Preliminary information

Preliminary information

Important note to users

Training Packages are not static documents; they are amended periodically to reflect the latest industry practices and are version controlled. It is essential that the latest version is always used.

Check the version number before commencing training or assessment

This Training Package is Version 2 – check whether this is the latest version by going to the National Training Information Service (www.ntis.gov.au) and locating information about the Training Package. Alternatively, contact Service Skills Australia (www.serviceskills.com.au) to confirm the latest version number.

Explanation of version number conventions

The primary release Training Package is Version 1. When changes are made to a Training Package, sometimes the version number is changed and sometimes it is not, depending on the extent of the change. When a Training Package is reviewed it is considered to be a new Training Package for the purposes of version control, and is Version 1. Do not confuse the version number with the Training Package's national code (which remains the same during its period of endorsement).

Explanation of the review date

The review date (shown on the title page and in the footer of each page) indicates when the Training Package is expected to be reviewed in the light of changes such as changing technologies and circumstances. The review date is not an expiry date. Endorsed Training Packages and their components remain current until they are reviewed or replaced.

Overview

Overview

Overview of Training Packages

What is a Training Package?

A Training Package is an integrated set of nationally endorsed competency standards, assessment guidelines and Australian Qualifications Framework (AQF) qualifications for a specific industry, industry sector or enterprise.

Each Training Package:

- provides a consistent and reliable set of components for training, and recognising and assessing people's skills, and may also have optional support materials
- enables nationally recognised qualifications to be awarded through direct assessment of workplace competencies
- encourages the development and delivery of flexible training which suits individual and industry requirements
- encourages learning and assessment in a work-related environment which leads to verifiable workplace outcomes.

How do Training Packages fit within the National Training Framework?

The National Training Framework is made up of the nationally agreed quality arrangements for the vocational education and training sector, the Australian Quality Training Framework (AQTF), and Training Packages endorsed by the National Quality Council (NQC).

How are Training Packages developed?

Training Packages are developed by Industry Skills Councils or enterprises to meet the identified training needs of specific industries or industry sectors. To gain national endorsement of Training Packages, developers must provide evidence of extensive research, consultation and support within the industry area or enterprise.

How do Training Packages encourage flexibility?

Training Packages describe the skills and knowledge needed to perform effectively in the workplace without prescribing how people should be trained.

Training Packages acknowledge that people can achieve vocational competency in many ways by emphasising what the learner can do, not how or where they learned to do it. For example, some experienced workers might be able to demonstrate competency against the units of competency, and even gain a qualification, without completing a formal training program.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

With Training Packages, assessment and training may be conducted at the workplace, off the job, at a training organisation, during regular work, or through work experience, work placement, work simulation or any combination of these.

Who can deliver and assess using Training Packages?

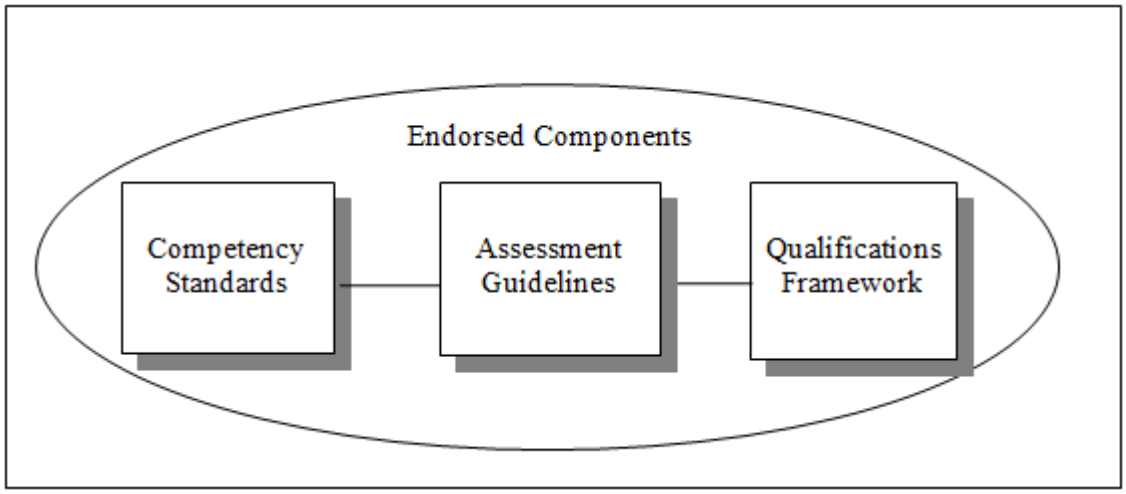
Training and assessment using Training Packages must be conducted by a registered training organisation (RTO) that has the qualifications or specific units of competency on its scope of registration, or that works in partnership with another RTO as specified in the AQTF Standards for Registered Training Organisations.

Training Package components

Training Packages are made up of mandatory components endorsed by the NQC and optional support materials.

Training Package endorsed components

The nationally endorsed components include the Competency Standards, Assessment Guidelines and Qualifications Framework. These form the basis of training and assessment in the Training Package and, as such, they must be used.



Competency Standards

Each unit of competency identifies a discrete workplace requirement and includes the knowledge and skills that underpin competency as well as language, literacy and numeracy; and occupational health and safety requirements. The units of competency must be adhered to in training and assessment to ensure consistency of outcomes.

Assessment Guidelines

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

The Assessment Guidelines provide an industry framework to ensure all assessments meet industry needs and nationally agreed standards as expressed in the Training Package and the Standards for Registered Training Organisations. The Assessment Guidelines must be followed to ensure the integrity of assessment leading to nationally recognised qualifications.

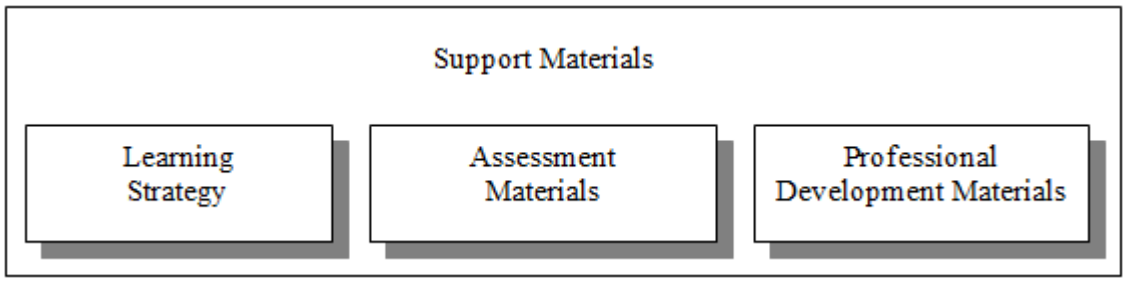
Qualifications Framework

Each Training Package provides details of those units of competency that must be achieved to award AQF qualifications. The rules around which units of competency can be combined to make up a valid AQF qualification in the Training Package are referred to as the 'packaging rules'. The packaging rules must be followed to ensure the integrity of the nationally recognised qualifications issued.

Training Package support materials

The endorsed components of Training Packages are complemented and supported by optional support materials that provide for choice in the design of training and assessment to meet the needs of industry and learners.

Training Package support materials can relate to single or multiple units of competency, an industry sector, a qualification or the whole Training Package. They tend to fall into one or more of the categories illustrated below.



Training Package support materials are produced by a range of stakeholders such as RTOs, individual trainers and assessors, private and commercial developers and government agencies.

Where such materials have been quality assured through a process of 'noting' by the NTQC, they display the following official logo. Noted support materials are listed on the National Training Information Service (NTIS) website, together with a detailed description and information on the type of product and its availability (www.ntis.gov.au).

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

It is not compulsory to submit support materials for noting; any resources that meet the requirements of the Training Package can be used.

Training Package qualification and unit of competency codes

There are agreed conventions for the national codes used for Training Packages and their components. Always use the correct codes, exactly as they appear in the Training Package, and with the title always following the code.

Training Package codes

Each Training Package has a unique five-character national code assigned when the Training Package is endorsed, for example SIT07. The first three characters are letters identifying the Training Package industry coverage and the last two characters are numbers identifying the year of endorsement.

Qualification codes

Within each Training Package, each qualification has a unique eight-character code, for example SIT50107. The first three letters identify the Training Package; the first number identifies the qualification level (noting that Arabic numbers are not used in qualification titles themselves); the next two numbers identify the position in the sequence of the qualification at that level; and the last two numbers identify the year in which the qualification was endorsed. (Where qualifications are added after the initial Training Package endorsement, the last two numbers may differ from other Training Package qualifications as they identify the year in which those particular qualifications were endorsed.)

Unit of competency codes

Within each Training Package, each unit of competency has a unique code. The unit of competency codes are assigned when the Training Package is endorsed, or when new units of competency are added to an existing endorsed Training Package.

A typical code is made up of 12 characters, normally a mixture of uppercase letters and numbers, as in SITXEVT019A. The first three characters signify the Training Package (SIT07 Tourism, Hospitality and Events Training Package in the above example) and up to eight characters, relating to an industry sector, function or skill area, follow. The last character is always a letter and identifies the unit of competency version. The ‘A’ in the example above indicates that this is the original unit of competency. An incremented version identifier usually means that minor changes have been made. Typically this would mean that wording has changed in the range statement or evidence guide, providing clearer intent. Where changes are made that alter the outcome, a new code is assigned and the title is changed.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Training Package qualification and unit of competency titles

There are agreed conventions for titling Training Packages and their components. Always use the correct titles, exactly as they appear in the Training Package, and with the code always placed before the title.

Training Package titles

The title of each endorsed Training Package is unique and relates the Training Package's broad industry coverage.

Qualification titles

The title of each endorsed Training Package qualification is unique. Qualification titles use the following sequence:

- firstly, the qualification is identified as either Certificate I, Certificate II, Certificate III, Certificate IV, Diploma or Advanced Diploma
- this is followed by the words 'in' for Certificates I to IV and 'of' for Diploma and Advanced Diploma
- then the industry descriptor follows, for example Telecommunications
- if applicable, the occupational or functional stream follows in brackets, for example (Computer Systems).

For example:

- ICT40302 Certificate IV in Telecommunications (Computer Systems)
- FNB50802 Diploma of Financial Services (General Insurance).

Unit of competency titles

Each unit of competency title is unique. Unit of competency titles describe the competency outcome concisely, and are written in sentence case.

For example:

- ICTCC252A Resolve customer complaints
- FNBLIF29A Undertake risk assessment.

Overview of the Development of Tourism, Hospitality and Events Training Package

Version 1

- The SIT07 Tourism, Hospitality and Events Training Package represents review, redevelopment, rationalisation and integration. of two previous Training Packages. These are:
- THH02 Hospitality Training Package (initially endorsed in 1997 and reviewed in 2002)
- THT02 Tourism Training Package (initially endorsed in 1998 and reviewed in 2002).

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

This review, resulting in the development of SIT07, has been funded by the Department of Education, Employment and Workplace Relations (DEEWR) and managed by Service Skills Australia. The review was directed by a national industry reference group and involved input from a diverse range of employers, employer bodies, employees, unions, public and private RTOs, state training authorities and key government regulators of the tourism and hospitality industry. The findings of the review have informed significant change, leading to the development of one integrated Tourism, Hospitality and Events Training Package.

Initial consultation involved a review of the 2002 versions of the Tourism and Hospitality Training Packages and collection of comments on the contents and effectiveness of delivery and assessment. Validation has involved the dissemination of all contents of the reviewed Training Package to ensure the enhanced product meets the needs of all users and provides industry with quality training and assessment outcomes.

Changes within industry since 2002 and within the policy framework for the development of Training Packages (many arising from the High Level Review of Training Packages) have resulted in the following key changes.

- The two stand-alone industry Training Packages have been merged into one single Training Package, now known as the Tourism, Hospitality and Events Training Package.
- Employability skills are now explicitly embedded in units as the result of a major industry and DEEWR initiative.
- Units of competency are now presented using the new DEEWR template designed to ensure consistency across all Training Packages. The new ‘application’ statement provides clear information about how the unit can apply to different contexts, locations and job roles, who performs the function described by the unit and at what level. The ‘critical aspects for assessment’ statements provide focused information on essential assessment evidence to be collected and the ‘context of and specific resources for assessment’ statements detail the required environmental location and resources.
- Units of competency have been updated and enhanced to:
  - ensure that new technology, legislation and industry trends are fully covered
  - provide clearer advice on the scope and level of knowledge, literacy and communication skills required
  - reflect industry’s requests to outline stringent assessment requirements more clearly and explicitly in the evidence guide.
- A new coding system has been applied to all units and qualifications.
- Qualifications have been rationalised and improved to ensure they are increasingly flexible to meet industry’s increasing need for multi-skilled workers; especially relevant for small business operators. Many qualifications also allow for specialisation to reflect the needs of traditional industry sectors and specialist job functions.
- An Employability Skills Summary table is provided for each qualification to provide holistic guidance to trainers and assessors and to assist employers to understand the generic skills delivered by the qualification.

Details of specific changes and a mapping between the previous Training Package and this version are outlined in the preliminary pages to this Training Package.

Version 2

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

The SIT07 Tourism, Hospitality and Events Training Package was updated in July 2009 to reflect the outcomes of the review of the THC04 Caravan Industry Training Package. The THC04 Caravan Industry Training Package review resulted in the decision to disband the Training Package and include the qualifications for the holiday parks and resorts sector in the SIT07.

Other improvements to SIT07 include:

- Changes made to food and beverage units to better reflect requirements for wine, beer, spirits and liquor product knowledge.
- Coverage of gas safety due to the introduction of the Australian Standard AS5034-2005:Installation and Use of Inert Gases for Beverage Dispensing
- Skill sets added

Licensing and other regulatory arrangements for the tourism, hospitality and events industries

The industry sectors covered by this Training Package are subject to a range of business licensing, business compliance and occupational licensing arrangements, including:

- travel agent licensing
- liquor licensing, especially responsible service of alcohol provisions
- food safety compliance
- OHS compliance
- financial services compliance for those selling travel insurance, such as tour wholesalers and retail travel agencies
- tourism services legislation, currently operative in Queensland only and covering only inbound tour operators and tour guides
- occupational licensing of those dealers who operate table games in licensed casinos.

Individual units of competency cover the requirements of relevant national and state or territory legislation and provide information within the unit descriptor about any special requirements for trainers, assessors, RTOs and candidates themselves. Information is further summarised within the Assessment Guidelines in this Training Package.

Overview of the tourism, hospitality and events industries

Tourism, hospitality and events are in fact three separate industries but have such close links that they are often thought of and presented as one. The interrelationship exists because of the integrated products and services they produce, the close business-to-business relationships that exist across all three industries, the common customers they service and the sales and service staff employed, who often cross industries during their career. Many skills are common across these three service industries and this Training Package provides for both specialist and generic skills development.

The industry notion of tourism, hospitality and events as separate industries in their own right or even as one integrated industry does not coincide precisely with any of the Australian Bureau of Statistics (ABS) industries defined under the Australian New Zealand Standard Industrial Classification (ANZSIC).

The ABS relies on satellite accounts and economic modelling to collect and present information about tourism as a business and economic activity.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Tourism is defined as travel away from the traveller's normal place of work and residence and is much more than just leisure travel. It encompasses travel for a range of reasons, such as business, festivals and events, health, education and religion. It includes both domestic and international travel and involves the consumption of a wide range of goods and services provided by, for example, transport and tour operators, travel agencies, accommodation providers such as holiday parks and resorts, theme parks and attractions, tour guides, sporting, entertainment and arts venues, museums and historical sites, restaurants, cafes and clubs. Increasingly tourism operators are choosing to operate specialised tourism products, and terms such as 'wine tourism', 'cultural tourism' and 'ecotourism' are regularly used.

Tourism's contribution to the Australian economy is measured by the ABS Australian Tourism Satellite Account and incorporates statistics on many areas of hospitality provision. The latest statistics available relate to 2004/5 and the following snapshots from the account show the importance of the industry's contribution:

- a total of $75 billion worth of Australian goods and services were consumed by tourists
- some 5.4 million international visitors consumed $18.3 billion worth of Australian goods and services, 24% of tourism consumption
- domestic tourists consumed $56.4 billion worth of Australian goods and services, 76% of tourism consumption
- tourism accounted for almost $32 billion of Australia's total gross domestic product (GDP)
- international tourism exports contributed 11.1% of total exports of goods and services, greater than those of coal, iron, steel and non-ferrous metals combined
- there were 4.6 million Australian resident departures for travel to international destinations
- the tourism industry directly employed 550,100 persons, representing 5.6 % of all employment, with retail trade, accommodation and restaurants accounting for half of the employment generated by tourism.

Hospitality is commonly defined as the provision of food, beverage, catering, gaming and accommodation services for the consumer who may be a tourist or a local resident. Whereas accommodation providers are more clearly part of the tourism industry, other hospitality businesses such as restaurants, cafes and clubs are found in disparate locations and, accordingly, the clientele varies. Clearly there are some areas where tourists provide the main custom for these hospitality providers, for example in major tourist destinations and in tourist precincts.

Event organisation and management takes place across the full spectrum of business and community activity, often within community, cultural, hospitality, sporting and tourism industries. This Training Package provides relevant units of competency and qualifications for event organisation and management within professional conference organisers, exhibition and event management companies, sporting associations, community organisations, hospitality and cultural venues. It recognises that some event staging skills relate to the cultural and sporting industries, whose Training Packages provide specialist units in skills such as technical production and sporting activities. The SIT07 Training Package allows for importation of these units to allow the event management qualifications to apply across industries and business contexts.

The tourism, hospitality and events industries are dominated by a mix of interdependent small to medium businesses. They are complex industries with no standard way of defining the sectors they comprise. Commonly the industries identify the following sectors which are all covered by this Training Package:

- accommodation
- attractions and theme parks
- casinos
- clubs
- holiday parks and resorts, also known as caravan parks
- hotels
- information services and promotion (local, regional, state or territory, and national)
- meetings, incentives conventions and events (MICE)
- restaurants , cafes and catering
- retail travel
- tour guiding
- tour operations
- tour wholesaling, both inbound and outbound.

This Training Package provides flexible units of competency and qualifications to meet the needs of the very diverse occupations that exist within each of these sectors. Occupations covered by SIT07 include a range of activities in the tourism, hospitality and events industries, such as customer service and sales, operational, commercial cookery and catering, food and beverage service, accommodation service, product development, and marketing and promotion.

The Australian Qualifications Framework

What is the Australian Qualifications Framework?

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

A brief overview of the Australian Qualifications Framework (AQF) follows. For a full explanation of the AQF, see the AQF Implementation Handbook. The 2007 version of the AQF Implementation Handbook is expected to be available on the Australian Qualifications Framework Advisory Board (AQFAB) website <www.aqf.edu.au> during September 2007, and in print in October 2007 (obtain the hard copy by contacting AQFAB on phone 03 9639 1606 or email at aqfab@curriculum.edu.au).

The AQF provides a comprehensive, nationally consistent framework for all qualifications in post-compulsory education and training in Australia. In the vocational education and training (VET) sector it assists national consistency for all trainees, learners, employers and providers by enabling national recognition of qualifications and Statements of Attainment.

Training Package qualifications in the VET sector must comply with the titles and guidelines of the AQF. Endorsed Training Packages provide a unique title for each AQF qualification which must always be reproduced accurately.

Qualifications

Training Packages can incorporate the following eight AQF qualifications.

- Certificate I in ...
- Certificate II in ...
- Certificate III in ...
- Certificate IV in ...
- Diploma of ...
- Advanced Diploma of ...
- Vocational Graduate Certificate of ...
- Vocational Graduate Diploma of ...

On completion of the requirements defined in the Training Package, a Registered Training Organisation (RTO) may issue a nationally recognised AQF qualification. Issuance of AQF qualifications must comply with the advice provided in the AQF Implementation Handbook and the AQTF 2007 Essential Standards for Registration.

