in a floricultural enterprise.

What specific knowledge is needed to achieve the performance criteria?

Knowledge and understanding are essential to apply this standard in the workplace, to transfer the skills to other contexts, and to deal with unplanned events. The knowledge requirements for this competency standard are listed below:
1. practical awareness of the principles of pruning and the methods used to achieve plant management goals
2. effects on plant growth, habit and production levels of pruning operations in relation to the purposes of the enterprise 3. the purpose of tools and equipment used for pruning and the correct and safe use and care of these tools and equipment 4. the effect of outdoor climatic conditions (e.g., rain, hail, days of extreme heat and/or wind, or very high ultraviolet radiation), which may prevent or impede pruning programs, or influence the selection of pruning tools, equipment and safety equipment to minimise the hazards presented 5. awareness of the potential public nature of pruning work sites and the hazards and responsibilities associated with working in a publicly accessible situation 6. plant names, growth habits, flowering times and effect of pruning on fruit production 7. hygiene practices and plant health principles (e.g., CODIT) relevant to pruning.

What specific skills are needed to achieve the performance criteria?	To achieve the performance criteria, appropriate literacy and numeracy levels as well as some complementary skills are required. These include the ability to: 8. participate in teams and contribute to team objectives 9. understand work procedures 10. communicate with team members and supervisor 11. calibrate tools, estimate fuel levels, quantities of plant material to be pruned, such as counting buds or flowers to be retained along a branch or cane, and numbers of branches to be retained per plant or bay 12. minimise noise and dust to prevent nuisance-level environmental disturbance.

What processes should be applied to this competency standard?

There are a number of processes that are learnt throughout work and life, which are required in all jobs. They are fundamental processes and generally transferable to other work functions. Some of these are covered by the key competencies, although others may be added. The questions below highlight how these processes are applied in this competency standard. Following each question a number in brackets indicates the level to which the key competency needs to be demonstrated where 0 = not required, 1 = perform the process, 2 = perform and administer the process and 3 = perform, administer and design the process.

1. How can communication of ideas and information (1) be applied?	Ideas and information relating to pruning activities, plant species and growth habits encountered should be discussed with other members of the work team and the supervisor.
2. How can information be collected, analysed and organised (1)?	The pruning site and surrounding area should be inspected visually and the information gained discussed with the work team and supervisor. Enterprise work procedures and site plans should be consulted, interpreted and applied to co-ordinate pruning activities with further clarification sought from the supervisor where necessary.
3. How are activities planned and organised (1)?	Equipment, materials and work procedures for pruning will need to be arranged before and between work periods and there may be some responsibility for co-ordinating work with others.
4. How can team work (1) be applied?	The pruning program may involve working with other members of a team to complete the program.
5. How can the use of mathematical ideas and techniques (1) be applied?	Simple numeracy in relation to shrub, tree and pruned material quantity and working hours, as they apply to daily performance, will be required.
6. How can problem-solving skills (1) be applied?	Problems in applying pruning methods to the aims of pruning or varying shrub and tree forms, workplace safety and other team members may arise during the pruning of shrubs and small trees.
7. How can the use of technology (1) be applied?	Technology may be applied in the preparation, use and maintenance of pruning tools and equipment.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Are there other competency standards that could be assessed with this one?

This competency standard could be assessed on its own or in combination with other competencies relevant to the job function.

There is essential information about assessing this competency standard for consistent performance and where and how it may be assessed, in the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package. All users of these competency standards must have access to the Assessment Guidelines. Further advice may also be sought from the relevant sector booklet.

Range Statement

Range of Variables

The Range of Variables explains the contexts within which the performance and knowledge requirements of this standard may be assessed. The scope of variables chosen in particular training and assessment requirements may depend on the work situations available

What enterprise work procedures may apply to this standard?	Work procedures will be based on sound horticultural pruning principles and practices and may include supervisors oral or written instructions, the pruning program, enterprise standard operating procedures (SOPs), specifications, routine maintenance schedules, work notes; manufacturers service specifications and operators manuals; waste disposal, recycling and re-use guidelines; and OHS procedures.
For what purpose may shrubs and small trees be pruned?	The goals of pruning may include to shape, form, correct or control growth, prevent disease or damage, promote health, control capacity and vigour, manage the canopy and fruit and flower production, provide ornamental effects or aesthetic appeal, and provide clearance for services, access or cultural practices.
What services may need to be located?	Services may include above ground outlets for water supply, irrigation fittings, low overhead power (electricity) and telecommunications lines.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

How may OHS hazards be identified?	Hazards may be identified through visual inspection of the area, understanding of site plans, and enterprise work procedures.
What OHS hazards may be associated with pruning shrubs and small trees?	Hazards may include disturbance or interruption of services, solar radiation, dust, noise, manual handling, moving powered equipment parts, sharp tools and equipment, uneven surfaces, and flying and falling objects.
What or who may be at risk from OHS hazards?	Hazards may pose a risk to workers, equipment, people and animals external to the workplace (such as members of the public, stray pets and wildlife) and the natural environment.
What ground based pruning tools and equipment may be used?	Tools and equipment may include ropes, handsaws, hand and battery-powered secateurs, pneumatic snips and compressor, hedge trimmers both manual and powered, small chainsaws and chippers.
What preparation may be required before use of pruning tools and equipment?	Preparation may include sharpening, cleaning and oiling.
What safety equipment may be required?	Safety equipment may include signage and barriers.
What personal protective equipment (PPE) may be required to undertake pruning of shrubs and small trees?	Personal protective equipment may include hat, boots, overalls, gloves, and halter, goggles, respirator or face mask, face guard, hearing protection, sunscreen lotion and hardhat.
What OHS requirements may be relevant to this standard?	OHS requirements may include identifying hazards, assessing and reporting risks, cleaning, maintaining and storing tools and equipment, appropriate use of personal protective equipment including sun protection, drinking to avoid dehydration, safe operation of tools and equipment, correct manual handling, basic first aid, personal hygiene and reporting problems to supervisors.
What hygiene practices may be required while pruning?	Hygiene practices may include sterilisation of tools between prunings of different plants, removal of debris as pruning work is undertaken, washing hands and refraining from smoking to prevent virus transmission.

What materials may prunings include?	Prunings may include small to medium branches, foliage, leaves, sticks, buds, flowers, fruit, bark, plant debris and chipped material.
How may a clean and safe area be maintained?	Tasks may include keeping public access paths and roads clear of debris, waste, tools and equipment, disabling tools and equipment after use, using signage and barriers where necessary and removing debris and waste from the work area swiftly and efficiently.