Statement of Attainment

A Statement of Attainment is issued by a Registered Training Organisation when an individual has completed one or more units of competency from nationally recognised qualification(s)/courses(s). Issuance of Statements of Attainment must comply with the advice provided in the current AQF Implementation Handbook and the AQTF 2007 Essential Standards for Registration.

Under the AQTF 2007, RTOs must recognise the achievement of competencies as recorded on a qualification or Statement of Attainment issued by other RTOs. Given this, recognised competencies can progressively build towards a full AQF qualification.

AQF guidelines and learning outcomes

The AQF Implementation Handbook provides a comprehensive guideline for each AQF qualification.

A summary of the learning outcome characteristics and their distinguishing features for each VET-related AQF qualification is provided below.

Certificate I

Characteristics of Learning Outcomes

Breadth, depth and complexity of knowledge and skills would prepare a person to perform a defined range of activities most of which may be routine and predictable.

Applications may include a variety of employment related skills including preparatory access and participation skills, broad-based induction skills and/or specific workplace skills. They may also include participation in a team or work group.

Distinguishing Features of Learning Outcomes

Do the competencies enable an individual with this qualification to:

- demonstrate knowledge by recall in a narrow range of areas;
- demonstrate basic practical skills, such as the use of relevant tools;
- perform a sequence of routine tasks given clear direction
- receive and pass on messages/information.

Certificate II

Characteristics of Learning Outcomes

Breadth, depth and complexity of knowledge and skills would prepare a person to perform in a range of varied activities or knowledge application where there is a clearly defined range of contexts in which the choice of actions required is usually clear and there is limited complexity in the range of operations to be applied.

Performance of a prescribed range of functions involving known routines and procedures and some accountability for the quality of outcomes.

Applications may include some complex or non-routine activities involving individual responsibility or autonomy and/or collaboration with others as part of a group or team.

Distinguishing Features of Learning Outcomes

Do the competencies enable an individual with this qualification to:

- demonstrate basic operational knowledge in a moderate range of areas
- apply a defined range of skills
- apply known solutions to a limited range of predictable problems
- perform a range of tasks where choice between a limited range of options is required
- assess and record information from varied sources
- take limited responsibility for own outputs in work and learning.

Certificate III

Characteristics of Learning Outcomes

Breadth, depth and complexity of knowledge and competencies would cover selecting, adapting and transferring skills and knowledge to new environments and providing technical advice and some leadership in resolution of specified problems. This would be applied across a range of roles in a variety of contexts with some complexity in the extent and choice of options available.

Performance of a defined range of skilled operations, usually within a range of broader related activities involving known routines, methods and procedures, where some discretion and judgement is required in the section of equipment, services or contingency measures and within known time constraints.

Applications may involve some responsibility for others. Participation in teams including group or team co-ordination may be involved.

Distinguishing Features of Learning Outcomes

Do the competencies enable an individual with this qualification to:

- demonstrate some relevant theoretical knowledge
- apply a range of well-developed skills
- apply known solutions to a variety of predictable problems
- perform processes that require a range of well-developed skills where some discretion and judgement is required
- interpret available information, using discretion and judgement
- take responsibility for own outputs in work and learning
- take limited responsibility for the output of others.

Certificate IV

Characteristics of Learning Outcomes

Breadth, depth and complexity of knowledge and competencies would cover a broad range of varied activities or application in a wider variety of contexts most of which are complex and non-routine. Leadership and guidance are involved when organising activities of self and others as well as contributing to technical solutions of a non-routine or contingency nature.

Performance of a broad range of skilled applications including the requirement to evaluate and analyse current practices, develop new criteria and procedures for performing current practices and provision of some leadership and guidance to others in the application and planning of the skills. Applications involve responsibility for, and limited organisation of, others.

Distinguishing Features of Learning Outcomes

Do the competencies enable an individual with this qualification to:

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- demonstrate understanding of a broad knowledge base incorporating some theoretical concepts
- apply solutions to a defined range of unpredictable problems
- identify and apply skill and knowledge areas to a wide variety of contexts, with depth in some areas
- identify, analyse and evaluate information from a variety of sources
- take responsibility for own outputs in relation to specified quality standards
- take limited responsibility for the quantity and quality of the output of others.

Diploma

Characteristics of Learning Outcomes

Breadth, depth and complexity covering planning and initiation of alternative approaches to skills or knowledge applications across a broad range of technical and/or management requirements, evaluation and co-ordination.

The self directed application of knowledge and skills, with substantial depth in some areas where judgment is required in planning and selecting appropriate equipment, services and techniques for self and others.

Applications involve participation in development of strategic initiatives as well as personal responsibility and autonomy in performing complex technical operations or organising others. It may include participation in teams including teams concerned with planning and evaluation functions. Group or team co-ordination may be involved.

The degree of emphasis on breadth as against depth of knowledge and skills may vary between qualifications granted at this level.

Distinguishing Features of Learning Outcomes

Do the competencies or learning outcomes enable an individual with this qualification to:

- demonstrate understanding of a broad knowledge base incorporating theoretical concepts, with substantial depth in some areas
- analyse and plan approaches to technical problems or management requirements
- transfer and apply theoretical concepts and/or technical or creative skills to a range of situations
- evaluate information, using it to forecast for planning or research purposes
- take responsibility for own outputs in relation to broad quantity and quality parameters
- take some responsibility for the achievement of group outcomes.

Advanced Diploma

Characteristics of Learning Outcomes

Breadth, depth and complexity involving analysis, design, planning, execution and evaluation across a range of technical and/or management functions including development of new criteria or applications or knowledge or procedures.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

The application of a significant range of fundamental principles and complex techniques across a wide and often unpredictable variety of contexts in relation to either varied or highly specific functions. Contribution to the development of a broad plan, budget or strategy is involved and accountability and responsibility for self and others in achieving the outcomes is involved.

Applications involve significant judgement in planning, design, technical or leadership/guidance functions related to products, services, operations or procedures.

The degree of emphasis on breadth as against depth of knowledge and skills may vary between qualifications granted at this level.

Distinguishing Features of Learning Outcomes

Do the competencies or learning outcomes enable an individual with this qualification to:

- demonstrate understanding of specialised knowledge with depth in some areas
- analyse, diagnose, design and execute judgements across a broad range of technical or management functions
- generate ideas through the analysis of information and concepts at an abstract level
- demonstrate a command of wide-ranging, highly specialised technical, creative or conceptual skills
- demonstrate accountability for personal outputs within broad parameters
- demonstrate accountability for personal and group outcomes within broad parameters.

Vocational Graduate Certificate

Characteristics of competencies or learning outcomes

- The self directed development and achievement of broad and specialized areas of knowledge and skills, building on prior knowledge and skills.
- Substantial breadth and complexity involving the initiation, analysis, design, planning, execution and evaluation of technical and management functions in highly varied and highly specialised contexts.
- Applications involve making significant, high-level, independent judgements in major broad or planning, design, operational, technical and management functions in highly varied and specialized contexts. They may include responsibility and broad-ranging accountability for the structure, management and output of the work or function of others.

Distinguishing features of learning outcomes

- Demonstrate the self-directed development and achievement of broad and specialised areas of knowledge and skills, building on prior knowledge and skills.
- Initiate, analyse, design, plan, execute and evaluate major broad or technical and management functions in highly varied and highly specialised contexts.
- Generate and evaluate ideas through the analysis of information and concepts at an abstract level.
- Demonstrate a command of wide-ranging, highly specialized technical, creative or conceptual skills in complex contexts.
- Demonstrate responsibility and broad-ranging accountability for the structure, management and output of the work or functions of others.

Vocational Graduate Diploma

Characteristics of competencies or learning outcomes

- The self-directed development and achievement of broad and specialized areas of knowledge and skills, building on prior knowledge and skills.
- Substantial breadth, depth and complexity involving the initiation, analysis, design, planning, execution and evaluation of major functions, both broad and highly specialized, in highly varied and highly specialized contexts.
- Further specialisation within a systematic and coherent body of knowledge.
- Applications involve making high-level , fully independent, complex judgements in broad planning, design, operational, technical and management functions in highly varied and highly specialized contexts. They may include full responsibility and accountability for all aspects of work and functions of others, including planning, budgeting and strategy development.
- The degree of emphasis on breadth, as opposed to depth, of knowledge and skills may vary between qualifications granted at this level.
- Distinguishing features of learning outcomes
- Demonstrate the self-directed development and achievement of broad and highly specialized areas of knowledge and skills, building on prior knowledge and skills.
- Initiate, analyse, design, plan, execute, and evaluate major functions, both broad and within highly varied and highly specialized contexts.
- Generate and evaluate complex ideas through the analysis of information and concepts at an abstract level.
- Demonstrate an expert command of wide-ranging, highly specialised, technical, creative or conceptual skills in complex and highly specialised or varied contexts.
- Demonstrate full responsibility and accountability of personal outputs.
- Demonstrate full responsibility and accountability for all aspects of the work or functions of others, including planning, budgeting and strategy.

Skill Sets

Definition

Skill sets are defined as single units of competency, or combinations of units of competency from an endorsed Training Package, which link to a licence or regulatory requirement, or defined industry need.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Wording on Statements of Attainment

Skill sets are a way of publicly identifying logical groupings of units of competency which meet an identified need or industry outcome. Skill sets are not qualifications.

Where skill sets are identified in a Training Package, the Statement of Attainment can set out the competencies a person has achieved in a way that is consistent and clear for employers and others. This is done by including the wording 'these competencies meet [insert skill set title or identified industry area] need' on the Statement of Attainment. This wording applies only to skill sets that are formally identified as such in the endorsed Training Package. See the 2007 edition of the AQF Implementation handbook for advice on wording on Statements of Attainment—the updated version is available on the AQFAB website <www.aqf.edu.au>.

Skill sets in this Training Package

This section provides information on skills sets within this Training Package, with the following important disclaimer: Readers should ensure that they have also read the part of the Training Package that outlines licensing and regulatory requirements.

Where this section is blank, nationally recognised skill sets have yet to be identified in this industry

- Skill set name Barista
- Skill set name Beverage specialist
- Skill set name Essential Business Skills for a Restaurant Manager
- Skill set name Responsible service of alcohol
- Skill set name Sommelier

Qualification pathways

Tourism

The following summary chart provides examples of common qualification pathways within the industry, but it is recognised that typical career paths are not always linear. The tourism and holiday parks and resorts qualifications are flexible to meet a range of job outcomes and to support a wide range of career paths. They allow for various entry options, including direct entry at all qualification levels, and enable significant credit transfer between qualifications.

Hospitality

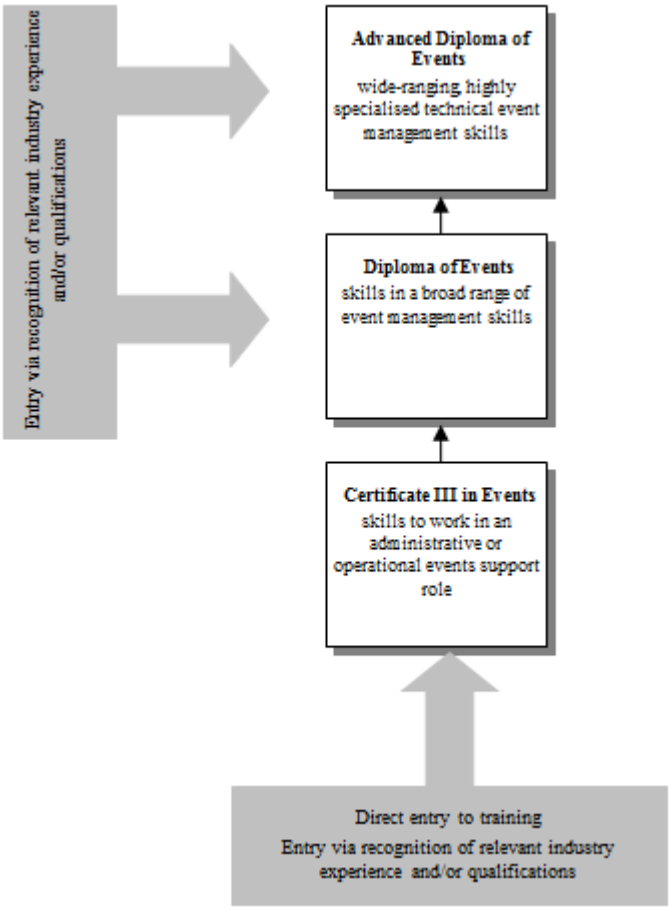
They allow for various entry options, including via relevant industry experience or qualifications. They enable significant credit transfer between qualifications, including from related industry areas.



Employability skills

Employability skills replacing key competency information from 2006

In May 2005, the approach to incorporate employability skills within Training Package qualifications and units of competency was endorsed.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Background to employability skills

Employability skills are also sometimes referred to as generic skills, capabilities or key competencies. The employability skills discussed here build on the Mayer Committee's key competencies, which were developed in 1992 and attempted to describe generic competencies for effective participation in work.

The Business Council of Australia (BCA) and the Australian Chamber of Commerce and Industry (ACCI), produced the Employability Skills for the Future report in 2002 in consultation with other peak employer bodies and with funding provided by the Department of Education, Science and Training (DEST) and the Australian National Training Authority (ANTA). Officially released by Dr Nelson (Minister for Education, Science and Training) on 23 May 2002, copies of the report are available from the DEEWR website at: http://www.dest.gov.au/archive/ty/publications/employability_skills/index.htm.

The report indicated that business and industry now require a broader range of skills than the Mayer Key Competencies Framework and featured an Employability Skills Framework identifying eight employability skills:

- communication
- teamwork
- problem solving
- initiative and enterprise
- planning and organising
- self-management
- learning
- technology.

The report demonstrated how employability skills can be further described for particular occupational and industry contexts by sets of facets. The facets listed in the report are the aspects of the employability skills that the sample of employers surveyed identified as being important work skills. These facets were seen by employers as being dependent both in their nature and priority on an enterprise's business activity.

Employability Skills Framework

The following table contains the employability skills facets identified in the report Employability Skills for the Future.

Skill	Facets Aspects of the skill that employers identify as important. The nature and application of these facets will vary depending on industry and job type.
Communication that contributes to productive and harmonious relations	• listening and understanding • speaking clearly and directly • writing to the needs of the audience • negotiating responsively

across employees and customers	• reading independently • empathising • using numeracy effectively • understanding the needs of internal and external customers • persuading effectively • establishing and using networks • being assertive • sharing information • speaking and writing in languages other than English
Teamwork that contributes to productive working relationships and outcomes	• working across different ages irrespective of gender, race, religion or political persuasion • working as an individual and as a member of a team • knowing how to define a role as part of the team • applying teamwork to a range of situations e.g. futures planning and crisis problem solving • identifying the strengths of team members • coaching and mentoring skills, including giving feedback
Problem solving that contributes to productive outcomes	• developing creative, innovative and practical solutions • showing independence and initiative in identifying and solving problems • solving problems in teams • applying a range of strategies to problem solving • using mathematics, including budgeting and financial management to solve problems • applying problem-solving strategies across a range of areas • testing assumptions, taking into account the context of data and circumstances • resolving customer concerns in relation to complex project issues
Initiative and enterprise that contribute to innovative outcomes	• adapting to new situations • developing a strategic, creative and long-term vision • being creative • identifying opportunities not obvious to others • translating ideas into action • generating a range of options • initiating innovative solutions
Planning and	• managing time and priorities – setting time lines, coordinating tasks for self and with others

Employability Skills Summary

An Employability Skills Summary exists for each qualification. Summaries provide a lens through which to view employability skills at the qualification level and capture the key aspects or facets of the employability skills that are important to the job roles covered by the qualification. Summaries are designed to assist trainers and assessors to identify and include important industry application of employability skills in learning and assessment strategies.

The following is important information for trainers and assessors about Employability Skills Summaries.

- Employability Skills Summaries provide examples of how each skill is applicable to the job roles covered by the qualification.
- Employability Skills Summaries contain general information about industry context which is further explained as measurable outcomes of performance in the units of competency in each qualification.
- The detail in each Employability Skills Summary will vary depending on the range of job roles covered by the qualification in question.
- Employability Skills Summaries are not exhaustive lists of qualification requirements or checklists of performance (which are separate assessment tools that should be designed by trainers and assessors after analysis at the unit level).
- Employability Skills Summaries contain information that may also assist in building learners' understanding of industry and workplace expectations.

Qualification requirements

An RTO will award a qualification when the required number of units of competency, as determined by the packaging rules for the specific qualification, has been demonstrated. If a learner does not complete all of the units of competency required for a qualification he/she will receive a Statement of Attainment for the units completed.

Units of competency within each qualification have been categorised as either core or elective. The core units are essential to the qualification. Candidates must also choose the specified number of elective units required for each qualification.

Assessment Guidelines

Assessment Guidelines

These Assessment Guidelines provide the endorsed framework for assessment of units of competency in this Training Package. They are designed to ensure that assessment is consistent with the AQTF 2007. Assessments against the units of competency in this Training Package must be carried out in accordance with these assessment guidelines.

Assessment system overview

This section provides an overview of the requirements for assessment when using this Training Package, including a summary of the AQTF requirements, licensing and registration requirements, and assessment pathways.

Benchmarks for assessment

Assessment within the National Skills Framework is the process of collecting evidence and making judgements about whether competency has been achieved to confirm whether an individual can perform to the standards expected in the workplace, as expressed in the relevant endorsed unit of competency.

In the areas of work covered by this Training Package, the endorsed units of competency are the benchmarks for assessment. As such, they provide the basis for nationally recognised Australian Qualifications Framework (AQF) qualifications and Statements of Attainment issued by Registered Training Organisations (RTOs).

Australian Quality Training Framework assessment requirements

Assessment leading to nationally recognised AQF qualifications and Statements of Attainment in the vocational education and training sector must meet the requirements of the AQTF as expressed in the AQTF 2007 Essential Standards for Registration.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

The AQTF 2007 Essential Standards for Registration can be downloaded from <www.training.com.au>. The following points summarise the assessment requirements.

Registration of training organisations

Assessment must be conducted by, or on behalf of, and RTO formally registered by a State or Territory Registering/ Course Accrediting Body in accordance with the AQTF 2007. The RTO must have the specific units of competency and/or AQF qualifications on its scope of registration.

Quality training and assessment

Each RTO must provide quality training and assessment across all its operations. See the AQTF 2007 Essential Standards for Registration, Standard 1.

Assessor competency requirements

Each person involved in training and assessment must be competent for the functions they perform. See the AQTF 2007 Essential Standards for Registration, Standard 1 for assessor (and trainer) competency requirements.

Assessment Requirements

The RTO's assessments, including RPL, must meet the requirements of the relevant endorsed Training Package. See the AQTF 2007 Essential Standards for Registration, Standard 1.

Assessment Strategies

Each RTO must have strategies for training and assessment that meet the requirements of the relevant Training Package or accredited course and are developed in consultation with industry stakeholders. See the AQTF 2007 Essential Standards for Registration, Standard 1.

National Recognition

Each RTO must recognise the AQF qualifications and Statements of Attainment issued by any other RTO. See the AQTF 2007*Essential Standards for Registration,* Condition of Registration 7: Recognition of qualifications issued by other RTOs.

Access and Equity and Client Outcomes

Each RTO must adhere to the principles of access and equity and maximise outcomes for its clients. See the AQTF 2007 Essential Standards for Registration, Standard 2.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Monitoring Assessments

Training and/or assessment provided on behalf of the RTO must be monitored to ensure that it is in accordance with all aspects of the Essential Standards for registration. See the AQTF 2007 Essential Standards for Registration, Standard 3.

Recording Assessment Outcomes

Each RTO must manage records to ensure their accuracy and integrity. See the AQTF 2007 Essential Standards for Registration, Standard 3.

Issuing AQF qualifications and Statements of Attainment

Each RTO must issue AQF qualifications and Statements of Attainment that meet the requirements of the current AQF Implementation Handbook and the endorsed Training packages within the scope of its registration. An AQF qualification is issued once the full requirements for a qualification, as specified in the nationally endorsed training Package are met. A Statement of Attainment is issued when an individual has completed one or more units of competency from nationally recognised qualification(s)/course(s). See the AQTF 2007 and the 2007 edition of the AQF Implementation Handbook – available on the AQFAB website <www.aqf.edu.au>.

Licensing/registration requirements

This section provides information on licensing/registration requirements for this Training Package, with the following important disclaimer.

Licensing and registration requirements that apply to specific industries and VET vary between each State and Territory and can regularly change. The developers of this Training Package, and DEEWR, consider that the licensing/registration requirements described in this section apply to RTOs, assessors or candidates with respect to this Training Package. While reasonable care has been taken in its preparation, the developers of this Training Package and DEEWR cannot guarantee that the list is definitive or accurate at the time of reading; the information in this section is provided in good faith on that basis.

Contact the relevant state or territory department(s) to check if the licensing/registration requirements described below still apply, and to check if there are any others with which you must comply. For further information contact www.serviceskills.com.au.

Requirements for assessors

In order to conduct assessment for statutory licensing or other industry registration requirements, assessors must meet the requirements outlined in the following chart, in addition to the AQTF requirements.

LICENCE/ REGISTRATION	JURISDICTION	REQUIREMENTS

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Responsible Service of Alcohol	State and territory liquor licensing authorities	Some state and territory liquor licensing authorities have specific requirements for assessors. Those developing assessment strategies to support this unit must undertake consultation with the relevant state or territory liquor licensing authority to determine any accreditation arrangements for courses, trainers and assessors.

These requirements may be met through contacting the relevant state or territory liquor licensing authority.

Requirements for RTOs

Selected units of competency and qualifications in this Training Package provide the basis for a range of statutory licensing and industry registration arrangements. To satisfy these licensing and registration arrangements, RTOs must meet the additional requirements detailed in the following table.

LICENCE/ REGISTRATION	JURISDICTION	REQUIREMENTS
Responsible Service of Alcohol	State and territory liquor licensing authorities	Some state and territory liquor licensing authorities have specific requirements for training organisations. Those developing training to support this unit must undertake consultation with the relevant state or territory liquor licensing authority to determine any accreditation arrangements for courses, trainers and assessors.
Casino Table Games	State and territory gaming authorities	State and territory gaming authorities restrict the training and assessment of casino table game units to licensed casinos and any partnership RTOs. Those developing training to support these units must undertake consultation with the relevant state or territory gaming authority to determine any accreditation arrangements for their organisation, courses, trainers and assessors.

Requirements for candidates

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Individuals being assessed under statutory licensing and industry registration systems must comply with training and experience requirements additional to the minimum requirements identified in this Training Package. These additional requirements may apply to the following areas:

Responsible service of alcohol

The unit SITXFAB009A Provide responsible service of alcohol applies to all levels of sales personnel involved in the sales, service and promotion of alcohol in licensed premises, including the licensee when involved in sales. Under differing state and territory legislation it is only a required unit for certain nominated personnel operating in licensed premises. Candidates should seek advice from their local liquor licensing authority or training organisation on their requirement to complete this unit.

Commercial cookery

Certificate III in Hospitality (Commercial Cookery) is recognised as the appropriate certificate for trade recognition. Some states and territories may impose a mandatory period of industry experience before awarding trade recognition.

Casino table games

The following suite of nine units applies to dealers working within licensed casinos which are regulated by state and territory gaming authorities:

- SITHGAM007A Operate table games
- SITHGAM008A Deal a Baccarat game
- SITHGAM009A Conduct a Big Wheel game
- SITHGAM010A Deal a Blackjack game
- SITHGAM011A Deal a Poker game
- SITHGAM012A Deal a Pontoon game
- SITHGAM013A Conduct a Rapid Roulette game
- SITHGAM014A Conduct a Roulette game
- SITHGAM015A Conduct a Sic Bo game

Under some state and territory legislation these are required occupational licensing units for those personnel conducting table games in licensed casinos. Candidates should seek advice from their local gaming authority and their casino employer on their requirement to complete one or more of these units.

Travel agent licensing

In most states and territories some travel agencies, tour wholesalers and tour operators are subject to business licensing requirements determined by the local Department or Office of Fair Trading under the Travel Agents Licensing Act. The training and industry experience requirements vary but are most often linked to the achievement of the following unit by the manager of the business:

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- SITTTSL013B Construct normal international airfares (previously THTSOP20B).

Candidates should seek advice from their local business licensing authority on their requirement to complete this unit.

Food safety

In some states and territories there is a requirement for certain personnel involved in food handling to complete training and assessment in the following units:

- SITXFSA001A Implement food safety procedures
- SITXOHS002A Follow workplace hygiene procedures

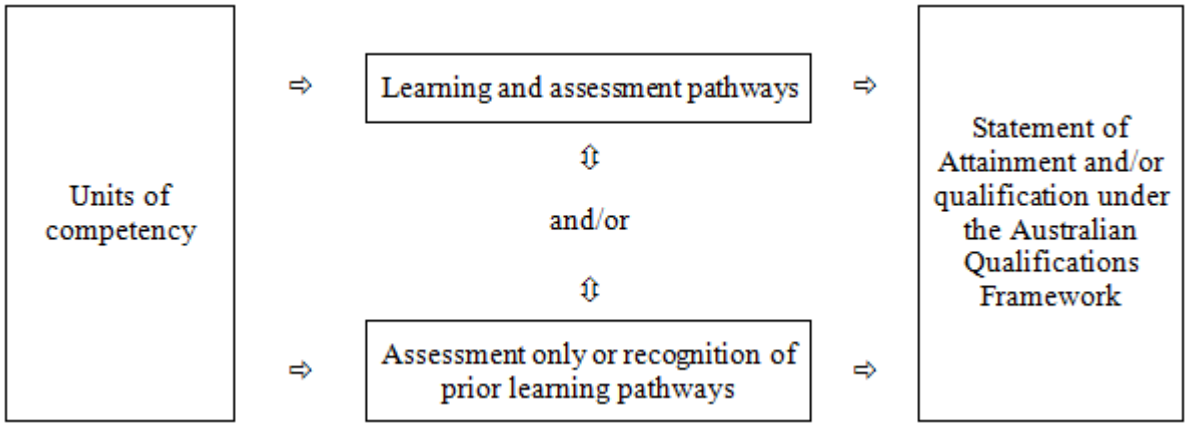
Candidates should seek advice from their local food safety authority on their requirement to complete these units.

Pathways

The competencies in this Training Package may be attained in a number of ways including through:

- formal or informal education and training
- experiences in the workplace
- general life experience
- any combination of the above.

Assessment under this Training Package leading to an AQF qualification or Statement of Attainment may follow a learning and assessment pathway, an assessment-only or recognition pathway, or a combination of the two as illustrated in the following diagram.



Each of these assessment pathways leads to full recognition of competencies held – the critical issue is that the candidate is competent, not how the competency was acquired.

Assessment, by any pathway, must comply with the assessment requirements set out in the Standards for Registered Training Organisations.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Learning and assessment pathways

Usually, learning and assessment are integrated, with assessment evidence being collected and feedback provided to the candidate at any time throughout the learning and assessment process.

Learning and assessment pathways may include structured programs in a variety of contexts using a range of strategies to meet different learner needs. Structured learning and assessment programs could be group-based, work-based, project-based, self-paced and action learning-based; conducted by distance or e-learning; and/or involve practice and experience in the workplace.

Learning and assessment pathways to suit Australian apprenticeships have a mix of formal structured training and structured workplace experience with formative assessment activities through which candidates can acquire and demonstrate skills and knowledge from the relevant units of competency.

Assessment-only or recognition of prior learning pathway

Competencies already held by individuals can be formally assessed against the units of competency in this Training Package, and should be recognised regardless of how, when or where they were achieved.

In an assessment-only or recognition of prior learning (RPL) pathway, the candidate provides current, quality evidence of their competency against the relevant unit of competency. This process may be directed by the candidate and verified by the assessor, such as in the compilation of portfolios; or directed by the assessor, such as through observation of workplace performance and skills application, and oral and/or written assessment. Where the outcomes of this process indicate that the candidate is competent, structured training is not required. The RPL requirements of the AQTF 2007 must be met (Standard 1).

As with all assessment, the assessor must be confident that the evidence indicates that the candidate is currently competent against the endorsed unit of competency. This evidence may take a variety of forms and might include certification, references from past employers, testimonials from clients, and work samples. The onus is on candidates to provide sufficient evidence to satisfy assessors that they currently hold the relevant competencies. In judging evidence, the assessor must ensure that the evidence of prior learning is:

- authentic (the candidate’s own work)
- valid (directly related to the current version of the relevant endorsed unit of competency)
- reliable (shows that the candidate consistently meets the endorsed unit of competency)
- current (reflects the candidate’s current capacity to perform the aspect of the work covered by the endorsed unit of competency)
- sufficient (covers the full range of elements in the relevant unit of competency and addresses the four dimensions of competency, namely task skills, task management skills, contingency management skills, and job/role environment skills).

The assessment only or recognition of prior learning pathway is likely to be most appropriate in the following scenarios:

- candidates enrolling in qualifications who want recognition for prior learning or current competencies

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- existing workers
- individuals with overseas qualifications
- recent migrants with established work histories
- people returning to the workplace
- people with disabilities or injuries requiring a change in career.

Combination of pathways

Where candidates for assessment have gained competencies through work and life experience and gaps in their competence are identified, or where they require training in new areas, a combination of pathways may be appropriate.

In such situations, the candidate may undertake an initial assessment to determine their current competency. Once current competency is identified, a structured learning and assessment program ensures that the candidate acquires the required additional competencies identified as gaps.

Assessor requirements

This section identifies the mandatory competencies for assessors, and clarifies how others may contribute to the assessment process where one person alone does not hold all the required competencies.

Assessor competencies

The AQTF 2007 specifies mandatory competency requirements for assessors. For information, Element 1.4 from the AQTF 2007 Essential Standards for Registration follows:

> 1.4 Training and assessment are conducted by trainers and assessors who:
> a) have the necessary training and assessment competencies as determined by the National Quality Council or its successors
> b) have the relevant vocational competencies at least to the level being delivered or assessed
> c) continue developing their vocational and training and assessment competencies to support continuous improvements in delivery of the RTO's services.

Tourism and Hospitality industry requirements for assessors

In the tourism and hospitality industries, in addition to holding the mandatory units of competency in assessment and the relevant vocational competencies they are assessing, assessors (or at least one person in the assessment team) conducting assessment for qualifications at Certificate II and above must satisfy the following requirements.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- Relevant industry experience in the field in which they are assessing. Relevant industry-based supervisory and/or management experience would be of benefit.
- Comprehensive current knowledge of the industry, current industry practices and the job role against which performance is being assessed. This current knowledge may be developed and demonstrated through:
- participation in relevant industry professional development activities
- conduct of relevant industry projects and research activities
- recent and relevant work experience in a commercial environment
- involvement in professional industry networks and memberships
- participation in assessment and/or training activities conducted in the workplace.

Certificates III and IV in Commercial Cookery

Assessors assessing competency standards as part of a Certificate III or IV qualification must hold a commercial cookery qualification as well as having post-qualification work experience in a fully-equipped, commercial kitchen.

Alternative ways of meeting the requirement to use qualified assessors

OPTIONS	Assessors, technical experts and workplace supervisors (includes mandated requirements and recommended attributes)
Single assessor An individual assessor conducts the assessment	An assessor is required to: • hold formal recognition of competence in the relevant units in the TAA04 Training and Assessment Training Package • be deemed competent and, where possible, hold formal recognition in the specific units of competency from this Training Package, at least to the level being assessed • demonstrate current knowledge of the industry, industry practices, and the job or role against which performance is being assessed • demonstrate current knowledge and skill in assessing against this Training Package in a range of contexts.
Partnership arrangement An assessor works with a technical expert to conduct the assessment	An assessor is required to: • hold formal recognition of competence in the relevant units in the TAA04 Training and Assessment Training Package • demonstrate current knowledge and skill in assessing against this Training Package in a range of contexts. A technical expert shall be a person who: • is deemed competent and, where possible, holds formal recognition of competence in the specific units of competency from this Training Package, at least to the level being assessed • demonstrates current knowledge of the industry, industry practices, and the job or role against which performance is being assessed

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

	• communicates and liaises with the assessor throughout the assessment process.
Assessment team/panel A team working together to conduct the assessment	Members of an assessment team or panel that comprises assessment and industry experience and expertise, work together in the collection of evidence and make judgements about competency. The members of the team must collectively meet the following requirements: • hold formal recognition of competence in the relevant units in the TAA04 Training and Assessment Training Package • be deemed competent and, where possible, holds formal recognition of competence in the specific units of competency from this Training Package, at least to the level being assessed • demonstrate current knowledge of the industry, industry practices, and the job or role against which performance is being assessed. This would be demonstrated through evidence of actual workplace experience within the last two years and one or more of the items below: • attendance at professional development or training and education activities focusing on good practice in the relevant industry competencies • participation in professional or industry networks • demonstrate current knowledge and skill in assessing against this Training Package in a range of contexts.

Designing assessment tools

This section provides an overview on the use and development of assessment tools.

Use of assessment tools

Assessment tools provide a means of collecting the evidence that assessors use in making judgements about whether candidates have achieved competency.

There is no set format or process for the design, production or development of assessment tools. Assessors may use prepared assessment tools, such as those specifically developed to support this Training Package, or they may develop their own.

Using prepared assessment tools

If using prepared assessment tools, assessors should ensure these are benchmarked, or mapped, against the current version of the relevant unit of competency. This can be done by checking that the materials are listed on the National Training Information Service (www.ntis.gov.au). Materials on the list have been noted by the National Training Quality Council as meeting their quality criteria for Training Package support materials.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Developing assessment tools

When developing their own assessment tools, assessors must ensure that the tools:

- are benchmarked against the relevant unit or units of competency
- are reviewed as part of the validation of assessment strategies as required under Standard 1 of the AQTF 2007
- meet the assessment requirements expressed in Standard 1of the AQTF 2007.

A key reference for assessors developing assessment tools is TAA04 Training and Assessment Training Package and the unit of competency TAAASS403A Develop assessment tools.

Conducting assessment

This section details the mandatory assessment requirements and provides information on equity in assessment including reasonable adjustment.

Assessment requirements

Assessments must meet the criteria set out in the AQTF 2007 Essential Standards for Registration.

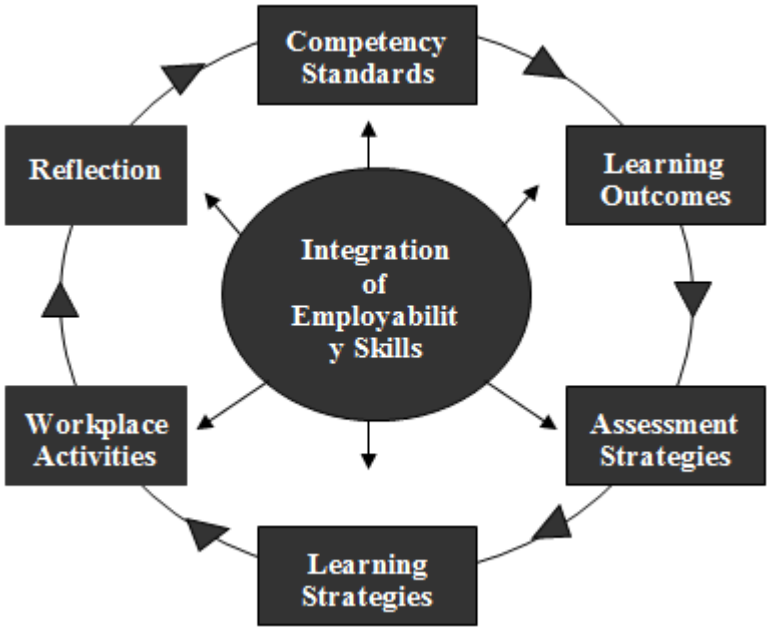
For information, the mandatory assessment requirements from Standard 1 from the AQTF 2007 Essential Standards for Registration are as follows:

1.5 Assessment, including Recognition of Prior Learning:
a) meets the requirements of the relevant Training Package or accredited course
b) is conducted in accordance with the principles of assessment and the rules of evidence, and
c) meets workplace and, where relevant, regulatory requirements.

Delivery and assessment of employability skills

Employability skills are integral to workplace competency and, as such, must be considered in the design, customisation, delivery and assessment of vocational education and training programs in an integrated and holistic way, as represented diagrammatically below.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia



Training providers must analyse the employability skills information contained in units of competency in order to design valid and reliable learning and assessment strategies. This analysis includes:

- reviewing unit(s) of competency to determine how each relevant employability skill is found and applied within the unit
- analysing the Employability Skills Summary for the qualification in which the unit(s) is/are packaged to help clarify relevant industry/workplace contexts with regard to the application of employability skills at that qualification level
- designing learning and assessment activities that address the employability skills requirements.

For more information on employability skills in the SIT07 Tourism, Hospitality and Events Training Package, go to the Service Skills Australia website at www.serviceskills.com.au.

Access and equity

An individual's access to the assessment process should not be adversely affected by restrictions placed on the location or context of assessment beyond the requirements specified in this Training Package.

Reasonable adjustments can be made to ensure equity in assessment for people with disabilities. Adjustments include any changes to the assessment process or context that meet the individual needs of the person with a disability, but do not change competency outcomes. Such adjustments are considered 'reasonable' if they do not impose an unjustifiable hardship on a training provider or employer. When assessing people with disabilities, assessors are encouraged to apply good practice assessment methods with sensitivity and flexibility.

Assessment in the Tourism, Hospitality and Events industries

Following is a summary of assessment requirements for units of competency contained in SIT07 Tourism, Hospitality and Events Training Package.

Assessment requirements

Context of assessment and resource requirements

For valid and reliable assessment, competency should be consistently demonstrated over a period of time and observed by the assessor and/or the technical expert working in partnership with the assessor. The technical expert may include the workplace supervisor and/or an experienced industry person. The ultimate outcome of the assessment process must be validated by an RTO.

Competency should be demonstrated in a range of situations which may include customer service situations and involvement in other related activities normally expected in the industry environment.

Assessment should be undertaken in an environment that meets industry-relevant industry regulations, legislation and codes of practice.

Specific assessment environments are identified in each unit of competency and the conditions, equipment and resources required for these environments are described in detail in the 'Assessment environment' section below.

Assessment methods

All units identify assessment methods appropriate to the individual unit of competency. This may include observation of workplace tasks, written or oral questioning to assess knowledge, completing workplace documents and role plays.

Integrated assessment

An integrated approach to assessment brings together a number of units of competency that reflect actual workplace requirements, and involves designing integrated assessment activities to collect evidence for a number of units together.

Some units include suggested units which can be grouped together for integrated assessment. However all units that relate to a job function can be combined into an integrated assessment.

Holistic units

Some units in SIT07 Tourism, Hospitality and Events Training Package are designed to support the integration of the full range of individual organisational and technical skills that make up a job role. These units require demonstration of integrated skills on multiple occasions within the specified industry environment. It would be expected that this would be achieved through an Australian Apprenticeship pathway, or a significant period of work experience in industry to allow collection of sufficient evidence.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

It is expected that final assessment of these units will be conducted following the completion of other units required for a qualification. However, the collection of evidence will take place over a period of time, and may commence prior to completion of other required units.