For more information on contexts, environmental implications and variables for training and assessment refer to the Sector Booklet.

Evidence Guide

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

What evidence is required to demonstrate competence for this standard as a whole?

Competence in constructing retaining walls requires evidence that work can be planned and prepared, that the retaining wall site can be marked out, footings and reinforcing can be located, components for the wall can be installed and the site can be cleared and cleaned up according to supervisors instructions.

The skills and knowledge required to construct retaining walls must be transferable to a different work environment. For example, this could include different construction materials, site slopes and locations, and soil types

What specific knowledge is needed to achieve the performance criteria?

Knowledge and understanding are essential to apply this standard in the workplace, to transfer the skills to other contexts, and to deal with unplanned events. The knowledge requirements for this competency standard are listed below:

1. different construction materials for retaining walls
2. construction approaches and methods
3. OHS responsibilities of employees
4. safe lifting practices for carrying large and heavy components
5. the environmental impact of soil disturbance when excavating an area to be retained and the environmental effects of altering water flow when installing retaining walls, with or without drainage media
6. methods of disposing of soil and waste materials in order to minimise damage to the environment
7. Building Code of Australia relating to constructing retaining walls.

What specific skills are needed to achieve the performance criteria?

To achieve the performance criteria, appropriate literacy and numeracy levels as well as some complementary skills are required. These include the ability to:

8. read and interpret site and construction plans
9. calculate the amount of materials required and accurately mark out the area to be retained
10. sort soil and waste material from the excavation site in an environmentally aware and sensitive manner, such as sorting it into organic, inorganic and recyclable piles.

What processes should be applied to this competency standard?

There are a number of processes that are learnt throughout work and life, which are required in all jobs. They are fundamental processes and generally transferable to other work functions. Some of these are covered by the key competencies, although others may be added. The questions below highlight how these processes are applied in this competency standard. Following each question a number in brackets indicates the level to which the key competency needs to be demonstrated where 0 = not required, 1 = perform the process, 2 = perform and administer the process and 3 = perform, administer and design the process.

1. How can communication of ideas and information (1) be applied?	Ideas and information regarding the tasks to be performed when constructing a retaining wall should be discussed with other members of the work team and/or the supervisor.
2. How can information be collected, analysed and organised (1)?	Site and construction plans and information regarding industry standards should be obtained from the supervisor and read and interpreted to undertake construction activities.
3. How are activities planned and organised (1)?	Activities using equipment and materials may need to be planned and organised to ensure completion of the project on time and within budget.
4. How can team work (1) be applied?	Teamwork may be necessary to complete specified tasks in the construction of a retaining wall.
5. How can the use of mathematical ideas and techniques (1) be applied?	Mathematical techniques should be used to measure and calculate construction areas and components.
6. How can problem-solving skills (1) be applied?	Problems may arise when interpreting site and construction plans or with the installation of footings and reinforcement.
7. How can the use of technology (1) be applied?	Equipment and machinery used for installing retaining walls may require the use of technology.

Are there other competency standards that could be assessed with this one?

This competency standard could be assessed on its own or in combination with other competencies relevant to the job function.

There is essential information about assessing this competency standard for consistent performance and where and how it may be assessed, in the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package. All users of these competency standards must have access to the Assessment Guidelines. Further advice may also be sought from the relevant sector booklet.

Range Statement

Range of Variables

The Range of Variables explains the contexts within which the performance and knowledge requirements of this standard may be assessed. The scope of variables chosen in particular training and assessment requirements may depend on the work situations available

What work instructions might be required for this standard?	Work instructions may include standard operating procedures (SOPs), specifications, work notes, manufacturers instructions, site plans, construction plans or verbal directions from the manager, supervisor, or senior operator.
What services may need to be located?	Services may include water supply, power (electricity), storm water, drainage and sewerage.
What tools and equipment are likely to be used when building retaining walls?	Tools and equipment may include timber or concrete saws, wheelbarrows, concrete mixers, hammers, mallets, and levels.
What materials are likely to be used when constructing a retaining wall?	Materials used may include timber and modular concrete units.
What OHS hazards may be associated with building retaining walls?	Hazards may include solar radiation, noise, heavy materials, sharp tools, uneven surfaces, holes and steep gradients.
What personal protective clothing and equipment may be required?	Personal protective clothing and equipment may include boots, gloves, overalls, sun hat, sunscreen lotion, goggles and earmuffs, knee guards/pads.

What may be used as survey benchmarks?	Survey benchmarks may include a boundary line, a building or structure, a temporary benchmark or a datum point.
What type of footings may be required when constructing retaining walls?	Footings may include concrete, road rubble and quartz sand.
What industry standards may apply when constructing a retaining wall?	Industry standards may include the type, size and height of the retaining wall. Compliance with the Building Code of Australia requirements may be necessary when constructing retaining walls.

For more information on contexts, environment and variables for training and assessment, refer to the Sector Booklet.

Evidence Guide

What evidence is required to demonstrate competence for this standard as a whole?

Competence in laying pavers requires evidence that work can be planned and prepared, that the paving area can be set out, the ground can be prepared, bedding material can be laid, and pavers can be laid to a given pattern.

The skills and knowledge required to lay pavers must be transferable to a different work environment. For example, this could include different pavers, locations and paved

1. How can communication of ideas and information (1) be applied?	Ideas and information about the tasks to be performed when paving should be discussed with other members of the work team and/or the supervisor.
2. How can information be collected, analysed and organised (1)?	The instructions for the paving work should be interpreted, and clarification sought as necessary.
3. How are activities planned and organised (1)?	The paving tasks are applied in a logical order.
4. How can team work (1) be applied?	Teamwork may be required to complete specified paving tasks on time and within budget.
5. How can the use of mathematical ideas and techniques (1) be applied?	Mathematical techniques should be used to measure and calculate areas to be paved, and the quantity of bedding material and pavers required.
6. How can problem-solving skills (1) be applied?	Problems may arise when interpreting the site plan and paving to a pattern.
7. How can the use of technology (1) be applied?	Technology may be used in the design of the pattern to be achieved when paving.

Are there other competency standards that could be assessed with this one?