These units are:

SITHASC027A Prepare, cook and serve Asian food for food service

SITHASC028A Prepare, cook and serve Asian food for menus

SITHCCC027A Prepare, cook and serve food for food service

SITHCCC028A Prepare, cook and serve food for menus

SITHFAB020A Apply food and beverage skills in the workplace

SITHFAB021A Provide and coordinate food and beverage service

SITHIND002A Apply hospitality skills in the workplace

SITHIND003A Provide and coordinate hospitality service.

Evidence required for demonstration of consistent performance

For valid and reliable assessment, evidence should generally be gathered through a range of methods and over a period of time to indicate consistent performance. Some units specify a minimum number of occasions on which skills must be demonstrated.

Evidence can be gathered from assessment of the unit of competency alone, through an integrated assessment activity or through a combination of both.

Prerequisite and co-requisite requirements at unit level

Prerequisite and co-requisite requirements at the unit of competency level have been kept to a minimum to minimise unnecessary barriers. Individual prerequisite and co-requisite requirements are specified within each unit of competency where they apply, and a summary of all prerequisite and co-requisite requirements is included in the Preliminary Information to this Training Package.

Assessment environment

Assessment of skills for the tourism, hospitality and events industry should in general be conducted in the workplace. However, assessment in the workplace is not always possible, nor even always appropriate. Wherever assessment is conducted, however, it is vital that the assessment environment is as industry realistic as possible. It is therefore essential that assessment is conducted using suitable resources and equipment and under industry-relevant workplace conditions.

This involves:

- appropriate environments as specified in the ‘Context of and specific resources for assessment’ section within each unit (specific requirements for each location are detailed on the following pages)
- adequate, up-to-date equipment and technology that reflect current industry practices
- speed and timing for tasks typical for a commercial operation

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- productivity to reflect industry expectations
- integration of multiple tasks and application of multiple competencies simultaneously
- dealing with multiple and varied customers* and team members
- interruptions to work typical of the workplace
- dealing with multiple and varied problems in given timeframes
- integration into work of health and safety issues, employability skills and compliance demands
- sufficient customer traffic that accurately reflects the complexity of the role and allows candidates to deal with multiple tasks simultaneously.

* A customer is a person or organisation who pays for a product or service (or is the invited guest of someone who is paying) and therefore would expect the product and service to be of equivalent standard to that provided in a commercially viable business.

For example, in the case of in a training restaurant, it is any person, other than a student/staff member currently undertaking/teaching this unit of competency, who either pays for, or is invited to consume, a meal prepared, cooked and served by trainees.

Assessors would be required to use professional judgement based on their industry experience to make this determination.

Industry environments and contexts

Individual units of competency include, where relevant, an identification of the specific environment required for assessment. In addition to the broad requirements specified above, assessment in these environments will require a range of equipment and resources specific to the industry context.

The following list provides details of the resources and equipment requirements for each of the assessment environments specified within each unit of competency. Additional resource requirements may apply for specific units of competency; these are listed within the units.

Requirements for the following environments are detailed below:

- operational commercial kitchen
- kitchen storage area
- food preparation area
- operational pastry kitchen
- commercial kitchen suitable for Asian cookery
- operational bar
- operational restaurant or dining area
- accommodation environment
- accommodation front office environment
- tourism office
- touring environment
- events context.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Specific per-person equipment ratios specified in the following lists relate to the availability of these resources for the purposes of assessment. It is assumed that the same piece of equipment may be accessed by multiple candidates at different times.

Industry acknowledges that not all businesses have the resources specified and expects that a partnership between the workplace and the RTO will allow access to the resources specified for the purposes of training and assessment.

Hospitality environments

- Operational commercial kitchen

Fixtures and large equipment:

- stainless steel benches (1.5 m/person) or equivalent benches that comply with health department standards
- microwave
- salamander or other form of griller (one per 4 persons)

Touring environment

Due to the diverse range of possible touring contexts, general resources and equipment for a touring environment are not identified here. Specific resources are identified within individual units.

As a general rule, a commercially realistic touring environment could include any:

- destinations and places of general interest within the destinations
- local or regional areas
- tourist precincts
- sites, such as natural, cultural and heritage sites and centres, museums, art galleries, industrial sites and national parks
- remote area locations
- attractions, such as theme parks, zoos and wildlife reserves or parks
- camp sites
- transportation terminals for air, cruise, rail or coach travel
- style of tour, including walking, adventure tour, special interest tour, incentive tour, pre or post-conference tour, educational tour, nature-based or ecotour, group tour, individual tour or extended touring program
- tour onboard any form of transportation, including coaches, vehicles, vessels and aircraft.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

The operational elements of a commercial tour include use of equipment and resources and access to customers with whom the guide interacts.

Events context

Any specific resources and equipment required for demonstration of competence in Events units are identified within each unit of competency. However, candidates achieving competency in Events units must be assessed in the context of planning for and operating real events and events of sufficient scope to allow for the demonstration of a fully-developed range of skills. Commercial, community or business relevance must be a feature of events used for assessment purposes. Small personal events are not appropriate as a means of assessing a candidate's skills.

Events units at a coordination and management level refer to the notion of a 'complex event comprising multiple components' and this is a key assessment requirement. Candidates must be able to show that they are able to plan and manage the complex interrelated elements of an event in 'real time'. This would involve:

- the need for a comprehensive and multifaceted project event plan
- the need for a formal internal or external communications strategy
- a dedicated and diverse project event budget
- multiple administrative components
- multiple operational components
- involvement of a wide range of stakeholders
- a project and event operations team.

Competency Standards

What is competency?

The broad concept of industry competency concerns the ability to perform particular tasks and duties to the standard of performance expected in the workplace. Competency requires the application of specified skills, knowledge and attitudes relevant to effective participation in an industry, industry sector or enterprise.

Competency covers all aspects of workplace performance and involves performing individual tasks; managing a range of different tasks; responding to contingencies or breakdowns; and dealing with the responsibilities of the workplace, including working with others. Workplace competency requires the ability to apply relevant skills, knowledge and attitudes consistently over time and in the required workplace situations and environments. In line with this concept of competency, Training Packages focus on what is expected of a competent individual in the workplace as an outcome of learning, rather than focussing on the learning process itself.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Competency standards in Training Packages are determined by industry to meet identified industry skill needs. Competency standards are made up of a number of units of competency each of which describes a key function or role in a particular job function or occupation. Each unit of competency within a Training Package is linked to one or more AQF qualifications.

Contextualisation of units of competency by RTOs

Registered training organisations (RTOs) may contextualise units of competency to reflect local outcomes required. Contextualisation could involve additions or amendments to the unit of competency to suit particular delivery methods, learner profiles, specific enterprise equipment requirements, or to otherwise meet local needs. However, the integrity of the overall intended outcome of the unit of competency must be maintained.

Any contextualisation of units of competency in this endorsed Training Package must be within the bounds of the following advice. In contextualising units of competency, RTOs:

- must not remove or add to the number and content of elements and performance criteria
- may add specific industry terminology to performance criteria where this does not distort or narrow the competency outcomes
- may make amendments and additions to the range statement as long as such changes do not diminish the breadth of application of the competency and reduce its portability
- may add detail to the evidence guide in areas such as the critical aspects of evidence or resources and infrastructure required where these expand the breadth of the competency but do not limit its use.

Components of units of competency

The components of units of competency are summarised below, in the order in which they appear in each unit of competency.

Unit title

The unit title is a succinct statement of the outcome of the unit of competency. Each unit of competency title is unique, both within and across Training Packages.

Unit descriptor

The unit descriptor broadly communicates the content of the unit of competency and the skill area it addresses. Where units of competency have been contextualised from units of competency from other endorsed Training Packages, summary information is provided. There may also be a brief second paragraph that describes its relationship with other units of competency and any licensing requirements.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Employability skills statement

A standard employability skills statement appears in each unit of competency. This statement directs trainers and assessors to consider the information contained in the Employability Skills Summary in which the unit of competency is packaged.

Prerequisite units (optional)

If there are any units of competency that must be completed before the unit, these will be listed.

Application of the unit

This subsection fleshes out the unit of competency's scope, purpose and operation in different contexts, for example, by showing how it applies in the workplace.

Competency field (optional)

The competency field either reflects the way the units of competency are categorised in the Training Package or denotes the industry sector, specialisation or function. It is an optional component of the unit of competency.

Sector (optional)

The industry sector is a further categorisation of the competency field and identifies the next classification, for example an elective or supervision field.

Elements of competency

The elements of competency are the basic building blocks of the unit of competency. They describe in terms of outcomes the significant functions and tasks that make up the competency.

Performance criteria

The performance criteria specify the required performance in relevant tasks, roles, skills and in the applied knowledge that enables competent performance. They are usually written in passive voice. Critical terms or phrases may be written in bold italics and then defined in range statement, in the order of their appearance in the performance criteria.

Required skills and knowledge

The essential skills and knowledge are either identified separately or combined. Knowledge identifies what a person needs to know to perform the work in an informed and effective manner. Skills describe the application of knowledge to situations where understanding is converted into a workplace outcome.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Range statement

The range statement provides a context for the unit of competency, describing essential operating conditions that may be present with training and assessment, depending on the work situation, needs of the candidate, accessibility of the item, and local industry and regional contexts. As applicable, the meanings of key terms used in the performance criteria will also be explained in the range statement.

Evidence guide

The evidence guide is critical in assessment as it provides information to the RTO and assessor about how the described competency may be demonstrated. The evidence guide does this by providing a range of evidence for the assessor to make determinations, and by providing the assessment context.

The evidence guide describes:

- conditions under which competency must be assessed including variables such as the assessment environment or necessary equipment
- relationships with the assessment of any other units of competency
- suitable methodologies for conducting assessment including the potential for workplace simulation
- resource implications, for example access to particular equipment, infrastructure or situations
- how consistency in performance can be assessed over time, various contexts and with a range of evidence
- the required underpinning knowledge and skills.

Employability skills in units of competency

The detail and application of employability skills facets will vary according to the job-role requirements of each industry. In developing Training Packages, industry stakeholders are consulted to identify appropriate facets of employability skills which are incorporated into the relevant units of competency and qualifications.

Employability skills are not a discrete requirement contained in units of competency (as was the case with key competencies). Employability skills are specifically expressed in the context of the work outcomes described in units of competency and will appear in elements, performance criteria, range statements and evidence guides. As a result, users of Training Packages are required to review the entire unit of competency in order to accurately determine employability skills requirements.

How employability skills relate to the key competencies

The eight nationally agreed employability skills now replace the seven key competencies in Training Packages. Trainers and assessors who have used Training Packages prior to the introduction of employability skills may find the following comparison useful.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Employability skills	Mayer key competencies
Communication	Communicating ideas and information
Teamwork	Working with others and in teams
Problem solving	Solving problems Using mathematical ideas and techniques
Initiative and enterprise
Planning and organising	Collecting, analysing and organising information Planning and organising activities
Self-management
Learning
Technology	Using technology

When analysing the above table it is important to consider the relationship and natural overlap of employability skills. For example, using technology may involve communication skills and combine the understanding of mathematical concepts.

Explicitly embedding employability skills in units of competency

This Training Package seeks to ensure that industry-endorsed employability skills are explicitly embedded in units of competency. The application of each skill and the level of detail included in each part of the unit will vary according to industry requirements and the nature of the unit of competency.

Employability skills must be both explicit and embedded within units of competency. This means that employability skills will be:

- embedded in units of competency as part of the other performance requirements that make up the competency as a whole
- explicitly described within units of competency to enable Training Packages users to identify accurately the performance requirements of each unit with regards to employability skills.

This Training Package also seeks to ensure that employability skills are well-defined and written into units of competency so that they are apparent, clear and can be delivered and assessed as an essential component of unit work outcomes.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

The following table contains examples of embedded employability skills for each component of a unit of competency. Please note that in the examples below the bracketed skills are provided only for clarification and will not be present in units of competency within this Training Package.

Unit component	Example of embedded employability skill
Unit title	Give formal presentations and take part in meetings. (communication)
Unit descriptor	This unit covers the skills and knowledge required to promote the use and implementation of innovative work practices to effect change. (initiative and enterprise)
Element	Proactively resolve issues. (problem solving)
Performance criteria	Information is organised in a format suitable for analysis and dissemination in accordance with organisational requirements. (planning and organising)
Range statement	Software applications may include email, internet, word processing, spreadsheet, database or accounting packages. (technology)
Required skills and knowledge	Modify activities depending on differing workplace contexts, risk situations and environments. (learning) Work collaboratively with others during a fire emergency. (teamwork) Instructions, procedures and other information relevant the maintenance of vessel and port security. (communication)
Evidence guide	Evidence of having worked constructively with a wide range of community groups and stakeholders to solve problems and adapt or design new solutions to meet identified needs in crime prevention. In particular, evidence must be obtained on the ability to: • assess response options to identified crime-prevention needs and determine the optimal action to be implemented • in consultation with relevant others, design an initiative to address identified issues. (initiative and enterprise).

SIT10107 Certificate I in Tourism (Australian Indigenous Culture)

Modification History

Not applicable.

Description

This qualification provides the skills and knowledge for an individual to be competent in basic practical tourism skills. The qualification is entry level and may provide a pathway to a range of job roles in the tourism and hospitality industries and in particular, in enterprises with an Indigenous focus.

Work would be undertaken in an office environment where the planning of tourism products and services takes place, in the field where tourism products are delivered or a combination of both. The field includes any destination, local or regional area, tourist precinct, site, attraction or onboard form of transportation.

The qualification reflects the role of individuals who perform a defined range of mostly routine and predictable work activities. They work under clear direction and may participate in a team.

The qualification is suitable for an Australian apprenticeship pathway and for VET in Schools delivery.

Job roles

Individuals with this qualification are able to work in specialist tourism or cultural enterprises that deliver Australian Indigenous experiences. They may be a tour operator or operate a site or cultural or heritage centre. The qualification is designed to reflect the very specific role of an Australian Indigenous person or other individual approved of by local elders who shares aspects of his or her culture with visitors in an informal way.

Possible job titles include:

- Indigenous storyteller
- assistant in an Indigenous cultural centre
- assistant Indigenous guide.

Prerequisite requirements

There are no prerequisites for entry to this qualification.

Description

This qualification provides the skills and knowledge for an individual to be competent in a defined range of basic tourism technical skills.

Work would be undertaken in an office environment where the planning of tourism products and services takes place, in the field where tourism products are delivered or a combination of both. The field includes any destination, local or regional area, tourist precinct, site, attraction or onboard form of transportation.

The qualification reflects the role of individuals who perform a range of mainly routine tasks, using limited practical skills and fundamental operational knowledge in a defined context. They work under direct supervision.

The qualification is suitable for an Australian apprenticeship pathway and for VET in Schools delivery.

Job roles

Individuals with this qualification are able to work in many tourism industry sectors and enterprise types. This qualification is very flexible and is designed to meet a broad range of basic tourism industry needs. It recognises the diversity of tourism operations and the increasing industry trend for operators to provide specialised tourism products. The types of enterprise to which this qualification may apply include retail travel agencies of any sort, tour wholesalers, tour operators of any sort (e.g. coach, camping, cruise boat, four-wheel drive or walking), attractions, cultural and heritage sites and any small tourism business requiring multi-skilled employees.

In some sectors of the industry there are no job outcomes at Certificate II level. Specialist Certificate III qualifications should be selected for the appropriate job outcome, e.g. guiding, travel consultancy or tour coordination.

Possible job titles include:

- office assistant for a small tour operator
- documentation clerk for a tour wholesaler
- receptionist and office assistant in a professional conference organiser
- receptionist and office assistant in a retail travel agency
- retail sales assistant in an attraction
- museum attendant.

SIT40107 Certificate IV in Tourism (Guiding)

Modification History

Not applicable.

Description

This qualification provides the skills and knowledge for an individual to be competent in a broad range of highly-developed technical guiding skills or specialisation in a limited range of skills and knowledge.

Work would be undertaken in the field where tourism products and services are delivered. The field includes any destination, local or regional area, tourist precinct, site, attraction or onboard form of transportation.

The qualification reflects the role of individuals who use well-developed skills and a broad knowledge base in a wide variety of contexts. They apply solutions to a defined range of unpredictable problems, and analyse and evaluate information from a variety of sources. They may provide leadership and guidance to others with some limited responsibility for the output of others.

The qualification is suitable for an Australian apprenticeship pathway.

Job roles

Individuals with this qualification are able to work in multiple tourism industry sectors and enterprise types. They may work for inbound tour operators, outbound tour wholesalers, local tour operators, at cultural and heritage sites, in marine and national parks and attractions, or may be owner-operators of small tourism businesses. Because guiding is an occupation that relies on a knowledge base, guides at this level may have specialist knowledge of particular destinations, local areas or regions, sites, tourist precincts or any subject matter. Local guides have a broad knowledge base and deliver tours across a particular city, local area or region. Specialist guides at this level operate tours to remote area destinations and others manage extended touring programs within and outside Australia.

Possible job titles include:

- local guide, tour guide and senior tour guide
- tour manager or tour director
- interpretive guide and senior interpretive guide
- remote area guide
- outdoor recreation guide or tour leader
- museum guide and heritage guide
- cultural guide and senior cultural guide
- nature-based guide and senior nature-based guide
- adventure guide
- walking guide
- specialist guide

SIT40207 Certificate IV in Tourism

Modification History

Not applicable.

Description

This qualification provides the skills and knowledge for an individual to be competent in a broad range of highly-developed technical tourism sales and marketing, operational or tour delivery skills. The qualification allows for multi-skilling or for specialisation in a limited range of skills that specifically relate to either tourism operations or marketing coordination.

Work would be undertaken in an office environment where the planning of tourism products and services takes place, in the field where tourism products are delivered or a combination of both. The field includes any destination, local or regional area, tourist precinct, site, attraction or onboard form of transportation.

The qualification reflects the role of individuals who use well-developed skills and a broad knowledge base in a wide variety of contexts. They apply solutions to a defined range of unpredictable problems, and analyse and evaluate information from a variety of sources. They may provide leadership and guidance to others with some limited responsibility for the output of others.

The qualification is suitable for an Australian apprenticeship pathway.

Job roles

Individuals with this qualification are able to work in any sector of the tourism industry as senior personnel or supervisors. Tourism industry senior personnel will often specialise in certain fields; most often in operational functions or marketing roles. In the retail travel sector, personnel often specialise in corporate or leisure travel. (There is a specialist qualification at Certificate IV for tour guide job roles.)

Possible job titles for the operations specialisation include:

- senior operations coordinator
- operations supervisor
- assistant manager - tour operations
- reservations sales or call centre supervisor
- senior or supervisory retail consultant, corporate or leisure.

Possible job titles for the marketing specialisation include:

- sales coordinator or sales executive
- marketing coordinator
- product coordinator
- promotions officer
- account manager - corporate.

SIT40809 Certificate IV in Holiday Parks and Resorts

Modification History

Not applicable.

Description

This qualification reflects the role of individuals who work in supervisory positions in holiday parks, and who use well-developed skills and a broad knowledge base in a wide variety of contexts. They apply solutions to a defined range of unpredictable problems, and analyse and evaluate information from a variety of sources. They may provide leadership and guidance to others with some limited responsibility for the output of others.

The qualification is suitable for an Australian apprenticeship pathway.

Job roles

Individuals with this qualification are able to work as supervisors in holiday parks and resorts. This may be in a specialised area such as front office, housekeeping or grounds maintenance, or involve multi-skilling across different operational areas. Possible job titles include:

- Front office supervisor
- Operations supervisor
- Assistant manager
- Grounds and maintenance supervisor

SIT50107 Diploma of Tourism

Modification History

Not applicable.

Description

This qualification provides the skills and knowledge for an individual to be competent in a broad range of managerial skills in tourism operations, marketing and product development, underpinned by a range of operational competencies chosen as electives. The qualification allows for multi-skilling or for specialisation in a limited range of skills that specifically relate to operations management or marketing and product development.