Range Statement

Range of Variables

The Range of Variables explains the contexts within which the performance and knowledge requirements of this standard may be assessed. The scope of variables chosen in particular training and assessment requirements may depend on the work situations available

What workplace information might be required for this standard?	Workplace information may include site plans, specifications, procedures for disposing of waste materials, work instructions, or verbal instructions from the supervisor.
What tools and equipment are likely to be used when paving?	Tools and equipment may include brick and concrete saws, mallets, compactors, concrete mixers, stiff brooms, spirit levels, and bricklayers string.
What OHS hazards may be associated with paving installation?	Hazards may include heavy paving materials and equipment, slippery or uneven surfaces, moving machinery and vehicles, solar radiation, dust and noise.
What are the personal protective clothing and equipment requirements associated with the installation of paving?	Personal protective clothing and equipment may include steel capped boots/shoes, overalls, gloves, sun hat, sunscreen lotion, safety goggles, face mask and ear muffs.
What type of site plan may be referred to?	A site plan may include job drawings, a landscape design, a computer generated plan, a concept plan, or any other plan of the site drawn to scale.
What are the OHS requirements in relation to an area to be paved?	The OHS requirements may include the erection of signage, barriers, witches hats and safety lights.
What may be used as a survey benchmark?	A survey benchmark may include a boundary line, a building or structure, a temporary benchmark, or a datum point.
What are minimal industry standards?	Minimal industry standards are usually between 20ml and 25ml in depth. The pavers to be used may determine a minimal standard outside these parameters.

RTF3036A Plan and establish plant displays

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

This competency standard covers the process of planning and establishing plant displays either indoors or as seasonal displays of annual and perennial plants in garden beds.

The planning and establishing of plant displays requires the application of horticultural knowledge including plant types, condition and requirements to maintain the plants in prime condition throughout the duration of the display. The work is normally done using established routines, methods and procedures. Discretion and judgement is required in the selection of equipment, work organisation, services, actions and achieving outcomes within time constraints.

Evidence Guide

What evidence is required to demonstrate competence for this standard as a whole?

Competence in planning and establishing plant displays requires evidence that plant displays can be planned and established to a level which satisfies client needs and plants suitable for the display are selected and maintained in a healthy, optimal state.

The skills and knowledge required to prepare the display must be transferable to a different work environment. For example, this could different environments, display themes, plant species, and seasons.

What specific knowledge is needed to achieve the performance criteria?

Knowledge and understanding are essential to apply this standard in the workplace, to transfer the skills to other contexts, and to deal with unplanned events. The knowledge requirements for this competency standard are listed below:

aim and purpose of building plant displays

design principles for plant displays

features and characteristics of a range of plants used for display purposes growing requirements of a range of common plants used in plant displays common problems occurring with display plants

remedial action required for display plants displaying health problems.

What specific skills are needed to achieve the performance criteria?	To achieve the performance criteria, appropriate literacy and numeracy levels as well as some complementary skills are required. These include the ability to: communicate with work team members, supervisors, suppliers and customers interpret design plans and specifications calculate number of plants and materials determine spatial measurements of display site co-ordinate own activities sequentially effectively complete plant display in a timely manner.

There are a number of processes that are learnt throughout work and life, which are required in all jobs. They are fundamental processes and generally transferable to other work functions. 1. How can communication of ideas and information (2) be applied?	Written, oral and telecommunication of ideas and information relating to suitability and availability of stock and materials and problems encountered, will be required with the supervisor, work group, suppliers or clients.
2. How can information be collected, analysed and organised (2)?	Enterprise work procedures, customer impact criteria and the display plan should be consulted, interpreted and applied to co-ordinate display activities with further clarification sought from the supervisor where necessary. Information on enterprise and plant environmental requirements may need to be collected to ensure suitable plants for display are chosen.
3. How are activities planned and	Preparing the display may require planning organised (2)?	in the selection and placing of plants. Work activities for the work group and self may need to be adjusted throughout the duration of the display.

4. How can team work (2) be applied?	Preparing the display may involve working as part of a team to complete the display to plan and on time. Discussion of display design and plant suitability may need to be carried out with supervisors or others in the workplace.
5. How can the use of mathematical ideas and techniques (2) be applied?	Mathematical concepts may be used to calculate design requirements such as space and stock requirements.
6. How can problem-solving skills (2) be applied?	Plant selection, environmental variation, client intervention, personnel difficulties and timeline failures may require problem-solving techniques.
7. How can the use of technology (2) be applied?	Technological understanding may be required to access information about suitable plants and design ideas, communicate and keep records.

What are plant displays in the context of this standard?	Plant displays include displays for functions, annual bedding displays, herbaceous perennial displays, and indoor presentations.
What aesthetic, environmental and physical attributes should be taken into account?	Aesthetic, environmental and physical attributes may include light, air, humidity, desired effect, nature of event or exhibition, time-span of display, size of display, barriers preventing display in particular locations, access restrictions.
What OHS hazards may be associated with the preparation of plant displays?	Hazards may include interference with services, manual handling, moving machinery and machinery parts, and solar radiation.
What does a display plan include?	A display plan may include action required, display location, plants required, materials, who is responsible, deadlines, assistance required, maintenance requirements, and access availability.
What determines the plant types selected for display?	Choice of plants may be influenced by factors including colour of foliage or flowers, shape and growth of foliage, texture, size, longevity, portability hardiness in particular environmental conditions.
What tools, equipment and machinery may be required?	Tools, equipment and machinery may include hand tools such as rakes, shovels, spades, wheelbarrows, hoses, forklifts, backhoes, and trolley.
What safety equipment may be required?	Safety equipment may include signage and barriers.
What enterprise specifications for quality may apply to this standard?	Enterprise specifications for quality may include the shape of plant, vigour, colour, height, and the absence of pests and diseases.
What accessories and materials may be used for the preparation of plant displays?	Accessories and materials may include sculptures, rocks, water, surface and edge treatments, garden furniture, nursery products, signage, stands, boxes, fabrics and other decorative materials.

Unit Descriptor

This competency standard covers the process of constructing concrete structures and features as a component of landscape project works. These structures and features may include paths, driveways, edgings, footings, floors, steps, walls, fences, pool surrounds, entertaining areas and ornamental garden elements.

The construction of concrete structures and features is likely to be under limited supervision from others, with checking only related to overall progress and is usually done within established routines, methods and procedures. Some discretion and judgement may be required depending on the type of structure or feature to be constructed. For example, it may be a driveway at ground level or a fence that is constructed vertically.

Evidence Guide

What evidence is required to demonstrate competence for this standard as a whole?

Competence in constructing concrete structures and features requires evidence that work can be planned and prepared for, that a site for concrete placement can be prepared according to design drawings and specifications, and that concrete can be mixed, placed and finished according to the required standards.

The skills and knowledge required to construct concrete structures and features must be transferable to a different work environment. For example, this could include different structures and features, concrete mixes and locations.