Work would be undertaken in an office environment where the planning of tourism products and services takes place, in the field where tourism products are delivered or a combination of both. The field includes any destination, local or regional area, tourist precinct, site, attraction or onboard form of transportation.

The qualification reflects the role of individuals who possess a sound theoretical knowledge base and use a range of specialised, technical or managerial competencies to plan, carry out and evaluate the work of self or a team.

The qualification is not suitable for an Australian apprenticeship pathway.

Job roles

Individuals with this qualification are able to work in any sector of the tourism industry as a senior departmental manager, manager or owner-operator of any style of small tourism business. Some managers at this level will specialise in certain fields; in the tourism industry personnel tend to specialise in operational functions or marketing and product development roles.

Possible job titles include:

- visitor information centre manager
- operations manager
- manager - tour operations
- manager - cultural tour operations
- inbound groups manager
- reservations manager or call centre manager
- retail travel agency manager
- visitor information centre manager
- director (owner-operator small tourism business)
- manager (owner-operator small tourism business)
- sales manager
- marketing manager
- product manager

SIT50207 Diploma of Events

Modification History

Not applicable.

Description

This qualification provides the skills and knowledge for an individual to be competent in a broad range of event management skills, including significant communication, planning and organisational skills. This is underpinned by a detailed knowledge of the event management process.

Event organisation and management takes place across the full spectrum of business and community activity. The qualification has particular relevance in the community, cultural, hospitality, sporting and tourism sectors. Work would be undertaken in both an office environment where event planning and organisation takes place, and at an event site.

The qualification reflects the role of individuals who possess a sound theoretical knowledge base and use a range of specialised, technical or managerial competencies to plan, carry out and evaluate the work of self or team.

The qualification is not suitable for an Australian apprenticeship pathway.

Job roles

Individuals with this qualification are able to work in a range of organisations where event management takes place, and such organisations are diverse in nature. Examples include professional conference organisers, exhibition and event management companies, sporting associations, community organisations, hospitality and cultural venues.

Possible job titles include:

- event coordinator
- venue coordinator
- conference coordinator
- exhibitions coordinator.

Prerequisite requirements

There are two alternative pathways for entry into the Diploma of Events. The candidate must either:

1. Have achieved a Certificate III qualification in an events-related area. Certificate III qualifications which are particularly relevant include those in the areas of:
   - business
   - entertainment
   - hospitality
   - museums and libraries

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

- music
- sport and recreation
- tourism.

OR

2. Have paid or voluntary employment experience at an operational, coordination or management level in an events-related field. A current or previous job role that involves or has involved the application of skills and knowledge relevant to the staging and management of functions and events would be appropriate. As a minimum, employment experience must reflect the breadth, depth and complexity of a qualification at Certificate III level, as defined in the AQF guidelines.

SIT60107 Advanced Diploma of Tourism

Modification History

Not applicable.

Description

This qualification provides the skills and knowledge for an individual to be competent in wide-ranging, highly specialised technical tourism skills covering operations, sales, marketing, product development, business planning, and human resource and financial management. These strategic management skills are underpinned by a range of operational competencies, chosen as electives.

Work would be undertaken in an office environment where the planning of tourism products and services takes place, in the field where tourism products are delivered or a combination of both. The field includes any destination, local or regional area, tourist precinct, site, attraction or onboard form of transportation.

The qualification reflects the role of individuals who analyse, design and execute judgements using wide-ranging technical, creative, conceptual or managerial competencies. Their knowledge base may be specialised or broad. These individuals are often accountable for group outcomes.

The qualification is not suitable for an Australian apprenticeship pathway.

Job roles

Individuals with this qualification are able to work in any sector of the tourism industry as a senior manager, general manager or owner-operator of any style of tourism business.

Possible job titles include:

- managing director
- director
- general manager
- general manager sales and marketing
- director of sales and marketing
- strategic marketing manager
- general manager operations
- director of operations
- business development manager.

SIT60207 Advanced Diploma of Events

Modification History

Not applicable.

Description

This qualification provides the skills and knowledge for an individual to be competent in wide-ranging, highly specialised technical event management skills with a strategic research, planning and communication focus. Event organisation and management takes place across the full spectrum of business and community activity. The qualification has particular relevance in the community, cultural, hospitality, sporting and tourism sectors.

Work would be undertaken in both an office environment where event planning and organisation takes place, and at an event site.

The qualification reflects the role of individuals who analyse, design and execute judgements using wide-ranging technical, creative, conceptual or managerial competencies. Their knowledge base may be specialised or broad. These individuals are often accountable for group outcomes.

The qualification is not suitable for an Australian apprenticeship pathway.

Job roles

Individuals with this qualification are able to work in a range of organisations where event management takes place, and such organisations are diverse in nature. Examples include professional conference organisers, exhibition and event management companies, sporting associations, community organisations, hospitality and cultural venues.

Possible job titles include:

- event manager
- venue manager
- conference manager
- exhibitions manager.

Prerequisite requirements

There are two alternative pathways for entry into the Advanced Diploma of Events. The candidate must either:

1. Have achieved the Diploma of Events.

OR

2. Have paid or voluntary employment experience at a coordination or management level. As a minimum, employment experience must reflect the scope and range of competencies in a Diploma of Events.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to provide arrival and departure services to guests in commercial accommodation establishments. It requires the ability to check daily arrivals, allocate rooms, check guests in and out of their accommodation and complete invoicing of guest charges. It does not include receiving and processing reservations, which are addressed in SITTTSL007B Receive and process reservations and SITTTSL010B Control reservations or operations using a computerised system.

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit

This unit has application to all types of commercial hospitality venues where accommodation is provided. It applies to such venues as hotels, pubs, motels, caravan parks, hostels, bed and breakfast providers, lodges and farm stays of any style, grade or size and to enterprises operating seasonal temporary accommodation.

Frontline operations and customer service personnel who operate with some level of autonomy or under limited supervision and guidance from others are responsible for providing accommodation reception services. They would require considerable product knowledge of all aspects of the accommodation venue and could apply discretion and judgement within predefined organisational reception service procedures. Common job roles would include front office receptionist, hotel receptionist and owner-operators of small tourism operations, e.g. bed and breakfast accommodation and

- ability to complete guest registration and departure and reporting documentation accurately and on multiple occasions
- ability to provide accommodation reception services for different customer types with various reservation requirements, in a range of accommodation types.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure:

- demonstration of skills within a fully equipped industry-realistic accommodation front office environment, as defined in the Assessment Guidelines, using appropriate telephones, computers and printers
- access to a computerised or manual front office reception system currently used by hospitality industry operators to control guest registration and accounting function
- use of industry-current front office reservations, accounting and reporting documentation
- interaction with others to demonstrate the interpersonal communication aspects of this unit.

Methods of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess the practical skills and knowledge required to provide front office reception services. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation of the candidate providing arrival and departure services, including financial transactions
- role-play to assess ability to deal with differing customer queries, requests or complaints
- case studies to complete arrival or departure processes and documentation for different customer scenarios
- written and oral questioning or interview to test knowledge of the accommodation product and the relationships between different sectors of the tourism industry
- review of front office records, reports and computer data completed by the candidate
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate.

Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to check and reconcile daily financial transactions and records, and produce reports relating to a commercial accommodation establishment's trading and revenue.

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit

This unit has application to all types of commercial hospitality venues where accommodation is provided. It applies to such venues as hotels, pubs, motels, caravan parks and hostels of any style, grade or size and to enterprises operating seasonal temporary accommodation.

This function may be undertaken by front office reception personnel or night auditors during periods of minimal customer activity at the front desk. They would operate with some level of autonomy or under limited supervision and guidance from others. However, in many establishments the night audit function is completed on an ongoing basis throughout the day by computerised systems.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to provide porter services within a commercial accommodation establishment. It requires the ability to check and plan for daily arrivals, assist guests with luggage and provide ancillary services for guests.

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit

This unit has application to all types of hospitality venues where accommodation is provided. It applies to such venues as hotels, pubs, motels, bed and breakfast providers, lodges and farm stays of any style, grade or size and to enterprises operating seasonal temporary accommodation.

Porter and ancillary services are associated with bell desk or concierge in a large commercial accommodation venue. Within small accommodation establishments, reception or other staff would carry out these services.

Frontline customer service personnel who operate with some level of autonomy or under limited supervision and guidance from others are responsible for providing porter services. They would require considerable product knowledge of all aspects of the accommodation venue and could apply discretion and judgement within predefined organisational service procedures. Common job roles would include porter, bell desk attendant, concierge, front office receptionist, hotel receptionist and owner-operators of small tourism operations, e.g. bed and breakfast accommodation and farm stays.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

The following skills must be assessed as part of this unit:

- correct use of personal protective equipment
- cleaning techniques for premises and equipment
- organisational skills to prepare equipment and materials for a given cleaning context
- literacy skills to interpret product labels and safety instructions
- numeracy skills to calculate the dilution requirements of chemical and cleaning products.

The following knowledge must be assessed as part of this unit:

- cleaning procedures for various surfaces and equipment, including wet and dry
- correct cleaning chemicals, equipment and procedures for cleaning various surfaces and materials
- enterprise procedures and standards in relation to presentation of premises
- safe work practices relating to use of cleaning equipment, bending and manual handling
- applications of different types of cleaning products
- the essential features of and safe practices for using common hazardous substances used by the tourism and hospitality industry and in particular substances used by the organisation e.g. cleaning products and chemicals
- the environmental impacts of cleaning premises and equipment and minimal impact practices to reduce these especially those that relate to resource, water and energy use
- correct and environmentally sound disposal methods for waste and in particular for hazardous substances.

Methods of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation of cleaning and maintenance activities
- oral or written questioning to assess knowledge of cleaning and maintenance procedures, materials equipment and hazardous substances and efficient resource use
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate.

Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended.

Assessing employability skills

Employability skills are integral to effective performance in the workplace and are broadly consistent across industry sectors. How these skills are applied varies between occupations and qualifications due to the different work functions and contexts.

Employability skills embedded in this unit should be assessed holistically with other relevant units that make up the skill set or qualification and in the context of the job role.

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

cooking and serving food items

- identification, selection and use of typical commodities, herbs and spices, condiments, thickening and flavouring agents, and seasonal delicacies relevant to the particular Asian cuisine and appropriate cookery methods
- evaluating quality of dishes and food items, including blending and balancing flavours and aromatics, correct flavour structure, correct acid balance, correct colour and plate presentation
- safe work practices, particularly in relation to bending, lifting and using cutting implements, appliances, heated surfaces and other equipment that carries a risk of burns
- logical and time-efficient work flow, including maintaining a tidy workstation
- waste minimisation techniques and environmental considerations in relation to Asian appetisers and snacks
- problem-solving skills to deal with shortages of food items, mistakes or problems in commodities or meals produced, and equipment failure
- literacy skills to read requirements of orders and recipes
- numeracy skills to calculate quantities and portions against menus and orders.

The following knowledge must be assessed as part of this unit:

- culinary terms related to particular Asian cuisines, including regional variations
- cuisine characteristics, and cultural and religious practices related to food preparation, presentation and consumption, typical menu items, order of service, typical accompaniments and garnishes
- kitchen and service culture, including kitchen organisation
- effects of cooking techniques on nutrition, taste, texture and appearance, and chemical reactions possible with certain food items, e.g. curries, chutneys and pickles
- typical food allergies and consequences
- principles and practices of personal and professional hygiene related to working in a kitchen, including appropriate uniform and other personal protective equipment.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, the range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

EVIDENCE GUIDE

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency

Evidence of the following is essential:

- ability to prepare a variety of snacks and appetisers within realistic time constraints using cookery methods appropriate to the style of cuisine
- knowledge of cuisine style, including cultural considerations, typical commodities, culinary terminology and equipment
- preparation of a variety of appetisers and snacks relevant to a particular cuisine, using authentic and appropriate ingredients
- application of food hygiene and OHS principles and procedures.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure:

- demonstration of skills within a fully equipped, operational commercial kitchen suitable for Asian cooking, including industry-current equipment, as defined in the Assessment Guidelines
- industry-realistic ratios of kitchen staff to customers
- preparation of dishes for real customers within typical workplace time constraints.

Methods of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation of practical demonstration of preparing and presenting appetisers and snacks for Asian cuisine
- sampling of dishes prepared by the candidate
- written or oral questions to test knowledge of Asian cuisine styles, cultural aspects, typical commodities, safety issues and food quality indicators
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate, such as menus and photographs.

Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended.

workplace time constraints.

Methods of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation of practical demonstration of preparing curry powders and pastes, together with required sauces and accompaniments
- sampling and tasting of dishes containing curry powders and pastes prepared by the candidate
- written or oral questions to test knowledge of curry powders and pastes, their source herbs and spices, cuisine styles, cultural aspects, use and importance of typical commodities and flavourings, safety issues and food quality indicators
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate, such as menus and photographs.

Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended.

Assessing employability skills

Employability skills are integral to effective performance in the workplace and are broadly consistent across industry sectors. How these skills are applied varies between occupations and qualifications due to the different work functions and contexts.

Employability skills embedded in this unit should be assessed holistically with other relevant units that make up the skill set or qualification and in the context of the job role.

EVIDENCE GUIDE

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency

Evidence of the following is essential:

- ability to develop menus within a cuisine
- knowledge of cuisine style, including cultural considerations, commodities, culinary terminology and equipment
- principles of costing menus
- knowledge of yield from raw materials, wastage and stock control
- planning and developing a menu within a particular Asian cuisine, including complementary and sequential menu items
- costing of a specific menu, including working within budgetary constraints
- ability to undertake menu planning and design in consultation with others.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure:

- review of menus developed and implemented by the candidate within a real work setting.

Methods of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- written or oral questions to test knowledge of menu planning and costing, yield from raw materials, wastage and stock control cuisine styles, cultural aspects, and menu design and printing
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate, such as menus planned and implemented, samples of printed menus and photographs.

Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended.

Assessing employability skills

Employability skills are integral to effective performance in the workplace and are broadly consistent across industry sectors. How these skills are applied varies between occupations and qualifications due to the different work

EVIDENCE GUIDE

- knowledge of one pot cuisine, including cultural considerations, commodities, culinary terminology and equipment, timing and sequencing
- safe occupational health and food hygiene practices for preparing, cooking, presenting and storing one pot cuisine.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure:

- demonstration of skills within a fully equipped, operational commercial kitchen suitable for Asian cooking, including industry-current equipment, as defined in the Assessment Guidelines
- industry-realistic ratios of kitchen staff to customers
- preparation of dishes for real customers within typical workplace time constraints.

Methods of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation of practical demonstration of preparing and presenting one pot cuisine, sauces and accompaniments
- sampling of dishes prepared by the candidate
- written or oral questions to test knowledge of one pot cuisine styles, cultural aspects, use and importance of typical commodities and flavourings, safety issues and food quality indicators
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate, such as menus and photographs.

Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended.

Assessing employability skills

Employability skills are integral to effective performance in the workplace and are broadly consistent across industry sectors. How these skills are applied varies between occupations and qualifications due to the different work functions and contexts.

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, the range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency

Evidence of the following is essential:

- ability to prepare Chinese roast meats and poultry, sauces and accompaniments within realistic time constraints using a range of appropriate cookery methods
- preparation of a range of roasted meats and poultry, sauces and accompaniments relevant to the particular Asian cuisine, using authentic and appropriate ingredients
- knowledge of cuisine style, including cultural considerations, commodities, culinary terminology and equipment
- safe occupational health and food hygiene practices for preparing, cooking, presenting and storing roast meats and poultry.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure:

- demonstration of skills within a fully equipped, operational commercial kitchen suitable for Asian cooking, including industry-current equipment, as defined in the Assessment Guidelines
- industry-realistic ratios of kitchen staff to customers
- preparation of dishes for real customers within typical workplace time constraints.

Methods of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation of practical demonstration of preparing and presenting roast meat, poultry, sauces and accompaniments
- sampling of dishes prepared by the candidate
- written or oral questions to test knowledge of Asian cuisine styles, cultural aspects, use and importance of typical commodities and flavourings, safety issues and

EVIDENCE GUIDE

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency

Evidence of the following is essential:

- collection of direct, indirect and supplementary evidence showing preparation and service of multiple items for a minimum of 12 complete food service periods to ensure integration of skills and consistency of performance in different circumstances
- use of a range of Asian cookery methods appropriate to menu items
- production of a range of menu items to industry and enterprise standards of quality
- safe food hygiene and work practices
- ability to multi-task and respond to multiple demands and requests simultaneously
- ability to work as part of a team in a positive and courteous manner
- preparation of Asian dishes for customers within the typical workplace time constraints of a busy commercial kitchen.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure:

- use of a wide range of suitable ingredients for preparing, cooking and serving Asian food items for a menu
- demonstration of skills within normal operating conditions of a fully equipped commercial kitchen suitable for Asian cooking, including industry-current equipment, as defined in the Assessment Guidelines
- industry-realistic ratios of kitchen staff to customers.

Methods of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation of the candidate working as part of a kitchen team
- sampling of menu items produced by the candidate
- evaluation of customer feedback about menu items and speed and timing of service
- written or oral questions to test knowledge about Asian commodities, cookery techniques, equipment and food hygiene

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

The following skills must be assessed as part of this unit:

- logical and time-efficient work flow
- knife handling techniques
- cutting techniques for foods as required for menu items
- hygienic handling of food and equipment according to local, state or territory and national regulatory requirements
- safe work practices according to OHS principles and procedures, particularly with regard to using knives
- cleaning techniques for kitchen equipment
- problem-solving skills to deal with minor problems, such as shortages of ingredients
- literacy skills to read recipes, menus, instructions and orders
- numeracy skills to calculate portions, and weigh and measure quantities of ingredients.

The following knowledge must be assessed as part of this unit:

- the key characteristics and uses of the main categories of food items and those that are

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

particularly used in the organisation
- menu and recipe requirements for the particular style, products and cuisine being served
- expected numbers of customers to be served
- full details of food safety procedures used in kitchen operations and the particular food safety regime for the organisation
- correct handling and storage requirements for different types of food
- applications of different types of cleaning products
- the essential features of and safe practices for using common hazardous substances used within kitchens and in particular substances used by the organisation e.g. cleaning products
- the environmental impacts of cleaning equipment and preparing food and minimal impact practices to reduce these especially those that relate to reusable resources, water and energy use
- correct and environmentally sound disposal methods for kitchen waste and hazardous substances.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, the range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency

Evidence of the following is essential:
- ability to organise efficient, resource effective preparation of a variety of foods according to expected numbers of customers and to maximise profitability and minimise negative environmental impacts
- ability to use a range of cookery and preparation methods appropriate to the cuisine
- ability to undertake duties according to organisational hygiene, health and safety practices
- knowledge of food safety procedures and correct handling and storage requirements for different types of food
- knowledge of correct and environmentally sound disposal methods for kitchen waste and in particular for hazardous substances
- ability to organise and prepare a wide variety of general food items within the timeframe required by a commercial kitchen..

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure:

- demonstration of skills within normal operating conditions of a fully equipped commercial kitchen including industry-current equipment
- industry-realistic ratios of kitchen staff to customers.

Methods of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation of the candidate preparing food
- inspection of food items prepared by the candidate
- written or oral questions to assess knowledge of preparation techniques, handling and storage requirements for various food types, hazardous substances and efficient resource use
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate.

Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example:

- any Asian Cookery unit
- any Commercial Cookery and Catering unit
- any Patisserie unit.

Assessing employability skills

Employability skills are integral to effective performance in the workplace and are broadly consistent across industry sectors. How these skills are applied varies between occupations and qualifications due to the different work functions and contexts.

Employability skills embedded in this unit should be assessed holistically with other relevant units that make up the skill set or qualification and in the context of the job role.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

The following skills must be assessed as part of this unit:

- logical and time-efficient work flow
- use and characteristics of a range of equipment used for the required methods of cookery
- safe work practices, particularly in relation to bending and lifting, and using cutting implements, appliances, heated surfaces and other equipment that carries a risk of burns
- waste minimisation techniques and environmental considerations in relation to different cookery methods
- problem-solving skills to deal with problems such as shortages of food items, mistakes or problems in commodities or meals produced, and equipment failure
- literacy skills to read menus, orders and instructions
- numeracy skills to calculate quantities and portions against orders.

The following knowledge must be assessed as part of this unit:

- food classification for the major food groups
- characteristics of different foods and appropriate cookery methods

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

- underlying principles of all basic methods of cookery
- culinary terms commonly used in association with the required methods of cookery
- effects of different cookery methods on the nutritional value of food
- principles and practices of personal and professional hygiene related to working in a kitchen, including appropriate uniform and personal protective equipment.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, the range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency

Evidence of the following is essential:

- ability to prepare dishes on more than one occasion within realistic workplace time constraints using a range of cookery methods
- knowledge of major food groups, culinary terminology and equipment as they relate to the required methods of cookery
- application of hygiene and safety principles and procedures during the cooking process.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure:

- demonstration of skills within a fully equipped operational commercial kitchen, including industry-current equipment, as defined in the Assessment Guidelines
- demonstration of cookery methods with commodities from the major food groups, including different menus and food items
- access to appropriate utensils, cutlery and equipment to undertake the full range of basic cookery methods, including poaching, stewing, braising, roasting, deep and shallow frying, boiling, atmospheric and pressure

EVIDENCE GUIDE

steaming, grilling and baking
- use of authentic ingredients.

Methods of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation of the candidate using the required cookery methods
- sampling of dishes prepared by the candidate
- written or oral questions to test knowledge on suitable cookery methods for particular food items, safety issues and food quality indicators
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate, such as menus and photographs.

Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example:

SITXFSA001A Implement food safety procedures.

Assessing employability skills

Employability skills are integral to effective performance in the workplace and are broadly consistent across industry sectors. How these skills are applied varies between occupations and qualifications due to the different work functions and contexts.

Employability skills embedded in this unit should be assessed holistically with other relevant units that make up the skill set or qualification and in the context of the job role.

3 Decorate pastries, pastry products, cakes and yeast goods.	3.1 Decorate pastries and pastry products, cakes and yeast goods to enhance appearance, using suitable fillings, icings, sauces and decorations, to standards recipes and enterprise standards.
4 Portion and store pastries, cakes and yeast goods.	4.1 Apply portion control to minimise wastage. 4.2 Store cakes and pastry products to minimise spoilage and wastage.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

The following skills must be assessed as part of this unit:

- logical and time-efficient work flow
- organisational skills and teamwork
- safe work practices, in particular in relation to use of machinery and hot ovens and surfaces
- waste minimisation techniques and environmental considerations in relation to pastry, cakes and yeast goods
- problem-solving skills to deal with problems such as failure of cakes to rise, batter too moist and overcooking
- literacy skills to read menus, recipes and task sheets
- numeracy skills to calculate portions, and weigh and measure quantities of ingredients.

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

The following knowledge must be assessed as part of this unit:

- varieties and characteristics of pastries, cakes and yeast-based products, both classical and contemporary
- past and current trends in pastries, cakes and yeast-based goods
- underlying principles of making pastry and yeast-based products, including basic food science in relation to yeast
- nutrition related to pastries, cakes and yeast-based goods
- culinary terms related to pastries, cakes and yeast-based goods commonly used in the industry
- principles and practices of hygiene, particularly in relation to handling pastes and dough
- storage of cakes and pastries to maintain freshness and quality
- costing, yield testing and portion control for pastries, cakes and yeast-based goods.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, the range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency	Evidence of the following is essential: • preparation of a variety of different types of pastries, cakes and yeast-based goods, with at least one from each category of pastes • preparation of dishes for customers within typical workplace time constraints • detailed understanding of the different nature and handling requirements of each type of pastry.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • demonstration of skills within a fully equipped operational commercial kitchen or pastry kitchen, including industry-current equipment, as defined in the Assessment Guidelines • access to specific equipment for the preparation of pastries, cakes and yeast goods, including templates and cutting guides, dough mixers and rolling pins, cake tins, moulds and forms, piping bags, nozzles and decorating accessories • use of authentic ingredients • industry-realistic ratios of kitchen staff to customers.

Methods of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct observation of the candidate handling and preparing pastries, cakes and yeast-based goods • sampling of pastries, cakes and yeast-based goods made by candidate • written or oral questions to test knowledge of underlying principles of making pastry and yeast-based products • review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate. Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example: SITHCCC013A Prepare hot and cold desserts.
Assessing employability skills	Employability skills are integral to effective performance in the workplace and are broadly consistent across industry sectors. How these skills are applied varies between occupations and qualifications due to the different work functions and contexts. Employability skills embedded in this unit should be assessed holistically with other relevant units that make up the skill set or qualification and in the context of the job role.

SITHCCC015A Plan and prepare food for buffets

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to plan and prepare foods for buffet situations. There is a close relationship between this unit, which covers the planning, preparation and cooking of food items for buffets, and SITHCCC019A Plan, prepare and display a buffet, which is a more advanced unit and focuses on the overall planning, design and display of buffets.

Buffets may be associated with functions; special occasions and celebrations; and breakfast, lunch or dinner service.

Food items for buffets may be derived from classical or contemporary recipes and from varying ethnic origins. Buffet items may be selected to meet the requirements of particular cultural groups, or a particular cultural theme.

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit

This unit applies to all hospitality and catering enterprises where buffets are prepared and served such as restaurants, hotels and other catering operations. It applies to cooks who usually work as part of a team and under supervision.

Licensing/Regulatory Information

Not applicable.

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, the range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency

Evidence of the following is essential:

- knowledge of food safety requirements in relation to bulk cooking
- safe work practices in relation to manual handling, use of equipment and heated surfaces
- ability to produce bulk food and maintain quality outcomes.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure:

- demonstration of skills within a fully equipped operational commercial kitchen with industry-current equipment as defined in the Assessment Guidelines, including full coordination of more than one bulk cooking operation
- access to specific bulk cooking systems and equipment, including bratt pan
- use of authentic ingredients.

Methods of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- evaluation of reports prepared by the candidate detailing the processes used for an actual bulk cooking operation, including key factors for success and lessons to be learned for future operations
- direct observation of the candidate using bulk cooking equipment
- sampling of dishes prepared as part of a bulk cooking operation
- oral or written questions to assess knowledge of commodities, and techniques and features of bulk cooking operations to maintain quality, storage and food hygiene
- case studies to assess ability to create procedures and systems for different bulk cooking situations
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to prepare pâtés and terrines.

Pâtés and terrines refer to any edible food that has been ground or puréed to a paste and set or baked in a container or mould. They can be made from a range of ingredients, including meats, poultry, game, seafood, fruits and vegetables. Terrines are generally of coarser consistency than pâtés and are baked in a pot (a terrine) after which they are named. Pâtés en croute are pâtés or terrines that have been baked in a pastry casing.

Pâtés and terrines can be either classical or modern, and vary in ethnic and cultural origins.

SITHCCC019A Plan, prepare and display a buffet

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to design, plan, prepare and display a buffet creatively. There is a relationship between this unit and SITHCCC015A Plan and prepare food for buffets, which deals with the planning, preparation, cooking and presentation of food items for buffets.

Buffets may be associated with various occasions and situations, and may be indoors or outdoors.

The design of the total concept, selection of food items and display will vary according to customer requirements, occasion and type of buffet.

Decorations and centrepieces can be designed and made, or selected and organised according to enterprise practices or customer requests. They may be carved, moulded or assembled and can be made from edible or non-edible materials.

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit

This unit applies to all hospitality and catering enterprises where buffets are prepared and served, such as restaurants, hotels and other catering operations. It applies to cooks in a senior position who may supervise a team and who are responsible for their own work outputs.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

The following skills must be assessed as part of this unit:

- logical and time-efficient work flow
- waste minimisation techniques and environmental considerations in relation to the planning and display of buffets
- artistic skills and creativity relating to design and presentation of buffets
- techniques for the attractive presentation and display of food, centrepieces and decorations
- problem-solving skills to deal with breakdowns in systems or equipment
- literacy skills to review information about customer preferences
- communication skills to liaise with customers and team members, clarify requirements, provide information, and listen to and interpret information and non-verbal communication
- numeracy skills to calculate quantities of commodities and other ingredients required for a given number of guests.

The following knowledge must be assessed as part of this unit:

- design process for buffets, including:
  - balance of dish types
  - nutritional considerations
  - colour and style
  - appropriateness of food items for buffets
  - operational constraints
  - costing issue
- principles and practices of hygiene, particularly related to issues surrounding buffet service
- legislation on food safety related to service of food for buffets.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, the range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency

Evidence of the following is essential:

- project or work activities that allow the candidate to plan and coordinate the actual operation of a buffet within typical workplace time constraints
- safe food preparation and handling procedures and practices regarding service and storage of food for buffets
- ability to present buffets attractively with artistic flair
- detailed understanding of the different nature and handling requirements for buffet food items, decorations and centrepieces
- efficient organisation and planning skills regarding work flow, service and physical layout of buffets.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure:

- demonstration of skills within a fully equipped operational commercial kitchen, including industry-current equipment, as defined in the Assessment Guidelines
- access to specific equipment for buffet preparation, including suitable display crockery for buffets and buffet service equipment, such as chafing dishes
- use of authentic ingredients
- industry-realistic ratios of kitchen staff to customers.

Methods of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- evaluation of the content and presentation of a buffet planned and coordinated by the candidate
- oral or written questions to assess knowledge of buffet design issues and options
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate.

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

The following skills must be assessed as part of this unit:

- food presentation techniques
- portion control and waste minimisation
- teamwork and communication
- safe work practices, particularly in relation to bending and lifting, and using cutting implements, appliances, heated surfaces and other equipment that carries a risk of burns
- problem-solving skills to deal with problems such as shortages of food items, over or undercooked food, pressure of work and kitchen conditions
- literacy skills to read menus, recipes and task sheets
- numeracy skills to weigh and measure quantities of ingredients.

The following knowledge must be assessed as part of this unit:

- characteristics of different foods from all main food categories served in the enterprise and appropriate cookery methods
- standard recipes
- mise en place procedures
- basic principles and methods of cookery
- principles and practices of planning and organising work
- principles and practices related to food safety
- nutrition in relation to meeting specific dietary requirements under direction
- culinary terms commonly used in the industry and enterprise.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, the range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

	items for a minimum of 12 complete food service periods to ensure integration of skills and consistency of performance in different circumstances • use of a range of cookery methods appropriate to menu items • production of a range of menu items to industry and enterprise standards of quality • safe food hygiene and work practices • ability to multi-task and respond to multiple demands and requests simultaneously • ability to work as part of a team in a positive and courteous manner • preparation of dishes for customers within the typical workplace time constraints of a busy commercial kitchen.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • use of a wide range of suitable ingredients for preparing, cooking and serving food items for food service • demonstration of skills within normal operating conditions of a fully equipped commercial kitchen, including industry-current equipment, as defined in the Assessment Guidelines • industry-realistic ratios of kitchen staff to customers.
Methods of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • direct observation of the candidate working as part of a kitchen team • sampling of menu items produced by the candidate • evaluation of customer feedback about menu items and speed and timing of service • written or oral questions to test knowledge about commodities, cookery techniques, equipment and food hygiene • review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate.

EVIDENCE GUIDE

	Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended. For example, it is expected that candidates will have completed a selection of other units dealing with basic cookery skills. These must be selected according to enterprise requirements and reflect the knowledge and skills required to cook a range of menu items for a food service period in a commercial kitchen.
Assessing employability skills	Employability skills are integral to effective performance in the workplace and are broadly consistent across industry sectors. How these skills are applied varies between occupations and qualifications due to the different work functions and contexts. Employability skills embedded in this unit should be assessed holistically with other relevant units that make up the skill set or qualification and in the context of the job role.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to organise, produce and serve food for menus. It incorporates all aspects of organising, preparing, cooking and serving a variety of food items for a service period in a hospitality enterprise, using a range of cooking methods and team coordination skills. The unit integrates key technical and organisational skills required by a commercial cook. It brings together the skills and knowledge covered in individual units and focuses on the way these must be applied in a commercial kitchen.

Contexts for this unit may vary depending on the nature of the enterprise. For example, menus may be classical, contemporary or ethnic and service may be formal or informal.

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

SITHCCC029A Prepare foods according to dietary and cultural needs

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to prepare and cook foods to meet both basic and specific dietary and cultural needs, generally under instructions from others. It covers the ability to apply basic nutritional principles as well as deal with special dietary and cultural requirements normally encountered in a variety of hospitality and catering establishments. Menu planning to meet dietary and cultural needs is found in the unit SITHCCC035A Develop menus to meet special dietary and cultural needs.

Basic nutritional requirements generally refer to recommendations made in the Dietary Guidelines for Australians endorsed by the Australian government and other recognised health authorities. These guidelines include recommendations made for the general public, including infants, children, adolescents, adults and older Australians in order to maintain a healthy and balanced diet.

Special dietary and cultural requirements include therapeutic and contemporary eating regimes as well as customer requests and preferences, and specific cultural and religious needs.

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit

This unit applies to all qualified cooks in hospitality and catering operations where food and related services are provided, such as hotels and restaurants, cafeterias, kiosks, canteens, cafes, educational institutions, health establishments, defence forces, corrective services, residential catering, in-flight

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, the range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency

Evidence of the following is essential:

- ability to prepare or modify a range of dishes to meet different dietary requirements
- knowledge of the dietary requirements of major cultural groups in Australia
- knowledge of the consequences of failing to address special requirements for food allergies, diabetes and other medical conditions and customer-identified drug-food interaction
- industry-realistic ratios of kitchen staff to customers
- preparation of dishes for customers with particular dietary needs within typical workplace time constraints.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure:

- demonstration of skills within a fully equipped operational commercial kitchen, including industry-current equipment, as defined in the Assessment Guidelines
- access to specific equipment required for dietary and cultural needs, such as bulk cookery equipment used within the industry sector
- use of authentic ingredients and food items.

Methods of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation of the candidate preparing dishes to meet dietary, cultural and medical needs and preferences
- sampling of dishes prepared by the candidate
- evaluation of the suitability of dishes prepared by the candidate

	3.6 Use portion control in order to minimise waste.
4 Present food.	4.1 Present food items attractively without drips or spills and according to enterprise requirements.
	4.2 Portion food according to enterprise standards.
	4.3 Present food in appropriate hot or cold storage or presentation equipment.
5 Store food.	5.1 Store food in the correct manner according to principles and practices of hygiene and food safety.
	5.2 Monitor, account for and reorder stock when required.
6 Clean and maintain equipment.	6.1 Maintain equipment according to manufacturer instructions.
	6.2 Clean equipment as required before, during and after completion of service.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

The following skills must be assessed as part of this unit:

- a range of basic cooking skills for fast foods, including a selection appropriate to the enterprise from:
  - hot plate
  - reheating
  - microwaving
  - baking
  - roasting

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

- boiling
- chargrilling and barbecuing
- waste minimisation techniques and environmental considerations in relation to the operation of a fast food outlet
- safe work practices as required by OHS legislation and guidelines
- problem-solving skills to deal with minor problems such as shortages of food items, difficult customers, burnt or undercooked food, and poor quality commodities
- customer service and communication skills to liaise with other team members, clarify requirements, provide information and listen to and interpret information and non-verbal communication
- literacy skills to read instructions, menus, recipes, task sheets and instructions and to write labels
- numeracy skills to add up bills and calculate quantities or portions required.

The following knowledge must be assessed as part of this unit:

- principles and practices of personal and food hygiene and regulatory requirements related to food safety
- product knowledge of range of food offered.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, the range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency	Evidence of the following is essential: • application of hygiene and safety principles and procedures • ability to organise and prepare a range of foods efficiently and within realistic industry timeframes • preparation of food items for customers on more than one occasion and within industry-realistic time constraints.
Context of and specific	Assessment must ensure:

resources for assessment

- demonstration of skills in a fast food environment that contains sufficient and appropriate food service and cooking equipment for the preparation and service of fast food items to reflect commercial operating practice, including:
  - tools and utensils, such as scrapers, tongs, ladles, seasoning shakers, metal spoons and bowls
  - cooking equipment, such as microwaves, deep-fryers, hot plates, rotisseries, pans, urns, bains marie and food warmers
  - refrigeration and storage facilities
  - cash handling and storage facilities, including cash registers
- use of authentic ingredients.

Methods of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation of the candidate preparing, cooking and serving food items
- sampling of items prepared by the candidate
- inspection of a fast food service area set up and operated by the candidate
- written or oral questions to test knowledge of hygiene and OHS issues related to cooking and serving fast food
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate.

Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example:

SITHCCC001B Organise and prepare food

SITHCCC002A Present food

SITHCCC004B Clean and maintain kitchen premises

SITHCCC007A Prepare sandwiches.

sectors. How these skills are applied varies between occupations and qualifications due to the different work functions and contexts.

Employability skills embedded in this unit should be assessed holistically with other relevant units that make up the skill set or qualification and in the context of the job role.

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording in the performance criteria is detailed below.

Food outlet may include:

- food courts
- counters in canteens and cafeterias
- mobiles
- trays
- stands
- carts or caravans.

Fast food refers to food that has been prepared off site and requires re-thermalising, and to simple food items that require basic cooking or preparation techniques, and may include:

- fairy floss
- hot dogs
- pizza
- fish and chips
- hamburgers
- fried chicken
- sandwiches
- salads
- sushi
- souvlaki and doner kebabs
- noodles and pasta
- pre-prepared soups
- ice-cream and shakes
- pies

RANGE STATEMENT

	• breakfast items such as bacon and eggs, sausages, grilled tomatoes, toast and pre-prepared croissants or other bakery items.
Mise en place refers to basic preparation before service, including:	• assembling and preparing ingredients for menu items • cleaning, peeling and slicing fruit and vegetables • preparing simple food items such as salads, sandwiches, garnishes, coatings and batters • selection and handling (thawing, reconstituting, regenerating and re-thermalising) of portion-controlled and convenience products • display of goods in appropriate storage facility.
Equipment may include:	• utensils • cutlery • microwaves • deep-fryers • hot plates • rotisseries • pans and urns • bains marie • food warmers.
Cooking methods may include deep-frying and grilling and an appropriate selection from the following, according to enterprise requirements:	• hot plate • reheating • microwaving • baking • roasting • boiling • chargrilling and barbecuing.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to apply the planned process of food preparation, cooking, chilling, storage and re-thermalisation of food by cook-chill. The unit applies to food production by cook-chill methods either in an enterprise workplace or in a centralised production kitchen.

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit

This unit applies to all catering operations where cook-chill is used, such as restaurants, educational institutions, health establishments, defence forces, cafeterias, kiosks, cafes, residential catering, in-flight and other transport catering, events catering and private catering. Those undertaking this role could be working as part of a team and under limited supervision, such as cooks and catering assistants.