What specific knowledge is needed to achieve the performance criteria?

Knowledge and understanding are essential to apply this standard in the workplace, to transfer the skills to other contexts, and to deal with unplanned events. The knowledge requirements for this competency standard are listed below:

Mpa testing theory and what effects Mpa specifications in a concrete mix the comparative environmental implications associated with soil removal and the establishment of drainage systems industry standards in relation to reinforcing and consolidating concrete.

sub-base and sub-grade materials and preparation.

What specific skills are needed to achieve the performance criteria?

To achieve the performance criteria, appropriate literacy and numeracy levels as well as some complementary skills are required. These include the ability to:

interpret design drawings and specifications and transpose the information to site measure and construct profiles using mathematical techniques establish levels using levelling equipment undertake and interpret tests performed on a concrete mix place, consolidate and finish concrete.

There are a number of processes that are learnt throughout work and life, which are required in all jobs. They are fundamental processes and generally transferable to other work functions. Some of these are covered by the key competencies, although others may be added. The questions below highlight how these processes are applied in this competency standard. Following each question a number in brackets indicates the level to which the key competency needs to be demonstrated where 0 = not required, 1 = perform the process, 2 = perform and administer the process and 3 = perform, administer and design the process.

1. How can communication of ideas and information (2) be applied?	Information regarding what type of structure or feature is to be installed may need to be communicated to other members of the work team.
2. How can information be collected, analysed and organised (2)?	Information on tests applied to the concrete mix may need to be collected, analysed and acted upon.
3. How are activities planned and organised (2)?	The installation of concrete structures and features may need to be planned and organised according to the prevailing weather conditions.
4. How can team work (2) be applied?	Team work may be applied when undertaking concrete pouring operations.
5. How can the use of mathematical ideas and techniques (2) be applied?	Mathematical ideas and techniques may be applied when calculating the volume of concrete required for the job.
6. How can problem-solving skills (2) be applied?	Problems may arise with the stability of the form work applied to a concrete site.
7. How can the use of technology (2) be applied?	Technology may be applied when working out the volume of concrete needed, or researching what type of curing agent/method to use.

Range of Variables

The Range of Variables explains the contexts within which the performance and knowledge requirements of this standard may be assessed. The scope of variables chosen in training and assessment requirements may depend on the work situations available

What tools and equipment are likely to be used when constructing concrete structures and features?	Tools and equipment may include levelling equipment, string lines, tape measures, spades, shovels, wheelbarrow, concrete mixer, trowels and screeding equipment.
What OHS hazards may apply to this standard?	OHS hazards may include manual handling, solar radiation, obstacles, and slipping on wet surfaces.
What OHS controls may be relevant to this standard?	OHS controls may include safe lifting and transporting techniques, the drinking of fluids, basic first aid, and the appropriate use of personal protective clothing and equipment such as boots, overalls and sun hat, erection of safety signs and barriers, the identification of site access points, and the safe storage of materials.
What environmental implications are likely to be considered?	Consideration may be given to the impact of soil disturbance and the alteration to water flow during construction and after the structure or feature has been constructed.
What services are likely to be located on site?	Services may include power, gas, water, stormwater, sewerage or septic connections, phone and optical cables.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

What drainage systems are likely to be installed?	Drainage systems may include sumps, agricultural drains, storm water pipes, slotted pipes, open drains and channels.
What other preparation tasks may need to be completed before the placement of concrete?	Other preparation tasks to be completed may include the installation of a waterproof membrane, reinforcement according to industry standards (AS1554.3), and the application of a release agent to form work.
What concrete additives may be relevant to this standard?	Additives may include colouring agents, retardants and accelerants.
What testing is likely to be undertaken on the concrete mix?	Testing may include a concrete slump test and Mpa testing.
How is the concrete likely to be finished off?	Finishing off the concrete may include the addition of a curing agent, insertion of expansion jointing and control joints, or diamond saw cuts after a period of drying.

RTF3217A Set out site for construction works

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

This competency standard covers the process of setting out a site for construction works in accordance with site plans and specifications. These tasks may be done in advance of proposed works or in conjunction with construction works already being carried out. The work is likely to be under limited supervision from others, with checking only related to overall progress.

The setting out of a site for construction works is normally done within routines, methods and procedures, where some discretion and judgement is required in the interpretation of site plans and specifications, and the equipment to be used to verify existing and proposed site features, dimensions and levels.

Element	Performance Criteria
1 Interpret site plans and specifications	1.1 The various components of the site plan and specifications are identified.
	1.2 Site plan and specifications are compared with other available plans to ensure accuracy of information.
	1.3 Equipment required for the setting out of construction works is determined from the site plan and specifications.
	1.4 Environmental impact of proposed construction works is considered in the interpretation of site plans.
	1.5 OHS hazards associated with the setting out of construction works are assessed for potential risks, and controls implemented accordingly.
2 Locate and mark out position of construction works	2.1 Existing site features are located from the site plan.
	2.2 Position of proposed construction works is located from the site plan.
	2.3 Scale measurements of lines, shapes, angles and dimensions are transferred from the site plan to site.
	2.4 The shape of proposed construction works is marked out on site according to the site plan and specifications.
3 Establish datum point and survey benchmarks on site	3.1 Datum point is established to ensure all existing and proposed construction works can be linked by survey equipment.
	3.2 Survey benchmarks are selected and established on positions/structures on site according to site plan and specifications.
4 Take and verify site levels	4.1 Levelling equipment is set up and checked for accuracy of readings.
	4.2 Instruments, which are out of specification, are adjusted accordingly.
	4.3 Levels are taken, verified and recorded in accordance with established datum point and survey benchmarks.

4.4 Levelling equipment is cleaned, maintained and stored according to manufacturers instructions.

Evidence Guide

What evidence is required to demonstrate competence for this standard as a whole?

Competence in setting out a site for construction works requires evidence that site plans and specifications can be interpreted correctly, and that information can be transferred from a site plan onto a site. This transfer of information involves the locating and marking out of the position of proposed construction works, then the checking of horizontal and vertical levels prior to any works being undertaken.

The skills and knowledge required to set out a site for construction works must be transferable to a different work environment. For example, a person who can set out a site for the construction of drainage or irrigation systems, should be able to set out a site for the construction of retaining walls, garden beds or pergolas. This could include different landscape features, work site environment and enterprise procedures.

What specific knowledge is needed to achieve the performance criteria?

Knowledge and understanding are essential to apply this standard in the workplace, to transfer the skills to other contexts, and to deal with unplanned events. The knowledge requirements for this competency standard are listed below:

interpretation of symbols and use of a legend on site plans and specifications, particularly in relation to benchmarks and the location of existing features understanding of compass directions, the difference between true North and magnetic North and how to locate North from a site plan an awareness of other plans that may be referred to when setting out a site for construction works an awareness of common levelling and surveying terms environmental awareness associated with the preparation for construction works to ensure that the impact on the environment is minimal when works are implemented OHS hazards associated with setting out a site for construction works.

What specific skills are needed to achieve the performance criteria?	To achieve the performance criteria, appropriate literacy and numeracy levels as well as some complementary skills are required. These include the ability to: implement mathematical and geometrical principles when locating and marking out a site for construction works use a range of surveyors instruments analyse and interpret detailed site plans and specifications.

What processes should be applied to this competency standard?

There are a number of processes that are learnt throughout work and life, which are required in all jobs. They are fundamental processes and generally transferable to other work functions. Some of these are covered by the key competencies, although others may be added. The questions below highlight how these processes are applied in this competency standard. Following each question a number in brackets indicates the level to which the key competency needs to be demonstrated where 0 = not required, 1 = perform the process, 2 = perform and administer the process and 3 = perform, administer and design the process.

1. How can communication of ideas and information (1) be applied?	The taking of site levels and recording of readings using surveyors instruments may need to be communicated to a fellow worker.
2. How can information be collected, analysed and organised (1)?	Site plans and specifications outline information that should be analysed and then transferred on to a site.
3. How are activities planned and organised (1)?	The setting out of a site for construction works may require a number of activities to be planned and organised.

4. How can team work (1) be applied?	Team work may be required to mark out the shape of proposed construction works.
5. How can the use of mathematical ideas and techniques (1) be applied?	Mathematical ideas and techniques, such as the reading of levelling equipment and the use of geometrical shapes, may be required.
6. How can problem-solving skills (1) be applied?	Problems may arise when surveying instruments are out of specification and require adjustment.
7. How can the use of technology (1) be applied?	Technology may be applied with the use of levelling equipment.

Are there other competency standards that could be assessed with this one?

This competency standard could be assessed on its own or in combination with other competencies relevant to the job function.

There is essential information about assessing this competency standard for consistent performance and where and how it may be assessed, in the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package. All users of these competency standards must have access to the Assessment Guidelines. Further advice may also be sought from the relevant sector booklet.

Range Statement

Range of Variables

The Range of Variables explains the contexts within which the performance and knowledge requirements of this standard may be assessed. The scope of variables chosen in particular training and assessment requirements may depend on the work situations availabl

What components are likely to be included in site plans and specifications?	Components may include site location, scale of plan, north symbol, name of project, legend, associated plan references, plant lists, details of special features, existing vegetation and structures, and services above and below ground.
What other available plans may be referred	Other plans may include surveyors plans to?	which may provide information on utility services, site levels, boundary lines, easements and rights of way, or engineers and architect plans that may show other proposed works.

What equipment is likely to be used when setting out a site for construction works?	Equipment may include tapes, a compass, pegs, string lines, line marking equipment, a lump or mash hammer, ranging rods, arrows, plumb bobs, levelling equipment, and personal safety equipment such as a coloured vest, safety boots, sun hat and sun screen lotion.
What could be considered an environmental impact in relation to proposed construction works?	Any construction works may impact on the environment in either a positive or negative manner. If it is drainage and irrigation, this may reduce excess water, nutrient and chemical flow into natural waterways. If the works involve excavation, then this may damage the soil structure and stability of the site.
What OHS hazards may apply to setting out a site for construction works?	Hazards may include solar radiation, uneven surfaces, strings, tapes and measures that may be tripped over, sharp equipment and surrounding obstacles.
How would existing site features be located from a site plan?	The location of features may include the use of baselines, offset measurements, angles and grids.
What scale measurements are likely to be used on site plans?	Metric scales may include: 1 metre to 10 metres = 1:10, 1 metre to 20 metres = 1:20, 1 metre to 50 metres = 1:50, 1 metre to 100 metres = 1:100 and 1 metre to 200 metres = 1:200.
What shape are proposed construction works likely to be on a site plan?	Proposed construction works are likely to be basic geometric shapes including straight lines, curved lines, circles, squares, triangles, rectangles and ellipses.
How could the shape of the proposed construction works be marked out on site?	The shapes may be marked out or set out on the site by using paint from a spray can, lime, stringlines, pegs, stakes, rods and arrows.
What are the likely reasons for taking levels	The reasons for taking levels may be to

when setting out a site for construction works?	determine height above sea level or a datum of drainage outlets, areas and volumes in cut and fill operations, any changes in slope or gradient of the land, contours of the land, to provide the means for safe and efficient construction of structures, to achieve falls for drainage of stormwater from pavements, falls in pipe work or for installing sumps and drains, and to help set out of step risers, treads, goings, nosings, landings and hand-rails to Australian Building Regulations.
What levelling equipment is likely to be used to verify site levels?	Levelling equipment may include spirit levels, line bubbles, water levels, boning rods, dumpy levels, pegs, tilting levels, automatic levels, laser levels, plumb bobs, staves and tripods.

For more information on contexts, environment and variables for training and assessment, refer to the Sector Booklet.

Required Skills and Knowledge

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

The following skills must be assessed as part of this unit:

safe handling techniques for chemicals, tools and equipment communication skills, including active listening and questioning techniques to determine, clarify and inform work requirements literacy and numeracy skills to interpret manufacturer guidelines for use and maintenance of tools and equipment and accurately calculate application of fertiliser organisational and self-management skills to complete required tasks according to supervisor instructions and workplace policies and procedures.

The following knowledge must be assessed as part of this unit:

types and characteristics of annual and perennial weeds

water and general health requirements of plants chemical and non-chemical weed treatment control measures vehicle handling procedures for turf maintenance equipment where driving on public roads is required

broad working knowledge of relevant federal, state or territory, and local government legislation and regulations relating to OHS and safe use and storage of chemicals, tools and equipment workplace policies and procedures regarding general grounds care operating and maintenance requirements of relevant hand tools and equipment.