2 Prepare and cook food to safe industry standards.	2.1 Cook food to specified internal temperatures. 2.2 Keep microbiological and chemical changes within safe tolerances. 2.3 Maintain the quality of food consistently at the optimum level in terms of taste and appearance.
3 Chill cooked food.	3.1 Meet time and temperature standards for blast and water-bath chilling. 3.2 Ensure that food quality is maintained throughout the chilling process.
4 Store cooked food under refrigeration.	4.1 Meet time and temperature standards for storage. 4.2 Ensure that spoilage is minimised. 4.3 Store food dynamically (first in-first out). 4.4 Select appropriate containers for storage. 4.5 Ensure that labelling is correct and clear. 4.6 Monitor storage temperatures to ensure they are correct.
5 Distribute cook-chill products.	5.1 Where necessary, transport food from production kitchen to outlets by refrigerated transport or insulated containers. 5.2 Maintain safe handling of food throughout the distribution cycle. 5.3 Check and record temperature levels at dispatch and receiving. 5.4 Observe requirements of hazard analysis and critical control points (HACCP) or other food safety program during the entire cook-chill cycle, including protecting food from the temperature danger zone.
6 Re-thermalise (reheat) cook-chill food products.	6.1 Execute re-thermalisation of food to standard guidelines using appropriate methods.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

The following skills must be assessed as part of this unit:

- skills to use a temperature measuring device on a range of food products and ingredients at a range of temperatures
- problem-solving skills to deal with problems, such as equipment failure or malfunction
- literacy skills to read recipes, menus, instructions and orders
- numeracy skills to calculate portions and ingredients required and to monitor temperatures.

The following knowledge must be assessed as part of this unit:

- temperature specifications for the maintenance of food quality in the cook-chill process
- food storage requirements in relation to cook-chill
- principles and methods of cookery, including preparation and cooking techniques for all major food groups
- features of cook-chill systems, and procedures for using cook-chill equipment
- regulatory and legislative requirements for health and safety, food safety and hygiene of particular relevance to cook-chill, including national Food Standards
- high risk groups for food-borne illness and reasons for this.

- production of multiple cook-chill food items to meet differing needs
- preparation of cook-chill food items within typical work time constraints
- knowledge of OHS and food hygiene regulations.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure:

- demonstration of skills using suitable cook-chill equipment and authentic food items, including:
  - pasteurising equipment
  - packaging material
  - suitable refrigerated storage area
  - chilling equipment, such as blast chiller or ice slurry tumbler
  - vacuum sealing equipment
  - pH tester
  - thermocouple chilling equipment
  - commercial re-thermalisation equipment, such as combi-steamer
  - fixed and hand-held cooking equipment.

Methods of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation of the candidate using cook-chill equipment
- sampling of cook-chill items prepared by the candidate
- written or oral questions to test knowledge of suitable items for cook-chill systems, hygiene issues related to cook-chill systems and specifications and procedures for cook-chill

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to apply the process of cook-freeze food production, and covers receipt of goods, cooking, freezing, storing, thawing and reheating food to ensure microbiological safety and palatability.

This unit is equivalent to the unit HLTFS3A Apply cook-freeze production processes, contained within the Health Training Package.

The unit may be customised to suit enterprise-specific production processes or centralised operations and to cover specific needs. For example, a food production kitchen may not freeze cooked food and its scope of operation may involve receiving precooked and frozen food for storage, preparation, plating and distribution.

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit

This unit applies to all catering operations where a cook-freeze system is used, particularly to enterprise-based or centralised production, receiving and finishing kitchens in various institutions, including residential care facilities, hospitals, correctional centres, defence forces, restaurants, cafeterias, canteens, cafes, fast food shops, events or function catering enterprises, catering enterprises, meals-on-wheels services and in-flight and other transport catering. Those undertaking this role would usually be working as part of or supervising a team, or under limited supervision such as cooks and catering assistants.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to develop menus and meal plans for all Australians, including meeting specific dietary and cultural needs. The unit focuses on the knowledge and skills required to meet nutritional requirements in the preparation of meal plans, diets and menus. The menu may be developed with or without the direction of a dietician or medical specialist, depending on the job role. This unit does not cover preparation and cooking of food to meet dietary and cultural needs which is addressed in SITHCCC029A Prepare foods according to dietary and cultural needs. Nor does it focus on general menu planning principles involving budgetary and marketing concerns, which are covered in SITHCCC040A Design menus to meet market needs.

Evidence is required of knowledge and understanding of a range of different cultural, dietary and special requirements. However, the focus of this range will vary according to the target markets of a particular workplace. Special dietary needs include therapeutic and contemporary regimes as well as customer requests.

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

The following skills must be assessed as part of this unit:

- cookery techniques and recipe modification to suit special dietary requirements
- literacy skills to read and write menus and recipes
- communication skills to liaise with dieticians and relevant people, clarify requirements, provide information, and listen to and interpret information and non-verbal communication
- numeracy skills to calculate nutritional values of foods and menus and to calculate cost of menus.

The following knowledge must be assessed as part of this unit:

- basic principles and practices of nutrition, including:
  - nutrients and their food sources
  - influences on food choice
  - food labelling requirements and interpretation
  - food additives and preservatives
  - health implications of food choices
- Dietary Guidelines for Australians, including Dietary Guidelines for Older Australians, and Dietary Guidelines for Children and Adolescents
- dietary sensitivities, including food allergies and intolerances, diabetes and other medical conditions
- existence of drug-food interactions, and the health and legal consequences of failing to address special requirements
- commodity knowledge of ingredients suitable for meeting basic nutritional and special dietary needs
- effects of various cooking methods and food storage on nutrients.

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, the range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency

Evidence of the following is essential:

- ability to prepare a variety of menus and meal plans to meet different dietary and cultural needs
- knowledge of commodities required to meet particular dietary and cultural needs
- knowledge of the consequences of failing to address special dietary requirements
- project or work activities that allow the candidate to develop menus to meet multiple and differing dietary and cultural needs.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure:

- use of real customers with special dietary needs from different target markets.

Methods of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- evaluation of menus and meal plans prepared by candidate involving a variety of target markets and purposes
- case studies to assess ability to develop menus and meal plans for different target groups and circumstances
- written or oral questions to test knowledge of nutrition, cultural and dietary requirements
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate.

Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example:

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

- product knowledge of the menu and wine list
- structures and procedures for work flow within a food and beverage or room service location
- relevant legislation relating to OHS and food hygiene
- requirements of the relevant state or territory Liquor Act in relation to service of alcohol (please note that this should be covered by completion of SITHFAB009A Provide responsible service of alcohol).

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, the range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency

Evidence of the following is essential:

- ability to set up and serve a variety of room service orders according to enterprise needs and within typical timeframes for the preparation and service of meals
- ability to follow established legislative and enterprise procedures in the handling of food and beverages.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure:

- access to fully equipped food and beverage service area and guest rooms that include industry-current equipment and actual meals and food items
- access to specific equipment for room service, including:
- trolleys and trays
- crockery and lids
- cutlery
- glassware
- order books and documentation or electronic ordering system
- industry-realistic conditions such as typical ratios of room service staff to guest orders.

EVIDENCE GUIDE

Methods of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation of the candidate taking a room service order, preparing a room service tray and providing room service
- written or oral questions to test knowledge of menu items, hotel room location and layout, enterprise tray layout and telephone protocol
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate.

Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example:

SITHFAB009A Provide responsible service of alcohol.

Assessing employability skills

Employability skills are integral to effective performance in the workplace and are broadly consistent across industry sectors. How these skills are applied varies between occupations and qualifications due to the different work functions and contexts.

Employability skills embedded in this unit should be assessed holistically with other relevant units that make up the skill set or qualification and in the context of the job role.

Modification History

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to responsibly sell or serve alcohol and to satisfy the requirements for responsible sale and service of alcohol (RSA) under state or territory legislation.

A harm minimisation approach is central to compliance with liquor licensing legislation which, across all Australian States and Territories, imposes obligations on all licensed venues to participate in the management of public safety through the responsible sale and service of alcohol.

Those developing training to support this unit must consult the relevant state or territory liquor licensing authority to determine any accreditation arrangements for courses, trainers and assessors.

This unit covers the RSA skill and knowledge requirements common to all States and Territories. Some legislative requirements and knowledge will differ across borders. In some cases after completion of this unit, state and territory liquor authorities may require candidates to complete a bridging course to address these specific differences.

All persons undertaking training as part of a national qualification that includes the sale and service of alcohol must complete this unit. Under differing state and territory legislation it is a required unit only for certain nominated personnel operating in licensed premises.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit

Responsible practices must be undertaken wherever alcohol is served and sold, including where alcohol samples are served during on-site product tastings. This unit, therefore, applies to any workplace situation where alcohol is served and sold, including all types of hospitality venues, retail liquor outlets and tourism venues such as wineries, breweries and distilleries. Training and assessment must be contextualised so that the requirements of specific industry sectors and workplaces are met.

This unit applies to all levels of sales personnel involved in the sale or service and promotional service of alcohol in licensed premises, including the licencee when involved in sales. Those selling and serving alcohol may include food and beverage attendants; retail liquor sales persons; winery, brewery and distillery cellar door staff; supplier sales representatives and the licencee.

Elements and Performance Criteria

ELEMENT	PERFORMANCE CRITERIA
1 Sell or serve alcohol responsibly.	1.1 Sell or serve alcohol according to provisions of relevant state or territory legislation, licensing requirements and responsible service of alcohol principles. 1.2 Provide accurate information to customers on alcoholic beverages according to enterprise or house policy and government legislation, including types, strengths, standard drinks and the alcoholic percentages of a range of frequently sold alcoholic beverages. 1.3 Assist customers with information on the range of non-alcoholic beverages available for purchase. 1.4 Identify issues related to the sale and service of alcohol to different types of customers, especially those at risk, and incorporate them into sales or service.
2 Assist customers to drink within appropriate limits.	2.1 Prepare and serve standard drinks or samples according to industry requirements. 2.2 Encourage customers courteously and diplomatically to drink within appropriate limits. 2.3 Recognise erratic drinking patterns as an early sign of possible intoxication and take appropriate action. 2.4 Monitor emotional and physical state of patrons for signs of intoxication and ill effects of illicit or other drug usage. 2.5 Where appropriate, offer food and non-alcoholic beverages. 2.6 Politely decline requests for alcohol to be dispensed in a manner that is irresponsible, or which encourages the rapid or excessive consumption of alcohol, and advise customers of the reasons for the refusal.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

3 Assess alcohol-affected customers and identify customers to whom sale or service must be refused.	3.1 Assess intoxication levels of customers using a number of methods, including observing changes in behaviour, observing emotional and physical state of customers, monitoring noise levels and monitoring drink purchases. 3.2 When assessing intoxication, take into account factors that may affect individual responses to alcohol. 3.3 Identify customers to whom sale or service must be refused according to state and territory legislation, including minors, those purchasing on behalf of minors, intoxicated persons, and persons affected by the consumption of illicit and other drugs. 3.4 Where appropriate, request and obtain acceptable proof of age prior to sale or service.
4 Refuse to provide alcohol.	4.1 Refuse service in a polite manner and state reasons for the refusal. 4.2 Speak to intoxicated customers in a suitable and consistent manner, minimising confrontation and arguments and pointing out signage where relevant. 4.3 Provide appropriate assistance to customers when refusing service. 4.4 Where appropriate, give patrons a verbal warning and ask them to leave the premises according to enterprise or house requirements, the specific situation and provisions of state or territory legislation and regulations. 4.5 Use appropriate communication and conflict resolution skills in handling difficult situations. 4.6 Refer difficult situations beyond the scope of individual responsibility to the appropriate person. 4.7 Promptly identify situations that pose a threat to the safety or security of colleagues, customers or property, and seek assistance from appropriate colleagues according to enterprise policy.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

The following skills must be assessed as part of this unit:

appropriate communication and conflict resolution skills for dealing with intoxicated patrons

- literacy skills to read and comprehend documents such as ID cards, proof of age cards, driver's licences, statutory signage, warning signs and wording within advertising or promotional material, in-house policies and procedures and any general plain English regulatory and advisory information issued by local, or state and territory liquor licensing authorities
- numeracy skills to measure and calculate standard drinks or samples and calculate blood alcohol levels as they relate to alcohol consumption.

The following knowledge must be assessed as part of this unit:

- public interest reasons for implementation of responsible service of alcohol practices, including:
  - government and community concern with alcohol misuse and abuse
  - crime, violence and anti-social behaviour associated with alcohol abuse
- impact of excessive drinking on:
  - local neighbourhood and community
  - premises and staff
  - customers
  - particular types of customers who may be at heightened risk such as young people, pregnant women and minors
  - government agencies such as the local police, health facilities and road authority
- key agencies and how to source relevant information on laws, regulations and codes of practice or conduct
- current promotional and strategic community education campaigns developed and conducted by agencies and industry groups
- effects of alcohol on:
  - emotional state
  - health
  - physical alertness
- factors that affect individual responses to alcohol, including:
  - gender
  - weight
  - general health

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

- rate of consumption
- food intake
- other substances taken
- time for effects of alcohol to be registered
- standard drinks and acceptable measures of alcohol
- indicators of intoxication, including ways of assessing intoxication of customers
- ways of assessing customers affected by the consumption of illicit and other drugs
- principles of harm minimisation
- strategies laid down in legislation and codes of conduct developed by government agencies or industry groups and in-house policies that are designed to reduce the harm associated with liquor abuse
- understanding that these requirements are strategies to minimise the harm associated with liquor abuse

- knowledge and understanding of liquor laws and regulations at a depth relevant to the scope of job responsibility within licensed premises, including the following list that expresses general statements about requirements of liquor legislation and information that must be customised for each State or Territory:
  - legislative definition of intoxication
  - role of individual staff members and supervisors or managers in providing responsible service of alcohol, including seller or server duty of care and liability
  - requirement to adopt and use statutory signage on the premises for the entire range of circumstances applicable to the enterprise
  - requirements for mandatory content of any warning signs and wording within advertising or promotional material of any form, such as print advertising or internet sales
  - requirements for the remote sale and delivery of alcohol sales generated via the telephone, fax, email or mail
  - requirements for proof of age and obligations to minors under local legislation
  - provisions for retaining and reporting falsified proof of age documents
  - provisions for requiring someone to leave the premises
  - transportation options
  - barring procedures, where applicable
  - opening and closing hour provisions
  - requirements for monitoring noise and disturbances in and around licensed premises
  - requirements laid down in codes of practice or conduct developed by government agencies or industry groups
  - requirements described by an in-house policy, standard or code of practice or conduct
  - training and record keeping requirements
  - banned or undesirable products

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

- personal and business implications of breaching any laws, regulations, government or industry-driven codes of practice or conduct
- offences and penalties relating to offences
- legal restrictions on alcohol use customised to state or territory legislation, including intoxication provisions of liquor licensing laws
- legal drink and drive limits.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, the range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit	Evidence of the following is essential: • working knowledge and understanding of the relevant state or territory liquor legislation and industry codes and the ramifications of non-compliance for the enterprise and individual staff members • knowledge of underpinning reasons for and benefits of responsible service of alcohol • knowledge of principles of responsible service of alcohol and harm minimisation • ability to apply knowledge of responsible service of alcohol and harm minimisation to alcohol sales or service situations, according to the level of responsibility of the candidate's current job role or the role they are seeking.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • activities that allow the candidate to demonstrate the application of knowledge to specific responsible service of alcohol situations, which might include interaction with others to demonstrate appropriate communication skills

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

EVIDENCE GUIDE

- use of relevant and current publications, signage, information and fact sheets distributed by key government agencies and industry bodies
- use of organisations or individual trainers and assessors approved or accredited by the liquor licensing authority, where required by certain states or territories.

Methods of assessment

A range of assessment methods that comply with assessment requirements set by the relevant state or territory liquor licensing authority should be used to assess the practical skills and knowledge required to sell or serve alcohol responsibly.

Because of the nature of this unit, i.e. intoxication provisions, it may be inappropriate in a training or assessment situation to demonstrate the practical aspects of this competence in the workplace or in a realistic simulation, therefore role-plays or case studies are recommended.

The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- written and oral questioning or interview to test knowledge of legislation and all other knowledge components of this competency
- role-play by candidate to demonstrate ability to deal with intoxicated persons or refuse sales or service
- case studies and problem-solving activities
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate.

Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended.

For holistic purposes, combined training and assessment is appropriate, but determination of competency for this unit must focus on the understanding and implementation of responsible service of alcohol practices that meet the requirements of state or territory legislation.

Assessing employability skills

Employability skills are integral to effective performance in the workplace and are broadly consistent across industry sectors. How these skills are applied varies between

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording in the performance criteria is detailed below.

Accurate information may be provided to customers:

- verbally
- by use of mandatory signage
- by use of fact sheets and advertising material that comply with legislative requirements.

Issues related to the sale and service of alcohol may include:

- familiarity with specific customers
- physical stature
- demeanour and mood
- social context
- perceived health status
- perceived effects of illicit and other drug usage.

Different types of customers, especially those at risk may include:

- young customers
- women
- minors
- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders
- people from non-English speaking backgrounds
- people affected by the consumption of illicit and other drugs.

RANGE STATEMENT

include:	• general health • rate of consumption • food intake • other substances taken, especially illicit and other drugs.
Proof of age according to state or territory liquor legislation includes:	• current driving licence • proof of age card • passport.
Intoxicated:	• denotes those to whom service may be refused due to excessive consumption of alcohol • 'unduly intoxicated' may also be used in some state or territory legislation.
Signage may include:	• standard promotional signs issued by the relevant state or territory licensing authority • signs produced in-house that comply with wording required by legislation • warning notices within any form of advertising.
Appropriate assistance to customers when refusing sale or service may include:	• organising transport for customers wishing to leave • providing information on taxis • assisting the customer to connect with their designated driver • offering to sell or serve non-alcoholic drinks • offering alternatives to alcohol, including food.
Appropriate communication and conflict resolution skills may include:	• using open and non-aggressive body language • using a number of strategies to diffuse a situation, such as taking the person away from an audience or blaming the refusal on the 'law' • monitoring the reactions of other customers • picking early warning signs and intervening before the person is intoxicated • not using physical touch or body language • remaining calm and using tactful language.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to develop and maintain the general product knowledge required in food and beverage attending, bar service and catering.

The unit brings together much of the product knowledge that underpins effective work performance in a range of food service roles. It addresses food knowledge and the relationship between different foods and beverages. It focuses on the need for ongoing updating of knowledge by all food and beverage staff. Types of food for which knowledge may be required include traditional or contemporary items and may be of varying ethnic origins.

The specific product knowledge that applies to those mainly involved in beverage service is found in other units such as SITHFAB005A Provide table service of alcoholic beverages and SITHFAB002C Operate a bar. Care should be taken to avoid repetition in training and assessment.

There are also three other higher level units that deal with specialised food and beverage knowledge. They are SITHFAB013A Provide specialist advice on food, SITHFAB025A Provide specialised advice on Australian wines and SITHFAB326A Provide specialised advice on imported wines.

Some States or Territories have legislative requirements in relation to service of alcohol.

- compatibility of common food and beverage items
- common cultural and dietary issues and options
- general overview of special dietary requirements, including food exclusions for allergies and food intolerance.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, the range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency	Evidence of the following is essential: • ability to update and maintain current and relevant knowledge and apply this to the workplace • project or work activities that allow the candidate to demonstrate the application of knowledge to specific industry contexts and situations.
Context of and specific resources for assessment	Assessment must ensure: • interaction with and involvement of customers with varying requirements or requests • access to a range of sources for researching information.
Methods of assessment	A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit: • projects to research information on food and beverages • written or oral test on food and beverage knowledge • evaluation of presentation by candidate on food and beverage knowledge • workplace activity or role-play to demonstrate provision of food and beverage advice to customers • review of portfolios of evidence and third-party

SITHFAB012B Prepare and serve espresso coffee

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to extract and serve espresso coffee using a commercial espresso machine, including storage of coffee and cleaning, and care and preventative maintenance of machinery. Care and maintenance procedures may vary according to the machine manufacturer recommendations and warranty conditions. Dosage measuring may be mechanical or electronic. Dosing also refers to selecting the correct amount of ground coffee, appropriate particle grind size and prevailing conditions such as ambient humidity. An espresso coffee is the basis of most coffee-based beverages.