Evidence Guide

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, the range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: ability to select, prepare, use, clean and maintain the required tools and equipment according to supervisor instructions and manufacturer guidelines the ongoing care and maintenance of grass and plants inclusive of weed control and diseased and damaged plants knowledge of different weed types and associated treatment controls providing different types of general grounds care on multiple occasions to ensure consistency of performance and ability to respond to different situations.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: demonstration of skills in an environment that has plants and grass, including plants in different states of repair access to weed treatments and fertiliser access to watering, weeding and mowing equipment and personal protective equipment.
Methods of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: observation of candidate demonstrating appropriate planning and preparation for work; maintaining grassed areas; applying fertiliser; treating and removing weeds, and diseased and damaged plants; watering grass and plants; and cleaning up work site written or verbal questioning to assess knowledge and understanding of relevant

EVIDENCE GUIDE

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

Evidence of the following is essential:

- ability to identify and prioritise building and grounds development proposals and to prepare schedules to meet the specific and current needs of the workplace
- the ongoing inspection and documentation of building and grounds maintenance requirements
- evaluating different types of building and grounds maintenance and development needs on multiple occasions and over a period of time to ensure consistency of performance and ability to respond to and evaluate different situations.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure:

- demonstration of skills in an environment where building and grounds inspections can occur to inform the development of plans, schedules and reports
- access to relevant documentation, such as maintenance reports and building and grounds development proposals.

Methods of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- observation identifying building and grounds maintenance and development requirements, inspecting building and grounds maintenance needs, identifying and prioritising building and grounds maintenance and development proposals and preparing reports
- written or verbal questioning to assess knowledge and understanding of relevant legislation and workplace policies and procedures with regard to evaluating building and maintenance needs
- review of workplace documents completed by candidate

That is, assessors (or persons within the assessment team) must be competent in this unit but preferably be competent in the unit at the level above be current in their knowledge and understanding of the industry through provision of evidence of professional activity in the relevant area have attained the mandatory competency requirements for assessors under the Australian Quality Training Framework (AQTF) as specified in Standard 7.3 of the Standards for Registered Training Organisations
Consistency in performance	Competence in this unit must be assessed over a period of time in order to ensure consistency of performance over the Range Statements and contexts applicable to the work environment
Context for assessment	This unit of competency must be assessed in the context of sport or recreation in Australia. For valid and reliable assessment the sport or recreation activity should closely replicate the work environment. The environment should be safe, with the hazards, circumstances and equipment likely to be encountered in a real workplace This unit of competency should be assessed through the observation of processes and procedures, oral and/or written questioning on required knowledge and skills and consideration of required attitudes Where performance is not directly observed and/or is required to be demonstrated over a "period of time" and/or in a "number of locations", any evidence should be authenticated by colleagues, supervisors, clients or other appropriate persons

TLIB307C Carry out vehicle servicing and maintenance

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

This unit involves the skills and knowledge required to carry out basic servicing and maintenance of a commercial vehicle, including action to implement vehicle manufacturers specifications for routine checks and maintenance and to ensure that all specified safety requirements are met, and that the vehicle is operational to the requirements of both the workplace and the relevant state/territory roads and traffic authority.

Application of the Unit

Work must be carried out in compliance with the regulations of the relevant roads and traffic authority.

Work is performed with limited or minimum supervision, and with limited accountability and responsibility for self and others in achieving the prescribed outcomes. It involves the application of routine vehicle checking and maintenance principles and procedures to service and maintain a commercial vehicle across a variety of operational contexts.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED KNOWLEDGE AND SKILLS

This describes the essential knowledge and skills and their level required for this unit.

Required knowledge:

Relevant 'duty of care' requirements for the routine servicing and maintenance of vehicles

Relevant OH&S and pollution control procedures

Procedures for the checking and routine service and maintenance of a commercial vehicle in accordance with workplace and the manufacturer's requirements and established safety rules and regulations

Problems that may occur during the routine servicing and maintenance of a vehicle and appropriate action and solutions

Recognition and diagnosis of faults and vehicle irregularities

Basic principles of operation of systems on commercial vehicles, including: electrical systems, fuel systems, cooling systems, steering systems, exhaust systems, tyres and brakes

Basic fault finding procedures required during routine servicing and maintenance of vehicles

Procedures required to minimise waste during routine servicing and maintenance

Housekeeping standards required for routine servicing and maintenance

Procedures for the use and maintenance of the materials, tools and parts required for routine servicing and maintenance

Reporting and documentation requirements

Required skills:

Communicate effectively with others when carrying out vehicle servicing and maintenance

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Read and interpret instructions, procedures, information and signs relevant to vehicle servicing and maintenance

Interpret and follow operational instructions and prioritise work

Complete documentation related to vehicle servicing and maintenance

Operate electronic communication equipment to required protocol

Work collaboratively with others

Adapt appropriately to cultural differences in the workplace, including modes of behaviour and interactions with others

Promptly report and/or rectify any identified problems, faults or malfunctions identified when carrying out vehicle servicing and maintenance in accordance with regulatory requirements and workplace procedures

Implement contingency plans for unplanned events

Apply precautions and required action to minimise, control or eliminate hazards that may exist during vehicle servicing and maintenance

Monitor work activities in terms of planned schedule

Modify activities depending on differing operational contingencies, risk situations and environments

Apply fatigue management knowledge and techniques

Work systematically with required attention to detail without injury to self or others, or damage to vehicle or equipment

Operate and adapt to differences in equipment in accordance with standard operating procedures

Select and use required personal protective equipment conforming to industry and OH&S standards

Monitor performance of equipment

Service equipment in terms of maintenance schedule and standard operating procedures

Check and replenish fluids and carry out lubrication processes in the course of vehicle servicing and maintenance

Unit Descriptor

This unit involves the skills and knowledge required to drive commercial light vehicles and cars safely, including the systematic, safe and efficient control of all vehicle functions, monitoring of traffic and road conditions, management of vehicle condition, and performance and effective management of hazardous situations. Assessment of this unit may be undertaken within a licensing examination conducted by, or under the authority of, the relevant state/territory Road Traffic Authority.

Application of the Unit

Driving must be carried out in compliance with the licence requirements and regulations of the relevant state/territory roads and traffic authority.

Driving is performed with limited or minimum supervision, and with limited accountability and responsibility for self and others in achieving the prescribed outcomes.

Driving involves the application of routine vehicle driving principles and procedures to maintain the safety and operation of a commercial vehicle across a variety of driving contexts.

Elements and Performance Criteria

Elements and Performance Criteria

Element	Performance Criteria
1 Drive the vehicle	1.1 Vehicle is started, steered, manoeuvred, positioned and stopped in accordance with traffic regulations and manufacturers instructions
	1.2 Engine power is managed to ensure efficiency and performance and to minimise engine and transmission damage
	1.3 Driving hazards are identified and/or anticipated and avoided or controlled through defensive driving
	1.4 The vehicle is driven in reverse, maintaining visibility and achieving accurate positioning
	1.5 Vehicle lights and indicators are used in accordance with traffic regulations and manufacturers instructions
	1.6 The vehicle is parked, shut down and secured in accordance with manufacturers specifications, traffic regulations and workplace procedures
	1.7 Appropriate procedures are followed in the event of a driving emergency
2 Monitor traffic and road conditions	2.1 The most efficient route of travel is taken through monitoring and anticipation of traffic flows and conditions, road standards and other factors likely to cause delays or route deviations
	2.2 Traffic and road conditions are constantly monitored and acted upon to enable safe operation and ensure no injury to people or damage to property, equipment, loads and facilities
3 Monitor and maintain vehicle performance	3.1 Vehicle performance is maintained through pre-operational inspections and checks of the vehicle

3.2 Performance and efficiency of vehicle operation is monitored during use

3.3 Defective or irregular performance or malfunctions are reported to the appropriate authority

3.4 Vehicle records are maintained/updated and information is processed in accordance with workplace procedures

Required Skills and Knowledge

This describes the essential knowledge and skills and their level required for this unit.

Required knowledge:

Relevant road rules, regulations, permit and licence requirements of the relevant state/territory road traffic authority

Relevant OH&S and environmental procedures and regulations

Vehicle controls, instruments and indicators and their use

Vehicle handling procedures

Workplace driving and operational instructions

Driving hazards and related defensive driving techniques

Procedures to be followed in the event of a driving emergency

Engine power management and safe driving strategies

Efficient driving techniques

Pre-operational checks carried out on vehicle and related action

Differences between transmission types

Map reading and road navigation techniques

Factors which may cause traffic delays and diversions and related action that can be taken by a driver

Principles of stress management when driving a vehicle

Causes and effects of fatigue on drivers

Factors which increase fatigue-related accidents

Fatigue management strategies including on-road techniques

Lifestyles which promote the effective long-term management of fatigue

Required skills:

Communicate effectively with others when driving a commercial vehicle

Read and interpret instructions, procedures, information and signs relevant to the driving of a commercial vehicle

Interpret and follow operational instructions and prioritise work

Complete documentation related to the driving of a commercial vehicle

Operate electronic communication equipment to required protocol

Work collaboratively with others when driving a commercial vehicle

Adapt appropriately to cultural differences in the workplace, including modes of behaviour and interactions with others

Promptly report and/or rectify any identified problems, faults or malfunctions that may arise when driving a commercial vehicle in accordance with regulatory requirements and workplace procedures

Implement contingency plans for unexpected events that may occur when driving a commercial vehicle

Apply precautions and required action to minimise, control or eliminate hazards that may exist during the driving of a commercial vehicle

Monitor and anticipate traffic hazards and take appropriate action

Modify activities depending on differing operational contingencies, risk situations and environments

Apply fatigue management knowledge and techniques

Work systematically with required attention to detail without injury to self or others, or damage to goods or equipment

Operate and adapt to differences in equipment in accordance with standard operating procedures

Monitor performance of vehicle and take appropriate action where required

Check and replenish fluids and carry out lubrication processes in the course of work activities

Evidence Guide

Context of and specific resources for assessment	Performance is demonstrated consistently over a period of time and in a suitable range of contexts Resources for assessment include: a range of relevant exercises, case studies and other simulated practical and knowledge assessment, and/or access to an appropriate range of relevant operational situations in the workplace In both real and simulated environments, access is required to: relevant and appropriate materials and/or equipment, and/or applicable documentation including workplace procedures, regulations, codes of practice and operation manuals
Method of assessment	Assessment of this unit must be undertaken by a registered training organisation

	As a minimum, assessment of knowledge must be conducted through appropriate written/oral tests Practical assessment must occur: through appropriately simulated activities at the registered training organisation, and/or in an appropriate range of situations in the workplace

RANGE STATEMENT

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance.

Type of vehicle includes:	cars and vehicles equal to or less than 4.5 tonnes GVM and seating up to 12 adults, including the driver, and all types of transmission
Driving may be carried out in typical road transport situations, including:	operations conducted at day or night typical weather conditions on the open road
	on a private road
	while at a depot, base or warehouse while at a client's workplace or work site
Vehicle handling procedures may include:	starting a vehicle

Unit Descriptor

This unit involves the skills and knowledge required to carry out basic routine workplace calculations, including carrying out required mathematical operations, preparing basic estimates of mass, size and volume, and interpreting basic graphical representations of mathematical information. It includes calculations for routine industry-related tasks using manual and electronic processes. It specifically includes the skills and knowledge needed to estimate/calculate manual load shifting requirements.

Application of the Unit

Calculations are carried out as an integral part of routine work in the context of the workplace concerned.

Work is performed under some supervision, generally within a team environment.

Work involves the application of established mathematical principles and techniques in day-to-day work activities.

1 Carry out calculations	1.1 Items are counted singly and in batches and sorted numerically, as required in workplace tasks
	1.2 Calculations needed to complete work tasks are performed using the four basic processes of addition, subtraction, multiplication and division
	1.3 Calculations involving fractions, percentages and mixed numbers, and using the four basic processes, are performed as required to complete workplace tasks
	1.4 The functions of a calculator, numeric keypad or computer are used to perform workplace tasks
	1.5 Numerical information is self-checked and corrected for accuracy
2 Prepare estimates	2.1 Quantities of materials and resources required to complete a work task are estimated
	2.2 The time needed to complete a work activity is estimated
	2.3 Accurate estimates for work completion are made
3 Interpret graphical representations of mathematical information	3.1 Information represented in symbols, diagrams and pictorial representations is recognised, interpreted and acted upon in workplace tasks

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
	1.4	Suggestions to assist with the filling of gas cylinders are made to others involved in the work
	1.5	Hazards are identified, OHS risks assessed and control measures are prioritised, implemented and monitored including emergency exits kept clear according to established procedures
	1.6	Scope of responsibility under the relevant work permit are received and confirmed according to requirements and established procedures with relevant persons
	1.7	Resources including equipment, tools and personal protective equipment required for the job are obtained and in working order according to established procedures
	1.8	Relevant responsibilities associated with First Aid and other related work safety procedures at the worksite are confirmed in accordance with requirements and established procedures to ensure safety measures and followed in the instance of an incident.
	1.9	Client issues are referred to appropriate persons in accordance with industry and community standards
	1.10	Site is prepared according to given instructions and the work schedule for a quality outcome and to minimise risk and damage to property, commerce and individuals in accordance with established procedures
2 Fill cylinders	2.1	OHS policies and procedures and safe work practices are followed to eliminate or minimise incidents and hazards
	2.2	Lifting, climbing, working in confined spaces or aloft, and use of power tools, techniques and practices are safely followed in accordance with given instructions and according to requirements confirmed to eliminate the prospects of incidents