The unit does not cover general preparation of coffee using methods of coffee extraction other than espresso machines, which is covered in SITHFAB010C Prepare and serve non-alcoholic beverages.

The terms barista, senior barista and master barista may have different meanings to diverse individuals and groups. Some prefer to make no designation and refer to a barista as someone who is a trained and expert operator.

No licensing, legislative, regulatory or certification requirements apply to this unit at the time of endorsement.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit

This unit applies to hospitality and catering operations where espresso coffee is extracted and served. It reflects the role of an espresso machine operator (barista) and others who make coffee using a commercial espresso machine in a variety of hospitality settings.

	7.6 Use energy and water resources efficiently when preparing coffee and cleaning equipment to reduce negative environmental impacts.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

The following skills must be assessed as part of this unit:

- hygiene and food safety practices related to making, serving and storing coffee, coffee products and service equipment
- techniques for dosing, tamping and purging group head
- extraction and presentation of quality coffee
- milk texturing skills
- safe work practices when using coffee machines and other equipment, including posture at workstation
- numeracy skills to calculate and measure doses of coffee.

The following knowledge must be assessed as part of this unit:

- major coffee styles and their characteristics
- types of bean, blends and roasts with a particular emphasis on espresso roast
- key principles of coffee making
- appropriate pour rate for espresso coffee (industry recommended rate is 30 ml in 27-32 seconds depending on type of espresso coffee ordered, customer preferences and the coffee blend)
- factors that affect quality of coffee
- types of grind and grinding equipment
- types of machines and equipment and their main features and differences
- sizes and types of filter baskets, tampers and other equipment
- different milk types and their characteristics, including requirements for handling and storing milk

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

- storage conditions and requirements for coffee and commodities
- cleaning and maintenance procedures
- symptoms of potential faults in espresso machines and grinders
- sequencing and production of orders.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, the range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency

Evidence of the following is essential:

- ability to recognise quality in espresso coffee, meet customer requirements and expectations, and identify factors affecting quality and required outcomes
- ability to address problems during preparation and service of espresso coffee
- ability to extract and present quality coffee within realistic timelines
- compliance with all workplace hygiene and food safety regulations
- safe work practices in making espresso coffee.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure:

- access to a workstation with industry-current commercial espresso machine and appropriate equipment, including:
  - thermometer
  - coffee grinders or mills
  - serviceware, including cups, saucers, glasses, mugs and flatware
  - weighing and measuring equipment
  - storage bins in appropriate sizes and materials
  - blind or blank filters

EVIDENCE GUIDE

- tampers
- espresso cleaning detergent
- bins for discarded pucks or grind tubes

- access to a range of coffee types and commodities
- preparation of quantities of coffee items within industry-realistic timeframes for multiple customers simultaneously
- preparation and service of varieties of coffee types to meet various customer requirements.

Methods of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate:

- direct observation of practical demonstration of extracting and serving coffee over an entire service period
- tasting of coffee prepared by the candidate
- use of video or peer observation
- written or oral questions to assess required knowledge relating to preparing and serving espresso coffee
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate.

Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example:

SITXOHS002A Follow workplace hygiene procedures

SITHACS006B Clean premises and equipment

SITHFAB010C Prepare and serve non-alcoholic beverages.

Range Statement

RANGE STATEMENT

The range statement relates to the unit of competency as a whole. It allows for different work environments and situations that may affect performance. Bold italicised wording in the performance criteria is detailed below.

Equipment may include:

- types and brands of coffee grinders or mills and coffee machines
- serviceware, including cups, saucers, mugs and glasses of various sizes
- flatware
- weighing equipment
- measuring equipment
- tampers
- blind or blank filter and espresso cleaning detergent
- thermometer
- storage bins in appropriate sizes and materials
- bins for discarded pucks.

Enterprise requirements may include:

- policies and procedures related to persons authorised and trained to carry out particular activities related to machine operation, adjustment, cleaning and maintenance
- circumstances requiring the services of an authorised and trained technician
- specific requirements for routine and non-routine cleaning and maintenance
- requirements for checking and replacing parts and equipment
- specific requirements for decoration of coffee prior to presentation, such as stencils, logos, sprinkled toppings and coffee art
- policies and procedures for stock control, ordering and rotation.

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- training record book used as part of traineeship arrangements
- direct observation of the candidate serving food and beverage menu items in a commercial hospitality setting
- evaluation of customer feedback about service of food and beverage items, including speed and timing of service
- written or oral questions to test knowledge about service techniques, equipment and OHS requirements
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate.

Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended.

Assessing employability skills

Employability skills are integral to effective performance in the workplace and are broadly consistent across industry sectors. How these skills are applied varies between occupations and qualifications due to the different work functions and contexts.

Employability skills embedded in this unit should be assessed holistically with other relevant units that make up the skill set or qualification and in the context of the job role.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to organise, prepare and service food, and alcoholic and non-alcoholic beverages to customers. It incorporates all aspects of organising, preparing and serving a variety of menu items, and alcoholic and non-alcoholic beverage items for a service period in a hospitality enterprise, using a range of service methods and team coordination skills.

The unit integrates key technical and organisational skills required by a food and beverage attendant. It brings together the skills and knowledge covered in individual units and focuses on the way these must be applied in a commercial cafe, dining room or restaurant.

It requires taking responsibility for own output, working as part of a team and taking limited responsibility for the work of others.

State or territory licensing requirements may apply.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit

This unit applies to individuals who apply a broad range of skills and knowledge to food and beverage services in various hospitality venues and settings.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

The following skills must be assessed as part of this unit:

- planning and organising work on the floor and in the bar environment, including:
- prioritising, sequencing and monitoring tasks and procedures according to enterprise procedures
- collecting information and resources
- working within or setting timelines
- integration and application of food and beverage service skills, including mise en place, service procedures, close down and customer relations
- team coordination, task allocation and providing advice and support as required
- using safe and hygienic work practices in relation to provision of food and beverage services and according to enterprise and legislative requirements
- communication skills to read workplace documents, deal effectively with colleagues and customers, and solve problems
- numeracy skills to calculate or estimate bills, stock requirements and required ingredients, materials or equipment.

The following knowledge must be assessed as part of this unit:

- relevant legislative and regulatory requirements related to hygiene, health, safety, security and provision of hospitality products and services
- current knowledge of food and beverage menu items offered by the enterprise.

Evidence Guide

EVIDENCE GUIDE

The evidence guide provides advice on assessment and must be read in conjunction with the performance criteria, required skills and knowledge, the range statement and the Assessment Guidelines for this Training Package.

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency

Evidence of the following is essential:

- collection of direct, indirect and supplementary evidence showing provision of integrated service for a minimum of 36 complete food service periods in order to address each of the required food and beverage service styles (cafe or bistro, table d'hôte, à la carte and functions), service periods (lunch, dinner and functions) and menu items
- serving a wide range of food and beverage items for a menu
- ability to carry out a number of activities effectively and simultaneously
- ability to deal with typical issues, such as workplace time constraints, late arrivals, no-shows, walk-ins and other problems
- ability to meet, greet and interact positively with a diverse range of customers throughout the hospitality experience
- ability to maintain the cleanliness and tidiness of work areas, including dealing with disposables and recyclables
- ability to participate in the service process and work flow as part of a team and take responsibility for own work and the quality of outcomes
- compliance with relevant legislative and regulatory requirements, OHS requirements and demonstrated health and safety practices.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure:

- demonstration of skills within a fully-operational hospitality environment, including industry-current equipment and actual products and services as described in the Assessment Guidelines
- presence of industry-realistic conditions, such as commercial ratios of customers to staff typically found

SITHFAB222A Conduct a product tasting for alcoholic beverages

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to set up and conduct product tastings of alcoholic beverages.

The focus of this unit is on the practical skills to set up and conduct a tasting, underpinned by a broad general knowledge of alcoholic beverage products and a specific knowledge of products being tasted. The scope and depth of general knowledge will vary according to the work context but is broadly similar to that found in the food and beverage service unit SITHFAB005A Provide table service of alcoholic beverages.

Some states and territories have legislative requirements in relation to service of alcohol that impact on the work activities described in this unit.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit

This unit applies to those conducting product tastings of wines, beers, spirits or liqueurs. It is applicable to people working in a range of environments, such as wineries, restaurants or retail liquor outlets. It may also apply to liquor wholesalers who conduct tastings for retailers.

For those working in roles where a deeper, specialised knowledge of wines and other alcoholic beverages is required, this unit should be combined with all or some of the following units:

- SITHFAB323A Provide advice on beers, spirits and liqueurs

SITHFAB227A Operate and monitor cellar systems

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to work safely in a cellar. It includes the operation of beverage dispensing systems and the quality monitoring of beverage products.

Note that the word 'cellar' is used in its broadest sense, and means any area used as the storage location for bulk beverages and the equipment that supports its service.

The safety requirements covered by this unit reflect compliance requirements under Occupational Health and Safety legislation. Obligations under Australian Standard AS 5034-2005 Installation and use of inert gases for beverage dispensing and associated standards also apply.

States and territories also have legislative requirements in relation to service of alcohol.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit

This unit applies to any individual who has responsibility for the operation and routine monitoring of beverage dispensing equipment and for the monitoring of beverage quality in a hospitality establishment. Depending on the nature and size of the business and particular job roles, this individual may be a dedicated cellar person, a senior bar attendant, a manager or a business owner. The individual may or may not also have store person responsibilities. Safety issues and compliance requirements are a key focus of the unit.

The general knowledge and basic skills required by bar workers more generally are found in units such as SITHFAB002C Operate a bar and SITHFAB001C Clean and tidy bar areas.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

This unit has extensive application in hotels, clubs, casinos and sporting venues, but it may also be relevant in restaurants, or any other permanent or temporary catering venue where a cellar is maintained.

Required Skills and Knowledge

REQUIRED SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE

This section describes the essential skills and knowledge and their level, required for this unit.

The following skills must be assessed as part of this unit:

- communication skills to provide practical information about cellar issues to colleagues
- literacy skills to:

read and comprehend enterprise or manufacturer logbooks or incident reports, safety requirements. Standards and signage, ANZFSC codes and stock control system records record faults and equipment monitoring, testing and checking activities

- numeracy skills to effectively monitor regulators, measure temperature and calculate quantities of chemicals and cleaning agents
- problem-solving skills to identify and rectify problems with beverage quality
- technology skills to work with equipment at an operational and basic maintenance level.

The following knowledge must be assessed as part of this unit:

- general knowledge of cellar compliance requirements under various legislation, including:
  - Health Act
  - Occupational Health and Safety legislation
  - Food Standards Australia New Zealand Act 1991
- particular requirements of the Australia New Zealand Food Standard code that directly

- requirements of the various Australian standards that directly impact on cellar operations, including:

AS5034-2005 Installation and use of inert gases for beverage dispensing, and associated standards

AS3780-1994 The Storage and handling of corrosive substances

- working knowledge of beverage gas system operation, including:
  - key components of beverage dispensing systems
  - how to handle, store, connect and disconnect beverage gas cylinders (including different types of cylinder systems and different types of gas)
  - inert gas in confined spaces and the potential dangers
  - particular dangers of carbon dioxide and nitrogen
  - required fire protection equipment and other emergency and alarm procedures
  - methods and techniques for undertaking routine checks for leaks (including monitoring of regulators, drop tests, spray tests, disconnecting and re-connecting leads)
  - typical roles and responsibilities of different people in operating and maintaining the system (eg within the hospitality establishment, external contractors)
- techniques for safe lifting and handling
- procedures and safety requirements for the use and storage of hazardous substances such as chemicals and other cleaning agents, including labelling and Material Safety Data Sheets
- correct and environmentally sound disposal methods for hazardous substances
- overview knowledge of the way that beer is brewed and what this means for cellar operations
- cellar products (which must include beer) and their characteristics, including:
  - correct handling and storage
  - shelf life
  - potential faults.

EVIDENCE GUIDE

Critical aspects for assessment and evidence required to demonstrate competency in this unit

Evidence of the following is essential:

- knowledge and understanding of the safety requirements for operating cellar equipment
- ability to operate cellar equipment within those safety requirements
- ability to maintain cellar hygiene and tidiness
- ability to service and clean equipment and lines
- ability to identify and rectify quality issues affecting cellared beverages.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure:

- access to a fully operational cellar, including industry-current equipment and actual products as follows:
  - liquor storage area
  - keg area
  - post-mix system
  - two complete beer lines (from keg to beer tap)
  - manifolds
  - cool room
  - transfer leads
  - couplers
  - connectors
  - gas regulators
  - chemicals, cleaning equipment and procedures
  - safety goggles and gloves
  - approved cleaning keg or dosing unit
  - appropriate stock
- use of a typical industry manual or electronic stock control system.

Methods of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess practical skills and knowledge. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation of the candidate operating a bulk dispensing system or other cellar equipment

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

EVIDENCE GUIDE

- direct observation of the candidate carrying out maintenance of beverage system parts
- written or oral questions to test knowledge of common faults in beer, maintenance techniques for bulk dispensing systems and cellar safety issues
- review of portfolios of evidence and third-party workplace reports of on-the-job performance by the candidate.

Holistic assessment with other units relevant to the industry sector, workplace and job role is recommended, for example:

- SITHFAB002A Operate a bar
- SITXINV002A Control and order stock.

SITHFAB323A Provide advice on beers, spirits and liqueurs

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to set up and conduct product tastings of alcoholic beverages.

Some states and territories have legislative requirements in relation to service of alcohol that impact on the work activities described in this unit.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit

This unit applies to all individuals who provide advice to others about beers, spirits and liqueurs. This could include beverage wholesalers, liquor retailers, bar specialists, sommeliers, or other senior bar and restaurant personnel.

In a hospitality context, this unit builds on skills and knowledge covered in SITHFAB005A Provide table service of alcoholic beverages. In a broader context it builds on the beverage knowledge component of the unit SITHFAB222A Conduct a product tasting for alcoholic beverages.

Where an individual is responsible for cellar operations and the maintenance of draught beer systems, the unit SITHFAB227A Operate and monitor cellar systems is also relevant.

Where the job role involves the provision of advice about food and beverage matching, this unit could be combined with the unit SITHFAB324A Provide specialised advice on food and beverage matching.

SITHGAM006A Provide responsible gambling services

Modification History

Not applicable.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to provide responsible gambling services, and information to customers who require assistance with their problem gambling.

The unit also relates to satisfying the requirements for providing responsible gambling services under state and territory legislation. The terms used to describe this vary across state and territory regulatory bodies and can include responsible conduct of gambling (RCG) and responsible service of gaming or responsible service of gambling (RSG).

Those developing training to support this unit must consult the relevant state and territory gaming licensing authority to determine accreditation arrangements for courses, trainers and assessors.

Under differing state and territory legislation this is a required certification unit only for certain nominated personnel operating in licensed gambling premises.

The requirement to ensure compliance with enterprise policies, legal obligations and codes of practice for gambling venues is not covered by this unit but may be found in SITHGAM005A Develop and manage gaming activities.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit

Responsible gambling services must be provided wherever gambling activities are undertaken. In the hospitality industry, the gambling environment is usually referred to as the gaming area and is provided in a range of venues such as hotels, motels, clubs, pubs and casinos.

© Commonwealth of Australia, 2025 Service and Creative Skills Australia

Gambling is defined as the staking of money on uncertain events driven by chance. The major forms of gambling are wagering (racing and sport) and gaming (gaming machines, table games, Keno and lotteries). Both forms of gambling are relevant to the hospitality industry.

Hospitality venues operate Totalisator Agency Board (TAB) outlets for wagering on racing and sport events. They also cover the full range of gaming activities, including the operation of gaming machines, table games, Keno and lotteries.

The responsible provision of gambling services is an essential underpinning skill for any level of hospitality personnel involved in the sale and service of gambling activities in licensed premises, including the licencee, gaming supervisors and gaming managers when involved in operational gambling activities.

The unit applies equally to frontline operational gambling personnel who operate with a limited level of autonomy and under some supervision and guidance from others. They would operate within the predefined organisational procedures and industry and regulatory authority codes of conduct.

Operational job roles would include gaming attendant, table game attendant, croupier and multi-skilled food and beverage attendant.

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to operate a range of table games in a licensed casino. It requires the ability to open, close and operate the table game by selecting and setting up appropriate equipment, handle chips effectively, reconcile the chip float, monitor the game for irregularities and suspicious play, and work safely and according to enterprise-specific procedures and approved rules of the game.

It does not cover the operation and application of rules for specific table games which are covered by a range of specialised units e.g. SITHGAM008A Deal a Baccarat game or SITHGAM009A Conduct a Big Wheel game.

Those developing training to support this unit must consult the relevant state or territory gaming licensing authority or regulator to determine accreditation arrangements for training organisations, courses and trainers and assessors.

Under some state or territory legislation this is a required occupational licensing unit for those personnel operating in licensed casinos who are required to hold a gaming licence to conduct table games.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit

This unit covers the day-to-day operation of table games operated in the gaming area of licensed casinos. Games vary and have different rules but the skills and knowledge required to operate the table for any style of game are covered in this unit.

The unit applies to frontline operational gambling personnel, known as dealers, who operate with a limited level of autonomy and under some supervision and guidance from others. They

EVIDENCE GUIDE

- compliance with enterprise procedures and approved rules for the operation of table games, especially those covering game protection and security issues
- operation of table games on multiple occasions to ensure consistency of performance
- operation of table game activities across multiple game types to ensure that skills can be efficiently applied to different games
- operation of table game activities within typical workplace time constraints.

Context of and specific resources for assessment

Assessment must ensure:

- operation of table games within a fully equipped table gaming environment using gaming tables, associated equipment and gaming chips
- use of current plain English regulatory documents distributed by the local gaming regulatory authority and codes of conduct issued by regulatory authorities or industry groups
- access to current enterprise procedures and approved rules for the operation of table games
- interaction with table games supervisors
- interaction with customer groups of a size and nature that reflect the commercial casino environment in which table games are operated.

Methods of assessment

A range of assessment methods should be used to assess the practical skills and knowledge required to operate table games. The following examples are appropriate for this unit:

- direct observation of the candidate setting up, operating and closing down table games
- evaluation of chip handling and counting exercises
- role-plays and problem-solving activities to test reaction to gaming irregularities and suspicious play incidents
- written and oral questioning or interview to test knowledge of legislative requirements, contents of enterprise procedures and approved rules, and roles and responsibilities of various staff members in gaming compliance practices

Unit Descriptor

Unit descriptor

This unit describes the performance outcomes, skills and knowledge required to conduct the game of Roulette in a licensed casino. It requires the ability to operate the Roulette wheel, accept wagers and pay out winnings according to enterprise-specific procedures and approved rules of the game.

It does not cover the general operational activities required to operate any type of table game, such as setting up and closing down the table, handling chips effectively, reconciling the chip float and monitoring the game for irregularities and suspicious play. These activities are covered within the co-requisite unit SITHGAM007A Operate table games.

Those developing training to support this unit must consult the relevant state or territory gaming regulatory authority to determine accreditation arrangements for training organisations, courses and trainers and assessors.

Under some state or territory legislation, personnel who conduct table games within a licensed casino are required to hold an individual and occupational gaming licence. They are also required to achieve competence in the units which cover the conduct of the particular table games that they operate. This is one of a suite of units that may have to be achieved to comply with their occupational licence.

Application of the Unit

Application of the unit

This unit covers the day-to-day operation of a specific table game operated in the gaming area of licensed casinos. The game of Roulette must be conducted according to approved rules of the game. These rules and organisational procedures are determined by the casino and approved by the state or territory regulatory authority responsible for licensing the casino.

This unit applies to frontline operational gambling personnel, known as dealers, who operate with a limited level of autonomy, under some supervision and guidance from others and within predefined procedures and rules. This unit could also apply to casino personnel who supervise the operation of table games, such as the pit boss and pit manager.