Overview of Assessment

8.1)

Longitudinal competency development approaches to assessment, such as Profiling, require data to be reliably gathered in a form that can be consistently interpreted over time. This approach is best utilised in Apprenticeship programs and reduces assessment intervention. It is the Industry's preferred model for apprenticeships. However, where summative (or final) assessment is used it is to include the application of the competency in the normal work environment or, at a minimum, the application of the competency in a realistically simulated work environment. It is recognised that, in some circumstances, assessment in part or full can occur outside the workplace. However, it must be in accord with Industry and Regulatory policy in this regard.

Methods chosen for a particular assessment will be influenced by various factors. These include the extent of the assessment, the most effective locations for the assessment activities to take place, access to physical resources, additional safety measures that may be required and the critical nature of the competencies being assessed.

The critical safety nature of working with electricity, electrical equipment, gas or any other hazardous substance/material carries risk in deeming a person competent. Hence, sources of evidence need to be 'rich' in nature so as to minimise error in judgment.

Activities associated with normal every day work have a bearing on the decision as to how much and how detailed the data gathered will contribute to its 'richness'. Some skills are more critical to safety and operational requirements while the same skills may be more or less frequently practiced. These points are raised for the assessors to consider when choosing an assessment method and developing assessment instruments. Sample assessment instruments are included for Assessors in the Assessment Guidelines of this Training Package.

Critical aspects of evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

Before the critical aspects of evidence are considered all prerequisites shall be met.

Evidence for competence in this unit shall be considered holistically. Each element and associated Performance Criteria shall be demonstrated on at least two occasions in accordance with the 'Assessment Guidelines UEG06'. Evidence shall also comprise:

EVIDENCE GUIDE

- A representative body of Performance Criteria demonstrated within the timeframes typically expected of the discipline, work function and industrial environment. In particular this shall incorporate evidence that shows a candidate is able to:
  - Implement Occupational Health and Safety workplace procedures and practices including the use of risk control measures as specified in the Performance Criteria and range
  - Apply sustainable energy principles and practices as specified in the Performance Criteria and range
  - Demonstrate an understanding of the essential knowledge and associated skills as described in this unit to such an extent that the learner's performance outcome is reported in accordance with the preferred approach; namely a percentile graded result, where required by the regulated environment
  - Demonstrate an appropriate level of skills enabling employment
  - Conduct work observing the relevant Anti discrimination legislation, regulations, polices and workplace procedures
  - Demonstrate performance across a representative range of contexts from the prescribed items below.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

8.3)

This unit should be assessed as it relates to normal work practice using procedures, information and resources typical of a workplace. This should include:

- OHS policy and work procedures and instructions.
- Suitable work environment, facilities, equipment and materials to undertake actual work as prescribed by this Competency Standard Unit.
- Appropriate environmental regulation and work practices.
- Appropriate organisational requirements.
- Appropriate work environment, equipment and tools.

In addition to the resources listed above, in Context of and specific resources for assessment, evidence should show demonstrated competency in filling gas cylinders.

Assessment of this competency must also be undertaken in either an actual workplace or under a simulated work environment. Assessment must also integrate the Key Competencies.

Method of assessment

This Competency Standard Unit shall be assessed by methods given in Volume 1, Part 3 'Assessment Guidelines'.

Note:
Competent performance with inherent safe working practices is expected in the Industry to which this Competency Standard Unit applies. This requires that the specified Essential Knowledge and Associated Skills are assessed in a structured environment which is primarily intended for learning/assessment and incorporates all necessary equipment and facilities for learners to develop and demonstrate the essential knowledge and associated skills described in this unit.

Concurrent assessment and relationship with other units

There are no recommended concurrent assessments with this unit, however in some cases efficiencies may be gained in terms of learning and assessment effort being concurrently managed with allied Competency Standard Units where listed.

UEGNSG102A	Carry out work activities in a utilities industry work environment
UEGNSG103A	Comply with workplace OHS procedures and practices
UEGNSG104A	Comply with environmental policies and procedures
UEGNSG105A	Establish the work site

Key Competencies

8.6)

Evidence that particular Key Competencies have been achieved within this Competency Standard Unit is in the context of the following Performance Criteria of evidence. See Volume 2, Part 4 for an explanation of Key Competencies and levels of this Training Package.

Key Competencies	Example of Application	Performance Level
How are ideas and information communicated within this competency?	Refer to the following Performance Criteria for examples of application: 1.4; 2.6; 3.5	1
How can information be collected, analysed and organised?	Refer to the following Performance Criteria for examples of application: 1.5; 2.5; 3.1; 3.6	2
How are activities planned and organised?	Refer to the following Performance Criteria for examples of application: 1.2	1

How are mathematical ideas and techniques used?	Refer to the following Performance Criteria for examples of application:	N/A
How are problem solving skills applied?	Refer to the following Performance Criteria for examples of application:	N/A
How is use of technology applied?	Refer to the following Performance Criteria for examples of application:	N/A

Skills Enabling Employment

Evidence that competency in this unit incorporates skills enabling employment is in the context of the following performance. See Volume 2, Part 5 for definitions and an explanation of skills enabling employment.

Skills for Employment		Example of Application
1	Developing and using skills within a real workplace	Refer to the following Performance Criteria for examples of application: All
2	Learning to learn in the workplace	Refer to the following Performance Criteria for examples of application: 1.1; 1.5
3	Reflecting on the outcome and process of work task	Refer to the following Performance Criteria for examples of application: 3.1; 3.6
4	Interacting and understanding of the context of the work task	Refer to the following Performance Criteria for examples of application: 1.2; 2.5; 2.8; 3.3

5	Planning and organising the meaningful work task	Refer to the following Performance Criteria for examples of application: 1.4; 1.5; 1.7
6	Performing the work task in non-routine or contingent situations	Refer to the following Performance Criteria for examples of application: 2.6; 2.7

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT

7) This relates to the competency standard unit as a whole providing the range of contexts and conditions to which the Performance Criteria apply. It allows for different work environments and situations that will affect performance.

This Competency Standard Unit shall/may be demonstrated in relation to filling gas cylinders.
